London, April 9.—Two of the most interesting items of war news this morning came from the respective capitals of the Free State and the Transvaal. The Post correspondent in Bloemfontein says that civilians and ladies have been ordered to leave there, while a telegram from Pretoria states that some thousands of bayonets have been manufactured for the use of foreigners in the Boer service. It has always been understood that the Boer army have no bayonets, and that probably these bayonets have been made for the captured British rifles. The mere fact that the civilians and ladies are leaving Bloemfontein does not necessarily suggest that the situation is considered serious by Lord Roberts, but there is little doubt that his communications are not so safe to-day as they were a fortnight ago.

GOVERNOR OF LADYSMITH.

One of General Buller's Officers Received the Appointment.

London, April 9.—The Devon and Exeter Gazette announces that Major Currie, of the Devonshire regiment, who was with General Buller's column, has been appointed commandant at Ladysmith with the rank of Lieutenant-colonel.

To Dismount.

The wheelmen of Lindsay had a meeting on Friday night and agreed to dismount whenever they met a pedestrian, provided they were permitted to use the sidewalks. Not only this, but they also promised to enter into an agreement to inform on any wheelmen who failed to observe this rule. If an arrangement of this kind is lived up to, there can be no possible harm in giving wheelmen the use of the sidewalks. We would suggest that they also be required to dismount on each street corner, so as to avoid the danger of collision.

Another Fencing Lesson.

The people of Picton contemplate starting a joint stock pork packing establishment in that town. The business men and citizens propose to subscribe a sufficient amount to put the establishment on a sound footing. The Cobourg Post adds: "When will the business men and citizens of Cobourg go in for a similar industry here? We have frequently pointed out the advantage of such a factory, and cannot conceive why our people are so slow to undertake it." Peterborough has the finest packing house in Eastern Canada, and our friends who contemplate going into the business should remember that enormous capital is required to conduct a paying business.

A Serious Trouble.

An eastern editor says that a man in that section got himself into trouble by marrying two wives. A western editor replies by assuring his contemporary that a good many men in that section had done the same thing by marrying one. A northern editor reports that quite a number of his acquaintances found trouble enough by promising to marry without going any further. The editor of this paper says a friend of his was bothered enough when simply found in company with another man's wife.

CHICAGO'S RENOVANCE.

Chicago has reached that point of development where she has resolved not merely to defy the hated Briton, but to ignore his existence. To Chicago, henceforth, there is no such place as England, and the young Chicagoan is not even to be taught that England ever was.

English history has been ruled out of the curriculum of the Chicago public schools. Only American history is hereafter to be admitted. It may be presumed that England will be mentioned incidentally in the course of the American history, but only as Spain is mentioned, as a meddling foreigner that got the worst of it.

The comprehensive ideas that the young Chicagoan will thus obtain of the origin of American institutions and of the historic evolution of the world in general, it is unnecessary to dwell upon. Not even in the politics of the wild and woolly West has there been a more brilliant triumph of ignorance.

UNION WITH NEWFOUNDLAND.

Ahead the recent discussion of union with Newfoundland in Parliament, the St. John, N.B., Telegraph fittingly comments that there are two reasons, and only two, why Canada should desire to obtain Newfoundland, and neither of them is particularly urgent. The first is that Newfoundland in a measure commands the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and if it were in the possession of an enemy our interests would suffer. The second is that Canada and Newfoundland own certain fisheries almost in common, and that the island might injure Canadian trade by favouring our rivals at our expense. Yet while we may give weight to these reasons they are not decisive, because Newfoundland is not asking for admission into the Canadian confederation. When she does ask it will be time for us to move. Nor must it be forgotten that there are reasons against union as well as in favor of it. One reason is the enormous debt of Newfoundland, which is twice as great per head of population as that of Canada. Another is the state of the French shore question, which is still unsettled, and which, if Newfoundland became a part of Canada, would be certain to involve us in great difficulties.

These reasons are certainly not decisive. These reasons are certainly not decisive but they are at least important, and deserve to be seriously considered. Newfoundland will be a part of Canada sooner or later, but whether sooner or later depends on the people of that island themselves.

We Meet the Hero.

Ed Tufts of Los Angeles was playing golf with a friend. When he drove from the third teeing ground, he drove the ball badly and sent it away to one side. It stopped in front of a graying cow, and Tufts came up just in time to see it disappear into the bovine mouth. When his opponent had made his stroke, Tufts withdrew the cow and, with many sounding thrashes of his club, drove the ball to the third hole. There he made her disgorge the ball and, seeing he had it, announced that he had made the hole in two strokes. His opponent calmly fished the hole in seven and claimed the hole.

"But I made it in two," protested Tufts gleefully.
 "No, you didn't," declared the other. "You made it in 30. You hit that cow 27 times, for I counted every stroke," and Tufts conceded the hole.—San Francisco Argonaut.

SHAVING ACCIDENTS.

THE BARBER DISCUSSES THEM WITH THE MAN IN HIS CHAIR.

Chances to Cut Throats That Are Not Often Taken Advantage Of—Narrow Escapes From Serious Mishaps—A Barber's Dream.

"Did it ever strike you," asked the little barber, "how easy it would be for the man that shaves you to kill you?"

The man in the chair sat up quickly and looked carefully at the barber, who was feeling the edge of the razor with one finger. The barber smiled to reassure his customer and said:

"It seems a queer question, I know, but it is a wonder to me that there are not a number of people killed in that way every year. It would be the easiest thing in the world for the barber as he wielded his razor to make one sweep with it and sever the jugular vein, and you would be dead almost on the instant. Suppose, for instance, that the barber should go insane. There would be nothing to prevent his doing such a thing, and you would have no warning nor any opportunity to save yourself.

"There is always a chance of a serious accident happening to the man in the chair. I have seen a number of such accidents and have a horror of even nicking the man I am shaving. In fact, such an occurrence makes me feel out of sorts for the rest of the day. It was only a few days ago that I almost had an accident that gave me a great fright and completely unnerved me. I was shaving a young man, and in passing from one side of the chair to the other a button of my waistcoat caught in his hair. It pulled a trifle, and he moved his head suddenly just as I went to put the blade to his face. I came within an ace of slashing him, and only a quick jump back saved him. The perspiration stood out on me, and I had to call one of the other men to finish shaving my customer.

"But the worst accident I ever saw in a barber shop occurred while I was working in a small town in the west. One of the patrons of the place was a business man whose 8-year-old daughter was lying at the point of death. Her father put in most of his time at her bedside. One afternoon while she was asleep he came in here to get shaved. He was so exhausted through lack of sleep that he fell asleep immediately after he had taken his seat in the chair next to the one behind which I was at work.

"He dreamed that some one had come into the place to tell him that his child had died. With a cry of alarm he started up just as the barber laid the razor against his neck. Into the flesh it sank. He was not yet thoroughly awake, and as he imagined that some one was holding him back from his child he threw out his hand to free himself, and his fingers closed over the blade of the razor. So dazed was he that he could not realize what had happened, but sat there in the chair, with the blood streaming from his throat and fingers.

"The man who had done the cutting was the first to act, although half crazed. He hurried for a doctor while we stanchied the flow of blood the best we knew how. Even as the doctor was at work sewing up the wounds a messenger came to say that the little girl had died suddenly in the greatest agony, calling for her father just before she died. He was under the influence of ether at the time and did not know, but afterward, when he heard of the circumstances attending her death, he insisted that he had heard her call as he lay there asleep in the chair and that it was her cry that had caused him to make his sudden movement.

"For years after the accident he continued to shave in the same shop where it had occurred, and it was never mentioned. He carried a reminder of it for the remainder of his life. In addition to the scar on his throat, the fingers of his right hand were all drawn up and useless.

"Sudden movements while in the barber's chair are always apt to be attended with serious results, and I could recall dozens of instances where it has been only the merest chance that has prevented serious if not fatal mishaps. Nine times out of ten where the person getting shaved receives a nick and lays the blame on the barber he should thank the wielder of the razor that it was so worse. The probabilities are that it was quick action by the barber that prevented a bad cut. A slight nick often would have been a case for the doctor or coroner were it not for the watchfulness of the barber. Here yesterday I happened to draw blood from a young fellow's face near his ear, and he made a great fuss about it, until I showed him that it was only the sudden withdrawal of the razor which resulted in the slight nick that prevented him losing a good part of his ear. Then he was grateful and thanked me, besides promising to be more careful in the future.

"But there are other ways the barber has of getting even," continued the little barber after re-lathering one side of his customer's face. "There is no need of his slashing a man. He can inflict injuries that will make his victim decidedly uncomfortable, and at the same time the latter will not be aware of what is being done." What the barber meant by this last remark his victim did not ask.—New York Sun.

Art Treasures in Japan. The Japanese idea in regard to art treasures is quite different from the American idea, as even in the home. The American method is to keep all the good pictures or beautiful bronzes or unique vases in evidence all the time. Care in the Selection Business

ANNUAL MEETING

The Annual Meeting of this Company was held at the Head Office, Montreal, on the 28th inst., when the Directors' Report and Financial Statement were submitted.

Mr. James Crathern, President of the Company, occupied the chair, and Mr. David Burke, the General Manager, acted as Secretary.

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

In presenting their Annual Report and Financial Statement for the year ending December 31st, 1899, your Directors have pleasure in calling attention to the satisfactory results of the business for the year.

Income.

The premiums and interest received in cash during the year amounted to $68,158.55, showing an increase over the past year of $38,762.07, or over 130 per cent. The increase in premiums alone has been even more marked in proportion, such increase being $36,422.91 or over 148 per cent.

Death Claims.

The Company paid out during the year in Death Claims $2,000, under two policies of $1,000 each on two separate lives, but only one became a claim during the year, the other occurred in 1898 and was unpaid at the end of the year, awaiting the usual proofs of death, but was included as a liability due of $1,000 in the Statement for that year.

The total Death Claims since the Company commenced business have amounted to only $4,000 on three lives insured, which indicates that much care has been exercised in the acceptance of risks.

Application Received and Insurance Issued.

The application for insurance received reached $1,205,998, of which $1,112,730 was accepted by the Company, and policies issued thereunder to the number of 764; the balance, $93,268, was declined or deferred as not being up to the Company's requirements.

Insurance in Force.

The insurance in force on the Company's books at December 31st, 1899, amounted to $1,707,807, under 1,129 policies. The average amount insured under each policy in force being $1,512 and the average amount on each life insured $1,623.

GENERAL INCREASE DURING THE YEAR.

	1899	1898	Increase
Turned Assets	$203,188.25	$228,616.64	$25,428.39
Unclaimed Received	14,500.12	60,928.03	46,427.91
Reserves	24,363.35	70,287.73	45,924.38
Applications Received	1,205,998.00	1,200,000.00	5,998.00
Insurance Issued	770,577.00	1,112,730.00	342,153.00
Insurance in Force	921,377.00	1,707,807.00	786,430.00

Security for Policyholders.

The Assets of the Company now amount to $232,616.64, being an increase during the year of $29,417.38, which together with the guaranteed Capital of the Company makes $1,032,616.64 of security for liabilities to policyholders of $70,287.73 for lives on insurance in force on December 31st, according to Government valuation.

Premium Rates and Reserves.

In conformity with the amendment to the Insurance Act passed by the Dominion Government at the last Session of Parliament, this Company has adopted premium rates based on the Institute of Actuaries' H. M. Table with 3 1/2 per cent. interest for all new policies issued after January 1st, 1900. On all such policies the company will maintain Reserves on a 3 1/2 per cent. interest basis. The effect of this conservative basis for both premiums and Reserves must give still greater confidence in the foundation on which our business rests.

Boards of Reference.

Since the last Annual Meeting the Directors have established Local Boards of Reference at Toronto and Ottawa, and the following resident shareholders have appointed members of such Boards:

Toronto: Sir Thos. W. Taylor, Ex-Chief Justice of Manitoba, Donald Mackay, Esq., Vice-President Ontario Bank, W. J. Gage, Esq., President W. J. Gage & Company, Ltd., Geo. Burn, Esq., General Manager Bank of Ottawa.

Ottawa: John MacLaren, Esq., MacLaren & McLaurin, Lumber Merchants, W. D. Hogg, Esq., Q. C., O'Connor, Hogg & Magee.

The vacancy on the Manitoba Board caused by Sir Thos. W. Taylor taking up residence in Toronto, has been filled by the appointment of Mr. Jas. T. Gordon, Winnipeg.

The Company's Agents.

The Directors wish to express their high appreciation of the efforts of the Agents of the Company in accomplishing such a satisfactory increase in the business during the year.

Certificate of Auditors.

The books, vouchers, and securities of the Company have been audited by Messrs. Macintosh & Hyde, Chartered Accountants, and their Certificate is herewith attached to the Financial Statement.

Retiring Directors.

The Directors retiring this year are Messrs. Jonathan Hodgson, H. N. Bate, David Morris, Gaspard LeMoine and Edmund B. Osler, all of whom are eligible for re-election for the incoming term of three years.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

DAVID BURKE,
General Manager.JAMES CRATHERN,
President.

DAVID BURKE, A. I. A., F. S. S., GENERAL MANAGER.Audited and found correct,
MACINTOSH & HYDE,
Chartered Accountants and Auditors.

There was a large attendance of prominent shareholders, including Messrs. Geo. H. Hogg, C. F. Smith, David MacFarlane, Henry Morton, Rev. E. Scott, Geo. Cavourhill, Hon. F. E. Gilman, John Ross, James Crathern, Jonathan Hodgson, T. G. Roddick, M. D., M. P., John Cassile, E. P. Hannifford, C. S. J. Phillips, Gaspard LeMoine, David Burke, Geo. E. Hart, Andrew F. Gault, Jas. Wilson, Samuel Finlay, C. J. Hodgson, Jas. Elliot, Thos. Bell, J. B. Patten, J. O. Gravel, Edward Maxwell, Geo. Dunsford, B. A. Danson, and others.

"On comparing the results of the year 1899 with 1898 I find the earnings (received and accrued) in the former year, which was our first, complete year of operations, fell a little short of our organization and ordinary expenses, while the earnings on the business of 1899, notwithstanding the consequent increase in expenditure in connection with the increased volume of business secured, computed on identically the same business as for 1898, gives a balance in our favor of 1899 of over $32,500. With the volume of business and the premium revenue therefrom now on the Company's books, the Directors feel safe in predicting an increase in future earnings on a similar basis proportionate with the increasing business of the Company.

"Referring to the average risk on lives insured by the Company, great care and attention have been given to obtain a safe average in the amount of insurance carried on each life, which the Report shows to be about $1,600. The average age of the policyholders now insured in the Company is 31 years. In the selection of desirable business, the younger ages are considered preferable as having a longer average existence on the books of the Company. While this applies more directly to life policies, the effect is also shown in the selection of longer periods for Endowment policies by those of younger ages, requiring lighter premiums which will tend no doubt to retain a larger proportion of Insurance each year on the Company's books.

"All these matters directly favor the building up of a Life Insurance Company, enabling it to retain its accumulated funds for a longer period, which is important both to the policyholder and to the Company."

Mr. Andrew F. Gault, Vice-President:—"In seconding the adoption of the Report it affords me much pleasure to express my gratification at the very satisfactory report, and statement of the Company's business now submitted to the shareholders. The Company has been carefully managed, and its death claims have been exceptionally small, which can be accounted for by the great care exercised in accepting only the best business offered. The Company's progress since it commenced business has been equal with any of the best managed offices, and the building up has been on a solid foundation. There is no doubt but that the Company's position as an important factor in the Life Insurance business of this country is now established."

Dr. T. G. Roddick, M. P., Medical Director, on referring to the very favorable mortality experienced so far by the Company, paid a high tribute to the Doctors who made the examinations, and stated that in every case the Examiners had protected the Company's interests in a manner most satisfactory to himself and to the management.

The Directors' Report was unanimously adopted.

Scrutineers having been appointed by the President, a ballot was taken which resulted in the retiring Directors being unanimously re-elected for three years.

At a meeting of the Board subsequently held Mr. James Crathern was re-elected President, Messrs. Andrew F. Gault and Hon. L. J. Forget re-elected Vice-Presidents, and Dr. T. G. Roddick elected Medical Director.

THE ARCTIC MOSQUITO.

It is About the Most Terrible Insect Pest in the World.

"Nothing that has ever been written about the arctic mosquito begins to come up to the real thing," said a guest in the St. Charles corridor the other evening. "I went up the Yukon river in the summer of 1896, representing the Alaska and Dominion Trading Company, and we struck mosquitoes as soon as we got into the hills. They are twice as large as our familiar bayou species, and their sting is like the prod of a hot needle. They sweep along the valleys in dense clouds, and if they catch a man unprepared they are liable to blind him before he can escape. I heard stories of children being stung to death and can readily believe them."

"Whenever we went ashore we wore heavy hat nets and took the utmost precaution, but were certain to suffer more or less. One of our party cut the tongues out of his shoes, and a narrow line of sock was exposed under the lacing. Next day he was bitten there at least a hundred times, and his feet were so terribly inflamed that the shoes had to be cut off."

"Another man, a fireman in the boat crew, got drunk on Alaska whisky one afternoon and lay down to take a nap in a corner of the engine room. I noticed him a little later and was horrified at the solid brown mass of mosquitoes that had settled on a small exposed section of his cheek and throat. In an hour his face was swollen out of all resemblance to anything human, he was unable to swallow and was burning with fever. It was a week before he was able to be about. I saw a number of cattle near Fort Hamilton that had been made stone blind by stings near the eye."

"The arctic foothill mosquito is without doubt the most terrible insect pest in the world."—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

A recent traveler in Mexico, who visited the mines there during his journey, says that he was much astonished at seeing the men who carry the ore come out of the mine, each with one eye shut.

The foreman, explaining the matter, said the candles belonging to the lanterns (which drill and blast) do not give sufficient light in the drifts, where it is consequently quite dark, but, where, nevertheless, the lanterns are well enough not to run their heads against the rock, but on emerging into the light they would be blinded, and they not take precautionary measures."

For this reason, as they approach the mouth of the shaft, at the point where they catch the first glimpse of light they drop the eyelid of one eye and keep it down while they are discharging their ore and until they have descended the shaft and when they are again in the dark, they open the eye kept hidden in reserve and at once everything is all right, while the

A PICKPOCKET'S RUSE.

The Trick by Which He Once Got a Woman's Purse.

Jack Piggett, the noted pickpocket, used to tell a funny story about the difficulty he had in picking the pocket of a fashionably dressed woman who was looking in at the window of Shreve's jewelry store. It illustrates the hardships that the light fingered gentry are forced to endure in the pursuit of their profession and when first related was considered amusing not only by Piggett, but by the many to whom he confided his experience.

It was a cold winter evening, and the lady on whose purse Piggett had designs stood looking at the holiday finery so temptingly displayed. Piggett said that he tried all the arts known to his craft for the extraction of the wallet, but all in vain, until, as a last resort, he fished a toothpick from his pocket and, reaching around, tickled the lady's ear. Instinctively she raised her hand to brush away the invading insect or whatever it might be and in so doing let go of her pocketbook that she was carrying in the pocket of her coat.

It was only an instant, but it was long enough for the expert pickpocket to get in his work, and when she put her hand back her money was gone, and in the crowd around her she could not identify the pale faced, fashionably dressed young man at her side as the person who had robbed her, and if she had accused him there would have been no proof against him, as the swag was at once passed to a pal who stood ready to receive it and run. Piggett was not even arrested for that crime, and the lady's indignant outburst furnished material for much local gossip.—San Francisco Bulletin.

THOSE BOER LADIES.

By Middle Life They Are Almost Too Fat to Walk.

The Boer woman is very little like the trim, handsome Dutchwoman of her ancestral Holland. She is seldom pretty. Her complexion is her principal charm, and she guards this carefully whenever she goes out. She is never seen outdoors without a great peaked bonnet on her head, her visits to church being made behind as almost oriental seclusion of veils. This is necessary to preserve the pink and white of her skin, for the climate would otherwise soon tan it to the color of sole leather. Her eyes are small, and set close together, and her features are irregular. Her cheeks are broad and flat, and her hair is naturally light in color, although time and weather soon bleach it from its early straw color. At a very early age she loses all her teeth, for she is constantly chewing sweet cakes and confectionery.

A European woman would replace the molars that nature has deprived her of with well mounted works of art, but the Boer woman does not do this. She thinks it would be impious thus to try to duplicate the work of the Creator. Her figure is thick and almost waistless. While still a young woman she begins to grow fat, and by the time middle life is reached she is often so unwieldy that the only exercise she is able to take is to waddle cumbrously from one armchair to another. She is clad in a loose, scantily made gown, devoid of trimming and apparently waistless. The day garments of the Boers are also their nightclothes, so the gown is generally wrinkled.

The Architect. One must wonder why it really is that so little is said or thought about architecture, the grandest, the mother, of all arts, a great, a most useful, science, one in which a greater revolution has lately taken place and in which more progress has been made, with more stupendous results, than in any other, remarks a writer in The International Magazine.

Was it not Richelieu who, paraphrasing an ancient writer, said: "If it is versatility you seek, go find an architect. He must be an artist, or his buildings will offend the eye; an engineer, or they will crumble into trouble; a lawyer, or he will get his patrons into trouble; a doctor, or his buildings will be hygienically unfit to live in, and, last, but not least, he must be a gentleman, or we will have nothing to do with him."

Time to Give Up.

An Iowa judge recently related an amusing incident that had occurred in his court when a colored man was brought up for some petty offense. The charge was read, and as the statement "The state of Iowa against John Jones" was read in a loud voice the colored man's eyes bulged nearly out of their sockets and he seemed overcome with terror and astonishment. When he was asked if he had anything to say or pleaded guilty or not guilty, he gasped out:

"Well, yo' honab, ef de whole state o' Iowa is ag'in dis one pore nigger I'm gwine to give up right now!"

GLIMPSES OF SOUTH AFRICA.

Peace and in War—A Splendid Lot of Views

Southern Africa, that enormous expanse of tropically verdant territory extending from the Zambesi River to the Cape of Good Hope, has for a century or more lain dormant to the eyes of the civilized world. Only within the past two decades has public attention been drawn to the wonderful natural resources and mineral wealth of this wild and rugged land, and yet, within this period, marvellous creation of brilliant modern cities have supplanted the desert lands and haunts of savage tribes. The steady march of civilization, the all-pervading ambition to accumulate the wealth of diamonds and gold that lay beneath the crust of this benighted land, each has borne its part in the metamorphosis and beaded to the world the wonderful possibilities of that "Dark Continent" for the energy and enterprise that the 20th century will bring to light.

In no other country of the world has progress been marked with such adversity and strife as Africa. From the time the early Dutch settlers landed in the Cape Colony up to the present, there have existed almost a constant state of warfare; the natives disputing the advance of the Dutch and they in turn resenting the incursions of civilization. In spite of this, no strenuous were the efforts of the colonists in their determination to return to account the best of the land, to secure the land of their adoption, that to-day they enjoy the fruits of their successes in a paradise of tropical vegetation, a salubrious climate and surrounded by the highest advantages of intellectuality and luxuries of civilization.

Cape town is the metropolis and seat of government of the Cape Colony. Its historical past and present is firmly linked in the traditions of the early Dutch and the Huguenots. True, the old forts and buildings of distinctly Dutch architecture still remain, but nestled in South Africa and the progress of the war, and so eager the thirst for information, coupled with the demand for a pictorial history incident to the scenes of warfare, that the publication of "Glimpses of South Africa" has been undertaken upon a scale of grandeur, fidelity and completeness never before thought of, involving as it has an expense of extraordinary magnitude. In order that the work might be absolutely reliable and thorough in its character, the publishers have contracted for its authorship with Mr. Wynbille Flemming, an African who whose authority upon South African matters is world-wide and acknowledged. This gentleman, born in the Cape Colony, having traveled over nearly every inch of the country south of the Zambesi River and lived in South Africa for nearly thirty years, with an extensive newspaper experience, in Africa, England and America, the author of many interesting sketches of South African life and scenery, formerly connected with the consular service at Port Elizabeth, whose comments on the war have been so favorably received by the American press, and whose magnificent collection of photographs will appear in this work—will present South Africa as it is to-day, with views of everything of public interest, including most of the important scenes of battle and a graphically illustrated description of each stage in the progress of the war.

Port Elizabeth is the Liverpool of South Africa. It is a great commercial centre, coupled with some of the largest shipping interests in the world; a city of the most modern type, essentially English in character, and possessing some of the largest as well as the most architecturally magnificent buildings and public institutions in South Africa.

Natal is the beautiful, tropical Garden Colony. Its luxuriant vegetation and glorious climate, its wide avenue of trees and fine buildings, the native Zulu warriors and the picturesque costumes of the Oriental land an air of peace and tranquillity while the march of civilization and progress are in evidence at every turn.

In Johannesburg, the Golden, with its fine architectural creations, public institutions and parks, possesses many attractions that easily place it as the second city of South Africa. Its gold industry, mining, the apparent inexhaustible veins of gold-bearing earth, in which upwards of seven hundred millions of dollars are invested, have been the attraction for the thousands and thousands of "Uitlanders" whose "grivances" are substantially the cause for the cruel war between Briton and Boer, the battles of which have been ranked as the "Bloodiest of the century."

This great work is published in serial form, and when complete will comprise the most magnificent collection of photographic reproductions of the British-Boer war and South Africa obtainable in this country. Portfolios distributed by the Morning Times. For particulars see announcement on another page of this issue.

As an offset to the Boers taking the field, Britain proposes to take the field, river, mountain and every other form of territory.

HUMAN BRAIN CELLS.

THEY REFUSE TO WORK UNDER TOO HIGH A PRESSURE.

Put on Too Much Steam and These Minute Organisms Go on Strike. Why Men Go Crazy or Become Absent-minded.

Keeping pace with scientific thought and progress certain problems which in the past have been shelved for want of light being thrown upon them have been taken up again one by one to undergo further examination by the aid of improved science.

The newest revelation in this direction tends to the science of the mind and includes the following problems: Why does a man act queerly when he is intoxicated? Why is a man absent-minded on occasions?

Why does a man sometimes become violently insane, often a dangerous, raving lunatic?

Such questions as these have puzzled our immediate fathers, who have hardly ever satisfactorily explained them away or indeed thrown much reliable light upon them. The human brain is composed of cells, and each cell is a simple bit of nerve substance, from one end of which, like an octopus, spring a number of tentacles, while from another part arises an arm different from them and of great length. The long arm is intended for transmitting impressions from one portion of the brain system to another, it being made to touch the tentacles or short arms of the next one to it, the latter in its turn effecting contact with a third cell, and so on.

Thus a message is conveyed and the mind gets its news. The entire brain is made up of these cells, whose number is legion and whose full strength is grouped in systems, these systems in turn being arranged in communities, the communities in clusters, and finally the clusters in constellations, by which divisions they are known to physiologists.

So long as the mind is in a healthy condition each little cell, or brain octopus, attends to its business faithfully and gives no trouble, but as man generally is an animal who usually refuses to live the life spanned out by nature and adopts instead the life laid down by the modern artificial process of living, instituted forthwith by civilization, mental disturbances frequently arise through the brain becoming abused in various ways, from overwork and alcohol principally.

Your octopuslike brain cell is a living little thing, and it can endure a great deal of abuse from you, but if you should go a little too far it rebels and refuses to work any longer by breaking contact with its companion cells, which it can do by withdrawing its long arm and getting itself out of circuit. But this rebellion is conducted by whole groups of cells acting together in full harmony.

Now, the object of this "strike" is simply to avoid overwork, for each tiny cell has stored within its minute space only a certain amount of energy, but if you put on the high pressure this is easily consumed by the operation of the brain, and the organism breaks down from exhaustion. Now, take the first of the problems just stated. When a person takes too much to drink, the cells in those patches of the brain that are responsible for the conduct of muscular movement become affected and the man staggers.

When the dose is very large, the cells, which, although stupefied, have tried to keep their master on his legs, now cease working, and the man sleeps like one dead. Finally, if more than enough of alcoholic drink be taken, the effect on the cells is to paralyze them, and the unfortunate man dies.

There is some relation between extraordinary activity of the mind and insanity. Geniuses are apt to exhibit symptoms of mental alienation, and singular to relate, their children are usually inferior to those of average men.

For instance, not to go out of England for example, Cromwell was a hypochondriac and had visions, Dean Swift inherited insanity, and was himself not a little mad. Shelley was called by his friends "Mad Shelley," Charles Lamb went crazy. Johnson was another hypochondriac. Coleridge was a morbid man, nearly approaching insanity (modern ideas of madness are largely formed on the description evolved by his diseased imagination), and Byron said he was visited by ghosts.

This mental alienation occurring in the foregoing cases shows that certain specific groups of brain cells have come under the baneful influence of the guiding spirit called talent or genius, which has used up all the energy stored in each cell and each group of cells, to the detriment of the whole, with the result that their ceasing work has brought about various types of insanity as depicted or, to phrase it more softly, induced disturbance of the mental equilibrium.

The remaining problem is absent-mindedness. This is produced by a temporary disjunction of certain groups of cells. A man becomes so absorbed in his study of some particular subject and lends his whole mind to thought that the hard thinking disorganizes the groups of cells employed in the process of reflection, their tentacles being turned all one way, to the detriment of mental action generally, and so the man with the tentacles of his brain cells turned in the one direction passes along the streets lost to all observation or mental perception and does all manner of queer things because he is not conscious of what is before him.

HE WASHED DISHES.

The Hard Job One Boy Had All the Way to Europe.

The girls who have complained in various keys because they had dishes to wash may be glad to hear of a young man who can look at the matter through their eyes, perhaps more so. He had shipped as "boy" on a cattle steamer for Europe, because he wanted to save as much as possible on his transportation, and—but the rest of the story sounds better in his own words.

"About 4:30 in the morning I was awakened and told to go to work. I hastily dressed, for the first and last time on board, for during the rest of the voyage I took care not to undress. It seemed scarcely worth while. I arrived on deck and found the steward waiting for me. He showed me into the pantry, introduced me to 'Panta,' as the pantryman was called, and told me that my chief duty during the voyage would be to wash dishes.

"There was already a large pile of dirty dishes waiting to be washed, and I rolled up my sleeves, fixed the hot water and began to work. I had these almost done when another and larger lot was brought in from the dining room. This proved to be the daily programme. I no sooner had one pile washed than others were brought in, and I was never done. I don't think I ever saw so many dishes before in my life, and I hope I never shall again. There were 60 passengers aboard besides the cattle-men, and six meals were served each day. From the dishes that came out to be washed, I think that each passenger must have used at least six plates at a meal."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Soak fannels in cold borax water. If very soiled, make a slight lather. Souse up and down and rinse well. They must never be rubbed.

Scrubbing brushes should never be allowed to soak in water, either hot or cold. Shake them when finished with and stand them in the air to dry.

Shoes that are not in use need to be aired and cleaned once in a fortnight at least, or they will not wear as long as if they had been worn each day.

A broom that is plunged into boiling suds once a week will become tough, so that it will last much longer, will not cut a carpet and will always sweep like a new broom.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

Dead in Cavan.
Mr. James Hutchinson, an old resident of Cavan, died on Friday last, aged 95 years. The deceased was well known in Peterborough, having gone to the early settlers in Cavan. He was much respected. The funeral, which took place on Sunday, was very largely attended.

For Adoption.
Boy two and one half years old. Protestant. Town family preferred. Apply to Secretary of Children's Aid Society.

A Coming Event.
The Toronto Globe—"The Sherlock Male Quartette" appeared in two numbers and greatly pleased the audience, many of whom had come expressly to hear these numbers. The many expressions of delight from all parts of the house showed the esteem in which this organization is held. Indeed it is doubtful if a better male quartette has ever sung in Peterborough. The quartette will appear at the annual concert of the George-st. Methodist church on Tuesday, April 17.

Milman in Demand.
Mr. A. E. Guidal, of the Rathbun Co., Des Moines, passed through on Saturday from Fenelon Falls and Des Moines, where he engaged a number of expert millmen to work in the firm's mills and yards at Des Moines. Agents of other firms up north are also on the outlook for men and there is a natural preference for situations nearer home. The wages of the 50 men obtained in the above places will average something over $1.50 per day.

Be in Style.
Get and wear a button containing portrait of your favorite English General. We have just received a sample lot of the following English Generals' portraits on a neat little button—Lord Roberts, Lord Kitchener, Gen. Buller, Col. Baden-Powell, Gen. White, and Union Jack flag. These are sold at five cents each. Times Bookstore.

The Cycle Show.
The annual exhibition of bicycles at the Y.M.C.A. rooms was begun last night, and will be continued this evening. All the leading wheels are shown, and were inspected by many. There is no admission fee, and the public are cordially invited to come and see the exhibition.

County Maps.
Be sure and get a copy of the new County Map published by the Times Printing Company. It is a first class map and should be in the hands of every business man in Peterborough. Only a few copies left. Copies on paper 50 cents; on rollers $2.

Death of Mr. John Brown.
Word was received here yesterday of the death in Chicago of Mr. John Brown, well known as a former citizen of Peterborough. Deceased was a gentleman well advanced in years. He was for years in business here as a furniture dealer and was known to all the old residents. He leaves several sons, with one of whom, Wellington, he had lived in Chicago for four or five years past. Mrs. A. Allison, of town, is a daughter. The remains will be brought here for interment. They will arrive on the Grand Trunk today and the funeral will take place from the G.T.R. station upon the arrival of the 11:50 train this morning.

Mr. Stratton's Death.
We understand, says the Cobourg Post, that it is the intention of Hon. Mr. Stratton and the architect for the Ontario government to make a tour through the states and inspect different institutions for the insane, before making plans for alterations to the Old Victoria College buildings here. The trip will be taken immediately after the close of the session, and all will be ready for work shortly after their return.

Boom in Lumber.
A big boom in Canadian lumbering during the coming season is predicted on account of the large number of mills which American companies have erected during the winter. These companies have crossed into Canada on account of tariff regulations and vast quantities of logs, which in previous years were rafted to American mills on this side of the border, will be cut into lumber at Canadian points. Vesselsmen are anticipating a large trade from Georgian Bay. The output of logs in the Georgian Bay district owing to favorable weather has been the largest in its history. In our own district the Dickinson Company, the Rathbun Company and the Gilmour Company have been operating largely.

THE DOCTOR'S CONSOLATION.
Told Mr. Hill He Was a Dying Man, But South American Nerve Cured When Hope Was Abandoned.

Mr. W. J. Hill, a well-known man in Peterborough, Ont., suffered for years from liver trouble, dyspepsia and nervous weakness. He says he tried nearly every remedy in the market which claimed to meet his case without success. He was told by a physician that he was a dying man. He began taking South American Nerve, and found almost immediate benefit from its use. He continued using it, and to-day says he would stake his life on this great remedy as a cure for all like sufferers to himself.

Mixed Emotions.
It was in the same old back parlor of the Snowden House. The genial proprietor was entertaining a number of the night and the grip with a story of his early days, when a stranger entered, and the conversation turned on the war and then on the Queen's visit to Ireland. Just then an old man entered, who had the map of Ireland plainly marked on his face. To him Mr. Snowden said: "When are you going to get home rule in Ireland, John?" "See ye here, sorr," said the old man. "We'll get home rule for old Ireland will be in France—an' Russia—an' Germany an' Austria—an' maybe Italy—if they would all join together to give those blayards of English a rare good hiding. That's the only way we'll get home rule, sorr." Then, as he looked cautiously round, a twinkle of cunning and a smile of courtesy were added to his expression. "And the whole lot of 'em showed together couldn't do it," he said. "Oh—it's the grand navy we've got!"

8 Pieces of New Music For 10c.
To anyone sending us 10 cents we will send 8 pieces of new, full size, copyrighted music, the publisher's price of which is $4.00. Besides this we will send 36 pages of bright, interesting, illustrated stories and up-to-date articles. This is a fair and square offer or it would not appear in these columns. Address: W. E. Annis, 1280 Broadway, N.Y.

In this relentless age constant hustle is the price of success. Newspaper advertising is the very best trustee any firm can employ. It will go into thousands of homes and reach people who cannot be approached in any other way. It is an indispensable part of every modern retail business organization.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL.

The Times invites all its readers to contribute to this column all items of a personal or social nature, such as the arrival and departure of guests, th movements of well known people, business men, and particulars of homes, parties, etc. All that is required is to send a postcard or letter, or telephone the Times, giving rough outline, and we will put it into shape.

The Cobourg Post refers to our respected County Judge as a Cobourg "boy." We know that he is "one of the boys" occasionally, but did not know that Cobourg had any kind of a string on him.

Miss Wallace Kidd, of Helena, Mont., has been visiting with Mrs. R. J. Kidd, Rutledge street, left yesterday for St. Thomas, where she will spend a few weeks previous to her departure for the city of Mexico.

Mr. E. C. Compin, accountant in the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Toronto, will succeed Mr. J. L. Buchan here, who has been appointed accountant in the new branch which is being opened at Seattle, Wash.

The Globe says: The Hon. J. R. Stratton and Mrs. Stratton gave a pleasant little euchre party in the Speaker's handsome apartments in the Parliament buildings on Friday night in honor of Miss Leys of London. Mrs. Stratton looked particularly well in a gown of white silk trimmed with willow sequins, and pink and crimson roses. Miss Leys was in pale green silk veiled with white net and crimson roses in her corsage. Another special attraction was the arrival of Mrs. Stratton, whose gown was of blue brocade. Among those present were the Speaker and Madame Evanturel, Madeleine Evanturel, Mrs. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Fox, Mrs. George MacDonald, Mrs. Carveth, Hon. Mr. Harcourt, Mr. Claude Macdonell and several others.

Fish on Friday.
Editor Morning Times:
Sir,—I noticed what you say in regard to eating fish on Friday. I might add that the ancient custom of the Jews to buy fish on Friday, and not on Sabbath, is founded on Biblical ground. When the fishes were created "God blessed them, saying be fruitful and multiply" (Genesis, 1:22), and it was supposed that this blessing extended to fish when partaken of as food. Accordingly fish was introduced in the first Sabbath meal on Friday evening as an element of strength in the Jewish nation. Peter being a fisherman by trade, was able to supply the kitchens of select families with fish for their Friday evening Sabbath meal and thus was brought in contact with the sacred, domestic and household of the highest families and was known to them (Matthew, xxvii, 55, 60, 71). When Peter espoused openly the cause of Christ and consequently was boycotted his patronage was reduced to the families who followed his new teaching, so the old Jewish custom of partaking of fish food Friday evening was introduced to the first Jewish Catholics by Peter and perpetuated even after the Sabbath was transferred to Sunday.

A Port of Entry.
Editor Morning Times:
Sir,—Will the Times, through its letter box, answer the following: 1. What is meant by a port of entry? 2. Do any Roman Catholics hold office in the Transvaal, or is there any law against Roman Catholics, or any bigotry shown them? 3. Is Dr. Leyds a Roman Catholic? 4. What compensation do you get in return for depositing your money in a bank? SUBSCRIBER.

stration. Yesterday, for instance, the word "council" was spelled with an "e" in the last syllable. I am proud of the Times, and, barring this great fault, it is all right, and is a credit to the town.

A FRIEND.
Ans.—It is a case of a good man going wrong. The editor of this g.f.j. thinks any old way will do to spell "Council."

Our Canada.
Editor Morning Times:
Sir,—I see you answer questions on many subjects, and although I am not a regular subscriber to the Times, I will venture to ask you for information. Will you give a description of the great ship canal between Lake Erie and Montreal, and where it begins and ends? and oblige, Yours &c., A. E. ARMSTRONG.

Ans.—There is no such canal. The Welland canal connects Lakes Erie and Ontario, extending through the southern portion of the province of Ontario. This canal permits the passage of large vessels from the Great Lakes to Montreal by way of Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence river. The Lake Erie terminal of the canal is Port Colborne and the Lake Ontario terminal, Port Dalhousie.

Glad Spring Tidings
Paine's Celery Compound
Makes Sick People Well

The Great Banisher of All Troubles Brought on by Careless Living.

The cities and towns of Canada in springtime are full of people who are in a thoroughly worn-out, "unstrung" nervous condition, brought on by careless and heedless living. Sleeplessness, irritability and dependency help to make the cup of wretchedness more complete. This army of broken-down men and women should know that new and vigorous health depends on purified blood, regulated nerves, sound sleep and perfect digestion. These happy conditions come only by the use of Paine's Celery Compound. If any have thus far failed to get rid of nervous diseases, impure blood, kidney and liver troubles and dyspepsia, it is because they have not used Paine's Celery Compound. The past testimony of clergymen, lawyers, physicians, merchants and people of responsible positions who have been made well by Paine's Celery Compound, should induce every ailing man and woman to carry home a bottle of nature's life-giver, so that they may test it for their own satisfaction. Do not allow any dealer to offer you a substitute. Insist upon getting "Paine's," the kind that "makes sick people well."

REPORTED SURRENDER OF BRITISH TROOPS.

Despatches From Boer Sources Say Gen. DeWet Defeated British at Merkatfontein.

600 KILLED AND WOUNDED, AND 900 CAPTURED.

Heavy Cannonading is Reported at Fourteen Streams—Gen. Methuen is Moving in the Direction of Hoopstad—Colonel Wounded in Recent Battle.

Pretoria, April 9 (via Lorenzo Marquez).—The British casualties in the fight at De Wet's Dorp were 100 killed and wounded, and 150 captured. The Transvaal Volksraad has been summoned to meet in ordinary session on May 7th.

London, April 11. A despatch to the Daily Mail from Bradford, dated Sunday, by way of Lorenzo Marquez, says: "Yesterday Gen. DeWet engaged the British for the third time within a week at Merkatfontein, killing and wounding 600. He captured 900 with twelve wagons, losing five killed and nine wounded."

London, April 11. The Daily Mail publishes the following, dated Tuesday, April 10, from Lorenzo Marquez: "The Netherlands Railway Co. profess to have received a telegram reporting a Boer victory near Kroonstad, the Boers capturing 900 British. Commenting upon this the Daily Mail remarks: 'There is a Merkatfontein about eight and a half miles south-east of Kroonstad, but if the report be true this can hardly be the place.'"

London, April 11. The Daily News has the following from Pretoria, dated Monday, by way of Delagoa Bay: "It is officially announced that a battle has been fought south of Bradford, in which 600 British troops were killed and wounded and 900 taken prisoners."

Pretoria, April 9. (Via Lorenzo Marquez) Heavy cannonading is reported at Fourteen Streams. The British are using a naval gun. Lord Methuen is moving in the direction of Hoopstad.

Gaborone, Tuesday, April 8. Col. Plumer's wound was in his right arm. His horse was shot. Col. Bode and Capt. Robt were wounded. Col. Plumer's orderly is missing. Sergt. Major Manning, of the 5th Dragoon Guards who took up the duty of orderly, did excellent work. Capt. Fred Crowe was shot dead while covering the retreat. Capt. McLaren was seriously wounded, and Lieut. Mulligan, the famous Yorkshire cricketer, fatally, while holding an assigned position. Medical orderly Wainford worked pluckily on the field, which afforded little cover.

Saturday's fight in the vicinity of Mafeking was conducted on Col. Plumer's side under great difficulties, being in the proximity of the Boer laagers, whence reinforcements could be promptly sent to the burghers, and there was little cover available for the British when the fight began, the plain being but sparsely wooded, and the railroad embankment was the chief protection, being only two feet high. The men behaved gallantly, however, and the officers were especially conspicuous in the affair.

With the exception of a few rounds fired by the British maxim gun at Ramathabana, the fire on both sides was entirely by rifle. Half of the British officers were more or less seriously wounded.

CONAN DOYLE'S ARTICLE.
His Description of the Characteristics of Mounted Infantry.

London, April 10.—Dr. Conan Doyle contributed to The Irish of the Free State picturesque descriptions of the British infantry. He says: "Here is a clump of mounted infantry, with a grizzled fellow, like a fierce old eagle, at the head of them. Some are maned like lions, some have young, keen faces, but all leave an impression of familiarity upon me. Yet I have not seen irregular British cavalry before. Why should it be so familiar to me, those loose-limbed, swaggering type of course I have seen in the American cowboy over and over again. Strange that a few months on the veldt should have produced exactly the same man as springs from the Western prairie."

FACTS ABOUT HUTTON'S RETIREMENT.

He Sent in His Resignation on February 10th and it Was Accepted on the Same Day.

Ottawa, April 9.—Official correspondence will never tell the tale of the differences which led to the retirement of Major-General Hutton from the position of C. O. C. The country may go on guessing that Hutton had extravagant notions of his power and exercised it in such a manner as to make himself obnoxious to the sight of the Dominion Government. In guessing along these lines they will not be far astray, but no official in authority will ever reward them with the black and white of the incidents which estranged the Government from the G.O.C. To-day the papers bearing on Hutton's resignation be favourably considered. It was sent on to Council. The Government apparently engaged in no unseemly wrangle over the merits and demerits of Hutton. February 10th was likewise the date of its decision to let the Major-General have his way. Sunday followed; otherwise it is fairly probable that his Excellency of Minto would have attached his signature to the Government order before another 24 hours had passed. As it was, the Governor-General performed his simple duty on February 12th, the following Monday, and thus within two days was Hutton transformed from a nation were laid on the table. In their contents the curious found no comfort. Not a line suggested aught but white-winged peace in the Department of Militia in the days of Hutton's power. Suspicion would be aroused only by the studied reticence of the communications which passed between the Major-General and the Government under which he served, and in the speed of Hutton getting out of office. The Major-General sent in his resignation on Feb. 10th. The Militia Department seems to have lost no time in mastering its grief or in recovering from the shock, for on the same day the Minister of Militia recommended that the re-

THE LAST ASSAULT ON MAFKING.

Boers Made a Desperate Attempt to Reduce Town Before Methuen's Arrival
Mafeking, Tuesday, March 27.—News was received yesterday of the advance of the southern relief column.

The Boers this morning opened fire at sunrise with seven guns, including one 100-pounder. This has been the most vigorous bombardment of the season. The Boer siege gun alone has already fired over 80 rounds. Under cover of the fire the Boers advanced to the northern face of the works, but retired precipitately on coming within rifle range. They also advanced to the southwestern posts, but were repulsed. There was one casualty. The Boers under Commandant Jan Cronje are evidently falling back before the advance of the southern relief column, and are concentrating with two commandos who are retiring before Col. Plumer in order to make a final effort to reduce the town. All the forts and outlying positions are manned, the troops are standing to arms, and everybody is under cover. All are convinced that this is the Boers' last attempt.

HE MAY TRAP THE BOER RAIDERS.

Roberts Making Dispositions to Cut Off Boer Forces on Their Return North.

London, April 10.—Mysterious movements of troops at Bloemfontein are proceeding. The newspaper correspondents are now allowed to telegraph their deductions, and the presumption is that Lord Roberts is making dispositions to cut off the raiding Boer forces when they attempt to withdraw northward from the pursuing British columns. The reappearance of the Boers in the occupied country has caused a revival of

CAUSTIC COMMENTS FROM LONDON.

British Tactics When Surprised and Officers' Slowness of Resource Criticized

London, April 10.—Charles Williams That is a safe card to play, but a costly one. Lions led by a mouse was the old saying from Boer as well as British sources. Of our reverses near the Bloemfontein railway are truly lamentable. They show a distinct lack of care and leading. In the face of surprises we seem utterly without resources, except reliance on pluck.

So mad were the men that they had no idea of giving quarter, and although a horrible sight, one felt a certain satisfaction in this butchery. The Boers fired every kind of bullet—Mauzer, Kippen, sporting, soft-nosed, iron-headed and explosive. Two doctors

GENERAL BRABANT IS BESET ON ALL SIDES.

His Force at Wepener Attacked on All Sides and a Series of Battles Fought.

BULLER ENGAGED WITH THE TRANSVAAL FORCES.

Boers Recommence Hostilities in Natal, and a Fierce Battle is Being Waged North of Ladysmith—Buller Commands
One of the Drakensberg Passes.

Alval North, Monday, April 9.—An engagement took place to-day at Wepener. The Boers' Vickers-Maxim did considerable execution at first, but the British guns soon got the range and made great havoc. The Rouxville commando has gone to Wepener.

Monday, April 9, evening.—The fighting at Wepener was severe and lasted all day long. The Boers received a check. The casualties were rather heavy on both sides. Another commando is advancing toward Wepener from De Wet's Dorp.

REINFORCEMENTS FOR BRABANT
London, April 10.—The Boer attack on Gen. Brabant's force at Wepener was resumed again at dawn to-day. The enemy's attack on two or three sides on Monday lasted until 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon, when the firing ceased, an idea was believed that the enemy had been beaten off. But it was announced this morning from Alval North that the fighting had again begun. Gen. Brabant's force, numbering from 2,000 to 3,000, hold positions in a rough country. The Boers are in unknown numbers, with reinforcements reaching them. Another body of two thousand Boers is marching towards Springfield from Smithfield.

The detonation of heavy guns was heard at Maseru Monday. Sir Godfrey Lagden, the British President Commissioner of Basutoland, has left Maseru for the border.

SEEK TO RETAKE THE BRIDGE.
Beitun, Orange Free State, Monday, April 9.—It is expected that the Boers will endeavor to retake and destroy the bridge over the Orange river. Consequently, extraordinary precautions have been taken. A force of 1,000 men is posted at the bridge. The Boers are again practically hold the Free State eastward of the railroad, and are greatly encouraged by their successes at Reddersburg and Korm Spruit.

BOERS AND BULLER AT IT.
Heavy Cannonading Commenced To-day in the Vicinity of Elandsburg.

Pietermaritzburg, April 10.—Heavy cannonading commenced this morning in the vicinity of Elandsburg.

BOERS POST BIG GUNS.
The Enemy Strongly Entrenched at Helpmakra and North of Elandsburg.

New York, April 10.—The Herald prints a despatch from Ladysmith, dated Sunday, which says the Boers have posted a big gun on Knight's Hill, north of Elandsburg, and another in the vicinity of Wesel's Nek Station. The enemy are reported to be strongly entrenched at Helpmakra.

BULLER GETS A PASS.
An Interesting Rumor That He has Scored a Great Coup on the Boers.

London, April 10.—In connection with the resumption of hostilities in Natal an interesting rumor is current that Gen. Buller has obtained command of one of the Drakensberg passes, whereby he hopes to take the Boers in the rear. In the event of his being successful, Gen. Buller has enough troops to leave 20,000 men to hold Natal while he should advance by way of Harrismith, where he would be able to threaten the Boer position at Bethlehem and Kroonstad.

ONLY FIFTY NOT WOUNDED.
Captured Column Made a Gallant Stand at Reddersburg.

London, April 10.—The Times has the following special from Bloemfontein, dated April 8:—When the firing at Mester's Hook heard, Col. Sturges marched from Elandsburg to Bethany to reach the detached column, and attempted to outflank the Boers, but was too late. The enemy shelled the surrounding area all day with three guns, and with no ammunition our men were forced to surrender. Two captured Boers agree that only fifty men remained unwounded out of the whole column. The nature of the ground gave the enemy good cover. Gen. Gatacre occupied Reddersburg on Wednesday, but withdrew yet, but a considerable movement of troops has taken place, with the object of preventing surprise. A redistribution of the mounted infantry division has been ordered. It will consist of two brigades, of four companies each, the whole commanded by Colonel Ian Hamilton, with Colonel Hupton and Colonel Ridley as brigadiers. This organization will include the whole of the mounted infantry, both regular and volunteers. The command will be about 10,000 strong.

In addition to these 10,000 mounted infantry mentioned, Lord Roberts has 10,000 cavalry proper, the latter being under command of General French.

PRISONERS REACH ST. HELENA.
The Boers will be Treated with Every Consideration.

Island of St. Helena, April 10.—The Niobe and the Milwaukee have arrived here with the Boer prisoners. The health of the men is good with the exception of four cases of measles, which necessitate the Milwaukee being quarantined.

The prisoners are quiet and well behaved. They will probably land to-morrow. The Governor has been notified of the desire of the authorities that his prisoners be treated with every courtesy and consideration.

KILLED AT COBOURG.

A. G. T. H. Brakman Fatally Injured Between Two Cars.

Samuel Hooey, a brakeman on the Grand Trunk Railway, at Cobourg, met with an accident which culminated in his death. He was on a west-bound freight train and at the town of Cobourg was engaged in coupling some cars when he was caught between the buffers inflicting severe internal injuries. It was apparent at first that the unfortunate man was severely if not fatally injured. Medical aid was secured for him at Cobourg, and later in the night taken to Havelock, and conveyed to the hospital. He lingered until 3.30 next morning, when death ended his sufferings.

Hooey was a young man about 26 years of age. He had been a brakeman on the G.T.R. but a short time, his duties in that capacity commencing some time in November last. The unfortunate young man resided at York, and was well known in Peterborough, where he spent a couple of weeks last summer. Those who were acquainted with him speak of him as an exceptionally popular employee. He was a member of the Roman Catholic church.

DIED IN AFRICA.

An Old Peterborough Boy Succumbs to Fever at Kimberley.

Lieut. Alan S. Burritt, third son of Dr. H. C. Burritt, of Toronto, formerly of Peterborough, died of enteric fever at Kimberley, South Africa. The deceased was for a time a lieutenant in the Prince of Wales Dragoon, Peterborough. He was a splendid specimen of young Canadian manhood, and served five years in the Northwest Mounted Police. A year ago Lieut. Burritt went over to Aldershot, and while there enlisted as a private in the 12th Lancers. The regiment went to the front in October last and has been attached to the western or Cape Colony army. A brother, Mr. F. W. Burritt, went from Toronto with the eastern battalion of the mounted infantry, and is now with his regiment somewhere en route to the front, the regiment having recently left Cape Town. The deceased was a nephew of Lieut. Col. H. C. Rogers, postmaster, and Mr. D. H. Burritt, Brock street. Dr. Burritt was unaware of the illness of his son, whose last letter received was dated January 27.

A BOY VAGRANT.

A lad, about 16 years of age, whose tattered clothing and forlorn appearance, would leave no doubt of his being in a desperate condition, walked into the Police Station on Monday night and asked for a night's lodging. He appeared at the Police Court yesterday, when he told his story. He said that he was taken from the Sunnyside orphanage, Toronto, six years ago by a family living near Westwood, and with them he has spent the intervening time. On Monday, however, he decided to leave, and walked to town during the afternoon, on his way back to Sunnyside. He was photographed by Mr. Roy yesterday morning as the "boy with the spade." The farmer, it appears, came into town after the boy, and took him back with him.

Wounded Girl's Story.

Robert M. Ferguson of Buffalo is applying for admission of the estate of his sister, Miss Rachel Ferguson, who was murdered in Toronto about three months ago. The application is opposed by Annie, a half-sister, who lives in Port Hope, on the ground that Robert is not a resident of Canada. The other relatives are the father, living in New York, and a half-brother, living in Port Hope. The estate is worth about $2,000. Miss Ferguson, it will be remembered, belonged to South Monaghan, where her remains were interred.

Short Stories of the Day

THE WEDDING AT RIELS.

The Riel lived in the Lane in the last house toward the river. A dozen houses in all lined the Lane; four-story white-washed barns, sheltering an incredible number of families and turning out an imposing number of voters on town meeting day. The Lane itself was conveniently situated, leading off from the main street of the town half way up a hill at whose summit were churches, hotels, saloons and stores, and at its foot the great stone mills.

Life was not sad or gloomy in the Lane. New arrivals from Quebec brought with them smuggled demijohns of Canadian whisky, almost every night the young folks danced in one or another of the tenements; when the Irish died there were wakes; when the French married there were fetes, and all the Lane joined in the ceremonies on either occasion.

This night the wedding at the Riel's had aroused to the utmost the expectations of the Lane. For Father Antoine was to play the fiddle.

He was the oldest of the Riels. How many more there were he himself was never quite sure without counting. Louis and Josephine were son and son's wife to Father Antoine. Of their children were George, who was steady, worked and had married well; and Julius, who did not work, but played baseball and pool and came in not infrequently collision with the police and was one of the heroes of the Lane. "Poleon and Chilou were old enough to get a dollar a day in the mills, but Bidou and little Alec were only doffer boys and earned barely enough to pay for the much that they ate. Of the half dozen daughters, granddaughters of Father Antoine, three were already married and growing ugly, two were still so young as to be unkempt and dirty, and Celia, who stood in the middle, was this day married.

Celia was 18 and beautiful. In a few years she would wither and stoop like her mother and grandmother before her, but now she was fresh and straight. Her shining black hair hung in thick curls. Her deep brown eyes danced and dazzled. In her earlobe tips and olive cheeks the throbbing blood thrilled joyously. She had dainty feet and hands and a supple figure. Singing came to her as to the birds and she danced to the music of stray hand-organs or of Father Antoine's fiddle as soon as she could toddle.

Celia's beauty was a phenomenon in the Lane and all its residents were proud of her and admired her. So one day, with bold words, did the agent's son at the mills make love to the little beauty. When she told at home with glee of this conquest, Father Antoine scowled and shrugged his shoulders in silence. Next day, when all the children were gone, he said to his daughter-in-law—

"Celia must marry. Or she may do worse."

Josephine gravely assented—the counsel of Father Antoine was always wise—and that evening Celia was informed that she must marry at once. She did not demur. Marriage meant to her a gold ring, a new dress, release from the mill, as to the childbearing and the house-keeping she had no thoughts.

Yes, she would marry. Jimmy Hoy, the young blacksmith, was eager for her, and would respond readily to any encouragement. A fine figure of a man and earning good wages, she was content to marry him. But Father Antoine again interposed. It was not right that French and Irish should intermarry. When they did trouble was sure to come, and none of his blood should be party to it.

This Jimmy Hoy, in particular, spent his money in whisky and his time and strength in vain rickings. He who received, not he who spent, should be Celia's husband. The little Henri Decote, had saved already $1,000 from the profits of his saloon, and his admiration for Celia was great. A half-breed? Oh, no! Just a trace of Indian blood, maybe, two or three generations back, but in race and language as French as most of those who came down from Canada.

Celia scorned. She had in pett Henri. He was old and fat, and aquar and bow-legged. But the will of Father Antoine had been uttered and it must be so. Moreover, there were compensations. The rich Henri would buy her silks and jewelry. He set fall hints of moving back to Quebec, where Celia could shine in society. Presently she was reconciled to the inevitable by these considerations and by the pious diamond in the ring which Henri gave her.

So early in the morning of this April day, at the still-crossed church, Father Antoine had performed the marriage service.

With the night came dancing in all the rooms of the tenement. The little ones tucked away in a single bed and covered with the hats, coats, and shawls of the guests, listened with all their ears and sized with all their eyes at the fun. The wicker-covered jug and the square black bottles which the groom had brought from his own cellar contributed much to the hilarity of the occasion. The responsibility for the rest must be divided between the bewary of pretty girls and the fiddle of Father Antoine. Up and down, out and in, through all the little rooms, the dancers wheeled and whirled to its gay tunes. Above the noise of the tramping feet, above the shouts and laughter, rose the shrill voice of the violin. Far into the open air it made its way through the black evening of the unlighted Lane.

Jimmy Hoy heard the music or fancied that he did, in the furthest corner of his rival's barroom. The alcohol fumes in his brain made him hear the very scraping of the fiddle; made him see the gay crowd in the tenement; made him feel Celia's quick breath upon his cheek as her bosom rose and fell in the dance. With an oath he strode across the reeded floor, threw open the door and disappeared in the darkness. The Lane was silent and black except in one vivid spot where light and noise poured forth from the wedding at the Riel's. Thither

Jim turned his steps, in trifle unsteady as he breathed the keen night air.

The rollicking fun of the bridal party ceased as the young Irishman entered the house. The dancers crowded back on either side and he passed between them straight to the bridegroom and the bride, who, like the others, had stopped short in the measure and stood still, his arm around her waist.

"Drop thy gurr!" Jim ordered, roughly, and Henri obeyed, his face white beneath his swarth.

"You, play your fiddle," to Father Antoine. The black eyes blazed beneath the shaggy eyebrows, but the old man humbly raised his violin and renewed the music.

Jim threw his arm around the girl and whirled her gracefully through the rooms. "I'll dance with you once more, darling," said he "as he you've married never can." And Celia, her head against his shoulder, seemed at not unwilling partner.

Henri stood silent in impotent rage. Suddenly his face lighted up as he noticed in a corner a baseball bat. Quickly and quietly he secured it and waited for the return of the waiting couple. But, quick and quiet as he was, Father Antoine saw him and knew that in another minute there would be murder in the Lane.

On the instant the music changed. The lively air of the waltz grew soft and tender. The old Frenchman, summoning all the skill of his years and his youth, painted pictures with the tones of his violin. Instead of the dingy tenement walls the wondering crowd saw green fields with the little children at play. They heard mothers crooning lullabies to their babies at cabin doors in Ireland in Canada. They saw those mothers, old and bent and gray, gazing with pride upon the sons they had reared.

A bit of a bright and laughing wedding march and then the music struck into a dirge, weird and fearsome, woven by Father Antoine about an old Irish melody, head at man's waist. Jim, quivering at the sound, came to himself. Sobered and shaken, he turned on his heel and left the house.

Before sleep came to the bridal chamber that night Henri had said—

"We will move to Quebec next month, ma belle."

And to himself—

"For there are no Irish there."

RAILWAY TIES.

The Vera Cruz and Pacific railway has sent its representative to Italy to obtain laborers to push the construction of the road.

The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad is equipping its locomotives with electric headlights, to which a current is furnished by a small dynamo directly forward of the smokestack.

The superintendent of the White Pass and Yukon railroad took the snowfall at various points along the line of the railroad for December, with the following results: Glacier, 90½ inches; White Pass, 55 inches; Fraser, 42½ inches; Log Cabin, 74½ inches.

The officials of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad have decided to follow the lead of other roads in the matter of providing technical instruction for their employees on the road. The "school on wheels" for engineers, firemen, conductors and brakemen is to be a part of the Rock Island system.

FULLY PAID AND NON-ASSESSABLE

We have already completed over 100 feet development work, 70 feet of which consists of surface work such as cross-cuts, shallow shafts, etc. prospecting to decide the best place to sink our main or working shaft. This has been found to be on the "Big 3" or centre claim, and we are now down 30 feet and still pushing the work as fast as four practical miners and dynamite can possibly accomplish. Remember, we have three full claims, to wit: "Big 3," "Victor" and "Will o' the Wisp," situated on Iron Mountain in the Borke mining district, Ferry county, Washington, six miles west from north to south and cropping for over 2,700 feet, and surface assays furnished $6 to $8 in free gold.

Our manager writes us, under date of March 1, 1900, that at a depth of 30 feet in our proposed main shaft he is working in 4 feet of fine quartz and it is widening as depth is acquired. He also says: "I am confident that a shaft 100 feet deep will prove this property nearly as good as, if not equal to any of the great mines of the Republic." Camp showing that the Republic had at the same depth.

The company now offer 50,000 shares of treasury stock (NON-ASSESSABLE) AT THE LOW PRICE OF 1-2 CENTS PER SHARE in order to raise funds to push the work with additional force.

There are 300,000 shares in the treasury and the above is the first offered for sale. The company being a reliable one, and with such a phenomenal showing on their properties, it should induce immediate investment, so don't delay as the price will positively be raised when this block is sold; every dollar we spend means greater depth to our shaft, wider lead and higher assays. I DON'T MISS THIS. IT'S A WINNER. Send your orders at once to the secretary.

TAKING THE REINS.

During the past winter 19 horses without records have sold for $43,375, or an average of $2,282 each.

Peter Truss, Major Douglas and Frank Blaisdell are going to equip a racing plant on Half Moon island, Eau Claire, Wis.

Mr. William C. Whitney's unnamed 2,000 guinea colt, by Miguel-Aurora, has been entered for the West Derby stakes (England) as a 3-year-old.

At the late Bonner sale five of the get of Ansel, 2:30, none of which had a record, sold for an average of $738, while the sire brought only $150.

The Morristown (N. J.) track, which Barney Demarest has leased, is the track where Ethan Allen and running mate defeated Dexter more than 20 years ago.

Horses at matinee races are not handicapped according to their records, and this season the club handicappers will take into consideration the weight of their owners.

Genius receives tribute in diverse ways. Recently Mme. Belpas, the famous French actress, was presented with a handsome pair of driving mules by the king of Portugal.

There is a Baron Wilkes mare in "Doog" Thomas' stable that has been priced at $5,500. On a three-quarter mile track she stepped a half in 1:04 and a quarter in 51 seconds.

Bicycle dealers are already beginning to receive the new stock. Omnibuses wheels will be in greater favor this year. The prices are a little lower than last year.

WENT ONCE TOO OFTEN.

Mistake of a Man Who Made His Living
by Audacity.

"I have had many queer experiences with transient boarders," said a lady who has kept a first class boarding house in this city for a number of years, "but the queerest case came under my observation only last week. To be brief, an old man, at least he seemed to be about 60 years of age or thereabouts, came to me about five years ago, if I remember aright, and secured a room in my house for a week. He said he was a lecturer and gave the customary rigmarole in such a nice way, however, that I omitted, very foolishly, to ask him for his board in advance. To make a long story short, he walked out at the end of the week to go to some small town near by, where he was to lecture to young folks on the twin subjects of temperance and honesty, and conveniently forgot where he lived temporarily.

"The old man must have been mixed up in his dates or locations, for he applied to me again for board here a few days ago
'for a few days.' Foolishly I let him in and still more foolishly decided not to ask him for the price in advance, for out of curiosity I wanted to see if he was still playing the old game. Sure enough at the end of a few days he knocked at the door of my room and informed me that he would not be back for breakfast in the morning, as he was going to give a lecture to young people in a nearby town on the 'twin subjects of temperance and honesty,' but would be back to luncheon.
I knew I had him and proceeded to tell him so, probably astonishing him more at his own lack of memory than my excellent ability to remember deadbeats.

"Unluckily, however, my room was on the second floor and his on the first, and when he assumed a righteous wrath that I well knew was feigned I could not but let him go to his room to get the 'filthy lure' that would square us. I say unluckily his room was on the floor below mine, because he kept right on walking, and I haven't seen him since. You may exploit the mysteries of boarding house hash, but don't forget that the boarding house mistress has her trials too."— Washington Star.

The Wounded in War.

Army doctors look out for good news even more eagerly than the general in command of the forces, for they know that it makes the difference between life and death to many of their patients.
Nothing hinders the recovery of the wounded so much as depression of spirits and anxiety. And when they find that things are going badly at the front many of them who are on the turning point grow worse and die.

On the other hand, the news of a great victory will pull a man out of the jaws of death. This fact was very noticeable when both British and French wounded were congregated at Antwerp during the Waterloo campaign. When news of Napoleon's complete defeat reached the hospital, the French began to die at about twice the rate of the British troops.—
London Globe.

Chinese Criminal Law.

Hill was guilty of bushing up for money the murder of one of his sons. Another son brought the case to light, and it was held that the father might benefit and be excused, while the son, on the other hand, was sentenced to 100 blows and three years' transportation for denouncing his brother's murder, because in doing so he had brought his father into danger of the law.

A father who buried his son alive was let off because the boy abused him, and it is quite permissible for a father to strangle his daughter if she misbehaves.
—Notes on Chinese Law by E. Alabaster.

Vegetable at Least.

Hicks—They tell me Skinner is a vegetarian.
Wicks—Never heard of that before. I knew he was a good deal of a beat, however.—Boston Transcript.

Samson's Talking Man.

Samson's talking man, or "talking man," is a character. All the affairs of state of the village in which he holds office are carried upon his shoulders. In ordinary he is the chief adviser, persuader, convincer and restrainer of the leading chiefs.

Having the gift of eloquence, he makes the most of it. He enjoys immunity from many things. He cannot be spoken of in ordinary terms. If it should be necessary to speak of his eyes or his mouth or his limbs, special honorable words must be used, words which attach to him alone and have never been applied to the personal parts of ordinary men.

As he stands to deliver his soft, portrayative, mellifluous oratory, with staff of office in his hand and his fly duster thrown over his shoulder, any one can see that he is a man of great importance, or if this is not apparent from his attitude it may be gathered from the attention paid to his utterances by gray haired chiefs and by youths and maidens. If the talking man is a clever fellow and understands his business, he is the chief ruling power in his tribe, although the nominal headship is always vested in a chief or patriarchal figurehead.

WOOD PULP PAPER.

THE COMPLICATED PROCESS BY WHICH IT IS PRODUCED.

Now the Big Trees From the Forests Are Turned Into Half-Ten Rolls of the Finished Material, Ready
For the Newspaper Press.

The United States is in almost all respects the greatest paper making country in the world—in the amount of capital invested, the value of output, the actual per capita quantity consumed, natural facilities and superiority of many of its methods and products. There are over 1,000 paper and pulp mills of all kinds in the United States, making almost every variety of paper and pulp made anywhere in the world.

There are several hundred millions of dollars capital invested in the making and distribution of paper. When we consider that upward of 2,500,000 tons of paper are produced annually and that in general every ton of paper means at least three tons of freight and finally consider that the production of paper is more generally distributed over the whole country than any other leading industry, the importance of the paper industry to every section of the country is apparent. The total value of all kinds of paper made annually in this country, by the time it reaches the consumer, is probably $150,- 000,000, ranging all the way from $20 to $300 a ton.

News paper is made principally of wood, of which American forests furnish an almost inexhaustible supply. Wood was used first for making news paper, but has now extended to other grades.
Considering only news paper, the change in materials has been from rags exclusively to a mixture of rags in small proportions and straw in large proportions, then to a substitution of wood for straw.
This wood comes from the forests where only the larger trees are cut, allowing all below a fixed diameter to remain standing so as not to check the growth of the species. It is then brought either by river or rail to the pulp mill. Here it is first prepared by putting it into suitable lengths for handling and manhandling, and then the bark is removed by a machine which consists of great disks consisting of radial knives which remove with lightninglike rapidity. There are other ingenious machines for automatically handling and preparing the wood from the time it is taken from the water until it is ready to be made into pulp.

Things being as they are, the wood under the almost human guidance of hydraulic machinery upon grinders, which are turned with great force and rapidly, some pulp paper mills requiring more power than the great manufacturing city of Lowell, Mass. As the wood is pressed with the nicest degree of uniformity upon the grinders under a continual flow of water, which prevents the wood from burning a mixture of wood and water emerges from the machine, making a mass not unlike gruel in appearance and consistency, and yet so carefully has this process been performed that only the microscope can detect any variation in the size or appearance of the minute particles of which the mass is composed.
Thus as the result of years of experiment and practice the pulp maker has become able to disintegrate the wood in this manner without destroying the fibrous character, and the pulp does, in fact, consist of multitudes of little fibers which thus become available as a substitute in a measure for the fibers of rags.

Finally the rags which were used in connection with this pulp to make news paper began to be displaced by wood prepared in a more scientific way. To do this the science of chemistry came to the aid of the art of paper making. In simple language this process consists in cooking the wood in chemicals instead of grinding it, thus dissolving all the nonfibrous matter and leaving the fibers practically unimpaired, so that a fabric consisting exclusively of these fibers has almost the strength of parchment.

Before this process became perfected in this country millions of dollars were sunk in pioneer establishments, and even now the process is regarded as most difficult and subtle and in order to be com-mercially successful must be conducted on a very large scale. It requires great boiler structures, the outward shells of which are of steel, and the interior lined with several successive linings of different materials so constructed as to make the interior steam tight, acid proof and able to withstand great pressure.

At this stage the process of paper making proper as distinguished from pulp making begins, and here is where perhaps even more technical knowledge and experience are required. The mixture of pulp prepared in the two ways described and other ingredients which give color and various other physical characteristics to the finished paper is diluted with water so as to become practically a fluid, which is then projected on to a woven wire cloth constructed with great nicety.
This moves along, often at a rate of several hundred feet a minute, and as the pulp liquid falls upon it, guided by delicate mechanical devices, it spreads out evenly, and as the water is withdrawn by every known means available for the purpose, involving the principles of agitation, gravitation, capillary attraction, suction, absorption, pressure and evaporation, the fibers of the pulp gradually increase the strength of the web, until at last only an experienced eye or delicate scientific test can determine any variation in strength or texture of the finished product.

While these processes have been going on successively the film or sheet of water pulp has gradually increased in density until finally it emerges as a sheet of paper, after passing over many large revolving cylinders through which steam is constantly forced under a delicately regulated pressure, creating such heat that three times as much water is evaporated as the weight of the sheet remaining.
Thus a machine producing 20 tons of paper a day has to evaporate therefrom approximately 60 tons of water. Consider the vast amount of coal required to generate the necessary heat. It is estimated that the paper mills of the country use annually 3,000,000 tons of coal. After the paper is dried it is passed through massive solid steel rolls or cylinders which must be so regulated as to give just the desired degree of surface to the paper. It is then for newspaper use wound into great rolls which weigh approximately half a ton apiece.

This of course is but an outline of the process of paper making, and there are many features which render it so complicated that even the most experienced paper makers are apt to disagree in their views as to which is the best procedure.

CURTAIN RAISERS.

Marie Tempest denies the report that she intends to sing in the music halls in London.

Charles Frohman is having a play, based on "Peg Woffington," written for Maude Adams.

This thing grows. Fay Templeton mimics Fougere, and Fougere mimics Fay Templeton's mimicry of her.

Wilson Barrett's "Sign of the Cross" has been translated into Polish and has made quite a success in Warsaw.

Mrs. Campbell is to revive some of the Masterlinck plays in London and produce others never seen there before.

Robert Lorraine, Julie Opp's former husband, who was to have acted with Ada Rehan in England, has gone to South Africa.

Marie Walworth has engaged Payton
Gibbs to play Napoleon to her Josephine in her vaudeville sketch, "Napoleon Versus Josephine."

Wilson Barrett has added Robert Hichens in his dramatization of his novel, "The Londoners," and will act in the play in all probability.

Henrik Ibsen's "When the Dead Awake" has been acted in three German cities with success, although without giving the impression that it was likely to enjoy lasting popularity on the stage.

It seems that the new theater in St.
Martin's lane, London, will not be owned by Charles Frohman after all, though that energetic American impresario will hold the lease of it and will establish there his London comedy troupe, headed by Seymour Hicks and Ellaline Terriss.

A town weather prophet says we are to have six weeks of cold wet weather. "The Times" ground hog or grisly bear has been acting strangely, and the sign never fails.

GLIMPSES OF SOUTH AFRICA.

Peace and in War—A Splendid Lot of Views

Southern Africa, that enormous expanse of tropically verdant territory extending from the Zambesi River to the Cape of Good Hope, has for a century or more lain dormant to the eyes of the civilised world. Only within the past two decades has public attention been drawn to the wonderful natural resources and mineral wealth of this wild and rugged land, and yet, within this period, the marvellous creation of brilliant modern cities have supplanted the desert lands and haunts of savage tribes. The steady march of civilization, the all-pervading ambition to accumulate the wealth of diamonds and gold that lay beneath the crust of this benighted land, each has borne its part in the metamorphosis and beaded to the world the wonderful possibilities of that "Dark Continent" for the energy and enterprise that the 20th century will bring to light.

In no other country of the world has progress been marked with such adversity and strife as Africa. From the time the early Dutch settlers landed in the Cape Colony up to the present, there has existed almost a constant state of warfare; the natives disputing the advance of the Dutch and in turn resenting the inroads of civilisation. In spite of this, so strenuous were the efforts of the colonists in their determination to turn to account the beauties and resources of the land of their adoption, that to-day they enjoy the fruits of their successes in a paradise of tropical vegetation, a salubrious climate and surrounded by the highest advancement of intellectuality and luxuries of civilization.

Cape town is the metropolis and seat of government of the Cape Colony. Its historical past and present is firmly linked in the traditions of the early Dutch and the Huguenots. True, the old forts and buildings of distinctly Dutch architecture still remain, but nestled in South Africa and the progress of the war, and so eager the thirst for information, coupled with the demand for a Pictorial History incident to the scenes of warfare, that the publication of "Glimpses of South Africa" has been undertaken upon a scale of grandeur, fidelity and completeness never before thought of, involving as it has an expense of extraordinary magnitude. In order that the work might be absolutely reliable and thorough in its character, the publishers have contracted for its authorship with Mr. Wynne Flemming, an Afrikaner whose authority upon South African matters is world-wide acknowledged. This gentleman—born in the Cape Colony, having travelled over nearly every inch of the country south of the Zambesi River and lived in South Africa for thirty years, with an extensive newspaper experience, in Africa, England and America, the author of many interesting sketches of South African life and scenery, formerly connected with the consular service at Port Elizabeth, whose comments on the war have been so far, broadly received by the American press, and whose magnificent collection of photographs will appear in this work—will present South Africa as it is to-day, with views of everything of public interest, including most of the important scenes of battle and a graphically illustrated description of each stage in the progress of the war.

Port Elizabeth is the Liverpool of South Africa. It is a great commercial centre, coupled with some of the largest shipping interests in the world; a city of the most modern type, essentially English in character, and possessing some of the largest and finest buildings, and the picturesque costumes of the Orientals lend an air of peace and tranquillity, while the marks of civilization and progress are in evidence at every turn.

Johannesburg, the Golden, with its fine architectural creations, public institutions and parks, possesses many attractions that easily place it as the foremost city of South Africa. Its great industry, mining, the apparently inexhaustible veins of gold-bearing quartz, in which upwards of seven hundred million dollars are invested, have been the attraction for the thousands and thousands of "Uitlanders" whose "grievances" are substantially the cause for the cruel war between Briton and Boer, the battles of which have been ranked as the "bloodiest of the century."

This great work is published in serial form, and when complete will comprise the most magnificent collection of photographic reproductions of the British-Boer war and South Africa obtainable in this country. Portfolios distributed by the Morning Times. For particulars see announcement on another page of this issue.

Another reason for Lord Roberts not wanting the Boers to fool with the railroads behind him is because to that extent they are on his track.

A QUEER EXPLOSION.

HOW A MOUNTAIN LOCOMOTIVE CAME TO AN UNTIMELY END.

There was neither fire in her furnace nor water in her boiler, and yet she managed to blow up in the most approved style.

Mr. Henry Alquist, a prominent railroad man, relates the story of a curious wreck, the facts in which he will vouch for.

"It is such a remarkable thing," said Mr. Alquist to a reporter, "that I fear many will be inclined to brand it as 'pipe.' I have been railroading now for over 20 years, and never in all my varied experience have I seen such a unique and complete wreck as the one I speak of—that of engine 1,129 of the Rio Grande Western. Railroad men will tell you that locomotives seldom explode nowadays, but 1,129 did and in a very peculiar way.

"At the time this wreck occurred I was holding down the job of train dispatcher at Soldier Summit, Utah, and a tough old job it was. Never before, I suppose? Well, Soldier Summit is a station on the top of one of the Wasatch divides, a bleak and lonely place, where the Rio Grande Western has a roundhouse and coal chute located. At the summit are long snowsheds covering the tracks. These sheds protect the line from the winter. And it is only due to this method that a train ever gets over the mountain.

"On both sides of the mountain the line winds down in a succession of winding curves to lessen the grade. Running off from the railway are switches, which, diverging from the grade, run up into the hills and gradually come to a dead level. These switches, as they are called, are so constructed that they can be thrown from any point on the grade. And if a train breaks in two while ascending the steep grade the runaway cars can be switched on to one of these spurs, where the breakaway finally stops after it has run up the spur as far as the momentum attained in its descent will take it.

"All heavy trains have an extra locomotive before the grade is tackled. These are called helper engines and are kept in roundhouses at each side of the mountain with steam up.

"One night I got word from Clear Creek, a town in the western valley, that the 9:20 freight would be 30 minutes late on account of having to pull out a crippled engine, 1,129. She had burned out her dies and had to be hauled to Grand Junction for repairs.

"That night about 10 o'clock, after I had passed down the Salt Lake express, I heard the freight coughing up the long grade from Clear Creek. There was a snowstorm raging, and the wind howled around the station like the mischief. When the overdue 9:20 pulled into the shelter of the big snowsheds on the wind swept summit, the first thing I asked was, 'Where's the dead engine?'

"'Behind the doghouse' shouted the 'ton.' But as I held my lamp above my head I failed to see it. I was just about to call his attention to it when, during a lull in the storm, we plainly heard the familiar rattle of the rails as the runaway engine flew at lightning speed down the mountain. No. 1,129 had broken loose and was tearing down the grade to destruction.

"I jumped and pulled the lever which opened the spur switches. This I knew would prevent a smashup, as the engine would run up on the switchback and come to a stop. 'But I was too late. Almost at the same instant I threw the lever a terrific explosion was heard from far down the mountain. The runaway had exploded.'

"I thought you said a moment ago, Mr. Alquist," interrupted the Scientist man, "that the locomotive was a 'dead one'? If she had ne fire under her boiler, how could she explode?"

"That was the only thing I couldn't understand myself," the railroad man replied. "I could easily see how the dead engine could break loose on that grade, and I could understand not hearing its descent during such a howling blizzard, but the explosion seemed me. The only theory which in any way solved the mystery was that the old diesel was blown up by compressed air.

"You see, when the engine broke loose from the freight and started down the mountain the pistons in the cylinders began to act as air compressors. During the rough trip up her throttle probably jarred open, and as the speed increased with every revolution of her drivers her boiler soon filled with compressed air. It was not long before those flying pistons had worked up a pressure of nearly 500 pounds to the square inch, which came in faster than it could escape by the safety valve, and before the old machine reached Clear Creek her boiler let go."

Wanted to see the President. The Washington Star says that a big, gawky country lad went to the White House the other day just as the president had gone out for a morning stroll.

"I want to see the president," he announced to the first man he met.

"Well, there goes the president now," said the man addressed, pointing to the president's retreating form.

"Dern my time!" the young man ejaculated. "He walks just like any other man," and the fellow struck out so that he could get close enough to see the president well.

Warwick castle is held by many to be the most beautiful seat in England. The large baronial hall is a magnificent room. It is decorated with the most perfect specimens of armor, furnished in a luxurious manner, and masses of flowers and large palms abound on every side.

Clean Bread

Can't be made by foul hands and clean, pure blood can't be made by a foul stomach. The blood is made by the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition.

When these are diseased they contaminate every drop of blood made from the food they eat, and you cure this contamination is carried through the whole body. It may settle in the liver, kidneys, heart or lungs but the root of the disease is in the stomach. Cure the stomach and you cure the disease.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition perfectly and permanently. It purifies the blood, and so by curing the cause of disease, cures many forms of disease in organs remote from the stomach.

"For the past sixteen years I have had torpid liver and indigestion and tried many doctors and patent medicines but I could not get a cure," writes Mrs. Simon Suggs, of Clyde, Maine Parish, La. "Three months ago I thought I would try Dr. R. V. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and his 'Pleasant Pellets.' I got six bottles of each and I received a good result in a week, and today I am cured sound and well. The symptoms were coated tongue, appetite before food, disposed to be cross and irritable, foul stomach, had taste in the mouth, tired feeling, a feeling of dread or fear, headache, yellow skin, etc. These symptoms did not all appear at once. I suffered from such troubles will take Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets' as directed in pamphlets wrapping bottles, they will bring back the bloom of life as it did with me."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness and sick headache.

Boers Great Pioneers. The Boer is the ideal pioneer. From the days of the great trek, in 1837, and even before that he opened up continents hitherto unexplored by a white man. A great deal of fuss has been made of mighty travelers, English and foreign, who have traversed Africa, to the vast pecuniary benefit of their publishers and with no small meed of fame to themselves, but there was scarcely one of the old voortrekkers and hunters of the forties and fifties who did not accomplish feats of endurance, pluck and lengthy travel which were ten times as trying.—London Mail.

THE ELECTIONS IN JUNE

Everything Points to an Early Dissolution.

LIBERALS' CALL TO ARMS.

They Send out their Party Organizers which is a sure sign.

In East Durham the Campaign Has Already Begun—The Liberals of Peterborough are soon to make a move—Mr. Richard Hall, it is said, will accept nomination—Other Names Mentioned.
 Special to the Times.

Ottawa, April 11.—It is an open secret here that the government is preparing for a dissolution in June, and an appeal to the country. Liberal organizers have received their instructions, and are hard at work getting ready for the campaign, which will be one of the fiercest ever waged in this country. Yesterday a man in close touch with the Cabinet told the Times representative that the lists were all in the hands of the printers, and that the election was to take place in June. Sir Wilfrid Laurtier will go to the country with Imperial federation as his battle cry, while his opponents will also try to get into the same boat.

The Conservatives had a caucus this evening, and agreed to commence active campaign work without an hour's delay.
 They expect to sweep the west, as well as the Maritime Provinces. Ontario, however, will be the battle ground, as a turn over either way will mean either success or defeat for the government.

In west Northumberland the Liberals have opened the campaign, and are holding a series of meetings in various parts of the riding. Mr. Gullett, the Conservative member, is preparing for active operations as soon as he can get away from his parliamentary duties.

West Peterborough
 In West Peterboro the Liberals are working quietly. The Times is informed that Mr. Richard Hall will again be tendered the nomination and is likely to accept. He realizes that his chances of success are very much better than on the two previous occasions when he contested the riding. There is little doubt as to this, for Mr. Hall will be the government candidate; before he was the opposition standard bearer. He has a clean record, and was never known to do a mean act.

Other names are mentioned in case of Mr. Hall's refusal, amongst whom are Messrs. J. B. McWilliams, J. H. McEl-lean, E. B. Stone, George A. Elliott and R. S. Davidson. The latter is perhaps one of the strongest men in the party, and would prove a strong candidate.
 The Conservatives, it is understood, will again nominate Mr. Kendry, who is the strongest man they've got. Mr.
 John Carnegie or Mr. W. H. Moore have been mentioned, but only in case of Mr. Kendry dropping out.

East Peterborough
 East Peterboro is essentially an agricultural constituency, and has nearly always preferred a farmer to represent them in Parliament. Mr. John Lang will undoubtedly again be the choice of the Liberal party. He has made himself solid with the farmers, Liberal and Conservative alike, on the banks of the Otonabee, in connection with the claims on the government for damages resulting from the flood. This will be a strong spoke in Mr. Lang's political wheel.

Just who his opponent will be is not known. The Conservatives of East Peterboro are naturally a little slow, and have made no move in the direction of naming a candidate. Dr. S. P. Ford, of Norwood, who opposed Mr. Bleazard in the last local election, has been spoken of, as has also Mr. E. A. Peck. Mr. Peck is a member of the County Council, from the Otonabee division, and is very popular. He has a faculty of making friends and keeping them, and it is not improbable that he may be induced to accept nomination in the Conservative interests.

"Carry Sunshine with You."
 A bright, fresh, sunny face is always inspiring, and it always denotes good health as well as a happy heart. Many faces that were once overcast with gloom have been made bright and sunny by Hood's Sarsaparilla which cures all dyspeptic symptoms, strengthens the nerves and tones up and invigorates the whole system.

Constipation is cured by Hood's Pills, the non-irritating cathartic. Sold by all druggists.

Services at St. Peter's.
 This being Holy Week the services at St. Peter's cathedral will be of special importance and interest. They are as follows—

Holy Thursday—8 a.m., Pontifical mass and blessing of the holy oils.
 Good Friday—9 a.m., veneration of the cross and mass of the presenation, 3 p.m., stations of the cross, 7 p.m., stations of the cross, sermon and veneration of the cross.
 Holy Saturday—7 a.m., blessing of Pascal candles and epistola water; mass.
 Easter Sunday—Masses at 8 and 9.15.
 Pontifical mass at 10.30, Pontifical vespers and sermon at 7 p.m.

MODERN QUEBEC.

The Quebec Daily Telegraph has recently published a magnificent 20th Century illustrated number. It is printed on fine colored paper, contains over 400 illustrations, of ancient and modern Quebec, and a lithograph cover in seven colors. It has been acknowledged by all to be the most handsome publication ever issued from a newspaper office. The Montreal Herald says—

"The Quebec Daily Telegraph is certainly to be congratulated upon the literary, artistic and mechanical excellence of the 'Twentieth Century number,' which it has just published.
 It is one of the finest ever published in Canada, and no doubt like it has ever been got out. All the varied historic scenes and incidents in the life of the old city are told in eloquent language, and in contrast to the past, the flourishing industries of the present, which are constantly being added to, are fully detailed, showing how the city has awakened from the lethargy."

The American press say it can compare with any special number issued in the United States. This artistic work will be sent to any address in Canada or the United States on receipt of 25 cents.
 Address,
 Daily Telegraph,
 Quebec, Canada

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

The water in the river is rapidly rising.

The turn out at Battalion drill last night was very fair.

The directors of the Central Exhibition will meet this afternoon.

Yesterday four carloads of settlers' effects were shipped to the Northwest.

Mr. David Wilson, of Springfield, has been sworn in a Justice of the Peace.

The Central Post Co., of Toronto, with a capital of $300,000, has been incorporated.

A considerable number of persons visited the cycle show at the Y.M.C.A. building.

Rev. Mr. Shorey addressed a meeting in the parlour of the Y.M.C.A. last night, on "True Manhood."

The excellent choir of the Charlotte-st.
 church is preparing an excellent service of song for Easter Sunday. The choir will be assisted by Miss Hendren, of Lakeside.

"Your engine makes a queer coughing sound," remarked the journey to Station Agent Bamford, at the C.P.R. track yesterday. "Yes, sir," said Mr. B., "I guess it caught a cold that's settled in its steam chest."

Mr. John White, who for a year or more has been identified with the wholesale liquor business, known as Alex. Elliott & Co., has withdrawn therefrom.
 The business is now entirely under Mr.
 Elliott's management.

Owing to a conflict of dates it has been decided to cancel the Tripp-Jardine Thompson concert. This will be a great disappointment to many, but it is hoped that these very excellent artists will be heard at Lakeside at a later date.

The friends of Mr. William Robson, connected with the Poultry Association, entertained him to a complimentary supper on Monday on the eve of his departure for the Prairie Province. Mr. Robson will carry with him the hearty good wishes of many Peterborough friends.

PARALYSIS FROM COFFEE.
 "Sometime ago I had a shock of paralysis, which resulted from the continued use of coffee. Dizzy head and confused feelings were constantly with me. I was induced by a physician to leave off coffee and try Postum Food Coffee, with the result that I am now clearheaded and in perfect health." Mrs. F. E.
 Willoughby Amherst Station,
 N. H. Made at the pure food factories of the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

THE STONE ABUTMENTS.

The Reid Street Bridge Piers Are Not Down
 as Stated.

The Times was wrong in stating that the new stone abutments of the Reid street bridge, had been washed away, and it appears that our census of the Engineering department of the town was hardly deserved. We made the statement on information given by one of the Hamilton Company's men, who said that the stone piers were not properly built, and had caved in. We are pleased to make the correction for we feel that the town's engineering department has all the sins to answer that it can conveniently stand.
 The stone piers in question appear to be all right. Later on, when the water subsides, we will know if the foundations have been injured, or if the stonework will require rebuilding.
 The town should at once proceed to place a permanent iron bridge over the creek on field street. It would be the cheapest by all odds in the long run.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

The Park Tennis Club re-organized the Y.M.C.A. parlors with a large attendance of members. Officers for the year were elected as follows—
 President—D. H. Burnett.
 Vice-President—C. B. McAllister.
 Secretary—E. Lord.
 Executive Committee—The officers with W. H. Collier and H. H. Edmondson.

There is a scheme on foot to form a summer racing circuit, embracing Ottawa, Peterborough, Aylmer and Hamilton. Peterborough has not had a good race meet in a number of years and an event would do no doubt meet with liberal patronage, if the management is placed in the proper hands.

Quite a number of dog fanciers in town will attend the Foxterrier Club Bench Show in Toronto on the 12th, 13th, and 14th. Mr. C. B. McAllister and Mr. Robert Kerr have both made a number of entries in Collie and Foxterriers, respectively.

The Midland Baseball League was successfully organized at Port Hope on Monday. The schedule for the season was drawn up as follows—

 Peterborough at Cobourg, Oshawa at Port Hope.
 June 2—Port Hope at Peterborough, Cobourg at Bowmanville.
 June 9—Lindsay at Oshawa.

 July 21—Port Hope at Bowmanville.
 July 28—Cobourg at Port Hope.
 Civic holiday—Cobourg at Oshawa, ough at Bowmanville, Bowmanville at Port Hope, Bowmanville at Cobourg, Port Hope at Lindsay.

 Sept. 3—Cobourg at Lindsay, Bowmanville at Peterborough, Port Hope at Oshawa.
 The date for civic holiday has not been set in the various towns.
 Players of all teams must be signed and hold certificates by June 1st. Each club deposits $10, as a guarantee to play according to schedule. It was decided to use home umpires. Peterborough players are waiting eagerly for the grounds to dry into shape that they can begin practice.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL.

Mr. Harold Nelles is in town.

Miss Walton has returned from a visit to Toronto.

Mr. Louis Houedry, dealer in Peterboro', in fancy peas, left for France and will represent his large firm at the Paris Exposition. In his absence Mr. J. B. La-roque will look after his business.

The Park Street Pavement.

Sir,—I noticed in one of our local contemporaries, which tries to take a fling at Mr. J. B. McWilliams, on account of the Park street pavement breaking up. Surely, if anybody is to blame, it is the Engineer, who had charge of the work, and whose duty it was to see that the pavement was properly laid.

It makes me sick to read such stuff as the writer referred to dishes up. When a newspaper is forced to resort to such methods to prop its party up by endeavoring to injure a political opponent, it is time to call a halt.

FAIR PLAY.

A Rare Catch.

Mr. W. R. Kidd, Reeve of Cardiff, showed the Times a very rare piece of fur, being the pelt of a silver grey fox, which he caught in Eel's Lake, in that township. It is the only one ever secured in this county or district.
 It is valued at from $200 to $500, according to quality. The pelt is in the possession of Mr. Kidd's brother, Mr.
 R. J. Kidd.

Funeral To-Day.

The funeral of the late John Brown, whose death in Chicago was announced in yesterday's issue, will take place on the arrival of the 11.35 Grand Trunk train this morning, from the station.
 Friends of the deceased are invited to attend.

A Pleasant Evening.

Last night Miss Ackerman entertained a number of young ladies at the Y.
 W.C.A. rooms, the occasion being the closing of her dancing class, which she conducted since last autumn. A very enjoyable time was spent, progressive games and music being the feature of the evening. Miss Ackerman was presented by her class with a lovely bouquet of flowers. Two prizes were given for the games, Miss Chambers and Miss Graham being the winners.
 Refreshments were served, after which a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Miss Ackerman for her faithful services, which were given gratefully, and which were so much appreciated by the young ladies.

"Honesty is the Best Policy."

Never was a more pointed saying put into print, and yet to be honest only because it is policy is a poor kind of honesty. Better change "policy" to "principle" and the world will like you better. In the medical world there is one medicine honest for principle's sake—and that is Hood's Sarsaparilla.

It is the specific of the age for all blood troubles. The liver, kidneys and bowels are all toned up by its action as a cleanser and thus good health ensues. It never disappoints.

Rheumatism.—"I believe Hood's Sarsaparilla has no equal for rheumatism. It has done me more good than any other medicine I have taken." Mrs. FARRAR KENNY, Brampton, Ont.

Bad Cough.—"After my long illness, I was very weak and had a bad cough. I could not eat or sleep. Different remedies did not help me but Hood's Sarsaparilla built me up and I am now able to attend to my work." MRS. J. J. JAMES, Oshawa, Ont.

Scouring.—"I have been troubled with headache and biliousness and was much run down. Tried Hood's Sarsaparilla and it gave me relief and built me up." A.
 McMANUS, 89 Deane Street, Toronto, Ont.

Heart Trouble.—"I had heart trouble for a number of years and different medicines failed to benefit me. I tried Hood's Sarsaparilla and three bottles completely and perfectly cured me." Mrs. C. A. FINE, Wallace Bridge, N. S.

A Sufferer.—"As I had lost five children with diphtheria I gave my remaining two children Hood's Sarsaparilla as they were subject to throat trouble and were not very strong. They are now healthier and stronger and have not since had a cold."
 Mrs. W. B. FLACKER, Pembroke, Ont.

Varicose Veins.—"I have been a great sufferer from varicose veins, which swelled my foot and limb, discharging watery matter. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla faithfully and the sores healed." Mrs.
 A. E. GRISON, Hartland, Vt.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
 Never Disappoints

Hood's Pills cure liver ills; the non-irritating and only cathartic to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

IT WILL PAY

GEN. GATACRE ORDERED HOME BY LORD ROBERTS

And the Curt Manner in Which it is Announced Causes Considerable Comment.

THE REPORTED BRITISH REVERSE A BOER CANARD

Lord Roberts Sends a Report Which Disproves the Disquieting Tale. General Brabant Punished Boers and is Holding Wepener Successfully.

London, April 12.—The Bloemfontein correspondent of the Daily Telegraph in a despatch dated Tuesday, says:—"The permanent defence is clearing completion so that the town can be held by a relatively small garrison."

A British scout who has visited Bloemfontein waterworks, reports that the machinery and dams are intact. Only a few Boers remain in the neighborhood.

The enemy have trekked six miles north and formed a laager near Waterval. News from Gen. Brabant at Wepener shows that all is going satisfactorily there. The troops are getting new khaki serge uniforms and boots.

are being moved up rapidly. A patrol of six men of the Seventh Dragoon Guards, under Lieutenant Wetherly, which had been reported missing since April 7, has returned safely.

NO MENTION OF A REVERSE.

General Roberts' Despatch Does Not Confirm the Boer Story.

London, April 11.—As Lord Roberts' latest despatch does not mention the alleged British reverse on Saturday at Meerkfontein, the Boer telegrams are discredited at the War Office, and they are further discredited on account of the discrepancies in the despatches, as Meerkfontein in one message is located near Bradford, and in another it is located southeast of Bloemfontein, the places being 100 miles apart.

BULLER BEGINS TO MOVE.

He Takes the Preliminary Steps for an Attack on the Boers.

London, April 11.—The Durban correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, telegraphing Tuesday, April 10, says:—"Our naval guns have commenced bombarding the Boer positions between Sunday River and Biggarsburg."

METHEN MARCHES NORTH.

Report that he is Advancing Upon Hoopsdam from Boshof.

Pretoria, April 9.—Via Lorenzo Marquez.—Heavy cannonading is reported at Fourteen Streams. The British are using a new gun. Lord Methuen is moving in the direction of Hoopsdam, which is about 50 miles northeast of Boshof, Orange Free State.

A WARNING TO COLONISTS.

Lord Roberts Threatens Cape Colonists with Martial Law. Cape Colony, April 11.—In view of the state of unrest across the border, Lord Roberts has proclaimed a warning to the Cape Colonists that further acts of hostility will be treated with the utmost rigor of martial law.

TROOPS REACH ALLWAL NORTH.

General Roberts is Reinforcing the Garrison There.

London, April 11.—The Reuter Telegram Company's correspondent at Allwal North, writing at 9.30 this morning, says:—"There is no further news from Wepener. Too cloudy to telegraph. More British troops are arriving."

BOMBARDMENT IN NATAL.

Boers Throw Shells Into Buller's Camp at Elanburg.

Lady Smith, April 10.—The Boers opened fire this morning early, sending shells into the British camp at Elanburg from three positions widely separated. The shells did no damage. The troops moved out to reconnoitre, and found the Boers in strong force and well fortified. A naval 4.7-inch gun replied to the Boers, who have again placed a Long Tom in position.

HOT WORDS FROM THE TIMES.

The Great Journal Again Attacks Careless British Officers.

London, April 11.—The Times says:—"No serious development of Boer movements to the south had taken place on Sunday, but Lord Roberts has taken measures to preclude surprise. Unfortunately success depends upon the vigilance and caution with which orders are carried out. Colonel Lonsdale Hale deprecates the severe condemnation on the intelligence of the average British officer expressed in the measure of our special correspondent from Cape Town yesterday, but we cannot necessarily pass over in silence the glaring failures such as Col. Hale substantially admits have been too frequent and too recent to permit of unqualified confidence in the discretion of our officers. We must all trust that the severe lessons of the last week have inspired such a degree of care and common sense into those entrusted with the execution of Lord Roberts' orders as to secure us from a recurrence of those unpleasant occurrences, which as Lord Winchester remarks, become painfully familiar. Until our officers are taught by their superiors at home that mistakes are disgraceful, we must expect that they will continue to be taught that elementary lessons at the cost of their own lives, or the lives of their men and of the credit of their country as a military power."

BRABANT HOLDS HIS OWN.

Allwal North, April 11.—The British loss in the fighting at Wepener yesterday was 11 killed and 41 wounded. Fighting was resumed to-day. The British are holding their own.

GENERAL GATACRE SUPERSEDED.

Bloemfontein, April 10.—General Gatacre is about to return to England. General Chermide has been appointed to the command of the seventh division. Several changes are likely to be made in the brigade commands. General Buller is expected to succeed Gen. Gatacre.

UNITED STATES AND SOUTH AFRICAN WAR.

The Coming Presidential Elections Will Probably Be Run on International Issues.

New York, April 11.—The Herald says:—"International complications may come up in the presidential campaign as a result of the South African war. McKinley's administration is firmly opposed to any sort of interference, and while there is much sympathy for the struggling Boer republic, sentiment is strongly on the side of England, not alone out of gratitude for her friendship during the Spanish war, but also because the American people realize that interference might lead to a war that would set back the hands of Anglo-Saxon progress and involve the peace of the world. But no one can tell what a day may bring forth in American politics, or what may result from demagogic agitation."

"It is yet two or three months till the meeting of the conventions in which the campaign issues will be formulated and candidates nominated, and the election is seven months off. There is now every prospect that the Transvaal war will continue during that period, and what it may bring forth in the way of surprises in South Africa, Europe and America, time alone can tell. It need however surprise no one if its prolongation is accompanied by the brewing of pro-Boer agitation and spreading of pro-Boer sentiment in the United States, if McKinley and Bryan are to be the regular and only candidates."

"In view of the fact, international as well as national interest and importance must attach to the course of Dewey and the stand which he takes on the Boer issue in the public declaration of his views which he is to make. If he comes out squarely and strongly for non-interference and runs either as the regular Democratic or as an independent people's candidate, his candidature will doom the pro-Boer agitation to failure, and insure peace for the next four years. As third candidate he might not be elected, but he would secure the defeat of Bryan with his silver taint, his opposition to national expansion and his commitment to foreign interference at the cost of war. "Naturally politicians are barking Bryan, and do not want Dewey, but the Admiral's candidacy in the situation that now seems to be looming up would prove of service to the country not less important or creditable than that which he rendered in the Bay of Manila."

A HINT THAT MAY CAUSE A CRISIS.

Ottawa Authorities Urge Lieut.-Gov. McInnes to Dissolve B.C. Legislature.

Victoria, B. C., April 11.—The political situation in this province is rapidly approaching a crisis. There is some ground for the report that the Ottawa authorities think the Lieutenant-Governor should summon or dissolve Parliament at once and that they have given him an intimation to that effect.

Politicians of all shades stamp such a course as the proper one to pursue, and there is a great deal of speculation as to whether, in the event of Lieutenant-Governor McInnes acting upon the hint from Ottawa, Mr. Martin will meet the House. Should he do so he would almost certainly be defeated.

Many think the upshot will be that Hon. Fred Peters, who has all along enjoyed much of the Governor's confidence and is acceptable to the more conservative Liberals, as well as to the business men, will be sent for.

A NEWLY FORMED LIBERAL PARTY.

Imperial Liberal Council Will Follow Lord Rosebury and Sir Edward Grey.

London, April 11.—The newly-formed Imperial Liberal Council held its first meeting yesterday afternoon, under the presidency of Mr. Robert William Perks, who explained that the object of the new organization was to maintain Liberalism in its "old, progressive, tolerant and unaggressive form". In other words, he added, the Imperial Liberals "proposed to follow the lead of such men as Lord Rosebury and Sir Edward Grey."

Mr. Perks, who is a lawyer and a contractor interested in the construction of many railroads and docks, including the Manchester Ship Canal, announced that a large number of those who had already joined the organization were candidates for election to Parliament at the next general election, and he hoped, therefore, to have a solid battalion of candidates in full sympathy with the organization's Imperial views.

"What the Liberal party needs," said Mr. Perks, "is not only clear and decided leadership, but more frequent consultations between the supposed leader and his followers."

FOR THE BIG FAIR AT PARIS.

Wilderness of Brick and Mortar Being Cleared—The Opening on Saturday.

New York, April 11.—A Paris cable says immense steps are now being taken for the completion of the exhibition sufficiently to allow for a proper opening on Saturday. Scaffolding is disappearing, and the wilderness of bricks and mortar is being transformed into attractive gardens.

A group of artists going over the grounds yesterday was unanimously of the opinion that the real notable feature of the exhibition, as far as beauty was concerned, is the Alexander III bridge. This is probably the most beautiful work of its kind the world can show.

IS DRUMMOND TO SUCCEED HUTTON?

A Rumor That Lord Minto's Military Secretary Will Command the Militia.

Ottawa, April 11.—The Militia Department disavows the rumor that Maj. Drummond has been nominated G. O. C., to succeed Col. Hutton. The Militia Act distinctly states that the G. O. C. in Canada must be a full colonel in the British army, and Maj. Drummond could not be that unless he were judged up two steps at once.

Maj. Drummond is military secretary to His Excellency, and he accompanied the first contingent to South Africa in the capacity of chief of staff to Col. Otter.

BULLET SEVERED THE VOCAL CHORDS.

Pte. Bradshaw, Wounded at Paardeberg, Will Never Be Able to Speak Again.

Kingston, April 11.—Private Bradshaw of D Company, first contingent, writes to a friend that he suffered a severe wound during the fight at Paardeberg. The wound was not so serious but the consequences following it are terrible, for the bullet that pierced him entered his neck and severed the vocal chords, depriving him forever of the powers of speech.

Bradshaw belonged to Picton, and had been attached to the Standard Band staff at Kingston and Belleville. He has relatives in Toronto.

BOERS ARE KICKING AND MAY MAKE REPRISALS!

They Object to the Transport of British Troops Over Portuguese Territory.

STRATHCONA'S HORSE ARRIVE AT CAPE TOWN.

The Corps Encountered Heavy Weather and Lost 163 Horses in the From Halifax—Boers May Invade Portuguese Territory at Delagoa Bay.

London, April 11.—The report that the Boer Government are protesting to Portugal against the passage of troops through Portuguese East Africa, and Rhodesia raises interesting questions and throws a new light upon the course hitherto taken by Great Britain regarding the shipment of Boer munitions and reinforcements through Delagoa Bay. It is certain that Great Britain has not taken the strong stand she might have taken with regard to these shipments and that she has practically acquiesced in them. Since the seizure of the German liners and their release on the protest of the Kaiser's Government our Government has given up the attempt to stop contraband traffic, yielding her rights and showing the Portuguese officials that she has no intention of pushing matters to extremities. It is quite possible that in doing so Her Majesty's advisers had in mind the sending of British troops and munitions from Delagoa Bay to Salisbury. "The Transvaal Government are obtaining the sinews of war over Portuguese territory without let or hindrance; why should we not do likewise?" the War Office may have said. Hence no vigorous protest was made, the intention being to use the same indulgence granted by Portugal to the Transvaal Government for similar complaisance toward Great Britain. It will be interesting to note the result of the Boer protest in view of this hypothesis.

A CONCENTRIC ADVANCE.

Boers Cannot Remain in the Field When Roberts Moves.

Berlin, April 10.—The latest events in South Africa are interpreted as unfavorable to Great Britain, but Gen. Von Blicher, in the Loksa Anzeiger, says:—"Evidently the British will soon begin a concentric advance movement, rendering it impossible for the Boers to communicate with their forces within the inner line. The principal danger for the British remains in their extremely long and unbroken line of communication."

"It will be, however, next to impossible for the Boers to continue movements in the open field when Lord Roberts moves, after putting his army in first-class condition."

ENLISTING FOR THE STRATHCONA.

Additional Fifty Men will be Raised in the West.

Ottawa, Ont., April 11.—The Militia Department has already started to make arrangements for the recruiting of the fifty additional members of Strathcona's Horse, according to the called request of the High Commissioner, received last night. The men will be raised at once in the West. They will sail for Liverpool about the end of the month and go from thence on in English steamer to South Africa.

READY TO MOVE THIS WEEK.

The Times Says General Roberts May Soon Advance.

London, April 11.—The Times says:—"The Boers are now moving about in large numbers over a wide region south and east of Bloemfontein, but the statement made from Beaufort that they practically hold the Free State Railway creates an erroneous impression. A more accurate view of the situation is expressed by our correspondent at Bloemfontein. The enemy, he says, are making an attempt to discover a strategic opening. Their numbers are unknown, but are supposed to be between 3,000 and 4,000 men. They are moving with the greatest caution along the line of communication, which is regularly patrolled, but so far only small parties have come into contact with Lord Roberts' troops. The interruption of the railway and the re-enlistment of farmers have doubtless among the main objects they have in view. Unrest is reported about Philippolis and Fauresburg, and Boer agents appear ostentatiously taking notes of the movements of the burghers. It was known, as far back as March 20th, that Lord Roberts would not be ready to move before this week. When he does move, any bodies of the enemy south of his position will find themselves in a position of great danger."

BRITISH ON PARADE.

But They were Forced to March Off by Boer Firing.

Lady Smith, April 11.—When the Boers at Elanburg commenced shelling the British were drilling and one private was killed and another was wounded before the soldiers were withdrawn from range. Then the naval brigade opened fire, and drew a heavy Boer fusillade, and two of the cruiser Philomel's gunners were killed. The naval men stuck to their positions, however, and the Boers unmasked six guns, including a one hundred-pounder, and shells fell in all the British camps.

After three hours' bombardment the Boers fire slackened and the burghers cleared from a kopje on the right when a British shell lit on the spot occupied by their gun.

Another command was seen making toward the British left flank apparently with the intention of flanking them, but the British shells forced them to retire. The British advanced pickets were continually sniped, but few casualties have been reported.

In the afternoon the naval brigade again fired a few shells.

It is rumored that a body of Boers has gathered southwest of Elanburg with the apparent intention of cutting the British line of communication.

Gen. Buller directed to-day's operations. Gen. Buller visited Elanburg to-day.

POLE CAREW'S NEW COMMAND.

London, April 11.—Gen. Pole-Carew has been appointed to the command of the 11th division.

SIGNAL FOR A REVOLT.

Fall of Lady Smith would have kindled a serious rebellion.

METHUEN NEAR BOSHOF.

London, April 11.—A despatch to the Times from Zwartkopsfontein, dated April 9, says:—"Gen. Methuen's force has made a short halt and is now camped here, ten miles east of Boshof. To-day Lord Chesham, with the Imperial Yeomanry and the Kimberley mounted corps, made a reconnaissance eastward, meeting with only one small party of Boers, which made good its escape. Horses and cattle obtain excellent grazing. All the troops are very efficient. The condition of the horses is very superior to what is observed elsewhere."

PLUMER AT SIFILE.

The Colonel was Wounded in the Fighting Near Mafeking.

London, April 11.—The Times has the following despatch from Bulawayo, dated April 5:—"Lieutenant Frank Mulligan, reported killed near Mafeking on the 31st ult., is a prisoner, severely wounded, of the Boers. We lost 74 horses in the fight. Our base camp, to which we retired, is at Sifile, west of Lobatse. Of the wounded officers Colonel Plumer, Captain Holt and Major Weston Jarvis are already sufficiently recovered to be able to partly resume their duties."

Short Stories of the Day

THE VISION OF HUD BEACH.

BY ELIA W. PRATTIE.

Hudson Irvington Beach was destined by his father for great things. To which end he educated him liberally. So Hud, emerging from academic halls, looked about on life with a patronizing air and wait for opportunity to come along and make him a pretty bow. He waited a good many years, but she never stopped before him or seemed to notice him in the least. His people all died and left him nothing but the memory of honorable lives, and poor Hud, horribly lonely, married a girl he knew—after ascertaining that she had no objection to making her own grooves and was willing to temper her grocery bills to suit a bookkeeper's salary.

But in spite of all the dullness with which he was surrounded and the fact that he toiled all day and waited home through filthy streets to a third flat and a plain wife, Hud could not come down to the actualities, or, to put it more fairly, he refused to notice the uninteresting actualities and confined himself to the enjoyment of such things in life as suited him. As, for example, the east.

Hud kept books for a river street importing house, and it was his privilege to handle invoices of tea from China and coffee and spices from Java and Mandarlay. It was, without doubt, the purest imagination, but it seemed to Hud that the very invoices of these things had an aromatic scent about them, and it was his chief indulgence to leave his work for a minute before the noon hour and go to the shipping room, where the curious cases of redolent wares were opened. He adored it all, the neat packages and the curious hieroglyphics, the elaborate foldings of paper, the cunning straps and bindings, and above all the haunting smells. In short, Hud "heard the east a-calling" and he "couldn't hear naught else."

At first when he tried to tell his wife she laughed. But she loved Hud—poor Hud who never had anything that he wanted—and when she looked in his dreamy, oiled eyes she made up her mind to try to understand what he was talking about. Very plain women are sometimes unselfish, like that.

It was she who brought him an old copy of the astonishing travels of Marco Polo, and she got the chronicles of Sir John Mandeville out of the public library and read aloud to Hud evenings. She got some loose sticks, too, and burned them in a tiny jade bowl. And after that both of the Beaches got in the way of buying oriental trinkets, and Mrs. Beach begged the greenish pitted straw wrappings that came around the tea boxes and made a dais of them around her dining-room, neatly paneling the whole. After that the pungent perfume of the dried tea leaves was forever in that room, and made it peculiar. Moreover she struck at tiny songs when meals were ready, and the song had a haunting oriental sound.

So into the lives of Hudson Irvington Beach and his plain little wife began to come the color of the "mysterious east," and they dreamed of "Far Cathay" and talked about "The Ind," and were absurdly hackneyed—though they didn't know it—and they envied the people who could cross the western seas and sail into the toy country of Japan, or see the vast, thronging rivers of China and hear the tinkling of the temple bells.

"I used to think it was very silly to talk about the incarnation of the soul," Mrs. Beach said to Hudson, "but now I feel quite sure that I used to talk through a haze and talk with ivory-faced old men in turbans and that I used to buy curious, delightful things. It cannot be that all I know about marketing is going down on Clark street to the butcher's. I hate the butcher's anyway. Why can't we eat rice and sugar and cherries and beautiful delicate things like that?"

Hud managed to get some delicate relishes such as Christians encounter when they go to Bombay, and he and Mrs. Beach used them with scrupulous frugality. On Christmas he made her a present of sugared cherries and ginger and small, precious packages of tea. They knew but few persons on this teeming globe and wrote to fewer still, though they were people who would dearly have loved an interesting correspondence, and chief of all their epistolary delights was the letter that came now and then from Hong Kong from a correspondent of the river street house. Hud told the truth, had rather trust his personality upon this man, and by careful coaxing the business correspondence had grown into a friendly interchange of personal letters. The Hong Kong man told with detail of his life in the city. The Beaches told with equal detail their longings for the east.

"It seems curious to me at times," said Hud one day, rubbing the bald spot on his head, "that in all my life I am never to get a smell of the tawazur—the garlic and the incense and the perfumes and the dirt! How miserably dull our streets are! Mary! what would you think if you saw people in white linen and red and blue and yellow and gold and fawn colors? Mary, how would you like a cashmere shawl? Or a camel-hair robe? Eh?" Then they both laughed like children who have a secret, and Mary, getting up, lit one of the little loose sticks in the jade bowl.

It was only last winter that the Beaches began to get tired of visions. Perhaps they realized that youth was really gone. Anyway, they knew beyond all peradventure that they were poor; that work was constant and poorly remunerated, and that for all of the cry of their souls for the land beyond seas they were likely to live and die in that neighborhood of "flat" buildings, looking out on endless wire clothes lines and fire escapes. They grew depressed. They were almost ill-natured with each other. They ceased to take pleasure in the redolent dais. They were settling down upon them in a most disheartening way, and the furniture of the flat was looking its meanest, and Mary was most conscious of the out-of-date character of her three-year-old jacket. Hud came home one night with a white face.

"Hud," cried Mary when she saw him, "you're discharged."

"Mary," shouted Hud, throwing his arms about her, "you lie!" and he kissed her square on the mouth.

"It's in the Ind!" half sobbed Hud. "I tell you, Mary, it's the Ind that has upset me! I'm to go as agent for our house to Hong Kong! It has come true!"

"Hong Kong isn't the Ind," said Mary almost crossly. She was so surprised that she had to be cross.

"Isn't it, dear? Oh, yes, it is. It's the east, anyhow! Mary, I can smell it—I can see it—I can hear it! What a fairyland. The sky, the flowers, the people, the color, the noise—they are all different! We shall cross the continent and cross the sea and see the islands, and then we shall come to the old cities and live in them!"

He rubbed his bald head fiercely with his handkerchief, while he was trembling with his amazement; brewed him a cup of the purest of Caylon, and his steam filled all the room with an aroma which Hud sniffed and sniffed as if he never could have enough of it.

"Hudson Irvington Beach," said he dreamily, quaffing the fragrant beverage, "of Hong Kong!"

His Idea of Humor.

A janitress living on Washington square had an adventure one day which she will not soon forget. It seems that the building which she has under her care was at one time used by a trust company, and afterward it was turned into an apartment house. When this was done, the vaults were left intact, and they were very seldom opened. The janitress was showing a party of gentlemen through the building and pointed out the desirability of the vaults as refrigerators.

When she opened the vault and stepped in, one of the party, who has a rare idea of humor, shut the door suddenly and imprisoned the janitress. That was all right so far as it went, but the lock was a spring affair, and the janitress had the keys on the inside. The room hunters were thoroughly frightened, and one of them ran for a locksmith in haste. Luckily a neighbor, who is an expert locksmith, came into the place and in a few minutes succeeded in releasing the woman, who was in anything but a pleasant frame of mind. The room hunters made themselves very scarce before the enraged janitress came forth.—Philadelphia Record.

In the Same Pen.

"One of the boys at the hotel put me on to a little poker game," said the dry goods drummer, "and I went around to see what it was like. There were about 30 respectable looking people in the room, and one of them was trying to teach me the value of the cards, when the police broke in and made a clean sweep of everybody. Next morning, when arraigned at the police court, I wanted a lawyer, and there was a general laugh in court as his honor replied:

"I don't know where you'll get one. There are nine in town, but all are in the pen with you!"

"It was so," continued the drummer, "and things might have gone hard with me had it not been for the fact that the judge was a Jew, but he first stepped out as the raid was made. Nothing was said about it, of course, but he let us off with a fine of $2 each and a lot of fatherly advice."

He Was Very Thoughtful.

A north country miller noted for his keenness in financial matters was once in a boat trying his best to get across the stream which drove his mill.

The stream was doctored, and he was taken past the point at which he wanted to land, while farther on misfortune again overtook him to the extent that the boat was upset.

His wife, realizing the danger he was in, ran frantically along the side of the stream, crying for help in a pitiful voice, when, to her sheer amazement, she was suddenly brought to a standstill by her husband yelling out:

"If I'm drowned, Molly, don't forget that four's gone up 2 shillin a sack!"—London Telegraph.

BOREAS POST HIS GUNS.

The Enemy Strongly Entrenched at Helpmaker and North of Elmira.

New York, April 10.—The Herald prints a despatch from Lady Smith, dated Sunday, which says the Boers have posted a big gun on Knight's Hill, north of Elmsburg, and another in the vicinity of Wessel's Nek Station. The enemy are reported to be strongly entrenched at Helpmaker.

We have already completed over 100 feet development work, 70 feet of which consists of surface work such as cross-cuts, shallow shafts, etc. prospecting to decide the best place to sink our main or working shaft. This has been found to be on the "Big 3" or centre claim, and we are now down 30 feet and still pushing the work as fast as four practical miners and dynamite can possibly accomplish. Remember, we have three full claims, to wit: "Big 3," "Victor" and "Will of the Wind," situated on Iron Mountain in the Baraka mining district, Ferry county, Washington, six miles west from north to south and cropping for over 2,700 feet, and surface assays furnished $8 to $9 in free gold.

Our manager writes us, under date of March 1, 1900, that at a depth of 30 feet in our proposed main shaft he is working in 4 feet of fine quartz and it is widening as depth is acquired. He also says: "I am confident that a shaft at the same stage of development. Our latest assay from a depth of about 15 feet (main shaft) gave $10.53, "a better showing than the Republic had at the same depth."

The company now offer 50,000 shares of treasury stock (NON-ASSESSABLE) AT THE LOW PRICE OF 1-1-2 CENTS PER SHARE, in order to raise funds to push the work with additional force.

There are 300,000 shares in the treasury and the above is the first offered for sale. The company being a reliable one, and with such a phenomenal showing on their properties, it should induce immediate investment, so don't delay as the price will positively be raised when this block is sold; every dollar we send means a greater depth to our shaft, wider lead and higher assays. DONT MISS THIS. ITS A WINNER. Send your orders at once to the secretary.

The Quebec Daily Telegraph has recently published a magnificent 20th Century illustrated number. It is printed on fine coated paper, contains over 400 illustrations, of ancient and modern Quebec, and a lithograph cover in seven colors. It has been acknowledged by all to be the most handsome publication ever issued from a newspaper office. The Montreal Herald says—

"The Quebec Daily Telegraph is certainly to be congratulated upon the literary, artistic and mechanical excellence of the 'Twentieth Century number,' which it has just published. It is one of the finest ever published in Canada, and no doubt like it has ever been got out. All the varied historic scenes and incidents in the life of the old city are told in eloquent language, and in contrast to the past, the flourishing industries of the present, which are constantly being added to, are fully detailed, showing how lately the city has awakened from the lethargy."

GLIMPSES OF SOUTH AFRICA.

Peace and in War—A Splendid Lot of Views

Southern Africa, that enormous expanse of tropically verdant territory extending from the Zambesi River to the Cape of Good Hope, has for a century or more lain dormant to the eyes of the civilized world. Only within the past two decades has public attention been drawn to the wonderful natural resources and mineral wealth of this wild and rugged land, and yet, within this period, marvellous creation of brilliant modern cities have supplanted the desert lands and haunts of savage tribes. The steady march of civilization, the all-pervading ambition to accumulate the wealth of diamonds and gold that lay beneath the crust of this benighted land, each has borne its part in the metamorphosis and arrows of the cyclical or the wonderful possibilities of that "Dark Continent" for the energy and enterprise that the 20th century will bring to light.

In no other country of the world has progress been marked with such steady and sure advance. From the time the early Dutch settlers landed in the Cape Colony up to the present, there has existed almost a constant state of warfare; the natives disputing the advance of the Dutch and they in turn resenting the intrusion of civilization. In the world this no strenuous were the efforts of the colonists in their determination to turn to account the beauties and resources of the land of their adoption, that to-day they enjoy the fruits of their success in a paradise of tropical vegetation, a salubrious climate and surrounded by the highest advantages of intellectuality and luxuries of civilization.

Cape town is the metropolis and seat of government of the Cape Colony. Its historical past and present is firmly linked in the traditions of the early Dutch and the English. From the old forts and buildings of distinctly Dutch architecture still remain, but nestled in South Africa and the progress of the war, and so eager the thirst for information, coupled with the demand for a pictorial history of the incident to the present, that the publication of "Glimpses of South Africa" has been undertaken upon a scale of grandeur, fidelity and completeness never before thought of, involving as it has an expense of extraordinary magnitude. In order that the work might be absolutely reliable and thorough in its character, the publishers have contracted for its authorship with Mr. Wynne Fleming, an African whose authority upon South African history is world-wide and acknowledged. This gentleman, born in the Cape Colony, having traveled over nearly every inch of the country south of the Zambesi River and lived in South Africa for nearly thirty years, with an extensive newspaper experience, in Africa, England and America, the author of many interesting sketches of South African life and scenery, formerly connected with the consular service at Port Elizabeth, whose comments on the war have been so favorably received by the American press, and whose magnificent collection of photographs will appear in this work—will present South Africa as it is to-day, with views of everything of public interest, including most of the important scenes of battle and a graphically illustrated description of each stage in the progress of the war.

Port Elizabeth is the Liverpool of South Africa. It is a great commercial centre, coupled with some of the largest shipping interests in the world; a city of the most modern type, essentially English in character, and possessing some of the largest and most architecturally magnificent buildings and public institutions in South Africa.

Natal is the beautiful, tropical Garden Colony. Its luxuriant vegetation and glorious climate, its wide avenue of trees and fine buildings, the native Kaffir servants and the picturesque costumes of the Orange and the air of peace and tranquillity, while the marks of civilization and progress are in evidence at every turn.

Johannesburg, the Golden, with its fine architectural creations, public institutions and parks, possesses many attractions that easily place it as the foremost city of South Africa. Its great industry, mining, the apparently inexhaustible veins of gold-bearing quartz, in which upwards of seven hundred millions of dollars are invested, have been the attraction for the thousands and thousands of "Uitlanders" whose "grievances" are substantially the cause for the cruel war between Briton and Boer, the battles of which have been ranked as the "bloodiest of the century."

This great work is published in serial form, and when complete will comprise the most magnificent collection of photographs and reproductions of the British-Boer war and South Africa obtainable in this country. Portfolio distributed by the Morning Times. For particulars see announcement on another page of this issue.

Another reason for Lord Roberts not wanting the Boers to feel with the railroads behind him is because to that extent they are on his track.

HER COMING.

A month ago the year was growing gray; The restive swallows and the oriole Had lured the summer southward, and the gay Bevy of bees had a chill that stole. The living green from the cooling leaves, Deluding them with sickle red and gold, And lesser days enwrapped in empty sheaves That murmured hollow protests to the cold. And then you came, a fair enchantress who, With half-revealing smile replaced the dim, Repaired the dreary autumn with kind eyes, That offered spring and tenderness and drew A wealth of roses in my path the day You turned a sad November into May.

THE SELF MADE MAN.

This Writer Must Have Met One That He Did Not Like.

Notwithstanding the self made man does not reflect unduly on credit upon his maker, he is himself fully convinced that he is the perfect article.

Even if, as may sometimes be the case, he is conscious of a few imperfections, he refers them to his parents, who were responsible for the man in the rough, so to speak, before he began to mold himself into the ideal creature that you now behold and therefore not chargeable to his account.

It is a constant wonder to him that others with no worse material than he had to found himself upon should have turned out such inferior pieces of work, and it is natural, therefore, that he should condemn the droves of failures that he sees about him.

But happily for him he only observes others sufficiently to exalt his own greatness by comparison. His best hold and his strong suit is introspection. By looking within he has ever before his mental vision an object that swells his bosom with pride to look upon, and he makes the most of the show, which, being a continuous performance, keeps him ever busy and always supremely happy.

He is a constant wonder to him that others with no worse material than he had to found himself upon should have turned out such inferior pieces of work, and it is natural, therefore, that he should condemn the droves of failures that he sees about him.

If he could see himself as others see him, he might discover many shortcomings and possibly some glaring defects, but he has no use for others' eyes. His own are good enough for his purpose, which is to admire his own handiwork.

He is a constant wonder to him that others with no worse material than he had to found himself upon should have turned out such inferior pieces of work, and it is natural, therefore, that he should condemn the droves of failures that he sees about him.

So, on the whole, we owe the self made man a great debt for his workmanlike, and therefore let us thank him for his achievement. —Boston Transcript.

An Awkward Cigar Holder.

"Probably no one but a German would ever have invented the thing, and now that he has invented it not even a German could tell to what use it could be put."

So commented the buyer for a big department store in search of novelties. The thing commented on appeared to be an umbrella, tight rolled and looking like other umbrellas with natural wood handles except that there was no ferrule at the tip. It turned out to be a cigar holder, for a silver cap on the handle and unscrewed, and there was a place for the butt of the cigar. Through the rod of the umbrella was a tube, and the thing was smoked by pulling at what turned out to be a mouthpiece at the tip.

A more ungainly thing for the purposes of a cigar holder could hardly be devised, and it was useless as an umbrella, for that part of it was a "fake." Yet somebody in Germany manufactures them, and a Chambers street dealer has had a lot shipped to him for sale. Why any one should buy one is a mystery, and what he would do with it after the purchase is an even greater one. —New York Times.

Squirrels and Turkey Calls.

Did it ever occur to you to use a turkey call in squirrel hunting? I once had three gray squirrels up a large gum tree and had tried to slip up to them, but they saw me and hid. I went up at close to the tree as I wanted and sat down to wait for them to come out. I sat there 20 or 30 minutes, and they did not move but I could see. I was in a fairly good turkey country and so got out my turkey call and made a few calls, and in less than two minutes all three squirrels were in sight, and in a good deal less time they were all mine on the ground. I take it that they thought that if it was safe for a turkey to be calling they were in no danger. I would like to know if any one else ever had a like experience, and if I ever get in a like situation I will make experiments until I am satisfied. —Forest and Stream.

ATRYING POSITION

"My position is a trying one" was the joking remark of the cloak model of a fashionable firm. But there is less jest than earnest in the statement. It is trying to be on the feet all day, to be reaching and stooping hour after hour from morn till night. And that is a very meager outline of a business woman's day. With many such women the ordinary strain of labor is intensified and aggravated by a diseased condition of the delicate organs, and they become victims of that terrible backache, or blinding headache, which is so common among business women.

If you are bearing this burden, bear it no longer. For the backache, headache, nervousness and weakness which spring from a diseased condition of the womanly organs there is a sure cure in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Half a million women have been perfectly and permanently cured by this wonderful medicine.

My niece was troubled with female weakness for about four years before I asked for your advice," writes Mr. J. W. McGregor, of 623 St. and Princeton Ave., Chicago, Ill. "You advised her to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription which she did faithfully for nine months, and now we must acknowledge to you that she is a well woman. We cannot thank you enough for the cure."

Sick women can consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. Address, Buffalo, N. Y.

There are 90,000 trees in the city of Paris, including 15,000 willows, 17,000 chestnuts and 20,000 plane trees.

The city of Akron, O., is entitled to the credit for installing the first automobile police patrol. It is of the largest size, having a seating capacity of 20 persons and was built at a cost of $2,200.

Los Angeles has the reputation of being almost tropical, but it is not a warm city either in summer or winter. The temperature is seldom above 78° at any season, and that is about equal to 68° in New York. May and June seem to be the coldest months in the year.

greatly pleased the audience, many of whom had come expressly to hear these

TO REGULATE TRADING STAMPS

The Retail Merchants' Association are seeking Legislation.The Retail Merchants' Association of Canada have introduced a bill at the present session of the Provincial Legislature placing a heavy license on all firms, companies or corporations exercising the calling or engaged in the business of selling or otherwise disposing of trading stamps. Petitions have been signed by thousands of merchants from all the leading cities and towns, and the merchants generally apparently desire to see the bill become law.By a vote of 95 yeas to 24 nays
the Legislative Assembly of New York state passed the O'Connell Bill on March 22nd, 1900, which prohibits the issuing of trading stamps, and making it a misdemeanor to do so or to cause them to be distributed to customers.
It shall not be unlawful, however, for any merchant or manufacturer to place his own tickets, coupons or other val-uers in or upon packages of goods sold or manufactured by him. Such tickets, coupons or other vouchers to be redeemed by such merchants or manufacturer either in money or merchandise, whether such packages are sold directly to the customer or through retail merchants. Nor shall it be unlawful for any person to issue with such packages tickets, coupons or other vouchers so issued by such merchant or manufacturer.The Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, whose motto is honest goods and honest trading, are determined to see that laws are placed on the statute book that will assist the retail merchants to preserve honest methods of merchandising.—Com.

disease. The pain and palpitation at times lasting for five hours and so acute that often she wished for death that she might find relief from her sufferings, but she was attracted to Dr. Agnew's Cure for the heart through reading of the wonderful cures wrought by it. She commenced using it and one of her most distressing heart ailments found complete relief inside of thirty minutes.
She swears by it to-day as the only heart cure. For sale by Ormond &

Empire Day.

May 23, Empire Day, is to become a patriotic anniversary in the schools of Ontario. By the suggestion of the Minister of Education the morning of that day will be devoted to the study, or public discussion of some portion of Canadian history that relates particularly to the Empire. In the afternoon, the time will be spent in giving patriotic recitations, speeches, songs, etc., the occasion being public or private as desired.
The object is a praiseworthy one—to make Canadian children thoroughly patriotic, to teach them the love of country, and to make them realize the privileges they enjoy as citizens of the British empire. The day should be suitably observed in Peterborough.

Gentlemen, are you bald?

Investigate and see for yourself the An-Coverings in Wigs and Toupees. Prof.
Dorenwend's manufactures are worn on over 55,000 heads by all classes, and in all stations of life. They are the essence of perfection, light in weight, durable and a great benefit to health, and a protection to the head against Cold, Drafts, Catarrh, etc. Trying on and demonstrating the completeness of these goods free of charge. He will be at Oriental Hotel Peterborough, Saturday, April 21.

Street Sprinkling.

We hope the Council will be careful in letting the contract for street wat-tering, to see that the contracts are placed in the hands of reliable men.
Last year in the northern division, the watering was a farce, and neither the contractor or the street Engineer appeared to make the slightest effort to see that the work was done.

A Musical Event.

The musical event of the season will be the concert given by the George street Methodist church choir, on April 7th. The Toronto Globe thus favorably mentions the Sherlock Male Quartet, who are to furnish part of the programme: "The United Chorus Concert, Massey Hall, Toronto. Only a strict adherence to the rule of the evening (no encores) saved the Sherlock Male Quartet from a most pronounced demand after their exquisite rendition of "When I survey the Wondrous Cross." Admission 25 cents.

Taken to Task.

Detective Ross took a man named Fred Woodcock, who had been arrested for theft, to Tweed yesterday. He was captured by P. C. Adams, on a telegram sent to Chief Russell from Defective Ross. Woodcock was on his way back to the driver.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

The non-comm. will give another of their pear, as the signature of the writer is not appended.Miss Elsie Clark, who has lived in South Africa all her life, will speak in St. Andrew's church on Monday evening on the subject of the war.Posters from the Times job rooms, asking for tenders for street watering. We hope the council will give the work to men who will make some pretence at carrying out the contract as it should be done.The small boy with his fishing pole is in evidence again and the perch are catching it as a result. This is a sign that bare feet, carpet beating, cold will soon have their innings.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL.

The Times invites all its readers to contribute to this column all items of a personal or social nature, such as the arrival and departure of guests,
the movements of well known people, business men, and particulars of automatic parties, etc. All that is required is to send a postcard or letter, or telephone the Times, giving rough outline, and we will put it into shape.Mr. J. H. Brandon, of Fenelon Falls, ning, Hon. J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary, and Mr. Stratton, entertained a congenial coterie of friends in the Speaker's chambers in the Parliament building. The fine apartment blazing with light, with pink roses and carnations blooming everywhere and a grate fire cheerily glowing, were delightful environment for the little circle, bidden quite informally to spend an evening at prospective supper, which was played at six tables. Mrs. Stratton, who by the way is simply perfect in the art of entertaining, looked charming in a gown of white curled silk, the skirt trimmed with gar-lands and deep pink and crimson roses and green leaves, the corsage veiled with silver embroidery, net, the décolletage also outlined with roses, a chain of pearls and some very fine diamonds, giving additional elegance. Two handsome guests of honor were Miss Lee, daughter of Colonel Lee, of London, who wore pale green silk, with overdress of white net and some beauty roses, for adornment, and Mrs. McAllister, of Peterborough, who was gowned in blue brocade, with corsage bouquet of deep red roses, exactly matching the necklace of garnets at her throat.

The genial host and some of his colleagues joined the circle, after their Parliamentary duties were over, and added not a little to the evening's enjoyment. Hefreshments were afterwards served at the Speaker's dining room. Present were—The Speaker and Madame Ewart, Mademoiselle Eva Wray, Mr. Feltz (London), Mr.
Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. W. Claude Fox,
Mr. and Mrs. J. Fitzallen Ellis, Mrs. Carver, Mrs. Geo. Macdonald, Mrs. T. J.
MacIntyre, Hon. Mr. Latchford, Hon. Mr.

reason why the league should not be be represented by first class teams rly looked for."

Case Dismissed.

Police Magistrate Dumble yesterday and the day before heard evidence in the case of Christopher McRae, charged with the theft of $543 from Alex.
Elliott & Co. The charge was dismissed. McRae was a traveller for the liquor firm of Elliott & Co., from April of last year to January 1st. He was allowed $30 a week for expenses, but could not keep within the limit and got somewhat behind in his payments.
The chief witnesses were Mr. Elliott, Mr. White, the bookkeeper and the accused. Mr. D. O'Connell defended McRae. The magistrate found no evidence of theft and threw the case out.

In the Central School.

Mr. Smith, who was instructing a class in mathematics—"A man bought three pounds of meat for 36 cents, a can of tomatoes for 8 cents, and some potatoes for 5 cents. Now, what does that make?"
Johnny—"Soup!"
The class was instantly dismissed for recess.

Food For a Scrap.

Oxbow Post—"The agitation to turn the route of the Trent Valley Canal to the Oxbow or Port Hope has given the Peterborough papers an opportunity to accuse one another of all sorts of political scheming to catch the vote.
So far as this riding is concerned the route and terminus of the canal will not have the slightest effect. No such little thing as that could possibly induce the electors to turn from their party principles and the efforts of Peterborough should endeavor not to lose their heads on the subject. The only advantage the canal would be to Oxbow that we could use, would be to furnish a water route for excursion boats to take our summer visitors to Rice Lake for a day's fishing occasionally."

British Tenants.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir—I. Please say if a farmer is inland, having continually bad crops and not raising sufficient produce to pay his rent, cannot be evicted. 2. How long a period does the law allow him in which to pay off his rent? 3. How long will the landlord have to wait before he can evict him?
W. R.Ans.—1. He can be evicted. 2. Rents fixed by the Land Court cannot be raised for five years; at the end of that time a new rental is fixed, or the old rent confirmed. But failure to pay the rent is ground for eviction. 3. Six months.
The law does not prevent eviction; it prevents the rent from being raised at the landlord's whim and the tenant from being evicted for non-payment of the increased rent.

Severely Injured.

Thos. Tobin, a laborer, who lives in Otonabee, while working at the lift lock of the Trent Valley Canal met with a serious accident, whilst at work in the bottom of one of the huge wells which is being excavated at the lift lock. It appears that a large piece of rock became detached from the side and in falling struck Tobin a glancing blow on the side of the head cutting a bad gash. The injured man was at once conveyed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where Dr. McNulty found it necessary to put in six stitches.

Claim a Town Site.

Two Indian girls on the Mohawk reserve named Eliza and Mary Ann Culbertson claim as their property the land on which the town of Deseronto, Ont., now stands, which is worth probably two or three million dollars. By a Government grant of two hundred acres this property came into the possession of their grandfather, who willed it to his son John and their father, with the stipulation that it should always remain in the family. John, however, conveyed portions of it to different individuals.
Now his children put in a claim for possession, he being dead. They took action against John McCulloch, the local surveyor, to test their case against the present occupants, but the decision went against them. Then they appealed to the Court of Appeal, and their counsel, Mr. E. Gus Porter, of Belleville, is looking after their interests.CANADIAN

LORD ROBERTS AND HIS ARMY STILL AT THE HALT

A Captured Brother of President Steyn Believes War Will Last Until Christmas.

ROBERTS' LATEST DESPATCH TO WAR OFFICE.

He Refers to the Engagements of Buller and Methuen—The Enemy Attacked Buller's Right Flank But the British Artillery Silence Their Guns.

London, April 13, 4.05 a.m. In a roundabout way London hears that Lord Roberts, when writing to the Prince of Wales at Copenhagen congratulating upon his escape from assassination, added two or three hopeful sentences portending an early advance. With wide-reaching combinations quiet assurances are passed around among military men that Lord Roberts is employing his great army effectively, and that the adventurous Boer commandos are likely to be emmeshed. Scraps of news, a detail here and another there have reached England to-night over comparatively idle cables, but they do not illuminate the situation.

Mr. Hillyard Steyn, brother of President Steyn, in the course of an interview said: "The original plan of the Boers was to overrun all Cape Colony, but becoming involved in the sieges of Kimberley and Ladysmith, the burghers found their designs spoiled. To this I attribute the Boer failure to conquer the British. I expect that war will last until Christmas."

Cape Town, April 12. The Strathcona Contingent lost 160 horses during the voyage owing to an outbreak of "pneumonia."

ROBERTS' LATEST DESPATCH.

He Refers to the Engagements of Methuen and Buller.

London, April 11.—The War Office has received the following despatch from Lord Roberts:—

"Bloemfontein, April 11.—Methuen reports that the party of Boers he defeated April 11 made a good resistance for four hours, and only gave in when our troops, with fixed bayonets, were within fifteen yards of them. Seven of the enemy were killed, eleven were wounded, and 51 were made prisoners. Besides Lieutenants Doyle and Williams, Sergeant Patrick Campbell was killed, and ten of our men were wounded. Williams was killed deliberately, after the white flag had been held up. The perpetrator of the crime was at once shot. "Methuen speaks in high terms of the intelligent manner in which the Imperial Yeomanry and the Kimberley mounted corps behaved."

"Buller reports that the enemy attacked his right flank yesterday while he was engaged in changing his position, but our artillery silenced their guns, and they did not press the attack. Our losses were four men killed and eight men wounded."

"There is no further news yet from Wepener."

STOPPED BUYING FOODSTUFFS.
Australia Is Being Given the Preference Over the U. S.

New York, April 12.—Great Britain has to a large extent stopped buying foodstuffs for her army in South Africa from this country, according to local steamship agents.

"Shipments to South Africa are now confined almost exclusively to hay, oats, and molasses with an occasional large order for canned goods," said one of them to-day. "The War Department officials found that they could get corn and meat quicker and cheaper from Australia, and since then the shipments have been dropping off."

FOUGHT WHILE HE BLED.
Nova Scotian in South Africa was Not Worried by a Terrible Wound.

Halifax, N.S., April 12.—A letter received here tells of the remarkable bravery of Pte. Johnston, of St. Margaret's Bay, N.S., and a member of "H" Co., Royal Canadian Regiment. He was killed in one of the battles at Paardeburg. He was shot through the forehead, and remarkable as it may seem, he was not killed instantly, but remained on foot in the field, with blood flowing down his face. He still held his rifle, and kept up with the others. Sergeant Grimsman told Johnston to go to the hospital—that he was a foolish man to remain on the field with such a dangerous wound. The brave fellow finally gave up, and many days had passed he died from the effects of the wound, and was buried near the spot where he had been shot.

NEW CLOTHING FOR TROOPS.
Roberts' Men are Now Receiving their New Uniforms.

London, April 12.—Barnett Burleigh sends the very satisfactory news that the British troops are being given new serge uniforms and new boots. He adds that the out-fitting of Bloemfontein is not for the present deferred, but to make it possible for Lord Roberts to take the capital with a small garrison only when the next advance of the main body of the army is made. It is possible that the policy of entrenching Bloemfontein, Springfontein and other posts along the railway will be adopted in order to release as large a force as possible for the campaign northward. The protection of the single track of railway is indispensable for the supply of a large army, and the district east and west of it will be left to shift for themselves when the main column marches on.

THE FIGHTING RENEWED.

London, April 12.—A special despatch from Elandsburg dated yesterday, says:—

Fighting was renewed beyond Elandsburg this afternoon. The Boers steadily advanced upon the British positions. There was a continuous rifle fire and the Boer big guns were in action. The British replied effectively and after two hours' fighting the Boers were checked."

WILL THERE BE REPRISALS?

The Transport of British Troops Across Neutral Territory.

Paris, April 12.—Speaking to the question of the transport of British troops across Portuguese territory to Rhodesia, in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday, M. Delcasse, refusing to discuss the matter, said that France had declared her neutrality at the opening of the war, but that she was not expected to guarantee the neutrality of the other powers.

BIOGRAPHICAL REALITIES.

Battle of Spion Kop in New Jersey—Bursting of a Gun.

New York, April 12.—James H. White, general manager of a kinetoscope company, and William McCarthy were engaged in taking a picture of "The Battle of Spion Kop," which they had arranged on the rocky slope of the second Orange Mountain at Orange, N. J., when they were seriously hurt by the explosion of a cannon.

More than 500 men had been hired, half of the number in Boer costume being placed at the top of the rocky slope, while the others, in British uniform, prepared to storm the kop. A cannon was added to increase the picturesque effect. Why it should have exploded before the kinetoscope and the storming started is not clear.

NO FRICTION THERE.

All Working in Harmony—A Message to the Minister From Col. Vidal.

Ottawa, April 12.—The following telegram was received this morning by the Minister of Militia:—

Halifax, N. S., April 11.—Hon. F. W. Borden—No truth in report in Star of 9th as to friction with Imperial authorities; everything working smoothly, and regiment getting nicely into shape. (Signed) COL. VIDAL.

HE MET HIS CONSTITUENTS.

How the Welshmen Received their Pro-Boer Member.

London, April 12.—Mr. David Lloyd-George, M.P. for the Carnarvon district, addressed his constituents at Bangor yesterday, speaking against the war and against the Government's intention to annex the Transvaal and the Orange Free State.

He was frequently interrupted by opponents within the hall in which he was speaking, while a mob outside stoned the building, breaking many of the windows. As he was leaving the meeting he was attacked and half stunned by a blow in the head. He took refuge in a restaurant, where he was protected by the police from the mob, who besieged the place until a very late hour, vowing vengeance on Mr. Lloyd-George.

FLEET IN DUBLIN BAY.

Battleships Manoeuvred for the Deflection of Visitors.

Dublin, April 12.—Admiral Rawson's idea of taking out the members of the vice-regal party and distinguished strangers visiting here was a huge success.

His flagship, the Majestic, led seven others of exactly the same type of first class warships out on a series of evolutions, which, even to the civilian, showed how wonderfully under control the biggest of the warships are.

The weather was perfect. The ships were rapidly put through single line and double four, finally ending with a sea-climbing manoeuvre known to naval men as the gridiron.

The fleet, after the Queen's visit, goes to Belfast.

WAR CLOUD OF THE FAR EAST.

Imminence of a Conflict Between Japan and Russia is Indicated by All the Signs of Speedy Preparation.

London, April 12.—A letter to the Times from Shanghai says:—

That there will be war between Russia and Japan in the near future is being predicted on all sides.

Discussing the probability of war between Russia and Japan, Lieut. Romanoff, of the Russian navy observed:—"War between Russia and Japan is looked for as inevitable by the naval officers of those countries who have been nearest the probable scene of future operations. Just how soon such a war may begin it is difficult to say, but events little short of miraculous must occur to avert it. The Japanese are building warships as rapidly as possible, in anticipation of the outbreak of hostilities, and Russia is strengthening her navy as fast as she can.

In the event of such war it is considered probable in Russian naval circles that Russia will have the aid of Germany and that England will take the other side. A European war will follow the outbreak of hostilities between Russia and Japan. The movement of Russian troops toward Afghanistan and the British Indian borders, the mobilization of trans-Caspian troops at Baku and Herat and other military manoeuvres on the part of Russia are taken by official Russia to mean the beginning of a movement to eliminate English influence in the territory heretofore held by her. It is certain England will have to fight to retain her territory in the east."

THEY WILL FIGHT TO THE END.

Boers Take Heart at the British Rest at Bloemfontein and Will Fight On.

New York, April 12.—Under a Pretoria date comes to the Herald an interesting despatch showing the state of feeling in the Transvaal capital and conveying the news that the Federals have taken fresh courage and have no idea of laying down their arms. The despatch is dated Monday of this week, and reads:—

"The relief of Ladysmith and Kimberley and Gen. Cronje's disaster, coming together, caused the Boers to become panic-stricken, and temporarily abandon Bloemfontein."

"Had Lord Roberts been able to follow up his successes the war might have been ended now, but the British reached Bloemfontein utterly fatigued, and recuperation was absolutely necessary. This likely to occur for a long time yet."

"The faint hearted have been weeded out of the reserves, and the fighting commandos are now composed of resolute men. The decision to send the captured Boers to St. Helena makes it certain that the Boers will not surrender except in the last extremity. The average burgher prefers death to exile."

"A military attaché, who is much respected, thinks six months the lowest probable duration of the war. The Boers will probably continue to fight, even if they lose Pretoria, which is unlikely to occur for a long time yet."

BOERS ARE GOOD AT FAIRY TALES.

They Claim a Loss of Three Mules and Two Horses, While British Loss Great

London, April 12.—Elandsburg and Wepener still monopolize attention. At fighting on April 10, at Elandsburg, both places a series of indecisive actions are occurring. The Boer report of the fighting on April 10, at Elandsburg, says that the advance on the British camp was made with the loss of only three mules and two horses, and that the British loss must have been heavy. The bombardment lasted all day.

Nothing has been learned regarding the rumor Col. Baden-Powell's death, nor is there anything tending to show how long the general advance towards Pretoria will be delayed.

In the absence of exciting developments public interest centers more upon the personality of the new commanders, and in the suppositions as to who the next General to be sent home will be.

The saloons of H. M. S. Powerful are coming in for enthusiastic greetings, equaling those on their arrival at Portsmouth yesterday, when young and old women kissed officers and men indiscriminately as they came off the dock.

COLONEL SAM SCARED THEM.

The Doughty Canuck With Only Six Assistants Cleared Uprising of Rebels.

London, April 12.—The Times has the following special to-day:—

Cape Town, April 11.—A Dracochender correspondent states that General Settle's column reached Uppington on March 30. Colonel Hughes, the Canadian M.P., and chief of Gen. Settle's staff, with two City Volunteer cyclists, two Canadians and two other colonials, seized the post. The rebel rear-guard evacuated the town hastily, after firing one shot, under the impression that a large force was upon them. Rev. Mr. Shroeder, a member of the Cape Legislative Assembly, was captured 75 miles west of Uppington, and brought in. The rebels are surrendering their arms.

Uppington, about 150 miles west of Kimberley, is a small town which has long been held by rebels.

GOING BACK TO THEIR FARMS.

Boers Secure Leave of Absence in Squads of Ten Per Cent to Plant Crops.

Pretoria, Wednesday, April 11.—The Free State Gazette publishes orders to the effect that no person who has been commended for active service has the right to send a substitute, without the consent of the Landdrost.

In reference to the matter of leave of absence the Gazette says that squads of 10 per cent of each command will be relieved for periods of 12 days, their relief being chosen by ballot. This is intended to meet the wishes of the burghers desiring to plant their crops.

Respite for Williams.

Ottawa, April 12.—The Dominion Government has passed an order-in-Council giving Harry Williams, the murderer, a respite for twenty-four hours, so that the execution will take place on Saturday morning. This has been done on the appeal of the Mayor and citizens of Toronto, who object to the execution on Good Friday.

T. C. Robinette has wired the Minister of Justice demanding a new trial. He points out that the law exacted that the sentence be carried out to the letter, and any modification thereof renders it null and void.

Mrs. Sternaman Divorced.

Buffalo, N.Y., April 12.—Olive A. Sternaman has been divorced from her third husband, Frank G. Creutzberg. Mrs. Sternaman was convicted of poisoning her husband, a respite for twenty-four hours, so that the execution will take place on Saturday morning. This has been done on the appeal of the Mayor and citizens of Toronto, who object to the execution on Good Friday.

The divorce was granted because Creutzberg has another wife living.

Dublin, April 12.—There was a decided improvement in the weather to-day as the Queen visited the Zoological gardens this morning, driven in her dainty carriage.

The review of troops has been fixed for Saturday, and will take place in Phoenix Park.

PLANNED THE RECAPTURE OF FREE STATE CAPITAL

Kruger and Steyn Thought a Southern Advance Would Weaken British Defences.

THE BOERS ARE AFRAID TO REMAIN INACTIVE.

Their Leaders Could Not Keep Them Together Unless Something
Were Being Done.—Entrenchments Are Being Dug East of Brandfort.

London, April 12.—On the second of March it was stated, in this despatch, that the Boers would make their next serious stand in the Free State north of the Vet and Zand Rivers, between Kroonstad and Winburg, this country being the most favorable for defence north of Bloemfontein. It was explained that these rivers, which run almost from the Vet to the Drakensberg and are backed by rather mountainous country, would be most suitable for Boer methods of warfare, and would lend themselves readily to a stout resistance. This view has now been confirmed after six weeks. A despatch from Lorenzo Marquez says:—"The main position is described in a despatch from Lorenzo Marquez as a range of hills between Kroonstad and Winburg, a distance of 10 miles. It is fortified throughout, and is impregnable. Here, it is said, 35,000 Boers with 90 guns are concentrated." The range of hills thus referred to is the series of kopjes which rise right and left of the Bloemfontein-Pretoria railway and act as a covering fortification to Kroonstad, the new Boer capital, outside of which the most serious conflict of the war will undoubtedly take place. As Gen. Roberts is now receiving proper clothing for his men and remounts are pouring into South Africa it is not likely that the Boers will venture upon the Vet and Zand, a hundred miles north of Bloemfontein, will be long delayed. Simultaneous activity on the part of the Boers both in the Free State and Natal shows that the enemy expect a combined movement on the part of Roberts and Buller, and they are no doubt correct. The raid into the Northern Free State and the attack upon Klerksburg division at Elandsburg are both counter movements on the part of the Boers to impede British operations. One advantage of the overwhelming force now at General Roberts' disposal is that it will not be necessary to move forward on a single line. The Boers can be forced to divide their now limited numbers by movement in Natal against the Biggarsberg and Laings Nek. The most important stage in the advance north of Kroonstad will be the crossing of the Vaal. Once that river is passed, Laings Nek will become untenable, and a force could be sent forward, even before Johannesburg is occupied, to cut the railway from Pretoria to Komati Poort, and Delagoa Bay. The cutting of this line would isolate the Transvaal Government from the outer world. But if they continue their resistance the war may yet drag out for some time, for Pretoria is a strong fortress, armed with formidable artillery, and provisioned for a siege. And there is reason to believe that the Boers have prepared another centre of resistance still farther north in the mountain country of the Zoutpansberg district. It is scarcely likely, however, that the force in Natal will do more than hold the Boers in the Biggarsberg until the northern march of Roberts uncovers the position, when a retreat from Natal must naturally follow. To attempt to storm the Biggarsberg would be too costly, a fact which the Boers recognize, as their attack yesterday indicates.

CANNONADE AT BULTFONTEIN.

Is General Methuen Assailed by the Enemy Near Boshoff?

Pretoria, March 11.—A heavy cannonade was heard this morning in the direction of Bultfontein, situated midway between Winburg and Boshoff, in the Orange Free State, and north of Brandfort.

Advices from Wepener, where a British force is surrounded, say the battle continues. About 1,500 British troops are said to be there.

Advices from the Boer headquarters in Natal say that after a heavy bombardment the British are retreating in the direction of Ladysmith and the Federals are going to their old positions.

WEBSTER DAVIS ON THE BOERS.

Expresses the Belief That the British Will Never Enter Pretoria.

New York, April 12.—Webster Davis, who recently returned home from South Africa, and who has resigned his position as assistant secretary of the interior in order that he may devote his time in advocacy of the Boer cause, is outspoken on the condition of things at the seat of war. In summing up his experiences among the Boers, he says: "I viewed the defenses of Pretoria and I consider them impregnable. I do not believe the English troops will ever pass the line of hills surrounding the town, bristling as they are with high-power Krupp and Creusot guns. When I describe the city as impregnable I speak from the judgment of a man of common sense. Pretoria lies in a basin surrounded by a ridge of rugged hills, affording most admirable opportunities for defense. While there I learned enough to know that the city is one vast storehouse of foodstuffs and ammunition."

"What impressed me most was the natural bigness of that grand old man, Kruger. I consider him as possessed of more of the elements of greatness than any man I ever met. At 75 he is as full of vigor as the average man who owns up to 20 years less. His versatility impressed me deeply."

"I have it on unimpeachable authority that the battle of Colenso, where Buller was crushed by the Boers, was planned entirely by this old man. Joubert carried out Kruger's instructions to the letter, and won that signal victory by the direction of an old man away up there in Pretoria."

"I was present at the battle of Spion Kop and saw a thin line of Boers drive an army before them. After the fight I walked over the field and counted the dead bodies of 125 Englishmen in one trench, where the Boers had placed them for burial."

"I visited the lines along the Tugela, where Buller and his 40,000 men were held at bay, and I speak from the most positive knowledge when I say that all of the Boer troops in that region numbered but 7,000. With this force Joubert and Botha held Buller back, and kept White and his 15,000 men corralled in the town."

"At the battle of the Little Tugela, when Buller was again driven back upon Chieveley, I saw Gen. Louis Botha in action, and I consider him the greatest of the Dutch commanders."

"As I said before, I do not believe the British will ever enter Pretoria. Even the women of the town are supplied with rifles and are daily practicing in marksmanship. Some of them are very expert, and their average shooting is good. The strength of Kruger and his burghers lies in the belief that God is with them."

GOLDWIN SMITH ON THE WAR.

Goldwin Smith's latest deliverance on the war is as follows, from the last issue of the Weekly Sun—

"This hideous war, which ministers of Christ do not scruple to applaud and abet, must now be near its end. The Boers are overwhelmingly outnumbered, and their forces are evidently spent. It only remains to be seen whether in their despair they will re-enact the burning of Moscow."

"The power of the soldier is independent of the cause for which he fights. We may differ about the justice of the South African war, but we shall be agreed in recognizing the val with which Canadian volunteers have fought, and in laying the wreaths of public respect and sorrow on the grave of those who have fallen."

We have already completed over 100 feet development work, 70 feet of which consists of surface work such as cross-cuts, shallow shafts, etc., prospecting to decide the best place to sink our main or working shaft. This has been found to be on the "Big 3" or center claim, and we are now down 30 feet and still pushing the work as fast as four practical miners and dynamite can possibly accomplish. Remember, we have three full claims, to wit: "Big 3," "Victor" and "Will o' the Wisp," situated on Iron Mountain in the Eureka mining district, Ferry county, Washington, six miles southeast of the famous Republic mine, and that there is a big ledge of porphyritic quartz crossing all the three claims lengthwise from north to south and cropping for over 2,700 feet, and surface assays furnished $6 to $9 in free gold.

On the "Big 3" claim, while doing development work, we discovered a true fissure vein $6 to $9 in free gold. formation east and west, which from picked samples assayed $92.00 in gold.

Our manager writes us, under date of March 1, 1900, that at a depth of 30 feet in our proposed main shaft he is working in 4 feet of fine quartz and it is widening as depth is acquired. He also says: "I am confident that a shaft 100 feet deep will prove this property nearly as good as, if not equal to any of the great mines of the Republic." "Camp showing that the Republic had at the same depth."

The company now offer 50,000 shares of treasury stock (NON-ASSESSABLE) AT THE LOW PRICE OF 1-2 CENTS PER SHARE, in order to raise funds to push the work with additional force. There are 300,000 shares in the treasury and the above is the first offered for sale. The company being a reliable one, and with such a phenomenal showing on their properties, it should induce immediate investment, so don't delay and with this price will positively be raised when this block is sold; every dollar we spend means greater depth to our shaft, wider lead and bigger assays. DONT MISS THIS. ITS A WINNER. Send your orders at once to the secretary.

Shoes in Olden Days.

Early Britons were shoes of raw cowhide, with the hairy surface outward. The Anglo-Saxons showed an advance, for they were black and laced by a leather thong. Then came what might almost be termed the bag shoe of the Merovingian period, tied round the ankle, a similar easy sort of covering obtaining in Germany, and so by gradual stages from the medieval shoe to the poulaine shoe, a queer early German specimen, the band round the ankle being of engraved brass. The Irish shoe of early date is worthy of note, as for many years the Irish went not only barefooted, but barelegged, while their bodies were most gorgeously arrayed.

Why They Are So Salty.

Compared with the waters of the Dead sea, those of the Salt Lake are decidedly fresh, and a scientific man whom I met in London gave me this explanation of the cause of their extreme saltiness: All water carries a percentage of salt, and in both the cases of the Dead sea and the Great Salt Lake there is no outlet to the lakes, and they maintain their levels through evaporation. Through the centuries during which they have existed this salt, since it does not evaporate, has accumulated until these bodies of water have attained their present brackish condition.—New York Tribune.

"Now," said the man who owned a poor little home and lot, "I know why it is better to give than to receive."

"Why is it?" his wife asked.

A Big Sale of Republic Stocks

THE FAIRFAX CO. OF REPUBLIC, J. J. Brown, Pres., With Messrs. Brown, after securing the Jim Hill claim adjoining it on the north, secured the ledge and W. H. Stowell reports on this cropping $14.00 in gold, immediately upon the ledge becoming known in Republic, a Mining Dept., through our agent, there, T. M. #### THE BEEHIVE.

Contract the space in the hive to the size of the colony.

A good and fertile queen keeps the hive full of bees during the season.

Do not offer to feed liquid food to bees in winter; it is almost sure death to a colony.

Bees abhor being molested at night, and no work can then be done with them with any satisfaction.

In every case where comb is to be built furnish the bees with foundation, using full sheets in the frames.

Clipping the wings of the queen prevents losing first swarms by absconding, but does not always prevent losing the queen.

Bees seem to seek naturally a span between two combs, and the queen seldom goes to the outside comb of a hive unless she is compelled to for want of room; so that a nucleus of two or three combs is better than one.

Frepolls is the gum or varnish that bees collect for varnishing over the inside of their hives, filling cracks and crevices, cementing loose pieces of the hive together and for making things fast and close generally. It collects in time is old hives and combs.

GLIMPSES OF SOUTH AFRICA.

Peace and in War—A Splendid Lot of Views

Southern Africa, that enormous expanse of tropically verdant territory extending from the Zambezi River to the Cape of Good Hope, has for a century or more lain dormant to the eyes of the civilized world. Only within the past two decades has public attention been drawn to the wonderful natural resources and mineral wealth of this wild and rugged land, and yet, within this period, marvelous creations of brilliant modern cities have supplanted the desert lands and haunts of savage tribes. The steady march of civilization, the all-pervading anticipation to accumulate the wealth of diamonds and gold that lay beneath the crust of this benighted land, each has borne its part in the metamorphosis and headed to the world the wonderful possibilities of that "Dark Continent" for the energy and enterprise that the 20th century will bring to light.

In no other country of the world has progress been marked with such adversity and strife as Africa. From the time the early Dutch settlers landed in the Cape Colony up to the present, there has existed almost a constant state of warfare; the natives disputing the advances of the Dutch and they in turn resisting the march of civilization. In spite of this, so strange was the efforts of the colonists in their determination to turn to account the beauties and resources of the land of their adoption, that to-day they enjoy the fruits of their success in the carrying of tropical vegetation, a salubrious climate and surrounded by the highest advantages of intellectuality and luxuries of civilization.

Cape town is the metropolis and seat of government of the Cape Colony.
Its historical past and present is firmly linked in the traditions of the early Dutch and the English. True, the old forts and buildings of distinctively Dutch architecture still remain, but faded in South Africa and the progress of the war, and so eager the thirst for information, coupled with the demand for a pictorial history telling the story of the war, that the publication of "Glimpses of South Africa" has been undertaken upon a scale of grandeur, fidelity and completeness never before thought of, involving as it has an expense of extraordinary magnitude. In order that the work be absolutely reliable and thorough in its character, the publishers have contracted for its authorship with Mr.
Wynne Flemming, an African matters is world-wide acknowledged.
This gentleman—born in the Cape Colony, having traveled throughout the every inch of the country south of the Zambezi River and lived in South Africa for nearly thirty years, with an extensive newspaper experience, in Africa, England and America, the author of many interesting sketches of South African life and society, formerly connected with the consular service at Port Elizabeth, whose comments on the war have been so favorably received by the American press, and whose magnificent collection of photographs will appear in this work—will present South Africa as it is to-day, with views of everything of public interest, including most of the important towns of cattle and a graphically illustrated description of each stage in the progress of the war.

Port Elizabeth is the Liverpool of South Africa. It is a great commercial centre, coupled with some of the largest shipping interests in the world;
a city of the most modern type, essentially English in character, and possessing some of the largest as well as the most architecturally magnificent buildings and public institutions in South Africa.

Natal is the beautiful, tropical Garden Colony. Its luxuriant vegetation and glorious climate, its wide avenue of trees and fine buildings, the native Zulu warriors and the picturesque costumes of the Orientals lend an air of peace and tranquility, while the march of civilization and progress are in evidence at every turn.

Johannesburg, the Golden, with its fine architectural creations, public institutions and parks, possesses many attractions, the nearly place it as the foremost city of South Africa. Its great industry, mining, the apparent luxuries of gold-bearing quartz, in which upwards of seven hundred millions of dollars are invested, have been the attraction for the thousands of thousands of "Uit-landers" whose "grievances" are substantially the cause for the cruel war between Briton and Boer, the battles of which have been ranked as the "bloodiest of the century."

This great work is published in serial form, and when complete will comprise the most magnificent collection of photographic reproductions of the British-Bour war and South Africa obtainable in this country. Portfolios distributed by the Morning Times.
For particulars see announcement on another page of this issue.

That assumption of the backbone of the 20th century is being broken, possibly grow out of the war just getting begun.

QUEER MARRIAGE CUSTOMS.

Young Bulgarian Peasants Arrange Nuptials by Proxy.

There are few places within the limits of civilization that boast of more interesting marriage customs than Bulgaria. Every young peasant wishes to marry as early as possible, as he of little importance in the community until he has a wife. But he is not in danger of forming an alliance in opposition to his parents' wishes, as his earnings belong to them until he is wedded, and his wife must be bought and paid for according to their station in life. The parents usually give him the necessary sum as soon as they can afford it, so that the restriction is less galling than it seems.

A "wife purchase" varies from $200 to $1,500, in proportion to the wealth of the contracting families, for the marriage is strictly a family affair. In addition to this sum a smaller amount is given to the bride's mother for her personal use.

After the pecuniary arrangements have been made by the proxies the betrothal takes place on either a Wednesday or Thursday. It consists of the exchange of written pledges regarding the sum to be paid by the bridegroom on the one hand and the household furnishings to be supplied by the bride on the other.

Kings then are blessed by the priest and exchanged by the couple, the fiancé kisses the hands of the guests assembled and retires with her young friends to a feast prepared in another room. The young people then dance outside the house and sing.

The fiancé's presents are then produced and their value estimated by the father of the bride. These consist of shoes, headbands and necklace of coins, silver belt, bracelets and other jewelry. The father usually regards their value as insufficient, probably to enhance his daughter's worth in her suitor's eyes, and the lover adds coin by coin until an agreement is reached. The marriage does not take place until six months after the betrothal.

During the week preceding the day set for the wedding the house for the young couple is furnished by the bride's parents.
Then her home is cleaned and white-washed and every hidden store brought out for decoration. Cakes are made and sent around as invitation cards, requesting the recipients to come to the wedding on Sunday, the inevitable wedding day.
The articles composing the trousseau are hung up for inspection on cords stretched across the principal room on Friday by the female part of the community. On the following day two of the bride's friends come to help her dress her hair, plaiting it in minute braids, not to be undone until after the ceremony. Then the village maids come with gifts of sweets and flowers, and all sit down on the floor to a dinner of vegetables.

On Sunday the bride is seated in state in a room of her own, and with a spangled red veil over her face, to be seen of all the village folk. She wears all the ornaments given by her fiancé and as many more as she possesses. The religious ceremony is that of the Greek church and may take place in the church or in the home of the bridegroom's father. After its performance the party returns to the home of the bride's parents, where the wedding feast is held. Singing and dancing follow until time to escort the bride to her new home—New York Tribune.

He Was Very Humble.

The Detroit Free Press tells of a disappointed office seeker who at last obtained a gift through a late war humility. When he arrived at Washington, it was with the idea that he was a distinguished and prominent citizen; but after hanging about and swallowing disappointments, he began to suspect that he was not so very important after all.

Then he thought of home and the means of getting there and sought out Colonel Blank, the passenger agent of the certain railroad.

"I say, colonel," he remarked persuasively, "I want to go home."
"Why don't you go?"

"No money. Can't you give me a pass?"

The colonel stiffened.

"We have passes for nobody," said he.
The countenance of the disappointed candidate brightened with a smile of humility.

"Well, colonel," he pleaded, "then give me one. I'm nobody."
The colonel admitted the force of the argument and gave the pass.

A Roofed Lake.

A roofed lake is certainly a novelty.
We read much of them in fiction. Lakes are made to exist in caverns and subterranean passages, but rarely do we hear of such in fact. However, such a thing as a roofed lake does exist, and this is not subterranean. There is a lake at Otdorsk, in Siberia, nine miles wide and 17 miles long. Time was when the rapid evaporation of the water left great salt crystals floating on the surface which gradually came together and formed into one gigantic cake. The water of the lake still further evaporated, but the cake of salt kept its own level, thus forming a roof to the lake. Another lake on the Mangishlak peninsula, in the Caspian sea, is similarly roofed with salt crystals which are of such consistency as to permit of man and beast crossing over them with safety.

The Point of the Sword.

In the use of the sword in cavalry fighting the point is considered more deadly, the cut more disabling. The cavalry fight at Llerena, in Estremadura, April 11, 1812, is an example. The fight lasted but a few minutes, for the British, charging, broke the French formation.

The latter had 12 men killed and lost 123 prisoners, all suffering from sword cuts, while the English had nine men killed and 47 wounded. All the killed were slain by the "point" and the wounded practically in every case had received their injuries by the "cut."

Napoleon was a great believer in the point. At the battle of Wagram he shouted to his cavaliers as they passed him at the trot,
"No sabering; give point! give point!"
and kept plunging his sword into the air to emphasize his orders.

Considerate.

"Confound it," said the patient, "you have pulled a sound tooth and left the one that ached."

"Never mind, madam," said the dentist.
"There will be no extra charge under the circumstances, although a sound tooth is harder to pull."—Boston Transcript.

In the Category of Poetry.

"Seeing I am associated with the mourn," said the office cat, as it tumbled into the editor's wastebasket, "I thought I would drop into poetry."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Don't Hesitate.

There is just one thing to use if your stomach is "out of order" and that "one thing" is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

The supposition is that you want a prompt cure and a lasting one. That is why the "Discovery" is recommended as the one thing for your condition. It cures promptly, perfectly and permanently, diseases of the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition. It's sure to help. It's almost sure to cure. It has completely cured ninety-eight per cent. of all those who have given it a fair and faithful trial.

"About ten years ago I began to have trouble with my stomach. Some said I had cancer of the stomach, others dyspepsia. I have tried everything I saw advertised for dyspepsia and stomach trouble, but continued to get worse all the time. About twelve months ago I was in such a condition that my friends advised the use of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets' in connection.
These medicines I have taken as directed, and an very happy to state that I commenced to get better from the start and have not lost a day this summer on account of my stomach. I feel light, and better than I have for ten years."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the bowels and stimulate the liver.

THE COOKBOOK.

When making bread, do not use too much salt or the loaves will not be light.
An appetizing relish for dinner meats is made from a cabbage heart cut into dice and pickled like little onions.

Following the English fashion, crisp, tender celery stalks are often nowadays banded around with cream cheese and crackers at dinner just before the coffee is served.

If chicken that is to be creamed in the chafing dish is marinated for a couple of hours in olive oil, the flavor of the dish will be much improved. Allow two to three spoonfuls of oil to a cup of chicken in creaming it later, use strong celery sauce freely.

PROTEST AGAINST BOER TREATMENT OF CAPTIVES

Lord Roberts Tells Kruger That Colonial Prisoners Are Treated as Criminals.

SCHIEL ATTEMPTED TO ESCAPE AT ST. HELENA.

The German Colonel and Two Companions Now Confined in the Citadel in Result—Casualties at Wepener—War Office Has No News.

Aliwal North, April 13. It is officially reported that the British losses at Wepener in four days' fighting were 14 men killed and 132 wounded.

Bloemfontein, April 14. Lord Roberts in his telegram of protest to President Kruger, regarding the treatment to which the Colonial officers and troops who are now prisoners at Pretoria have been subjected, complained that the Boers have treated them as if criminals confined in jail.

He points out that there are 90 cases of enteric fever and dysentery in the prisoners camp at Waterburg, that the Transvaal Government failed to supply on demand of the doctor the necessary medicines, and that the British were forced to bivouac on the open veldt, that the sick were placed in an open shed with an iron roof, and that it was only when the new doctor threatened to resign that new medicine and mattresses were supplied.

He wired President Kruger to remember of things and contrast it with the treatment of the British Government to the Boer prisoners, sick and wounded, who as Lord Roberts says, "Receive the same treatment as our own soldiers." Four farmers who had took oath to abstain from further co-operation with the Queen's enemies, were found signalling to the Boers at Karoo siding and have been brought here.

St. Helena, April 15. Col. Schiel and two other Boer prisoners were landed to-day and sent to the citadel in consequence of an attempt to escape. It appears that Col. Schiel bribed a boatman to take a letter to the Dutch cruiser, but the boatman, by mistake, took it to the British cruiser Niobe. A large knife was found in possession of one of the three. Col. Schiel walked to the citadel, declining a carriage that was placed at his disposal.

Aliwal North, April 14. Col. Grenfell writes that the casualties at Wepener include Quartermaster Williams, Lieut. Halford, and Lieut. Duncan and 15 men wounded. Sir Godfrey Langden, resident commissioner at Maseru, telegraphs that no shelling has been heard from the direction of Wepener to-day. A regiment of British infantry and a battery of artillery arrived on Friday. Gen. Brabant's headquarters and all the mounted troops have gone to Rouxville. The Northern Post asserts that the Rouxville district furnished 1,000 recruits to the Boer force as a result of the invasion last week. Five hundred Boers under Commandant Swanepoel, forced the Royal Irish Rifles to evacuate Rouxville. The former Landrost, who has been acting for the British offered to go to the front to prove himself a true Free Stater, and almost to a man the Free Staters who had taken the oath rejecting the Boers. Nearly every one produced a Mauser. Looking, however, was not allowed. It is reported that there are 7,000 Boers at Wepener. Fourteen British sympathizers have been imprisoned. The Boers admit that they shot Mr. Guiney, the hotel-keeper, for taking refuge to the British. A paymaster with £1,400 ($7,000) was captured.

London, April 16, 4:55 a.m. The War Office had nothing to communicate to the public yesterday. It may be taken for granted that the rumor of Gen. Brabant's victory at Wepener is premature. With the resumption of his troops in left Aliwal North Saturday for Rouxville, and there has scarcely been time for an engagement. There is practically no fresh news. All the Bloemfontein dispatches, however, breathe a confident tone.

BLOEMFONTEIN IS ALL RIGHT.

No Anxiety Need Be Felt Regarding the Position of Roberts.

London, April 14.—The Times has a despatch from Bloemfontein, dated on April 13, which says:—The statement in a telegram from London that considerable anxiety is felt regarding Bloemfontein caused surprise here. We have a slight pressure on our left flank, but nothing is taking place except a short period. The force is daily growing, as troops, batteries, supplies and remounts push up, some by road, some by rail. Owing to the enterprise of the Boers a movement of the southern division has taken place, and for strategic reasons the troops have been moved to the railway for a short period. But the fact that detached bodies of the enemy are engaged in raiding is only what was anticipated. We in Bloemfontein are full of a great admiration for the calm front with which headquarters has received these incidents. Half of the enemy's object has failed in that Lord Roberts has refused to be drawn into complications in the vicinity, but has been making dispositions to checkmate the enemy without Bloemfontein being aware that movements of troops had taken place.

LATEST FROM ROBERTS.

Garrison at Wepener is Holding Out Against the Boers.

London, April 13, 5:10 p.m.—The War Office has received the following despatch from Gen. Roberts:—

"Bloemfontein, April 13, 1:30 p.m.—The enemy's movements south have been checked. Wepener is still surrounded, but the little garrison is holding out well. Troops are being moved to their assistance. The health of the troops is good and the climate is perfect."

CHERRSIDE AT REIDERSBERG.

Gatacre's Old Division Arrives at that Place from Bethany.

Reidarsberg, April 14.—The third division now commanded by Major-General Cherrside (the successor to General Gatacre), has arrived here without any incident worth recording, from Bethany. The Boers have been located south of the Wepener and Smithfield districts.

TURNED THE BOER FLANK.

Flying Column under Douglas Wins a Success at Zwartkopsfontein.

London, April 14.—The Times has a special from Bloemfontein dated April 13:—A flying column under Brigadier-General Douglas, left General Methuen's camp at Zwartkopsfontein at daylight this morning, and came across the Boers ten miles east, on ridges adjoining the bivouac of the British. The enemy retreated on their flank being turned. One man was slightly wounded in our force.

CAPTURED A BOER GUN.

Col. Dalgetty's Men Inflict Heavy Losses on the Boers.

London, April 14.—The Times has a special from Johannesburg, dated April 13:—

The colonial force at Wepener under Col. Dalgetty has been surrounded by some thousands of Boers, with eight guns, two "Pon-Poms," and two Maxims since Monday morning. They gallantly withstood a heavy attack Monday and a night attack on Tuesday. On Thursday there was a continuous fire. They are confident of being able to repulse any future attack. Food is plentiful. The casualties are small. The brunt of the fighting and the losses have been borne by the Cape Mounted Rifles. The Wepener garrison is doing extremely well and captured a gun in a recent sortie. The Boers there are reported to be disheartened owing to heavy losses.

BOER PEACE COMMISSIONERS.

Milan, April 14.—The Boer Peace Commissioners started for The Hague this afternoon. Dr. Leyds, the diplomatic agent of the Transvaal, accompanying them as far as Brussels.

A ROYAL PALACE IN IRELAND.

This Will Be One of the Results of Her Majesty's Visit to the Emerald Isle.

London, April 14.—Much interest is taken in an important editorial in the Globe dealing with the Queen's visit to Ireland.

It is idle to regret the past, but yet when one turns back to the visit of George IV. to Ireland and then muses on the unhappy memories of the 80 years that have intervened since then a sense of lost opportunities is inevitably born upon one. Apart from the exuberant loyalty which manifested itself in every class of the population, one incident stands out as a painful reminder of what might have been. At the banquet given by the corporation of Dublin to the King His Majesty commanded the Marquess of Conyngham to inform the company that it was his intention "to visit Ireland every three years; and, if any circumstance should prevent this doing so, he would leave a recommendation to his successor to come often among the Irish people, as he would be quite sure of a loyal and enthusiastic reception." How that recommendation fell into desuetude it is idle to enquire, and the blame must be impartially distributed among those who have been the responsible advisers of the crown for the best part of a century. Of this we may be sure that the loyal lady who is now of her own initiative making so great a sacrifice of ease and convenience would never have shrunk from following the recommendation of her predecessor or repeating those visits which marked the earlier years of her own reign. This visit will certainly be the most memorable, and the most fertile in consequences possibly unexpected. While nothing can ever obviate the necessity of the parliamentary union between Great Britain and Ireland, it must be the golden link of the throne, the magic of the royal personality which will draw together two peoples whom centuries of evil memories have estranged. The present war will have consequences of far greater moment than the incorporation of two South African provinces in the Empire. It must inevitably lead to little less than a reconstitution of the relation between Great Britain and her colonies in which the throne is destined to occupy a position of responsibility little dreamt of by the statesmen of a generation ago. It is permissible to believe that the present journey of the Queen to Ireland is a recognition of Qth edawn of a new epoch in the history of a British kingship.

It is estimated, we hear, that in one way or another £1,000,000 sterling will have been brought into Dublin alone by the royal visit, not by way of gift or dole, but by wages honestly earned and by the sweat of the laborer's brow. On magic touch of prosperity will often avail where logic and reason are powerless. Ireland's discontent has been largely due to the social causes which have rendered Dublin a forsaken capital, save for a few weeks in the year. The glories of the parliament on College Green can never be recalled, but if, as we are entitled to hope, a permanent royal residence in Ireland should be the outcome of the Queen's visit a blow will have been struck against the agitator and the disloyal which it will require all their ingenuity to combat.

vention of Philadelphia, Brooklyn and New York schoolboys, at Philadelphia, to carry a message of sympathy from them to President Kruger, has arrived here.

Smith, who has never been farther from home than Philadelphia, will carry a box, shaped like a kodak, on a strap of which are lettered his name and business. On the box is lettered in gold, "Philadelphia Schoolboys' Message to President Kruger, from America to Africa by Special Messenger." In the box is the expression of sympathy and the long list of names in a trunk will be a book of press clippings, expressing sympathy with the Boers.

He left on the steamship St. Louis yesterday, and will go to The Hague before it reaches Southampton, as he has messages to Queen Wilhelmina and Dr. Leyds. The reason for his not landing in England is that it is feared, through some misunderstanding, he may be detained or the box containing the message may be taken from him.

COMMANDANT KITSON'S LIST ACCEPTED.

The Royal Military College Will Get Fourteen Commissions in Imperial Army Instead of Twelve as First Intended.

Ottawa, April 14.—The report published in a number of Conservative newspapers that Dr. Gordon has cancelled the commissions offered by the Imperial authorities to the graduates of the Kingston Royal Military College is not correct.

There has been no cancellation, and it is earned at the Militia Department that there has been no delay. Colonel Kitson, the commandant of the Royal Military College, was communicated with at once, and the result has been that the list which he sent forward to Ottawa has passed the Cabinet and will be forwarded to the War Office through the usual channel, His Excellency the Governor-General.

The only material change that has been made is that the number which goes to the college is 14, and not 12, as was at first announced. Thirty will go to the Canadian militia, making 44 in all, instead of 42, as was stated in the first cable received here from the War Office.

as the force from Bloemfontein is advancing by way of Dewetdorp, and Gen. Cherrside is nearing the objective with the third division.

Gen. Brabant's force is moving from Aliwal North by way of Rouxville and Bushmankop, while across the border a strong force of Boers are closely watching events. In the meanwhile General Buller's division is concentrating at Springsfontein, Lord Methuen's force is trying to get to Hoopstad, and it is believed that Gen. Hunter's division will strengthen the British left at Fourteen Streams.

BOMBARDMENT AT WARRENTON.

London Critics Think the Boers May Be Cut Off.

London, April 14.—The only development reported up to 2 p.m. to-day in the cable despatches came from South Africa was the heavy bombardment of the British trenches at Warrenton, April 13, which resulted in no damage, the Boers apparently being under the impression that the British were in the trenches.

BOERS WANT THEIR INDEPENDENCE.

The Commissioners Say They Will Make Any Other Sacrifice Than Their Liberty in Order to Secure Peace.

Rome, April 14.—Nothing is known here in corroboration of the report published abroad that Count Von Buelow, the German Minister of Foreign Affairs, had visited the Transvaal peace envoys at Milan. The story is not credited. The Portuguese Minister, however, has gone to that city.

An interview is published here, in which Joseph Abram Fischer, one of the Transvaal commissioners, is alleged to have declared that the South African Republics were willing to make any sacrifice in order to preserve their liberty and independence. They did not wish to be declared, to add to their territory, but merely to retain it and to live peacefully at home.

The Boer commissioners started for The Hague this afternoon. Dr. Leyds accompanying them as far as Brussels.

LADYSMITH'S DEFENDER GETS A ROYAL WELCOME

Great Britain Tendered a Rousing Reception for General Sir George White.

PARIS EXHIBITION BEING IGNORED BY BRITISH.

Since Anti-British Press in France Has Become So Venomous Almost All Interest is Lost in What Promised to be the Greatest Exposition Ever Held.

London, April 14.—The scene which greeted Gen. George White when the steamer Dunvegan Castle, on which he left Cape Town March 25, reached Southampton this afternoon, must have convinced him of the admiration of his countrymen for the gallant defence of Ladysmith during the long and trying siege of that place. From early morning crowds collected by thousands in the neighborhood of the docks. The buildings in the vicinity were gaily decorated, and all the public institutions were covered with flags.

The harbor presented a brilliant scene and the Dunvegan Castle's berth at the wharf was resplendent with bunting and vergerettes. There Lady White, the Mayor, and the members of the corporation in their state robes, uniformed soldiers and sailors and a number of guests awaited the gallant defender of Ladysmith.

As the steamer loomed up in the distance with Gen. White standing on the multiple decks, a storm of cheering and singing and the sounding of brass and whistles intermingled uninterruptedly until Sir George landed at 2.30 p.m.

The greeting between husband and wife being over, Gen. White had to undergo much hand-shaking and the receiving of congratulations from personal friends before he reached the docked, where the municipal authorities presented him with an elaborately illuminated address of welcome, expressing profound admiration at his "noble and successful efforts to uphold and maintain the honor and dignity of the Empire in distant Natal, which have won the lasting admiration of the civilized world."

During the reading of the address the large crowds in the vicinity seized every opportunity to cheer, and the enthusiasm was indescribable. Hats, handkerchiefs and flags were waved frantically, and cheer followed cheer in an endless succession. Gen. White was visibly moved at the warmth of his reception. In acknowledging the address, he referred with admiration to the gallant garrison. Every man of them, he said, "from General Buller to the brave trumpeter, had behaved magnificently."

London, April 14.—Easter eggs this season are decorated with the pictures of General Lord Roberts and Union Jacks, with shamrocks and Irish harps interwoven with the mottoes of the Empire in a dominant state and war and the spirit of imperialism are in the ascendant. Anyone dared to prophesy at this time last year that these things would have come about within a twelvemonth he would have been laughed to scorn. A spirit of religious bigotedness the country; England needs a solid outlet for the enthusiasm over past victories in South Africa, for the escape of the Prince of Wales, and for the prosperous times that have benefited the country. So it is small wonder that an unprecedented flood of Easter eggs is leaving London over the "Friday" and "Saturday" Monday. Every one who can afford it has gone away and holiday-making is the rage of the moment.

British Ignore Paris Show.
Next week marks the opening of the Paris Exposition. Yet comparatively few Parisians are likely to attend. Several months ago thousands were planning to leave Albion to visit Paris. But since the anti-British press in France has become so venomous almost all the interest seems to have been lost in what promised to be one of the greatest expositions of the century.

Such a cartoon this week represents French bowing to Mistress Paris and wishing her good fortune. But this does not represent in the slightest degree popular opinion, for, as the Globe says—"The British people are not going to the show."

An Ancient Ceremony.

Speaking of shows, one of the most ancient occurred this week, when the "Royal Maundy Money" was distributed to old men and women at Westminster Abbey. The ceremony of giving small alms to deserving persons, with Yeoman of the Guard in attendance, as usual, attracted large crowds, and, according to an evening paper, the red purses containing the Queen's small gift were eagerly bought up by American visitors, some of whom offered as much as 15 for them. The number of recipients increases with each year of the Queen's life, and the eighty-one men and eighty-one women the other day formed a striking, living commentary on the great age of the Empire's active sovereign.

Sir George White's Popularity.

Next week will doubtless be marked by scenes of enthusiasm over the arrival of Sir George White. Despite what were alleged to be his mistakes it is doubted if any British general except Lord Roberts is half as popular as the defender of Ladysmith. Buckles bearing his photograph are already being generally worn. And this connection it is interesting to note now what the "American button trade" has come into popularity in England.

The Outlook relates that while Sir George White stood in the market-place at Ladysmith immediately after the relief of that place, while cheering throngs surged around him and as the congratulatory message of the Queen was being read out, he said with emotion—"England is very kind to me, who has lost her two regiments."

The simple pathos, read now to teach blame, and pluck of this man have touched the hearts of the people as deeply as if he had won a hundred battles. Moreover, he is the friend and pupil of the beloved idol, "Boha."

Patrick Campbell's Career.

Curiously enough the same day Sergeant Patrick Campbell's name appeared on the list of killed in South Africa. The husband of another actress was numbered in the same columns. He was Captain Tennant, who, four years ago, married Maude Miller. Campbell was a well-known sportsman, and married before his wife had any idea of going on the stage. He was obliged to seek a living, wandered to South Africa, and secured an engagement at the hotel in Beira, by which he was paid and fed in return for his daily services with his gun and the contents of his game bag. While thus employed his wife went to the London stage, made a hit, and begged her husband to return, but he refused to do so until he became independent.

Eventually he came back, joined his wife, and then left to go once more to South Africa, this time as a sergeant of Yeomanry. After dying there he was selected for commendation from the platoon who had filled graves on the plains because he was the husband of Mrs. Campbell, the actress.

He Mimics a Title.

Hugh Somerset, the son of Lady Henry Somerset, who is well known in America, has been deprived of his chance of becoming Duke of Beaufort by the birth of a son to the present holder of that title. For years young Somerset has been the heir-apparent to the dukedom, as hitherto the Duke of Beaufort only had two daughters, but now for the first time in a century and a half a Marquis of Worcester has been born. Somerset married four years ago, and has a son. Though this unexpected Marquis of Worcester, for the Duke is an old man, robs Somerset of the chance of a dukedom, he comes in for a considerable fortune upon the demise of his father, the marriage to Lady Henry resulted in the notorious unhappiness and disagreement. Young Somerset is one of the keenest motor car experts in England.

Yachting Affairs.

Designer Fife is busy making plans for improving the Shamrock. He has had a testing tank filled up, various models are being tried, and the results are carefully tabulated to enable him to re-draft the lines of the defeated cup challenger. It is said that Fife has a free hand in making any alterations he may see fit.

Stephen Crane's Work.

Stephen Crane, who is lying at the point of death, has for the past year been occupying one of the oldest houses in England. It is situated in the loveliest part of Sussex, and is owned by Mr. Moreton Frewen. It is called Brode Place, and was built in 1400. In reality it is a miniature castle. There, with straw littered over the stone floors, with huge old fireplaces burning brightly, and with everything as in the feudal times, the man who wrote "The Red Badge of Courage" has been turning out magazine stories with marked regularity. His recent work has called forth unstinted praise from England's greatest critics, and though, perhaps, he is the most American of all the Americans in England no one in English literary circles has spoken of more lovingly and admiringly than the author whose career threatens to end before he reaches his thirtieth year. His wife is with him.

AN UNPROMISING MISSION.

Portugal will Not Take Notice of the Boer Protestants.

London, April 13.—In its editorial the Times says:—
The Protestants which President Kruger and Mr. Steyn are said to have lodged at Lisbon do not appear to be more promising than the peace mission itself. They have declared, it is alleged, that they regard the transmission of British troops and munitions of war through Beira as tantamount to an hostile action on the part of Portugal. The Government at Lisbon, it seems, have not yet made any reply to the Boer communication, but it is supposed that if they do answer they will take their stand upon the exceptional relations subsisting between Portugal and this country, by virtue of the ancient treaties between us, going back to the reign of Charles I., and which are still in force.

MAKING PERFECTLY SAFE.

Garrison Hopes that It May Relieve itself Shortly.

London, April 13.—The Times has a special from Mafeking, dated April 11.—Our effective occupation of the advanced trenches of the enemy to the east and west has caused a diminution in the strain of the siege, and suggests that Mafeking may now relieve itself. Extraneous influences, including Col. Plumer's approach from a point six hours' distant, and the advance of the southern troops to within fifty miles, has effected the investment, and relief is practically in the transition stage. Native runners now communicate with Colonel Plumer and return before morning. There need be no further cause of alarm for the safety of Mafeking.

WHAT ENGLAND FIGHTS FOR.

In February last a remarkably able address was delivered by Mr. William Robson, of Windsor, and printed for the benefit of the "Soldiers of the Queen Relief Fund." It was entitled "The Truth About the Transvaal," and gathered from the despatches between the British and Boer Governments, and the official report of the Bloemfontein Conference. The address has passed through five editions, and by its sale a very considerable sum has been realized for the patriotic purpose specified. The closing part of Mr. Robson's address summarizes the issue that England is fighting for at this crisis. That issue is whether British citizenship shall continue to be a valuable heritage or an empty phrase; whether the Union Jack shall still be an effective protection or become nothing more than a distinguishing badge. If Great Britain can no longer assure the safety of her subjects beyond her own borders, then the sad day has come when the British Empire must cease to be. It has been worth something to be a British subject. It is worth everything, if need be, to keep our heritage unimpaired. How much let us learn from a Senator of the United States, whose words are here repeated:

"I think that one of the grandest things in all the history of Great Britain is that she does protect her subjects everywhere, anywhere, and under all circumstances. I do not wonder that a British subject loves his 'country.' This little incident, with which you are all familiar, is a marvelous illustration of the protection which 'Great Britain gives to her subjects.' The King of Abyssinia took a British subject named Cameron about twenty years ago, carried him up to the fortress of Magdala, on the heights of a rocky mountain, and put him into a dungeon without cause assigned. 'It took six months for Great Britain to find that out. That Great Britain demanded his immediate release. King Theodore refused the release. 'In less than ten days after that refusal was received ten thousand British soldiers, including five thousand Sepoys, were on board ships of war, and were sailing down the coast. When they had disembarked, they were met by a crowd that terrible country, a distance of seven hundred miles, under a burning sun, up the mountain, up to the very heights in front of the frowning dungeon, then gave battle, battered down the iron gates of the stone walls, reached down into the dungeon, and lifted out of it that one British subject."

"Then they carried him down the mountain, across the land, but him on board a white-winged ship, and sped him to his home in safety. That cost 'Great Britain twenty-five million dollars, and made General Napier Lord 'Napier of Magdala.'"

"That was a great thing for a great country to do—a country that has an eye that can see all across the ocean. 'All across the land, away up to the mountain heights, and away down to the darksome dungeon, one subject of hers out of her thirty-eight millions of people, and then has an arm strong enough and long enough to stretch across the same ocean, across the same lands, up the same mountain heights, down to the same dungeon, and then lift him out and carry him to his own country and friends."

"In God's name, who would not die for a country that will do that?"

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Rev. Mr. Sheldon tried to run a paper the way the Lord would run it. The Times might suggest to some of our ministerial friends of the Sheldon stamp that they would probably set a better example if they tried to run their churches the way the Lord would run them.

Irish curiosity may be also explained by the poverty of the people. The natives generally do not see many English sovereigns.

It was beautiful weather when the Queen stepped ashore, and it meant a brighter day for Ireland.

A court decision to the effect that the dog is property is in line with the well-known fact that a man's property may be tied up.

Now that the baseball season is open winter should certainly get through.

Supposing the Boers are trying to encircle Roberts, it is only another round in the fight.

Don't let us blame Col. Sam Hughes for the capture of those five British companies until we hear his explanation of the disaster. Evers he can't be everywhere and attend to everything.

A party of 30 Doukhobors have gone from the Northwest to California. They give as a reason for going that they want a warmer climate, and say that the whole lot will get out in the course of two or three years. These are the people the Canadian Government spent thousands of dollars in coaxing out to Canada.

It looks as if the Dominion government may have to put an export duty on Doukhobors.

"I said Tompkins," replied John.

"I know you did, John. But, all the same, you're fer Williams."

Then he made a grab for his hat and was about to make for the door when she looked it and, standing against it, said:

"Don't let us fuss over this matter, John. Be reasonable now an own up that you're fer Williams."

He fumbled with his hat and kicked the fire.

"The Strength of Twenty Men."
 When Shakespeare employed this phrase he referred, of course, to healthy, able-bodied men. If he had lived in these days he would have known that men and women who are not healthy may become so by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. tle.Mrs. Timothy L. Woodruff, wife of cessful candidates for the degree of M. B.

at the London university in 1898, is filling the post of medical officer to the Grove hospital, Lower Tooting, England.It has just been made public that the sum of 50,000 francs, the interest of which is to be used by the University of Paris for the aid of poor students, was the gift of the late Baroness von Hirsch.Miss Hattie Bumgarten of New Milford, Conn., has a novel plan for reforming saloons. The scheme is to have the best citizens frequent the saloons, not to drink, but to form a social surrounding of a high order.Miss Edith Rhodes, one of the sisters of Cecil Rhodes, has better and larger diamonds, it is said, than most of the royalty. These were given to her by her brother and taken from the famous Wes-selton mine at Kimberley.The widowed Duchess of Westminster purposes to follow the turf under the name of "Mr. Norman." She will have many fine race horses from her husband's stud and will race under his colors. The last racing woman of so high a degree was the dowager Duchess of Montrose.Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt has announced that it is her firm conviction that before the end of the twentieth century the United States will edify the world by electing a woman as president.Lady Louisa Madeline Tighe died on March 2. She was a daughter of the

She danced at the famous ball at Brus-

ton's sword when he started for the field of battle.When Mrs. Joubert was in Amsterdam a few years ago, a friend took great pleasure in showing her the fine collection of pewter in the big Rijks museum.
Her only comment was, "Good to make bullets of." She ought to be a judge, for in the early wars with the natives she often was one of the women who made bullets for the use of the Boer army.

THE BEEHIVE.

Contract the space in the hive to the size of the colony.A good and fertile queen keeps the hive full of bees during the season.
Do not offer to feed liquid food to bees in winter; it is almost sure death to a colony.Bees abhor being molested at night, and no work can then be done with them with any satisfaction.In every case where comb is to be built furnish the bees with foundation, using flat sheets in the frames.Clipping the wings of the queen prevents losing first swarms by absconding, but does not always prevent losing the queen.Bees seem to seek naturally a span between two combs, and the queen seldom goes to the outside comb of a hive unless she is compelled to for want of room; so that a nucleus of two or three combs is better than one.Propolis is the gum or varnish that bees collect for varnishing over the inside of their hives, filling cracks and crevices, cementing loose pieces of the hive together and for making things fast and close generally. It collects in time in old hives and combs.The lumber camps are now breaking up, and some of the force is returning home, leaving others who will run the "drives."

Short Stories of the Day

IN LOVE WITH A GHOST.

BY COLONEL WILLIAM F. CODY
("BUFFALO BILL.")Two school girls could not be more devoted chums than were a couple of young officers of the 7th cavalry, stationed at Fort F—. They attracted the attention of everyone who observed their good comradeship.Lieutenant Romaine was a handsome picture—a dashing soldier and a "lady killer." It was asserted, though, to his credit be it said, he was not apol-it and was not regarded as a man first.
Lieutenant Belden possessed a fine form, a strikingly ugly face to those who did not take a second look at it, and was a perfect soldier—one whom his men would follow to the devil if he expressed his determination of leading a storming party into his home.Many called Lieutenant Romaine by his Christian name, Hugh, yet no man dared address Lieutenant Belden as Oscar. Women seemed afraid of him, and, in fact, he would shun a pretty girl quicker than he would half a dozen scalp-hunting Redskins. Lieutenant Belden had once said—
"I loved my mother and she made me respect all women. A sister I never had and I shall never marry, for I do not believe I will ever love."His brother officers laughed and made all manner of prophecies about his soon being caught in Cupid's toils, but Lieutenant Romaine said—
"It would surprise me if Belden ever married."There were hot days at the fort and constantly there occurred deeds of personal heroism that were most conspicuous, while the "chum lieutenants," as Romaine and Belden were called, came in for more than their share of daring acts.One day a troop returned from a hard fight with a lot of dead and wounded, one of the former being Lieutenant Romaine.It was said with enthusiasm that the troop would have been wiped out but for a rescue by Lieutenant Belden and a few of his men, who took desperate chances, yet won the day.Belden was himself badly wounded, but never gave up until the fort was reached.
It was a couple of months before he recovered, and he was but a wreck of his former self, so he was given a long leave to return to his home.Some said that grief for his comrade's death had done as much for him as his wound, but the body of Romaine had been sent east to be buried in the old family lot in Maryland, and Belden had made no comments when all had been told him.
He left the fort and half a year later he was ordered to join General Miles in the field, and so almost forgot about the "chum lieutenants."A year later I bore despatches to Fort
M— and there I met Captain Oscar Belden."Awful glad to see you, Cody, for you are a link that bound me to dear old Fort F—, poor Romaine!" and his face and voice showed that he had not forgotten his friend, but he quickly added—
"Come to my quarters when you are at leisure, and meet my wife.""You married, Captain Belden?" I said.He blushed like a schoolgirl and said—
"Yes, I fell in love with a sweet and—but I'll tell you the story later."And he did, and a weird one it was.
He had traveled for months before he regained his former good health, and at last decided to visit his friend's grave in Maryland.He stopped at a tavern in the little village near which was the home and burying ground of the Romaines for generations.He had his supper and strolled out into the moonlight to visit Hugh Romaine's grave, having been directed how to find the spot.In a deep reverie as he walked, he had reached the little burying ground before he was aware, and there came suddenly to a halt as he drew in sight of a whiterobed form kneeling by a grave.He was startled, and he appeared to stare the weird figure, for it glided rapidly away.At first the officer felt that it was an illusion of his fevered brain, and he approached the grave where it had been kneeling. The headstone, newly placed there, bore the name of Lieutenant Hugh Romaine.For days Belden remained at the tavern and he learned that the Romaine family were all away from home. Each night in the moonlight he went to Hugh Romaine's grave and each time he put to flight the ghost at his coming."I have solved it," he said to himself, and he added, without further explanation, of the mystery—
"A 'I love this place'."The next evening he went earlier to the sacred spot, hid himself among some cedars and waited.Soon after, in the twilight, two men appeared, and they, too, hid themselves in the foliage near the grave, while Lieutenant Belden calmly awaited developments.Later the "ghost" was seen approaching timidly, as though anxious to avoid being seen by any wandering mortal in the flesh that might be near.Nearer the white-robed form came, passed in through the iron gate that led into the brick-walled burying ground and knelt by the side of Hugh Romaine's grave.Then the two men appeared suddenly and sprang upon the "ghost." A smothered scream followed, and next upon the scene came Oscar Belden.He was an athlete, a tremendously hard bitter, and in a moment he had two stunned men at his feet and a "ghost" that had swooned in his arms.A man whom nothing rattled, he placed the white-robed form upon the bed of fresh flowers upon Romaine's grave, and with handkerchief and neck scarf, enforced by a revolver, quickly made the men prisoners, just as the "ghost" awoke to consciousness and the interesting situation.The "ghost" explained. She was a young girl who lived in a fine old home half a mile away and adjoining the Romaine estate.The men were workmen upon her father's place, and their object was to force a large sum of money from her, under threat of making her secret known, for the secret was that the Romaine, her family, and the Romaine's kept from herfoss for generations, while she and Hugh Romaine had been lovers since childhood.She dared not show her grief at his death, dared not visit his grave by day, and hence had played "ghost" to frighten off anyone who might see her carrying flowers nightly to the tomb of her lover.
The two workmen had known who she was, and hence their determination to profit by it.Under promise of all once taking the trail out of the country Lieutenant Belden released them, then escorted the fair apparition home, called the next day, and —a year after she became his wife and accompanied him to Fort M—, where I had the honor of meeting her, while Captain Belden said—
"I loved her when she was a ghost—then for her devotion to poor Hugh, and afterward for herself."

TAKING THE REINS.

French actress, was presented with a handsome pair of driving mules by the king of Portugal.There is a Baron Wilkes mare in

THE BOERS ARE AFRAID TO REMAIN INACTIVE.

Their Leaders Could Not Keep Them Together Unless Something
Were Being Done.—Entrenchments Are Being
Dug East of Brandfort.

London, April 12.—On the second of March it was stated, in this despatch that the Boers would make their next serious stand in the Free State north of the Vet and Zand Rivers, between Kroonstad and Winburg, this country being the most favorable for defence north of Bloemfontein. It was explained that these rivers, which run almost from the Vet to the Drakensberg and are backed by rather mountainous country, would be most suitable for Boer methods of warfare, and would lead themselves readily to a stout resistance. This view has now been confirmed after six weeks. A despatch from Lorenzo Marquez says:—"The main position is described in a despatch from Lorenzo Marquez as a range of hills between Kroonstad and Winburg, a distance of 10 miles. It is fortified throughout, and is impregnable. Here, it is said, 35,000 Boers with 90 guns are concentrated." The range of hills thus referred to is the series of kopjes which rise right and left of the Bloemfontein-Fretoria railway and act as a covering fortification to Kroonstad, the new Boer capital, outside of which the most serious conflict of the war will undoubtedly take place. As Gen. Roberts is now receiving proper clothing for his men and remounts are pouring into South Africa it is not likely that an advance upon the Vet and Zand, a hundred miles north of Bloemfontein, will be long delayed. Simultaneous activity on the part of the Boers both in the Free State and Natal shows that the enemy expect a combined movement on the part of Roberts and Buller, and they are no doubt correct. The raid into the northern Free State and the attack upon Clerg's division at Randsburg are both counter movements on the part of the Boers to impede British operations. One advantage of the overwhelming force now at General Roberts' disposal is that it will not be necessary to move forward on a single line. The Boers can be forced to divide their now limited numbers by movement in Natal against the Biggarsberg and Laings' Nek. The most important stage in the advance north of Kroonstad will be the crossing of the Vaal. Once that river is passed, Laings' Nek will become untenable, and a force could be sent forward, even before Johannesburg is occupied, to cut the railway from Pretoria to Komati Poort, and Delagoa Bay. The cutting of this line would isolate the Transvaal Government from the outer world. But if they continue their resistance for some time, for Pretoria is a strong fortress, armed with formidable artillery, and provisioned for a siege. And there is reason to believe that the Boers have prepared another centre of resistance still further north in the mountain country of the Zoutpansberg district. It is scarcely likely, however, that the force in Natal will do more than hold the Boers in the Biggarsberg until the northern march of Roberts uncovers the position, when a retreat from Natal must naturally follow. To attempt to storm the Biggarsberg would be too costly, a fact which the Boers recognize, as their attempt to draw the British into an attack yesterday indicates.

despatch from Bloemfontein, dated on April 10, says the Boers have concentrated upon Wepner so as to reduce Brigadier-General Brabant's force of 500 men there. The latter are entrenched, and, confident of holding out. The enemy wavered when it came to the final issue, and have struck at the least vital point where they were greatly handicapped by the Basuto border. Owing to the strategic concentrations which have taken place, the enemy's movements there need be little anxiety as to the safety of the Cape border. Isolated horsemen have crossed near Ladygrey into the late disaffected districts, but no organized invasion could be possible, except under extreme risks, which Commandant Olivier is not likely to take, especially as his horses are reported to be greatly exhausted.

CANNONADE AT BULTFOUNTEIN

General Methuen Assailed by the Enemy Near Boshoff

Pretoria, March 11.—A heavy cannonade was heard this morning in the direction of Bultfontein, situated midway between Winburg and Boshoff, in the Orange Free State, and north of Brandfort.

Advices from Wepner, where a British force is surrounded, say the battle continues. About 1,500 British troops are said to be there. Advices from the Boer headquarters in Natal say that after a heavy bombardment the British are retiring in the direction of Ladysmith and the Federals are going to their old positions.

Mrs. A. L. Vrooman Wood of Minneapolis has been appointed judge of the decorated china to be exhibited at the Paris exposition by the National League of Mineral Painters. The selection of Mrs. Wood was made by Commissioner General Peck.

Miss Eva Hooper of London is now on her way to Australia, where she is to organize the kindergarten work in the public schools of Victoria and to give kindergarten training. Miss Hooper recently spent about a year in this country studying the schools.

Mrs. Humphry Ward suggests the establishment in every town of Great Britain of an organization to study Christian dogma and Christian history with the aid of such books as Harnack's "History of Dogma" and Schurg's "The Jewish People in the Time of Christ."

Mrs. Alexander Capperton, who died in Kirkhill, Scotland, the other day, was one of the few links connecting the present with the time of Sir Walter Scott. She entered his service when 16 and was with him when he died and received a lock of his hair from Mrs. L. Chant.

She never fails to produce these cards, whether at home or on the sea.

A new aspirant for legal honors is Mrs. Catherine V. Waite, a western woman, 71 years old, who will soon go to Denver and establish a law office there, with her husband as a partner. Mrs. Waite is the owner of large tracts of land, many horses and a block of real estate in Chicago. Her husband was at one time a judge in Idaho.

Lady Dundonald, whose husband, the earl, has been distinguishing himself with Buller in Natal, got into a quarrel with the town authorities of Abergele, Wales, recently over land needed to widen a road passing through the chief attraction of the place, an avenue of old oaks on his land. On the town council's threatening to acquire the land needed by condemnation the countess had all the old trees cut down.

We have already completed over 100 feet development work, 70 feet of which consists of surface work such as cross-outs, shallow shafts, etc. prospecting to decide the best place to sink our main or working shaft. This has been found to be on the "Big 3" or cone claim, and we are now down 30 feet and still pushing the work as fast as four practical men and dynamite can possibly accomplish. Remember, we have three full claims, to wit: "Big 3," "Victor" and "Will o' the Wisp," situated on Iron Mountain in the Burke mining district, Ferry county, Wisconsin, six miles southeast of the famous Republic mine, and that there is a big ledge of porphyritic quartz crossing all the three claims lengthwise from north to south and cropping for over 2,700 feet, and surface assays furnished $8 to $9 in free gold.

On the "Big 3" claim, while doing development work, we discovered a true fissure vein 4 feet wide cutting the formation east and west, which from picked samples assayed $82.00 in gold.

Our manager writes on, under date of March 1, 1900, that at a depth of 30 feet in our proposed main shaft he is working in 4 feet of fine quartz and it is widening as depth is acquired. He also says: "I am confident that a shaft 100 feet deep will prove this property nearly as good as, if not equal to any of the great mines of the Republic."

There are 300,000 shares in the treasury and the above is the first offered for sale. The company being a reliable one, and with such a phenomenal showing on their properties, it should induce immediate investment, so don't delay the price will positively be raised when this block is sold; every dollar we spend means greater depth to our shaft, wider lead and higher assays. DON'T MISS THIS. IT'S A WINNER. Send your orders at once to the secretary.

PLEA SENT TO VICTORIA.

Parents of Spanish Arch Britain's Queen to Aid Their Son.

Brussels, April 12.—The parents of Jean Baptiste Sippo, who made the attempt on the life of the Prince of Wales, have addressed the following petition to Queen Victoria.

"Your Majesty... Two unhappy parents wish to tell you their despair and implore your pity. It is a father and a mother who beseech your majesty to pardon an unfortunate son for an attempt whereof he has been guilty. We are poor, even to indigence, but we are honest. Neither of us has ever failed in our duty. Our child who has committed this fearful crime is an innocent lad, acted on by evil incitements. They have taken advantage of his inexperience, but he understands now the character of his act and weeps with us and implores pardon, oh queen.

"We have nine children, all still little, and all come to you with the same prayer and the same supplication. For to your gracious kindness they look for help.

"Our child is in prison. The idea of it is too horrible. Have pity on us. Have pity on him. His crime was hateful, but he is our child. His heart is good and approves his act. It seems to us impossible that he can be confounded with criminal wretches.

"At your knees we pray you to intercede in his favor. He is only 15 and was a most respectful, submissive, loving boy with a heart of gold, knowing nothing, a boy whom they have wickedly deceived by odious lies, inducing him to fire at your most beloved son, his royal highness the Prince of Wales.

"Great, noble queen, deign to cast a look of pity on our misery and our life will be but one outpouring of gratitude and respect to your most august majesty."

WHY THE BOERS ATTACKED.

They Could Not Keep Together and Remain Inactive.

Bloemfontein, April 11.—According to information received here the Boer activity eastward of the railroad and in proximity to the border is largely due to the fact that Presidents Kruger and Steyn have found they are unable to keep their forces together in inactivity, the burghers declaring they are unwilling to remain with their commanders unless actively employed, as they are convinced the British game is a waiting game. It is believed the Boer movement was originally designed to oblige Lord Roberts to weaken his force at Bloemfontein in order to protect the railroad. Then the Boers would have attempted to recapture the capital. The burghers are evidently ignorant of the enormous forces Lord Roberts has at his disposal.

Advices from Kamee Siding say the Boers are busily entrenching their positions east of Brandfort, running parallel with the railroad, while still strongly holding the Waterfall drift water works.

GLIMPSES OF SOUTH AFRICA.

Peace and in War—A splendid lot of Views

Southern Africa, that enormous expanse of tropically verdant territory extending from the Zambesi River to the Cape of Good Hope, has for a century or more lain dormant to the eyes of the civilized world. Only within the past two decades has public attention been drawn to the wonderful natural resources and mineral wealth of this wild and rugged land, and yet, within this period, marvellous creation of brilliant modern cities have supplanted the desert lands and haunts of savage tribes. The steady march of civilization, the all-pervading ambition to accumulate the wealth of diamonds and gold that lay beneath the crust of this benighted land, each has borne its part in the metamorphosis and beaded to the world the wonderful possibilities of that "Dark Continent" for the energy and enterprise that the 20th century will bring to light.

In no other country of the world has progress been marked with such adversity and strife as Africa. From the time the early Dutch settlers landed in the Cape Colony up to the present, there has existed almost a constant state of warfare; the natives depicting the advance of the Dutch and they in turn retreating the inroads of civilization. In spite of this, so strenuous were the efforts of the colonists to the determination to turn to account the beauty and resources of the land of their adoption, that to-day they enjoy the fruits of their successes in a paradise of tropical vegetation, a salubrious climate and surrounded by the highest advantages of intellectuality and luxuries of civilization.

Cape town is the metropolis and seat of government of the Cape Colony. Its historical past and present is firmly linked in the traditions of the early Dutch and the Huguenots. True, the old forts and buildings of distinctly Dutch architecture still remain, but seated in South Africa and the progress of the war, so eager the thirst for information, coupled with the demand for a Pictorial History incident to the scenes of warfare, that the publication of "Glimpses of South Africa" has been undertaken upon a grand scale, grandeur, fidelity and completeness never before thought of, involving as it has an expense of extraordinary magnitude. In order that the work might be absolutely reliable and thorough in its character, the publishers have contracted for the authorship of Mr. Wynne Fleming, an Afrikaner whose authority upon South African matters is world-wide acknowledged. This gentleman—born in the Cape Colony, having traveled over nearly every inch of the country south of the Zambesi River and lived in South Africa for thirty years—has graphically illustrated description of each stage in the progress of the war.

Port Elizabeth is the Liverpool of South Africa. It is a great commercial centre, coupled with some of the largest shipping interests in the world; a city of the most modern type, essentially English in character, and possessing some of the largest and the most architecturally magnificent buildings and public institutions in South Africa.

Natal is the beautiful, tropical Garden Colony. Its luxuriant vegetation and glorious climate, its wide avenue of trees and fine buildings, the native Zulu servants and the picturesque costumes of the Orientals lend an air of peace and tranquility, while the marks of civilization and progress are in evidence at every turn.

Johannesburg, the Golden, with its fine architectural creations, public institutions and parks, possesses many attractions that easily place it as the foremost city of South Africa. Its great industry, mining, the apparently inexhaustible veins of gold-bearing quartz, in which upwards of seven hundred millions of dollars are invested, have been the attraction for the thousands and thousands of "Uitlanders" whom "grievances" are substantially the cause for the cruel war between Briton and Boer, the battles of which have been ranked as the "Bloodiest of the century."

This great work is published in serial form, and when complete will comprise the most magnificent collection of photographic reproductions of the British-Boer war and South Africa obtainable in this country. Portfolios distributed by the Morning Times. For particulars see announcement on another page of this issue.

ACROBATIC COOKING.

MIRACLES DONE IN THE GALLEY OF AN ATLANTIC LINER.

Connecting Dishes While the Kitchen Is Trying to Turn Somersaults and the Pots and Pans Are Dancing Jigs With the Cooks.

Cooking on the high seas isn't so exciting a profession as it was in the old days, but even now it presents problems and situations that would drive a landsman chef to despair. It is one thing to sit down in dignified calm in a hotel kitchen and compose a symphonic entree, and it's quite another thing to clutch a rope swung across a kitchen that is trying to turn turtle and to master an entree that is attempting to dance a cancan on top of a plunging range. It would be a happy thing for stewards and cooks if every disgruntled passenger on a transatlantic steamer could, in rough weather, be forced to pay a visit to the galley and watch the efforts by which the meals with which he has been finding fault are prepared. The chances are that two minutes amid the fumes and heat of the galley would reduce him to a state of seasickness which would rob him of all interest in meals of any sort, but if he could wait long enough to receive a few mental impressions he would climb the galley stairs a humble and contrite traveler and accept food fit to eat as a miracle wrought in his behalf.

In these narrow quarters cooking is done on a scale larger than the ordinary saloon passenger realizes. The crew must be fed in port and out. So the cooks have from 500 to 600 men on their hands every day of the year. Then during the voyage the steersman, second cabin and first cabin must be provided for. The steersman passengers do not have an elaborate bill of fare, but about 3,000 small loaves of bread are baked for the crew and steersman every day, and that in itself is no small task.

The very sight of the baker's dough trough is enough to discourage a faint hearted cook, for flour is dumped into it by the ton. One hundred and fifty barrels of flour must be dumped away on a voyage like spring snowflakes, and 20 tons of potatoes dance merrily up the galley stairs to table land in hand with 20,000 pounds of beef, while 10,000 eggs, more or less seaisick, follow wearily. Then 150 gallons of fresh milk scum the 1,000 gallons of condensed milk stored beside it and advise the 1,000 pounds of coffee to have nothing to do with it. The ghosts of countless chickens, turkeys, ducks and fishes haunt the larder where their slaughtered bodies hang in hundreds at a time. As for the incidentals, no one but the head steward knows the tale of them. Imagine all this food prepared in an apartment house kitchen addicted to handshakes, and you have the steamer galley situation.

Along the end of the room run the ranges. The ovens are divided into compartments which will hold firm pans of varying sizes. On top of the stoves a steel bar runs along the front and back, and separate crossbars may be clamped to these at convenient intervals. Pots and Kettles are hemmed in in this way, and added to their firmness are clamped to a crossbar with what looks like a large iron clothespin. All cooking utensils are made much deeper than would be necessary in ordinary cooking in order to avoid spilling of the contents in case of rough weather. The huge copper stock pots in which wholesale boiling is done are heated by steam, and the boiling is done over an immense charcoal fire. The bakers have a separate cubby hole and ovens for themselves, and beyond them is a cold room where confections and pastry are made.

Everything is swept and garnished in a fashion to satisfy the heart of a Dutch housewife. The copper shines resplendent—but the smells! Ye gods, the smells! Let the seafarer who has held his breath and plunged madly up the companion way to escape the deadly whiff of air coming from the galley imagine that gust of odor intensified, concentrated, mixed with steam and smoke and multiplied by four, and he may have some idea of the atmosphere down in the galley.

Steamer kitchen is no place for any one with a tendency toward seasickness, and the first few voyages of a young cook's assistant are tortures. There isn't any fine glow of majesty about his martyrdom, and he doesn't get an atom of sympathy. His galley mates guff him, and his superiors bully him. He sounds a depth of seasickness beside which the state of the groaning passenger on deck in a steamer chair is rose colored and agreeable. Often one voyage is all that he can stand, and he bolts ineffectually when the ship reaches port, but if he has the courage to suffer until he is thoroughly seasoned he overcomes his qualms and is ready to laugh at the next green hand.

Few accidents occur in the steamer galleys nowadays, when innumerable patients and safeguards are employed. Once in awhile a stock pot blows up from too much steam pressure, or a careless or unskilled cook is cut or burned or scalded, but such cases are rare. Ropes are stretched across in front of the ranges, and when the ship is plunging badly the cooks hold these ropes while working over the fire. Fortunately for the work in the galley, when the weather is very rough a large percentage of the passengers lose their interest in food, so the work of the cooks is lessened, and this fact offsets the added difficulty in the preparation of the food. The galley is separated from the rest of the boat by water tight doors and can be shut off so securely that it is practically impossible, except in case of serious accident, for water to reach the galley and put a stop to culinary proceedings.

SELF SUPPORTING WOMEN

Cannot afford to be sick, they say. So, very often, they struggle along and keep up, where other women go to bed. To such women the value of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is beyond computation. It cures the cause of ill-health in woman, derangement or disease of the womanly organs. A temperance medicine. It contains no alcohol, opium, cocaine, nor other narcotic.

"I had female trouble for eight years," writes Mrs. L. J. Dennis, of 58 East College Street, Jacksonville, Fla. "For three years I suffered continually. I could not guess what I had. I sought relief among the medical profession and found none, until induced by kind friends to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. When I began taking this medicine I weighed ninety-five pounds. After taking 'Favorite Prescription' I was built up until now I weigh one hundred and fifty-six pounds—more than I ever weighed before. I was so bad I would lie from day to day and long for death to come and relieve my suffering. I had internal inflammation, a disagreeable drain, bearing-down pains in the lower part of my bowels, and such distress every month, but now I never have a pain—do all my own work, and am a strong and healthy man. Thank you to your medicine. I consider myself a living testimonial of the benefits of your 'Favorite Prescription.'"

J. J. Turner & Sons, Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sirs,—I am very sorry that you were not successful in getting any of the orders that were issued in connection with the equipment of my force, but as already mentioned, I left this matter largely in the hands of the Militia Department at Ottawa.

Please accept my thanks for the photograph of your son, and I must congratulate you on having such a fine son and so young to fight for his Queen and country, and trust that he may be spared to safely return to you. Believe me,

Very truly yours,

Wid in Ashburnham.

The death occurred in Ashburnham on Good Friday of John Mein, an old and highly respected resident of the county of Peterborough. Deceased had been ailing for about a year, so that his death was hardly unexpected.

He was a native of Melrose, Scotland, and came out to Canada about forty-five years ago, when he removed to Ashburnham. He was of a quiet, inoffensive disposition, and had many warm friends. He was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

He leaves to mourn his demise a wife and five children—three sons and two daughters. The former are Robert, John and William, and the latter Mrs. W. C. McCrea and Mrs. A. J. Mathers.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, Inoure street, Ashburnham, this afternoon, to the Little Lake cemetery.

Park Properly Damaged.

The high water in the creek this spring did considerable damage in and around Jackson Park. The huge blocks of ice that came floating down the river when it was at its height snapped off fence posts by the score, and the handsome wire fence along the eastern boundary of the park, is now a ruin. Many trees at the Park have also been badly barked through the same cause.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

Dr. W. T. Rogers, V.S., of Toronto, has opened up an office in Otonabee.

Macdonald's mill at Point St. Charles will begin cutting for the season to-day.

Despite the unfavorable weather all the services at St. John's on Friday were largely attended.

On Tuesday last at Lakefield a heavy piece of wood fell on James Mahood's right foot, crushing it severely.

The steamboat men at Lakefield and Young's Point are beginning to get their crafts in shape for the season.

The market Saturday was not largely attended. A few cans of maple sugar went quickly at 35 cents per quart.

Butter was plentiful on the market Saturday morning and sold at 18 and 20 cents. Eggs went at from 10 to 12 cents per dozen.

Messrs. Strickland & Co., Lakefield, last week received an order from San Francisco by telegraph for a nest of the Klondike canoes.

The Chancel Guild of All Saints' church were the recipients of a beautiful Festal Book Mark on Saturday from an anonymous donor, whom they desire to thank.

"One Good Turn Deserves Another."

It is so easy to go through life doing good and helping to make others happy. A lady who had been ill with a complication of troubles, having been thoroughly cured and now enjoying perfect health, felt it a duty to tell her friends that the specific that brought her back to health was Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Thus, after Hood's had served her well, she felt it deserved a good turn at her hands. Thousands tell the same story of blood purified and health restored. Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses merit peculiar to itself.

Sick Headache.—"For a long time I was troubled with sick headache. Different medicines failed to give me relief. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, my husband having been cured of salt rheum by it, and soon it made me feel like a new woman." Mrs. ROBERT MAYER, Dearhurst, Ont.

Impure Blood.—"My wife suffered with pain and distress from an affection of the throat caused by impure blood. She was almost in despair when she turned to Hood's Sarsaparilla. Six bottles of this medicine completely cured her." JOHN WAGNER, Galt, Ont.

Back Ache.—"My mother had severe pains in her side and back. She was obliged to give up work. A friend persuaded her to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and soon she was able to do her work, free from pain and with a good appetite." MARGIE MCNEIL, Dearhurst, Ont.

No Strength.—"My whole system was run down. I was weak and could hardly get around to do my work. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and after using five bottles I found that my strength had returned and appetite much improved." MRS. KELLY, 318 Dufferin Street, Toronto, Ont.

Nerve Food.—"My wife was stricken with nervous prostration. She suffered from headache. She became weak, listless and her appetite was poor. I am glad to state that Hood's Sarsaparilla has completely cured her of all her ailments." G. BELMONT, 311 Hannah St., Hamilton, Ont.

ROBERTS HAS SPREAD HIS NET TO CATCH ADVENTUROUS BOERS

Commandoes That Have Been Making Mischief in the South-Eastern Part of the Free State Cannot Escape.

A REPORT THAT BOERS HAVE BEEN DEFEATED.

Cape Town Despatch Says They Have Been Driven From Wepener—Boers Destroy Three Collieries and Fall Behind the Biggarsberg Mountains.

Lorenzo Marquesse, April 16. A Rhodesian scout who entered Mafeking through the Boer lines, has returned to Colonel Plumer's camp with despatches from Mafeking, saying that all was well there on April 8th.

London, April 17, 4:15 p.m. Lord Roberts has spread his net far and wide to catch the adventurous commandoes that have been making mischief in the south-eastern part of the Free State. The net has not yet been drawn in, but at the headquarters of Lord Roberts the impression exists that the power of the Boers is decreasing.

A Daily News correspondent has them fleeing to the south-east, a Standard correspondent has them fleeing northward, a Daily Telegraph correspondent says that some are going north on foot, while a Morning Post representative says it is not known what the Boers are doing. Evidently the feeling at Bloemfontein is that the dispositions of Lord Roberts are such as to enable him to concentrate a large force rapidly at any point. The Boers being aware of this are presumed to be thinking now chiefly to retreat. The investment of Wepener according to a special despatch from Bloemfontein has absolutely been abandoned. According to a Bethany despatch the Boers are unable to retreat northward because the British strongly hold all the roads. Divers reports come from Natal, one asserting that the Boers have retired behind the Biggarsberg range and another saying that some of them are close to Ladysmith.

London was confidently waiting for almost immediate announcement of news favorable to the British. Distrust exists, however, as to any rapid continuous advance toward Pretoria, chiefly on account of the lack of horses, many of which died on the long voyages. Letters from the Cape say that the three days journey by rail is made in open trucks, that the arrangements for feeding and watering are inadequate, and that the unfortunate animals break down rapidly in consequence of these hardships. Despite the energy of its buyers abroad.

The War Office foresees much difficulty in supplying the enormous number of horses required.

BLOWN UP THE COLLIERIES.

London, April 16.—A special despatch from Ladysmith, dated April 16, 9:45 a.m., says: "Native scouts have just reported that the Boers in the Elanburg district have retired beyond the Biggarsberg. 'Other information tends to confirm the report that the Boers have succeeded in blowing up three important collieries near Wepener's Nek, completely destroying the engine houses and plants."

FIGHTING AT JAMMERBERG.

Brandsfort, Friday, April 13.—(via Lorenzo Marquesse.)—Fighting with Brabant's Horse at Jammerberg. Drift continued. Commandant Petrus de Wet is reported to have engaged the troops sent from Bloemfontein to Brabant's assistance. There was also a brush with a British column advancing towards Bloemfontein, but without decisive result.

All the foreign attaches are now here.

DALGETTY STILL HOLDS OUT.

But the Boers are being Reinforced from the North.

Maseru, Basutoland, April 14.—Sir Godfrey, Lagden, British resident commissioner, returned here Friday from the scene of operations near Wepener. He said the paramount chief had stationed 3,000 armed natives to resist possible Boer encroachments. The orders of the commissioner are that the Basutos are not to be allowed to cross the Free State frontier on any pretext whatever. Two British troops who crossed and looted an abandoned Boer farm are in custody.

Colonel Dalgetty's position is strong and well chosen, but he is completely surrounded. The Boers have their backs against Basutoland, and if they stay much longer they will be hemmed in. The British operations are keenly watched from the neighboring heights. Shelling and sniping have been going on steadily during the last six days.

Colonel Dalgetty's guns are admirably served, and there is no waste of ammunition. The Boers when they see the flash of the cordite bolt into their holes or behind walls. Their ambulances are close to the border, but the killed and wounded are not removed until nightfall, in order to conceal the number of casualties. The Boers are fatigued, and their horses are tired and footsore.

NINE POWERS WANT TO MEDDLE?

A Statement that They would Like to Intervene in the War.

BOYCOTT ON OLD ENGLAND.

Colonial Dutch to Work Off Spite Against the British Empire.

London, April 16.—A Cape Town despatch to the Manchester Guardian tells of a plan of the colonial Dutch to obtain goods from the United States and Europe, excluding those from England.

The movement is well under way in Natal, where the Dutch have appointed their own professional traders and are preparing to establish a separate community at Amvoti, on the east coast of Durban.

CANADIANS ORDERED HOME.

Several Q. O. R. Men Invalued from the Military Hospital.

Bloemfontein, April 14.—The following Canadian sick and wounded have sailed for England. By steamer Doune Castle, March 18th—Sergeant W. Peppatt, R.C.A.; Quebec Co.; Corp. T. E. R. Baugh, R.C.A.; Montreal company; Pte. H. J. D. Andrews, 5th R.C.A.; Western company; Ptes. R. H. M. McLaughlin, R.C.R.I.; S. M. Ward, Q.O.R., and James Kennedy, Q.O.R., of the Toronto company.

By steamer Oratava, March 31st—Corp. J. Smith, 22nd Batt., London company; Pte. A. S. Bateson, 5th R.C.A.; Western company; Pte. J. H. Sutton, Q.O.R., Toronto company; Pte. A. MacCauley, 43rd Batt., Ottawa company.

Lieut. McDonald arrived here to-day from Canada, and is posted with the Quebec company. The whole regiment is being outfitted with new clothing and accoutrements.

CANADIANS REACH DE AAR.

Artillery and Mounted Rifles Return from the Rebel District.

De Aar, April 14.—The main body of the Cameron field force, in command of Colonel Parsons, including the Canadian Artillery and the Mounted Rifles, arrived here this morning after a five weeks' march from Victoria Road by way of Kenhardt, a distance of more than 500 miles. They encountered no active opposition. Colonel Parsons pacified the district, which was previously in rebellion, and arrested the ringleaders.

BULLETS NOT POISONED.

Eminent Surgeon Brings Boer Bullets Home for Inspection.

London, April 16.—Mr. Frederick Treves, F.R.C.S., in a letter in this week's British Medical Journal, observes that it was during the fortnight from Feb. 15 to March 1—the "very hardest part" of the Natal campaign—that the surgeons "began to have experience of explosive bullets," though at the first battle of Colenso, and at Spearman's Camp, "isolated instances" were met with in which the injury was probably due to a Martini-Henry bullet or to a missile from a sporting rifle. After Feb. 15, however, a good many instances were met with of wounds from expanding bullets, although the proportion among the whole number of the wounded was quite small.

Mr. Treves adds: "I am also bringing back a box or so of 'poisoned bullets,' as our soldiers call them, found among the Boer ammunition. These bullets are covered with a bright green composition. I do not for a moment suppose they are poisoned. The coating appears to me to be a mixture of sulphate of copper and tallow, and is probably used to keep the rifle barrel clear. I propose to have this green material examined chemically when I return to London."

The above contradicts the letter of Pte. Andrews, of Ottawa, who wrote from Ladysmith stating that his Boers in Natal fled, leaving thousands of rounds of ammunition that had been dipped in deadly poison.

TREATED LIKE CRIMINALS.

Lord Roberts Protests Against Boer Treatment of Colonists.

Bloemfontein, April 14.—Lord Roberts, in a telegram of protest to President Kruger regarding the treatment to which the colonial officers and troops who are now prisoners at Pretoria have been subjected, complains that the Boers have treated them as if they were criminals confined in jail. He points out that there are 90 cases of enteric fever and dysentery in the prisoners' camp at Waterval; that the Transvaal Government failed to supply on demand of the doctor, the necessary medicines and medical comforts; that the prisoners were forced to bivouac on the open veldt; that the sick were placed in an open shed with an iron roof, and that it was only when the new doctor threatened to resign that medicines and mattresses were supplied.

He invites President Kruger to remedy this state of things and contrasts it with the treatment of the British Government to the Boer prisoners, sick and wounded, who, as Lord Roberts says, "receive the same treatment as our own soldiers."

NOT A PLEASURE RESORT.

Sir Alfred Milner Protests Against South African Visitors.

London, April 15.—Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, has received this despatch from Sir Alfred Milner, British High Commissioner in South Africa: "The number of visitors in South Africa is constantly increasing, and includes many, especially ladies, who seem to have no particular call of duty or business. I am sure that it would not be the case if it were realized at home that visitors who on ordinary times would be most welcome may under existing conditions become a serious source of inconvenience. There is no place less suitable for recreation than South Africa at present."

AMMUNITION EXHAUSTED.

Transvaalers Hold a Conference and Decide to Withdraw.

London, April 16.—8 a.m.—Some of the correspondents with Lord Roberts at Bloemfontein mention that the Boer ammunition is becoming exhausted. On Thursday a conference of the commandants appears to have been held at Brandfort, in the presence of President Kruger, an apparently resulted, according to the London News' correspondent, in the decision of the Transvaalers to withdraw north of the Vet River.

BLOEMFONTEIN IS HEALTHY.

Bow Hospital will Probably be Established Here Shortly.

London, April 16.—The Times has a special from Bloemfontein which says: "It is reported that the enemy to the south are short of ammunition. Further report states that they are disheartened, which is probably true. The intelligence officials report that Kruger has been at Brandfort and visiting South recently. This continued exertion of personal influence appears now to have become a necessity. The interference is obvious. We anticipate that our flank will shortly be clear of the enemy. The number of men suffering from climatic disease is small, and out of all proportion to what is usual on foreign service, but enteric fever is finding out the weaker constitutions. The climate of Bloemfontein is so beneficial to surgical cases that it is destined to become the base hospital in preference to Wynberg, and the movable cases will be forwarded to the hospitals ships. Four horse hospitals are due to arrive here."

MINES AND RAILWAYS.

How the War Indemnity will be Extracted from the Boers.

London, April 16.—There are only two interests in the Boer Republics which can be believed upon when indemnities are assessed. The railway in the Free State is owned by a Government, which, as Lord Roberts has declared, no longer exists. This State railway may be regarded as a valuable asset in the possession of the British Government. When the Transvaal is invaded the railway belonging to the Netherlands Company will also be seized, and as these, in time of peace, were compelled to pay 80 percent of their profits to the Transvaal Government, South Africans assert that their 80 percent will go hereafter to the British Government. The main resource for meeting the war indemnity will be the mines. Well informed South Africans state that the annual expenditure of the Transvaal Government in recent years has been about $22,000,000, and that the administration at least $7,500,000 can be saved. This margin will allow the payment of interest on an indemnity loan of $200,000,000, but the total cost of the war cannot be less than $500,000,000. With out these mines and railways there would be no possible resource for meeting the indemnity.

WAR NOTES.

It is calculated that Lord Roberts now has 214,000 effective troops with 12,000 more afloat, or under orders. The War Office has instructed officers not to take any more expanding bullets to Africa, for revolvers.

News from a Boers source at Wepener officially communicated, says that four Boer guns have been disabled, and four commandants killed or wounded. On Tuesday night the British made a sortie, capturing a Boer gun and taking some prisoners.

BOER PEACE COMMISSIONERS.

Milan, April 14.—The Boer Peace Commissioners started for The Hague this afternoon. Dr. Leyds, the diplomatic agent of the Transvaal, accompanying them, as far as Brussels.

Germany After Them.

Washington, D.C., April 16.—Secretary Hay has formally notified the Madrid Government that the United States cannot accede to its claim that the Philippine archipelago, being to Spain.

This action was taken in the light of information in the possession of the authorities showing that Germany is taking a deep interest in the controversy.

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL SIR GEORGE WHITE, V.C., THE GALLANT DEFENDER OF LADYSMITH.

It is likely that the Spanish Government will endeavor to answer the American note, and, perhaps, will go so far as to suggest arbitration of the claims. It is altogether unlikely that the administration will consider any propositions of this character.

It is appreciated by the administration that the only reason why Spain desires to obtain possession of the islands is to sell them to a third power, probably Germany, which bought all the islands in the far east not acquired by the United States.

For strategic reasons it is desirable that these islands should remain the property of the United States.

They Were Surprised.

Manila, April 16.—Captain Dodd, with a squadron of the Third cavalry, recently surrendered a village in Benguet province, and surprised two hundred insurgents living in barracks, apparently a recruiting centre for the province. The enemy lost 53 men killed. Our troops also captured 44 men and burned the village. One American was wounded.

Quiet Day at Ottawa.

Ottawa, April 16.—To-day is being strictly observed as a departmental holiday. The Ministers are holding an all-day Council, an adjournment is being held. The Executive Court evidence for the Crown is being taken in the morning of Stewart v. The Queen.

Bovine Plague Rampant.

Kingston, Ont., April 16.—Fourteen of the sixteen horses of the local agency of the Sheddon Company are ill of pink eye, and, at least five are not expected to recover. The disease was brought to the stable by a team imported last week from Montreal.

The annual Easter offerings at St. Mary's cathedral yesterday amounted to $1,500.

Mons. Falconio, Papal Ablegate, will visit here to-morrow, and elaborate preparations have been made to receive him.

Hamilton's Ballet & Singing.

Hamilton, April 15.—James Clarke, deputy returning officer in the division where most of the personating was done in the vote on the by-law for the expenditure of $175,000 for a third water main, was before Magistrate Jeffs to-day, charged with allowing ballots other than those which were legal, to be deposited in the ballot box. Clarke allowed some person, at present unknown, to personate his (Clarke's) next door neighbor, although he knew the latter well. He also allowed other persons with whom he was well acquainted to be personated, an altogether there was a very strong case made out against him by Solicitor McKellean. He was unable to give any satisfactory explanation of why he allowed the personation to be done, and was found guilty and sentenced to six months in jail.

No Wonder He Was Hurt.

Washington, April 16.—Members of the diplomatic corps are amused and yet surprised by an invitation from Chicago which has been extended to the Spanish Minister to attend the second anniversary of the battle of Manila on May 1. The Duke of Arco was surprised, an event by any means amusing, with the action of the Chicago celebration managers. His declination was written with a precision that, despite the politeness of diplomatic language, will not conceal the feelings stirred within him by the incident.

Chicago, April 16.—Graeme Stewart, chairman of the Invitation committee, said that invitations had been sent to President McKinley, his Cabinet, all the members of Congress, members of the Supreme Court and the diplomatic corps. To have omitted anyone would have seemed invidious, and would have constituted reasonable grounds for taking umbrage.

Sted of His Injuries.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., April 16.—Michael Harding, of Simcoe, Ont., who had his foot crushed by a train at the Central depot here on Saturday, died in the hospital this morning. He was about 70 years of age.

Great Britain and Italy.

Rome, April 16.—It is announced that at the opening of the Hygienic Exhibition at Naples, the British and Italian squadrons will be present in the harbor and King Humbert will review the two fleets.

Big New York Strike.

New York, April 16.—All the carpenters on Staten Island went on strike to-day. The strikers demand an eight hour day for five days of the week and a four hour day on Saturday, and that no member of the union will be employed in any circumstances between 12 and 5 on Saturday.

The minimum rate of wages demanded is forty cents an hour, with double pay Sunday and holidays. They ask also for the institution of the apprentice system, which, they claim, will tend to increase the skill of the craft.

Battle of the Papers.

London, April 16.—All arrangements have been completed for the production of a new one-cent morning paper in London by C. Arthur Pearson, with whom Alfred Harmsworth, proprietor of the Daily Mail, began his journalistic career. Mr. Pearson's venture will be called the Daily Express. Its first publication has been fixed for the 18th. It will be Liberal-Imperialistic in politics and will run directly in competition with the Daily Mail and Morning Leader.

The older two-cent papers are keenly feeling the competition of their cheaper rivals.

The Morning Post is said to be the only two-cent paper which has progressed under the new order of things, while the others have retrograded.

What Digging Will Do.

New York, April 16.—Edward Timme, of the Drugists' League, declares that the pharmacists of New York are laying in big stocks of medicines in anticipation of a rush of business when the construction of the transit tunnel gets fairly under way.

At a meeting of the Social Progress League, held in Amity hall, Mr. Timme declared that the breaking of ground for the tunnel would let loose an army of microbes on the defenceless population of the city.

Expenses of U. S. Politics.

New York, April 16.—According to the Herald to-day Governor Theodore Roosevelt is practically accused of desiring to surrender at Santiago by Col. Alexander S. Bacon. In a pamphlet issued late Saturday afternoon in defence of the 71st regiment. Besides wanting to "quit," Col. Bacon charged him with shooting the fleeing Spaniards.

The importance of this charge lies in the fact that Colonel Bacon is one of the best known officers in the National Guard of New York.

Albany, N.Y., April 16.—Governor Roosevelt when asked this morning if he desired to answer the attack made on him by Colonel Bacon, simply said—"You may say that Governor Roosevelt will not dignify Mr. Bacon by paying even the slightest attention to anything he might say."

Shipper Pays Tax.

Washington, April 16.—The Supreme Court to-day decided the cases involving the stamp tax as it applies to express packages, the questions involved being whether the shipper or the carrier shall pay the tax on packages.

The opinion was handed down by Justice White, and was favourable to the express companies.

Actor Breaks Down.

St. Louis, Mo., April 16.—Malbourne Macdowell, the husband of the late Fanny Davenport, and a well-known and talented actor, has broken down. In the third act of "Fedora," given in the Grand Opera House, playing with Miss Walsh, when he was in the midst of his lines, he stopped. The prompter audibly came to the rescue, but Macdowell did not take the cue. He was seen to mumble to himself, and Miss Walsh spoke to him in low tones. Macdowell came down the stage and said, "Ladies and gentlemen," but Miss Walsh called him back twice.

The curtain was rung down, it was announced that Mr. Macdowell was indisposed, and the people got their money back at the door. The management says Mr. Macdowell was nervous and physically unable to go on with his part. Further than this no statement was made.

Her Majesty in Ireland.

Dublin, April 16.—It is said here that Queen Victoria's private secretary is making enquiries with a view to the purchase of Clonsilla Castle as the Irish royal residence. Clonsilla Castle is a splendid mansion, with a thousand acres of beautiful park, within five miles of Dublin.

Q. The Queen intends to visit Ireland every remaining year of her life.

The excitement of the Irish visit has undoubtedly told on the Queen. She has been looking very pale the last few days, but nothing seems to deter her from carrying out her programme of drives. She has gone out several times in an open carriage in the rain, but Thursday there was so terrific a storm that she had to remain indoors.

Dublin, April 16.—The Queen took a long drive yesterday morning through the villages adjacent to the city.

High Church Bells.

New York, April 16.—The Duke of New-castle, who is one of the leaders of the ritualistic movement in England, made an address yesterday before the Men's Guild of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, in the course of which he referred to the attitude of the English archbishops toward the movement as "repellent." He talked about "blatant Protestantism," declared it to be the doctrine of the "real presence," which English ritualists were contending for, and asked the prayers of "American Catholics" in the troublesome times which, he said, were just ahead.

Any breed of fowls can be profitably kept on a dry, sandy or gravelly soil.

There is nothing so fruitful of disease among chickens as damp or unclean quarters.

Fowls should not be killed when they have a full crop, for as soon as they are dead the flesh turns blue and dark immediately over the crop.

Throwing soft feed upon the ground is poor economy. Troughs or smooth boards cost little and are not only much cleaner, but avoid waste of feed.

Young chickens will eat wheat when 2 weeks old, and as it is one of the very best grains that can be given for growth, it is quite an item to feed them liberally with it.

In mating always endeavor to use active, vigorous cocks. Do not select the largest and heaviest. Sacrifice points for vigor. Mate 1-year-old cocks with 2-year-old hens.

The best turkeys for breeding are those 2 years old. If yearling stock be used, the earliest hatched males and females should be selected. It is of no advantage to hatch them too early.

BITS FROM SHELDON.

Gifts that involve no sacrifice return neither happiness nor pleasure.

Where the body is wrung with pain, where it is filled with disease, one cannot be happy.

Doctors head the list of suicides, because they see the ill side of life—the physical side.

We here in America seem to have evolved in the course of our fast living a disease that once was not known—nervous prostration.

It is always very hard to tell which of these two is the more miserable man on earth—the discontented rich or the friendless beggar.

The little child who buys tin toys for a cent in the stores gets more pleasure out of giving them to some other little child than the rich man who ostentatiously gives presents worth thousands of dollars.—Rev. Charles M. Sheldon.

THE ART OF WAR.

For the first time in the history of the British army there is actually a desire among officers that commissions should be given men who have served in the ranks.

The mounted police of Cape Colony are picked men, used to fighting and proud of the high reputation of their corps. The force consists of 2,000 enlisted men and 68 officers.

Twelve pounds only is the weight of the new automatic machine gun under experiment in the United States army. It fires 40 shots a minute and can be carried by one man.

Russia is probably the only country that could raise a regiment composed entirely of generals, who number 1,248. They receive in salaries an aggregate of 7,000,000 rubles a year.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

In escaping from a fire creep or crawl along the room with your face close to the floor.

To fasten labels to tin canisters add one teaspoonful of brown sugar to one quart of paste.

Washing bronze chandeliers removes the bronze. Dust with a feather brush and a soft cloth.

When sewing at night, something white should be thrown over the table beneath the light to relieve the eyes.

Articles of old furniture are sometimes made to appear new by washing them with lime-water and then applying a coat of oil.

THE COOKBOOK.

Always scald rhubarb before cooking it, for it then requires much less sugar, and yet loses none of its flavor.

A new idea is to put the flavoring of cake, puddings, sauces, etc., with the butter. The butter holds the flavor better than any other medium.

Cold steak may be acceptably served as a left over by passing it through the meat chopper and arranging it neatly on a platter, garnished with parsley or water cream.

CHICAGO CUTLETS.

The indications are that things have come to the pass when Chicago will have to go out and get things like conventions.—Omaha World-Herald.

The fact that Chicago women have to carry arms to protect themselves from thugs ought to act as a check to the vanity of the inhabitants.—New York Sun.

Chicago has had no prairie fires in its new years this winter, but shooting the rapids of the Chicago river is sufficient excitement for the season.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Persian priest is trying to introduce sun worship in Chicago. As the sun is an unfamiliar object to most Chicagoans, it is doubtless regarded with reverence, and the gentleman from Persia may find a fruitful field in the dark city if he works it right.—Minneapolis Times.

Chicago is getting good. A large number of druggists have signed an agreement to close their places of business on Sunday. Well, there is need of reform in a town where building operations and other work of that character used to be carried on on Sunday.—Cleveland Leader.

Short Stories of the Day

TWO APRIL FOOLS

BY ELEANOR HOLLAND.

"It looks," said Hally, as she tied up a roll of paper with a jerk of decision that set the bow by the ears, "it looks like flying in the face of Providence or some one's grandmother or some other dreadful thing to take a new resolution on April 1. But I'll do it. It will be a kind of justice, a fitting farewell to all my foolishness, and perhaps," she added, with a thoughtful little smile, "a fitting beginning for my future foolishness."

All that day she had worked, burning manuscript, tearing up half-finished sketches, turning out drawers of keepsakes, and ruthlessly destroying notebooks. All this time she was living over the dreams that were dreamed when those things had a meaning. They had no meaning now and she had come to the decision that life to her had none either.

All these years she had been wading about in deep water in search of a career. She had been brought up with the idea that there was a great one waiting for her somewhere, that if she developed her numerous talents and left nothing undone that should be done, why—she would come—that was all, and she would be the famous woman her family and friends believed it inevitable she should be.

"I might have known," she said, holding up a bedraggled gauze gown in which she had acted in "The Honey-moon," "that such a lack of all trades as myself could never be a master of any particular thing. Dear me! how pretty this was and what a happy night it was when I wore it. Everyone said, 'You'll miss your calling if you don't go on the stage,' and I believed them. Well—I'll keep that. It won't hurt to have just one trophy of my amateur laurels, but that's the only one. I'll not have anything else around me to remind me of the dismal past."

So, with a tender little pat, she put the row things aside. Of course, it wasn't because dear, stupid old Tom had admitted her in it that it was saved from the relentless fate which was befalling the rest of her former treasures. Nor was it because she had kept it on when the play was over and had worn it home that night, and Tom had told her how dearly he loved her and she let him hold her in those big strong arms of his for just one little minute, while she laid her head on his shoulder and told him of course she idolized him. Since then Tom had proposed with praiseworthy regularity once a fortnight and Hally always said, "To be sure, I love you." But the career she wanted and must have loomed up between them. There were poems. She dragged them into the garish light of day and relentlessly consigned them to the grate, which was becoming quite congested through being made the altar on which so many sacrifices were burnt. "Aspirations," "Longings," "My Heart," and all the rest were reduced to ashes. Not one was spared and if a protesting tear or two was shed—well, "there would have been no rainbow had the heart no tears," she told herself.

But it was cold comfort and in time she almost wished she had left the whole thing for some one to do for her after she was dead. She had finished her work of destruction just as daylight was slipping into twilight, and after poking up a more comfortable blaze on the altar, which now came more resolved itself into a common everyday grate, she took some cushions from the couch, and throwing herself down on the hearthrug gave up to the good cry that the occasion seemed to demand. Thus her sacrifices were watered with a quantity of tears, one last good-bye said to that career and she had just grasped the future firmly by the horns when her mother entered the room.

Poor little visionary mother! Her mistakes were many, but her intentions were of the best and she had always economized that her daughter should have money to "prepare" herself for a variety of careers ranging from "journalism" to "domestic economy," which had been the last one tried and which, while Helen had not carried it far enough to have it being her in anything—none of the careers had ever been carried far enough for that—seemed to be the best suited to those elusive talents of hers. Perhaps "knack," that indefinable New England name for an idea which means making everyone about you comfortable and happy, was what she really possessed. That was what Tom thought, and Tom, although he showed none of the earmarks of true greatness and whose conversation did not consist of a meteoric display of bon mots, still had a way, now and then, of coming out with the right name for the things and driving things to the point.

"My dear," said the plaintive voice of her dotting parent, "what is the matter? Thomas Mason is downstairs and wants to see you."

"Oh, mamma, I can't see Tom or anyone else to-night. Just look at me!" And indeed this universal genius did not appear just as one might wish when the eyes of the world are upon one. Her hair, from having buried her head in the pillows whereon many tears were shed, were somewhat out of curl; in fact, it was in stringlets. Her eyes were red and her face wore that swollen and bandaged appearance consequent upon the enjoyment of the luxury and woe.

"Well, Helen, what am I to tell him? I said that you were at home, you know."

"Oh, I'll go down. It's only Tom. And she got herself up from the rug with a sigh, bathed her red eyes and smoothing the tousled hair a little, went down to the parlor. "I came to say good-bye, Hally," said he, looking at her with a faithful, loving eyes of a big Newfoundland dog. "I can't stand it, you see, to hang around here and go on loving you like I do when you merely think of me as a brother, and I've made up my mind to go west and try to get interested in something—not to forget you, however, for I never can do that—but I don't want for me to remain here just to meet up with what crumbs of affection you can spare for me. I've got to be somebody, you know, and while I'll never be as great as you will be, I'm going to do the best I can, and when you are a noted woman and parties and receptions are made for you, and the people crowd around to meet you and go away feeling elated—that is if the celebrated authoress, or whatever you are to become, takes any particular notice of them, I want you to remember that not one of them loves you as Tom does."

The candidate for the world's bauble of praise and hollow homage was nervously tracing the pattern of the carpet with the toe of her little red slipper. "Just you yourself, Hally, without any pretence of notice or reception, that is all I have asked for or do care for."

That career! He, too, had been taking resolutions on April 1!

The lady who was destined to be lionized at future functions and to roar mildly for the edification of the same, sank weakly down and melted into tears again, a sort of supplementary weep. "Good-bye, Hally," said he, holding out his two big hands. "Good-bye. I wish you all kinds of success in your career, and—remember that if you ever need a friend—in that one minute she learned her mind, and looking down at the hands stretched out to her, as though to be filled, it came to her that her career was to make Tom happy—it had taken her all this time to find out what he could have told her long ago, but she knew it now, and with a change from sorrow to joy that put to shame her efforts in that direction on the mimic stage she flashed on poor, bewildered Tom from out her tears a smile so wickedly bright that for one awful moment the thought struck him that she was laughing at him!

"April fool! You dear, old, foolish April fool! You are an April fool and I'm an April fool, and that career is the biggest April fool of all, for it's fooled both of us all this time, and now there isn't any career worth as much as you are, and I wouldn't have one if there was. I don't want anything but you, Tom."

In one household there is no holiday that is so religiously kept as is All Fool's day, or that is celebrated with so much pomp and circumstances, for it is the anniversary of the resolution of a noted Miss Somebody from Somewhere to give up her career and to come and dwell, like an angel among men.

Will be at Oriental Hotel Peterborough on Saturday April 21.

THE CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE (Correspondents in Great Britain—THE BANK OF SCOTLAND.)

THE COMPANY - is incorporated under the most stringent laws (Specially Limited Liability) of B. C., and its Charter was granted July, 1899.

owns some 130 acres of valuable mineral lands on the "Horne Ledge" at the head of the Lardeau River.

has three (3) distinct and well-defined Lodes, with nearly a mile in length of ore body.

THE COMPANY has built its own roads to Circle City mine, buildings, quarters for 30 to 35 men, blacksmith's shop, forge, powder houses, etc.

has surveyed its "Rob Roy" and "Highland Chief," which are now ready for Crown granting.

has a magnificent Water Power on Galena Creek crossing its own property.

THE COMPANY has some 230 feet of tunnel work done with ore showings in 3 different places through the workings, and have lately run into the Gray Copper, which is the mineral that carries such immense values in silver.

has every prospect of being able to pay big Dividends within a reasonable time, and hope to be able to quit selling stock soon.

The natural question arises: "Why, if there is all this, do you have to offer stock for sale?" We answer that if you knew there was a pot of Gold in your garden which you could get by digging and you hadn't a shovel and no money to buy one with, you'd have to raise money! That's where we are! We have to get at the pot of Gold, and then—those who have stock will be fortunate, and those who haven't will wish they had. Come, or send in and investigate.

We have already completed over 100 feet development work, 70 feet of which consists of surface work such as cross-outs, shallow shafts, etc. prospecting to decide the best place to sink our main or working shaft. This has been found to be on the "Big 3" or centre claim, and we are now down 30 feet and still pushing the work as fast as four practical miners and dynamite can possibly accomplish. Remember, we have three full claims, to wit: "Big 3," "Victor" and "Will of the Wisp," situated on Iron Mountain in the Burke mining district, Ferry county, Washington, six miles southeast of the famous Republic mine, and that there is a big ledge of porphyritic quartz cropping all the three claims lengthwise from north to south and cropping for over 2,700 feet, and surface assays furnished $6 to $9 in free gold.

Our manager writes us, under date of March 1, 1900, that at a depth of 30 feet in our proposed main shaft he is working in 4 feet of fine quartz and it is widening as depth is acquired. He also says: "I am confident that a 'shaft' 100 feet deep will prove this property nearly as good as, if not equal to any of the great mines of the Republic 'Camp' at the same stage of development. Our latest assay from a depth of about 15 feet (main shaft) gave 6.53, 'a better showing than the Republic had at the same depth.'

The company now offer 50,000 shares of treasury stock (NON-ASSESSABLE) AT THE LOW PRICE OF 1-2 CENTS PER SHARE, in order to raise funds to push the work with additional force.

There are 300,000 shares in the treasury and the above is the first offered for sale. The company being a reliable one, and with such a phenomenal showing on their properties, it should induce immediate investment, so don't delay as the price will positively be raised when this block is sold; every dollar we spend means greater depth to our shaft, wider lead and higher assays. DON'T MISS THIS. ITS A WINNER. Send your orders at once to the secretary.

WHAT ABOUT THE 24TH?

Is Her Majesty's Birthday Again to be Passed by Without Any Demonstration?

The day upon which all loyal Canadians celebrate Her Majesty's birthday once again draws nigh, and yet we have no signs of a celebration in Peterborough becoming to that event. Unless some steps are immediately taken, this "the most flourishing town in Ontario" will once more shine as a "back number" in the way of home celebrations. It is true that any of our citizens wishing to enjoy the 24th can always excuse to Campbellford or Bobcaygeon, where a mammoth demonstration may always be relied upon but it would be far better to have suitable attractions in town, whereby money hitherto spent elsewhere would be put in circulation at home, to the interest of the whole community.

It has been rumored that the officers and band of the 57th Battalion were making a move in this direction; it is to be hoped that such is the case for anything on military lines would be sure to meet with success in these days of martial enthusiasm. Then the Sons of Edward Society might be found ready and willing to co-operate in any measures calculated to do honor to that beloved Queen who has "so long reigned over us, happy, victorious and glorious."

Peterborough Machinery.

Peterborough Machinery—A 15-ton carload of machinery arrived at the Falls from the Canadian General Electric Co.'s works, Peterborough, last Saturday afternoon. Preparations for unloading it were made on Monday, and on Tuesday the first article—the foundation of what is called an "exciter"—was carefully lowered down an inclined plane to the floor of the power-house, and shifted by means of crow-bars to the position it was to occupy. As far as we could learn, the car containing the exciter and part of a gigantic motor, the rest of which was to arrive by the time the men would be ready for it. There is room in the house for two motors, only one of which will be put in at present but one exciter will do for both of them. It is expected that the first consignment of electricity will be sent to Lindsay by about the 1st of May.

A Hardware Dog.

Mr. Snowden, the genial proprietor of the Snowden House is a believer in keeping everything scrupulously clean and neat. He therefore has no love for a man that brings a dog into the hotel just after the house has undergone a thorough spring cleaning.

Yesterday a well known citizen strutted into the hotel. At his heels trotted or rather slunk a fairly good-looking fox terrier. It was plain that the dog knew he had no business there. Mr. Snowden touched the man on the arm. "Beg pardon, sir," said he, "you must not bring the dog in here."

"Dog, dog," exclaimed the man, "dem 'b' dog. I told him to stay out, and he made as if to kick the dog, which started out of the place."

"That's my hardware dog," said the man. "Hardware dog," said Mr. Snowden. "What name; why do you call him that?"

"Why? why, every time I kick at him he makes a bolt for the door," and he quietly headed for the back parlor, while Mr. Snowden set 'em up without a murmur.

Mr. Jacob Rose Dead.

The many friends in Peterborough of Mr. Jacob Rose, who took charge of the up-town ticket agency during Mr. Boddy's illness, will regret to hear of the death of his father, Mr. Jacob Rose, manager of the W. Rose Carriage Co., Toronto, which said event occurred very suddenly at his late residence, Toronto, on Sunday morning last. Mr. Rose was taken ill about six weeks ago with a cold, but his condition never gave any cause for alarm. He had far improved that the physician said he could get up on Sunday, and in another week's time he could return to his duties. About ten minutes before his death Mr. Rose got up and walked to the bathroom. In a few minutes he returned to bed and was suddenly taken with hemorrhage of the lungs. Mr. Rose was 67 years of age, and for over 40 years has been in the carriage business. He started business with a single express wagon, and within a few months had added several more to his stock. His business continued to grow until now it is the largest of its kind in Toronto. About a year ago Mr. Rose transferred the business to his son, William, who is at present the head of the firm. Deceased was a member of the Masonic order, A.O.U.W. and formerly belonged to the Knights of Pythias. Besides a widow, he leaves one daughter, Miss Mattie Rose, and seven sons, William, of the W. Rose Carriage Co.; John, traveling passenger agent of the C.P.R.; George, traveler in Chicago; Frederick, of the Canadian General Electric Co.; Robert, Samuel and Herbert. The funeral will take place to-day at 2.30 p.m. to St. James' Cemetery and will be private.

KILLED BY LUMBER.

Isaac Hoskin, of Auburn, is Accidentally Killed on Saturday.

Mr. Isaac Hoskin, just north of East Nicholls park in Ashburnham, was killed in an accident at White lake in North Dumfries on Saturday last.

It appears that Mr. Hoskin was engaged in running a saw mill there. He and a number of his men were endeavoring to move a large pile of lumber, a few feet in front of which was a smaller pile. The men were standing in the space between the two. The larger pile began to slip forward towards the other and all the men but Mr. Hoskin jumped and cried to him to do the same. He was lame and perhaps it was on this account that he was unable to get out of danger. At any rate he was just turning away when the falling pile struck him, pinning him down to the smaller pile.

In a very few moments his friends had removed the weight and he was brought out, but he only breathed a few breaths before expiring. His skull was crushed in on one side, causing death, which was almost instantaneous.

The accident happened at 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon. The remains were brought to town, arriving here at 10 at night.

The deceased was a single man, 52 years of age. He was brought up in town and was well known here. The friends will have the sympathy of all in the sad accident.

The funeral will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

A Morning Blaze.

What threatened to be a serious fire broke out shortly before one o'clock this morning in a stable in the rear of Dr. Robinson's livery establishment on Charlotte street. The brigade, however, were promptly on hand as usual, and soon had two streams directed on the blaze. The skating rink was in great danger and the shingles caught several times. A score of willing hands assisted Dr. Robinson in removing the horses, vehicles, etc., but this precaution turned out to be unnecessary, as the fire was confined to its starting place.

The Daisy, Capt. C. W. Calcutt, is being put in shape for the season's business.

The steamer Dawn, which is owned by Mr. J. A. Ellis, of Fenelon Falls, is being overhauled.

Mr. Burgoyne, of Fenelon Falls, is having a boat built in Bobcaygeon for the route between Cobocook and Lindsay. It will have a speed of 13 miles per hour.

The Majestic is being put in good shape, with prospects of a busy season.

The Star and Heaver will be on duty on the lower waters in a few days. It is expected the Heaver will make its first trip on Saturday.

Capt. Chas. Calcutt is generally the first to run the Otonabee, and this year will hardly be an exception, as he is ready to start as soon as the ice is out.

A Curious Lake.

A curious phenomenon is that metal never rusts in the waters of Lake Titicaca. You can throw in a chain or an anchor or any article of ordinary iron and let it lie for weeks, and when you haul it up it will be as clean and bright as when it came from the foundry. And what is stranger still, rust that has been formed upon metallic objects elsewhere will peel off when immersed in its waters. This is frequently noticed by railway and steamship men. Rusty car wheels and rails and even machinery can be brightened by soaking them in the waters of Lake Titicaca.—Chicago Record.

Just where the large crowds that suddenly fill the galleries of the senate and house when a notable speech is being made come from is a puzzle. They spring up, however, and as strangely disappear into nothingness.

Congratulations.

"I am proud to say that I did not spend a dollar to secure my election." "I congratulate you," answered Senator Burghum. "You got off cheap. But you took a terrible risk."—Washington Star.

BULLER AND WARREN CENSURED BY ROBERTS

War Office Publishes a Despatch Which Causes Great Consternation.

BULLER AND WARREN MAY ASK TO BE RELIEVED.

The Revelation of Their Incapacity Must Tend to Undermine the Confidence of Troops Under Their Command.

Wepener Still Surrounded.

London, April 17, 11.10 p.m. The War Office has received the following from Lord Roberts, dated Bloemfontein, Tuesday, April 17:—"Our force at Wepener is still surrounded, but it is reported that the enemy are attacking in a very half-hearted manner and are anxious about their communications, hearing that forces are approaching Wepener from five different directions, one under Gen. Rundle, via Reddersburg, and another under Gen. Brabant with General Hart's brigade in support via Rouxville. In the re-occupation of Rouxville on April 15, the few Boers there retired and General Brabant made some important arrests. Violent storms of rain have somewhat interfered with the march of the columns, but it is hoped they will soon be able to make their presence more decidedly felt. General Buller reports from Kenhardt April 14, that 200 Transvaalers made a determined attack the previous day on Dopsport, held by a part of Orpen's Horse. Our losses were two killed and one wounded. The enemy's losses must have been heavy, as they applied to us for doctors and an ambulance."

London, April 18, 4 a.m. The Government has chosen this as the moment to publish a despatch from Lord Roberts pronouncing censure upon Sir Redvers Buller and Sir Charles Warren, two of his most important subordinate commanders. This despatch, written on February 13, has been in the hands of the War Office for five weeks. Just why it is published now, in the middle of the campaign, is not understood, unless it is expected that Gen. Buller and Gen. Warren will ask to be relieved of their commands. The revelation of their incapacity must tend to undermine the confidence of the troops in their leadership. Lord Roberts' despatch with the enclosures is the great feature of the London press this morning. In a long editorial the Daily News speaks of the somewhat appalling language of the despatch and then goes on to say:—"Upon the whole these despatches are disquieting and disheartening in no ordinary degree. Following immediately upon the recall of General Gatacre, they will create a widespread feeling of uneasiness and anxiety."

London, April 18. Lord Roberts' long wait and the Boer activity have seriously disturbed public equanimity. He is still three hundred miles from Pretoria. No one doubts the ultimate success of British arms, but besides the British army that crushes the Boer armies, an army of occupation will have to be installed. From various sources come news that more men, already provided for, will have to be sent out.

PORTUGAL READY TO PAY.

The Delagoa Bay Arbitration Award Can Be Realized. Washington, April 17.—It has been reported to the Department of State that the Portuguese Government had made all necessary arrangements for the payment of the judgement, amounting to almost $5,000,000, on the award of the Delagoa Bay arbitration. The money can be realized upon the Northern and Eastern Railroad bonds, and the Lorenzo Marquez Railroad will remain in the possession of Portugal.

RIFFI IS WELL AGAIN.

Soldier of the Continent on His Way to the Front.

London, Ont., April 16.—The following has been received from Sgt. George Riffi, of this city, who is with the first Canadian contingent and was wounded in the engagement at Passchendaele:—"I leave for Neuve Chapelle tomorrow. Am feeling fine and fit for duty again. Will join the regiment at Bloemfontein as soon as the road is open."

CRONJE'S FLAG IN ENGLAND.

People of Lytham, in Lancashire, Have a Glance at It. London, April 17.—The people of Lytham, in Lancashire, were extremely favored recently by a visit at Cronje's flag, secured at the time of his surrender. It appears that Capt. Kerley, of the 18th Lancers, was the first to order that flag. He made a dash,

FRENCH NEARLY NABBED OOM PAUL.

The British General Almost Caught Kruger When a Clever Piece of Boer Strategy Saved the President.

London, April 17.—Gen. French, in trying to intercept the main body of Boers in their retreat at Poplar Grove, was fooled by a few riflemen. A Daily News correspondent describes how this came about:—"About 6,000 yards from the square kopje at Dreifontein a 3-inch Creusot and a Vickers-Maxim opened fire on our advance. A great many shells were thrown. We, however, suffered no loss, and 'T' Battery opened in an attempt to silence these guns, whose chance of escape seemed very slender. Fifty are discovered."

"But here an exciting and unlooked-for change occurred. French, once more realizing that extension on his right was the thing to effect, gave orders to that end, and, riding himself to make his dispositions, suddenly discovered on a ridge before him a party of about fifty Boer sharpshooters, who not only drove off the general and his staff, but forced the retirement of the whole right, carrying a squadron of Household with two Maxims, dismounted infantry with a Maxim, and a squadron of Remington's Guides posted in broken ground on our right and under sharp fire from the kopje we had neglected to seize."

"'T' Battery at first regarded a target of forty or fifty Boers as beneath contempt, and then finding what an effective fire they could direct, and misunderstanding French's orders to them to shell the ridge, the battery limbered up to retire. French and staff had luckily escaped without injury, except a horse shot. He himself dashed down ahead of the battery and corrected the error, but our advance was stopped for an hour and twenty minutes; we suffered nearly fifty casualties, and, more important than all, the enemy were moving off while we were held and got off his guns and stores. A most gallant stand. Most Brilliantly Executed."

"We had the chagrin of watching from the disputed ridge the distant retirement of the Boer convoy. Not till next day did we learn that President Kruger had been present at the battle, and that we might even have captured him and brought the war to a sudden end but for the ill-starred contraction of our right wing, which in dealing with an enemy of such mobility as the Boers was on much too short a radius, and which had no justification in any effort on the part of the enemy to break through our centre, who, on the contrary, throughout the day consistently rallied on his left, actually outflanking our contracted right between 9 and 10 a.m., and again at 1 p.m."

ADMIRAL DEWEY'S ALLEGED MOTIVE.

He Only Became a Candidate Because He Was Robbed by Mr. McKinley.

Chicago, April 17.—The Washington correspondent of the Times-Herald sends the following:—"The Dewey mystery is explained at last. The real reason for the Admiral's sudden announcement that he is a Presidential candidate and his bitter feeling toward President McKinley are cleared up by a discovery which was made to-day. The Admiral himself furnished the clue to the explanation by complaining to his friends that President McKinley had unjustly deprived him of $10,000. In the Admiral's opinion the President had 'robbed' him."

"The basis for this charge is the fact that President McKinley has been unable to pay Admiral Dewey the same compensation as that received by the civilian members of the late Philippine Commission, to wit, $10,000. The President wanted to pay this sum to the Admiral, but the law would not permit. 'About a month ago Admiral Dewey asked President McKinley about compensation for his services as a member of the Philippine Commission. The President told him he wanted to pay him the same sum as the civilian members were to receive. Admiral Dewey then volunteered to the President the statement that in his opinion there was but one candidate for the Presidency, Mr. McKinley. 'You have earned a re-election and the people will give it to you,' the Admiral said. He thanked the President for all past kindnesses. A few days later he started on his tour south."

"When Dewey returned the first thing he heard at the Navy Office was that the law would not permit him to draw the $10,000. The Admiral lost his temper. He swore at the President. He declared he would have vengeance for his wrongs, and a day or two later the people of the country heard of his Presidential announcement."

"From that day to this the Admiral has been complaining of McKinley and the Administration, and through his fault-finding the first information concerning the matter leaked out."

RAISED THE SIEGE AND THEN FLED.

Why Have Boers Run Away From Wepener? Masterly Inactivity of British.

London, April 17.—The investment of Wepener is at an end. Telegrams from Bloemfontein announce that the Boer commandos have raised the siege, but the immediate cause of their flight is not yet clear, nor is the direction of their retreat by any means certain. The Standard believes that they are hugging the Basutoland border, and will probably pass east of Ladybrand, where, on the other hand, the Times telegram mentions that they are moving in a southerly direction, and the Telegraph speaks of a retirement both north and south.

There is no news as to the actual state of affairs at Bloemfontein, but Bennett Burleigh, in a despatch to the Telegraph, makes the significant statement that a rainstorm which continued throughout yesterday will delay Lord Roberts' movements for two days.

Editorially, the Times says:—"On the whole it would seem that the Boer raid upon the southern portion of the Free State has now spent its force. The Boer commandos undoubtedly had a pleasant time, and undoubtedly made things very unpleasant for all who showed undue alacrity in accepting the proclamations of Lord Roberts. But their raid as a whole has been a failure. The force of their invasion is spent, and our cordon is nowhere broken. They have made no impression upon our Orange River line. The points of the railway are held in strength."

Montgomery, Ala., April 17.—The State Supreme Court here decided yesterday in a case in a manner that upheld a street railroad company in enforcing a rule that whites and negroes should occupy separate portions of a car set apart for the purpose.

MASTERLY INACTIVITY OF THE BRITISH ARMY

Roberts Remains at Bloemfontein as Immobile as the Pyramids.

THE CZAR OF RUSSIA MAY MAKE A PROTEST.

His Majesty is Very Jealous of Britain's Privileges at Beira—Enraged Fever Claims Another Victim From Members of First Canadian Contingent.

London, April 17.—Still the silence continues. Roberts at Bloemfontein remains as immobile as the pyramids, as speechless as the Sphinx. Though correspondents drop mysterious hints about an imminent movement, there is nothing official to indicate that such movement is at hand, except the law of probabilities. Be this as it may, General Roberts has successfully resisted the attempt of the enemy to create a diversion and draw him from his object to the north. The retreat of the enemy from Wepener is the first step towards the clearance of the British lines of communication. Before long the Boers will have again disappeared from the scene, and the strategy of the British Commander-in-Chief emerges then within converging lines of troops, which does not appear unlikely. People are now comparing Roberts to Napoleon, basing their comparison upon the apparent indifference with which the former has allowed small advantages to the enemy to pass unchallenged, and upon the ostensible neglect of Mafeking. One military expert, speaking of the strategy of the old maharajah, says:—"Every student of the strategy and tactics of Napoleon is aware of the ruthless readiness of that supreme genius to fling to the enemy a hundred collateral advantages in order that he might more surely accomplish his main object. The straightforward determination of Lord Roberts, as well as his dash and insight, is somewhat Napoleonic. He does not turn aside from his real purpose to strike any side blow. Mafeking, no doubt, sorely against his sympathy, is left to take care of itself and no real effort is made to cut off the retreat of the Boers from northern Cape Colony. Roberts' business is to get to Pretoria and to put an end to the war at the earliest possible moment, and from this business, no side issues, however painful, will turn him. It should be noticed as justifying Lord Roberts' strategy while it may involve frequent small losses in various quarters of the seat of war, it ensures great gains. The Boers are very skilful in cutting off scattered parties of British soldiers and in snatching up exposed guns, but they have never driven to earth a whole army or any considerable portion of an army. Roberts has done this already, and the public must wait in patience, confident that when the right moment comes he will do it again."

London, April 17.—The following letter has been received in Chester from Private Frank Murphy, of the Mounted Infantry detachment of the Cheshire Regiment now with General French:—"I have been in three engagements in the short time I have been here. We left the regiment at Orange river and have not been there since. We were surprised at Jacobabad, and I shall never forget the day if I live to be one hundred. We were at a real camp when news came that about 100 Boers had been seen feeling. We marched up at once and followed them about three miles. All at once we found our selves right in the face of their position, and instead of 100 Boers, there were thousands, and before we knew where we were bullets came like rain. The horse I was riding was shot dead under me. We reined, and I saw one of the Cornwalls share one horse, so you can see I had a narrow escape. 'God knows, we are half starved, living on a biscuit and a half a day, and the meat you get (when you get any) is half raw. I have not had any clothes off for more than a month. You can imagine how things are when I tell you I have washed myself twice in three weeks. With the exception of our own engagements, you in England know more about the war than we do."

FRANCE MAKES EXPERIMENTS.

Soldiers are Embarked on Transports in Quick Time. London, April 17.—The Daily Chronicle's Paris correspondent wires—Experiments in the quick embarkation of troops, which began on Tuesday at Marseilles, are not without significance at the present time, their object being to familiarize the military authorities with the various types of vessel employed in the French merchant marine. Steamers of every description are being utilized. Five hundred and ten men of the Fourteenth Infantry Regiment were put on board in eight minutes, and 150 in two minutes.

RAILWAY TO APSLEY.

The C. P. R. Has Promised to Build a Line From Norwood.

The C.P.R. has decided to build a railway from Norwood northward to Monckey Lake, by way of Warsaw. Its present terminus will be Apsley, but the road will eventually be continued to Oso Hill, when it will form a junction with the B. & N. Railway.

The C.P.R. has, however, made it conditional that the promoters obtain government aid, which will not, it is said, be a difficult matter. Steps are being taken to form a chartered company, when subsidies will be asked from the Ontario Legislature and Dominion parliament.

With a railway from Lindsay to Bobcaygeon on the west, and another from Norwood to Apsley on the east, cutting away all the east and north, Peterborough's future is anything but rosy.

OBITUARY.

Our readers will deeply sympathize with Col. J. Z. and Mrs. Rogers, in the death of their third son, Keith Archibald, which took place at the family residence, Ashburnham, yesterday. The deceased had always been delicate and his early demise was not unlooked for. The funeral will leave the family residence to-morrow, Thursday, at 2 p.m., for the Little Lake Cemetery.

BOMBARDMENT RESUMED.

London, April 17.—The Times has a special from Mafeking, dated April 6, as follows:—"Gen. Smyma has returned to his laager, and the bombardment has been resumed by five guns directed against the western defences of the town, but without casualties."

MAFeking WAS EXCITED.

Boer Story of the Recent Flight Was Grossly Exaggerated. London, April 17.—The Times has a despatch from Mafeking, dated April 2, which says—Tremendous excitement has been caused by the presence of Plumer's force at Mafeking. We hear frequently the rattle of rifle fire, the rapping of Maxims and the booming of cannon. These sounds usually cause detachments to leave the enemy's laager, while the townspeople watch the evolution with interest. An attempt was made by Col. Plumer's force on Saturday to reconnoitre from Hamatlambe for the purpose of a demonstration, and in order to discover the position of the Boers. The men of the garrison were warned that a move was contemplated; that 500 mounted men and four guns would be pushed forward and an attack organized on Game Tree fort, while a similar movement was supported by the artillery occupying the brick fields. On Sunday, however, to our consternation, Gen. Smyma informed Col. Baden-Powell that permission was accorded him to secure the dead and wounded, as Col. Plumer had left the field strewn with Englishmen. An ambulance and two wagons were despatched, but the Boers declined to surrender the wounded. The Boer account was grossly exaggerated, as the evidence points to the fact that a patrol was surprised and driven back, leaving the dead and wounded to the discretion of the enemy.

Ten delegates from every state in the Union are present, as is also one from nearly every city, and one for each 5000 inhabitants. Governors of states or territories, members of the United States Congress, and ex-presidents of this congress, are ex-officio delegates with all the privileges of delegates, except those of voting. The territory represented in this congress includes all the states and territories lying west of the Mississippi river, and those portions of Minnesota and Louisiana, which lie east of it. A section embracing 2,000,000 square miles and 20,000,000 intelligent people. The world's greatest agricultural, mineral and stock growing region. The principal objects of the Congress are to encourage the growth and thorough development of each and every state and territory represented; to work in harmony to such national legislation as is calculated to promote the interests of the people of the Trans-Mississippi country; to increase reciprocal trade between these states; to discuss matters of special interest and to decide upon plans which will bring about desired results; to cultivate a better acquaintance between the citizens of the states and territories interested and bring about a hearty and active cooperation between the commercial bodies represented. It is the universal desire of the members of the executive committee, to confine discussions to subjects of general interest and to exclude those which are of either a local or political nature. Any question germane to the objects of the congress may be introduced by any delegate. The subjects for discussion are as follows—Irrigation, Rivers and Harbors, Nicaragua Canal, Pacific Cable Merchant Marine, St. Louis World's Fair, 1903, Trade with the Orient, Consular Service, Statehood, Railroad Transportation, Preservation of Furrows, Beet Root Sugar, Trade with Mexico, Advantages of American Travel, Exports and Imports through Gulf and Pacific ports, Need of home Factories, Good Roads and Drainage. The people of this city are thoroughly alive to the importance of this conference, and every interest was represented at a great mass meeting recently held for the purpose of arranging such reception and entertainment as will be worthy of an organization which stands second in importance only to the National Congress.

BIBLICAL CONGRESS.

Washington, April 18.—A National Biblical Congress under the auspices of the American Society of Religious Education, opened in the Foundry Methodist Episcopal church to-day, and will continue until the 21st. Delegates from nearly every state in the Union are present. The body is composed of all denominations. The programme presents three sessions a day. Forty persons take part in the exercises of the different sections, some of them prominent in their denominations. Fifteen colleges are represented. Dixey, Beatrice Harford, Frank Worthington and Blanche Bates. A novelty will be included in the bill, consisting of an auction sale of paintings contributed by twenty or more prominent artist friends of the dead actor.

HUNT MEETING.

New York, April 18.—The Maryland Steeplechase Association will hold a two days' hunt meeting, to-day and Thursday, at the old Pimlico course. There will be five races each day, half of the lot being for steeplechasers.

Her Majesty in Ireland.

Dublin, April 18.—It is said here that Queen Victoria's private secretary is making enquiries with a view to the purchase of Clondalkin Castle as the Irish royal residence. Clondalkin Castle is a splendid mansion, with a thousand acres of beautiful park, within five miles of Dublin.

The Queen intends to visit Ireland every remaining year of her life. The excitement of the Irish visit has undoubtedly told on the Queen. She has been looking very pale the last few days, but nothing seems to deter her from carrying out her programme of drives. She has gone out several times in an open carriage in the rain, but Thursday there was so terrific a storm that she had to remain indoors.

Dublin, April 18.—The Queen took a long drive yesterday morning through the villages adjacent to the city.

THE MAN WITH THE GAVEL.

How would Hon. Richard P. Leary of Ogem do for a vice presidential candidate?—Washington Post.

The office of vice president of the United States is one of great dignity and importance. To preside over the American senate is itself a work of great responsibility and honor.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The man selected for the second place on a national ticket should be the equal of the man at the head, if, under the prevailing circumstances, it is possible to find two men of equal availability.—Exchange.

General Fred Grant tells one interviewer in the Philippines that he is not a candidate for a vice presidential nomination and is doing nothing to secure it, but that he should like such a nomination. "Just as any other man naturally would."—Philadelphia Ledger.

They Were Surprised.

Manila, April 16.—Captain Dodd, with a squadron of the Third cavalry, recently surrendered a village in Benguet province, and surprised two hundred insurgents living in barracks, apparently a recruiting center for the province. The enemy lost 53 men killed. Our troops also captured 44 men and burned the village. One American was wounded.

CURTAIN RAISERS.

Marie Tempest denies the report that she intends to sing in the music halls in London.

Charles Frohman is having a play, based on Peg Woffington, written for Maude Adams.

This thing grows. Fay Templeton mimics Fougere, and Fougere mimics Fay Templeton's mimicry of her.

Wilson Barrett's "Sign of the Cross" has been translated into Polish and has made quite a success in Warsaw.

Mrs. Campbell is to revive some of the Maeterlinck plays in London and produce others never seen there before.

Robert Lorraine, Julie Opp's former husband, who was to have acted with Ada Rehan in England, has gone to South Africa.

Marie Walworth has engaged Payton Gibbs to play Napoleon to her Josephine in her vaudeville sketch, "Napoleon Versus Josephine."

Wilson Barrett has added Robert Hichens in his dramatization of his novel, "The Londoners," and will act in the play in all probability.

Henrik Ibsen's "When the Dead Awake" has been acted in three German cities with success, although without giving the impression that it was likely to enjoy lasting popularity on the stage.

It seems that the new theater in St. Martin's lane, London, will not be owned by Charles Frohman after all, though that energetic American impresario will hold the lease of it and will establish there his London comedy troupe, headed by Seymour Hicks and Ethel Terry.

Exigencies of U. S. Politics

New York, April 16.—According to the Herald to-day Governor Theodore Roosevelt is practically accused of desiring to surrender at Santiago by Col. Alexander S. Bacon, in a pamphlet issued late Sat.

PUZZLED HIS PAP.

Questions That Made the Boy's Father Take a Day Off.

"Going to take the day off, eh?" said the chief of division to the clerk when the latter reported at the office at 9 o'clock and put in a slip for a day's leave. "Nothing the matter, I hope? No sickness at home, is there?"

"No," replied the clerk drearily, leaning heavily on the chief's desk. "No sickness or anything like that. But I've got to put in a day of research. It's this way: That 30-year-old boy of mine sprung a lot of 'em on me when he was going over his lessons after dinner last night that stumped me and put me temporarily out of business. This was one of them:

"Three-eighths of a pole stands in the mud, one-fifth in the water, and the remainder of the pole, 21 feet, is above the water. What is the total length of the pole?"

"Sounds dead easy, doesn't it?" went on the clerk. "Well, it just stood me on my head, that's what it did. Yes, I took my civil service examination over ten years ago, and I've tried earnestly and prayerfully to forget all the digging I had to do to squeeze through that. Then he asked me how old George Washington was when he died, how old the Polish Kosciuszko was when he offered his sword to the Revolutionary commanders, the date of the battle of Bunker Hill, the nature of the Missouri compromise and 10 or 15 little ones like that. I had to extinguish him by telling him that I was reading my paper, but I promised him that I'd give him all the answers tomorrow, Sunday, in time for him to be right on them at school on Monday.

Now, that kid thinks I'm 'it.' He thinks I know it all. He brags to all the other kids in the neighborhood that his dad can give their dad cards and spades and big cassine and beat them to death when it comes to brains with an upper case B. "Well, I want to have him go right on thinking that. I wouldn't lose that young one's exalted opinion of me for a house and lot. It'd be a solar plexus flash for me to have him direct the blighting gaze of suspicion at me. So I'm going up to the library, yank out a bundle of books of reference, get the answers to that list of questions, and tonight I'll spring 'em on the kid in an offhand sort of way, as if I knew 'em all the time, but just didn't have time to give 'em to him. I couldn't stand it to have that kid get on to me; not just yet anyhow. He'll have time to do that when he grows up."—Washington Post.

THE HEIGHT OF POLITENESS.

As Exemplified by an Officer on a British Man-of-war.

This is a story of the height of politeness. It is told by Angus Evan Abbott, the author, and it is, I believe, absolutely true. Mr. Abbott is a Canadian by birth and education, and on first coming to England he was, as most Americans and Canadians are, eager to catch a glimpse of the queen. But as her majesty did not live in his suburbs, Mr. Abbott's wish remained ungratified for some time. However, one day he found himself in Portsmouth and learned that the royal yacht, with the queen and Princess Beatrice aboard, was to cross from the Isle of Wight to Portsmouth.

Hastening down to the landing place, he discovered that there was not the ghost of a chance of catching sight of her majesty on land, so he went to the waterside, hired a small boat and rowed out into the great harbor. Pushing out from the inner port, wherein rode a mighty fleet of battleships and cruisers all aglitter with bunting in honor of the queen, the writer found himself on the broad outer bay, alone except for a dotted line of men-of-war's boats indicating the route to be taken by the queen's yacht.

Pulling in his oars and allowing the boat to float at will, Mr. Abbott got his glasses focused ready for the queen's yacht and put in his time reading a book. All at once he heard a voice sounding as though it came from the clouds. It was gentle, aristocratic of accent and apologetic in diction. It said, "I beg your pardon, but would you mind letting us pass?"

Glancing quickly up, Mr. Abbott beheld the bow of the mighty battleship Minotaur towering over his little rowboat like a precipice, and peering over the brow of the cliff of iron was the calm face of a naval officer. The ship was swinging slowly into harbor and was but a few yards away, coming directly toward the tiny rowboat.

In the words of the novel, "To seize the ears and pull for his life was the work of an instant." When Mr. Abbott was clear of the battleship, the naval officer, not a ghost of a smile on his face, said, "Thank you very much," and the ship crept past. Mr. Abbott claims that naval officer to be the politest man living.—London Cor. Saturday Evening Post.

SCRAPS OF SCIENCE.

Water boils and vaporizes at 212 degrees F. above zero, while liquid air boils and vaporizes at 312 degrees below zero.

It is estimated that in the streets of an average city there are about 3,000 bacteria to the cubic yard of air and in a hospital ward or where there is sickness as many as 80,000.

It has been observed that artesian wells have a daily period of ebb and flow as well as the ocean tides, only the process is reversed. The time of greatest flow of an artesian well is the period of low tide in the ocean.

For Williams and Didn't Know It.

"John," said the wife, "who air you fer in the race for sheriff?"

"I'm fer Tompkins just as last."

"No, John, you ain't fer Tompkins; you're fer Williams."

"I said Tompkins," replied John.

"I know you did, John. But, all the same, you're fer Williams!"

Then he made a grab for his hat and was about to make for the door when she locked it and, standing against it, said:

"Don't let us fuss over this matter, John. Be reasonable now an own up that you're fer Williams."

He fumbled with his hat and kicked the fire.

"Molly," he said, "if you ain't as good as a mind reader I'll give up! Course I'm fer Williams just as last! Durn him!"

IRON MOUNTAIN GOLD MINING CO.

GEN. A. P. CURRY, President. W. D. VINCENT, Treasurer, Cashier Old Nat Bank. WILLIS H. MERRIAM, Sec. and Att'y. Capital $50,000. One Million Shares, par value 5c per share. FULLY PAID AND NON-ASSESSABLE

Our manager writes us, under date of March 1, 1900, that at a depth of 30 feet in our proposed main shaft he is working in 4 feet of fine quartz and it is widening as depth is acquired. He also says: "I am confident that a shaft 100 feet deep will prove this property nearly as good as, if not equal to any of the great mines of the Republic." Camp at the same stage of development. Our latest assay from a depth of about 15 feet (main shaft) gave $6.53, "a better showing than the Republic had at the same depth."

The company now offers 50,000 shares of treasury stock (NON-ASSESSABLE) AT THE LOW PRICE OF 1-2 CENTS PER SHARE, in order to raise funds to push the work with additional force.

There are 300,000 shares in the treasury and the above is the first offering for sale. The company being a reliable one, and with such a phenomenal showing on their properties, it should induce immediate investment, so don't delay as the price will positively be raised when this block is sold; every dollar we spend means greater depth to our shaft, wider lead and higher assays. DON'T MISS THIS. IT'S A WINNER. Send your orders at once to the secretary.

A Big Sale of Republic Stocks

THE FAIRFAX CO. OF REPUBLIC, J. J. Brown, Pres., Willie Mearns, Treas., after securing the Jim Hill claim adjoining it on the north, sampled the ledge and W. H. Stowell reports on this cropping $16.89 in gold, immediate, upon the result becoming known in Republic, a Mining Dept. through our agent there, Russ Angel, negotiated the purchase of $1,000 worth of Treasury stock, the company has authorized me to place a small amount of this stock at $1.00. ## GLIMPSES OF SOUTH AFRICA.

Peace and in War—A Splendid Lot of Views.

Southern Africa, that enormous expanse of tropically verdant territory extending from the Zambesi River to the Cape of Good Hope, has for a century or more lain dormant to the eyes of the civilized world. Only within the past two decades has public attention been drawn to the wonderful natural resources and mineral wealth of this wild and rugged land, and yet, within this period, marvellous creation of brilliant modern cities have supplanted the desert lands and haunts of savage tribes. The steady march of civilization, the all-pervading ambition to accumulate the wealth of diamonds and gold that lay beneath the crust of this beautiful land, each has borne its part in the metamorphosis and led to the world the wonderful possibilities of that "Dark Continent" for the energy and enterprise that the 20th century will bring to light.

In no other country of the world has progress been marked with such adversity and strife as Africa. From the time the early Dutch settlers landed in the Cape Colony up to the present, there has existed almost a constant state of warfare; the natives disputing the advance of the Dutch and they in turn resenting the inroads of civilization. In spite of this, so strenuous were the efforts of the colonists in their determination to turn to account the beauties and resources of the land of their adoption, that to-day they enjoy the fruits of their enterprise in a paradise of tropical vegetation, a salubrious climate and surrounded by the highest advantages of intellectuality and luxuries of civilization.

Cape town is the metropolis and seat of government of the Cape Colony. Its historical past and present is firmly linked in the traditions of the early Dutch and the Huguenots. True, the old forts and buildings of distinctly Dutch architecture still remain, but nestled in South Africa and the progress of the war, and so eager to improve their lot, that they have been doing the demand for a Pictorial History of the Cape Colony has been under-taken upon a scale of grandeur, fidelity and completeness never before thought of in the annals of book publishing.

In order that the work might be absolutely reliable and thorough in its character, the publishers have contracted for its authorship with Mr. Wynne Flemming, an Afrikaner whose authority upon South African matters is world-wide acknowledged. This gentleman—born in the Cape Colony, having traveled over nearly every inch of the country south of the Zambesi River and lived in South Africa for nearly thirty years, with an extensive newspaper experience, and a knowledge of the language, has been the author of many interesting sketches of South African life and scenery, formerly connected with the consular service at Port Elizabeth, whose comments on the war have been so favorably received by the American press, and whose magnificent collection of photographs will appear in this work—will present South Africa as it is to-day, with views of everything of public interest, including most of the important scenes of battle and a graphically illustrated description of each stage in the progress of the war. Port Elizabeth is the Liverpool of South Africa. It is a great commercial centre, coupled with some of the largest shipping interests in the world; a city of the most modern type, essentially English in character, and possessing some of the largest and finest buildings in the world. Natal is the beautiful, tropical Garden Colony. Its luxuriant vegetation and glorious climate, its wide avenue of trees and fine buildings, the native South Africans are the picture of contentment of the Orientals lend an air of peace and tranquility, while the marks of civilization and progress are in evidence at every turn.

Johannesburg, the Golden, with its fine architectural creations, public institutions and parks, possesses many attractions that easily place it as the foremost city of South Africa. Its great industry, mining, the apparently inexhaustible veins of gold-bearing quartz, in which upwards of seven hundred millions of dollars are invested, have been the attraction for the thousands and thousands of "Uitlanders" whose "grivances" are substantially the cause for the cruel war between Briton and Boer, the battles of which have been ranked as the "bloodiest of the century."

This great work is published in serial form, and when complete will comprise the most magnificent collection of photographic reproductions of the British-Boer war and South Africa obtainable in this country. Portfolios distributed by the Morning Times. For particulars see announcement on another page of this issue.

Proposing to name the new York infant Patrick is also a way of putting Ireland on the back.

"Get," said Roberts to Galsworthy, and Galsworthy got.

MY FIRE.

It starts;
A gleam of light from the sun.
A golden, leaf-shaped, dancing thing,
Bending like a magic breeze,
And grows
And ope the virgin forest's strength
With writhing, biting arms.
And with its red jaws through the gloom
Casts swift shadows round the room.

And, waxing still,
It lashes round the knotted wood
With soft but cruel sting.
Till, gorged with strength, it fades away
Beneath a covert of gray.

And now,
Like molten sunset from the west,
Pulsates with living breath
Till, dying midst the bonfire's greed has made,
Its heart is still and ashes mark the grave.
—A. R. Allen in Morningtide.

INK AS A WITNESS.

Results in One Case Which Amazed the Attorneys.

In a case in the supreme court it was alleged that interlineations had been made in the papers after they were filed, and the papers were submitted to expert chemists to decide whether the interlineations had been made after the papers were filed or at the time the paper was drawn. The process followed by the chemists was simple, though tedious.

Hypochloride of soda was the only chemical used by the expert, but the result was the same as that arrived at by the other experts. Tests were made on each line of the document. The soda bleached the ink, and as the writing in some parts was one many years ago, the first drop of soda was placed on a line which was not in controversy. The writing slowly faded, and it was 51 seconds before it was bleached.

A drop on another interlineation faded the writing in 49 seconds, on another in 51 seconds, and the interlineations made when the paper was first written faded in about 50 seconds on an average. Suddenly the ink of one of the interlineations faded in 15 seconds, and the conclusion was at once reached that it was fresher ink than the others, as the ink had not had time to thoroughly permeate the fiber of the paper.

Several interlineations were found to fade in from 13 to 16 seconds, and these were marked as having been made at a more recent date.

After all interlineations had been so marked, the next step was to ascertain as nearly as possible at what date the interlineations were made, and for this purpose many manuscripts in which similar ink was used on the same kind of paper were taken. The exact date of the writing of each manuscript was known, and with the date of writing of the manuscript in controversy. The time necessary to fade the ink gradually decreased from 52 and 50 seconds as the soda was dropped on the manuscripts of more recent years.

When the fading took place in 20 seconds, manuscripts but a month apart in writing were used, and the fading in 14 and 15 seconds was thus fixed in a certain month. The examining chemists knew nothing of the points in the controversy, and the report was made that certain interlineations were probably made in the specified month. The attorneys in the case were amazed, as the month named was that in which they believed the more recent writing had been done—Indianapolis Press.

Uses For Bicycles.
There are many uses to which an old cycle can be put. It is said that a theater manager has made rather an excellent chandelier out of his old wheel. He also uses an old bicycle for producing the effect of wind, hail and railway trains. A navy is said to have made a clock almost all out of parts of old machines. The bell strikes the hours, and a length of solid rubber tire holds the pendulum, which is a bicycle fork. At one small place a man has turned a discarded wheel into a kind of pump, and the tires do duty for the pipe hose. Another has made a treadle sewing machine out of his wheel. A grocer has turned part of a cycle into a coffee grinding machine, and a bell ringer, being rather feeble in the arm, has an old cycle which he has raised and fixed in one position, and so by a pulley arrangement he can when gently pedaling ring the bell vigorously. Many folks use their old wheels for flower stands, and there is a man who is making quite a decent living by turning old bicycles into conveyances on which washerwomen can take home the weekly load.—London Globe.

The Crusades and Embroidery.
The crusades had a marked effect on the demand for embroidery; in besides the decoration of their cloaks and pouches the kings and their followers wanted gorgeously worked hangings for their tents and heraldic blazons for their banners. The last were difficult of execution, and new stitches were invented, and applique work was introduced about this time. The Spaniards are said to have learned the use of spangles and other metal and bead ornaments as applied to stuffs from the Saracens. Later precious stones and pearls were used, and in 1414 Charles of Orleans spent about £40 for 900 pearls which were to be used in ornamenting a great coat on the sleeves of which were embroidered the verses of a song beginning with "Madam, I am all joyous." The musical accompaniment of the words was also embroidered.—Spectator.

Worth Seeing.
A Newcastle laborer recently resolved to treat himself to a night at the theater, and, entering the pit by the back of the orchestra, he happened to see the double bass viol set up against a music stand.

Having never seen anything of the kind before, he leaned his arm on the orchestra rail and stood transfixed with amazement. The pit was filling rapidly, and an acquaintance, tapping him on the shoulder, said if he didn't take a seat they "werer" him.

"Wey, wey, binner," he exclaimed excitedly, "neerer heed a seat. Ah! I want is a look of the chap that's gan to put that fiddle onder his chin."—London Fun.

Bad Enough.
Patient—It is such a terrible thing to die of consumption!
Doctor—Perhaps you would like to have me call in other physicians in consultation?

Patient—No, I don't know that a complication of diseases would be any better to die of.—Detroit Journal.

A 5-year-old boy fell out of a third story window in Paris, and his life was saved by his falling on a man wearing a silk hat.

Happy Motherhood.

Motherhood ought always to bring happiness. But it is often the beginning of life-long unhappiness. As a preventive of the ills so often following maternity Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been hailed as a "God-send to women." It heals diseases peculiar to women, tones up the system, makes motherhood practically painless, and establishes the sound health which insures healthy children.

"During the past year I found myself pregnant and in rapidly failing health," writes Mrs. W. J. Kipper, of Hill Dale Farm, (Knoxsburg Center), Knoxville, Va. "I suffered dreadfully from bloating and urinary difficulty. I was growing perceptibly weaker each day and suffered much sharp pain at times. I felt that something must be done. I sought your advice and received a prompt reply. I took twelve bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and also followed your instructions. I began to improve immediately, my health became excellent, and I could do all my own work (we live on a good sized farm). I walked and rode all I could, and enjoyed it. I had a short easy confinement and have a healthy baby boy."

Medical Adviser (paper covers) is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay cost of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE COOKBOOK.

When making bread, do not use too much salt or the loaves will not be light. An appetizing relish for dinner meats is made from a cabbage heart cut into dice and pickled like little onions.

Following the English fashion, crisp, tender celery stalks are often handed around with cream cheese and crackers at dinner just before the coffee is served.

If chicken that is to be creamed in the chafin dish is marinated for a couple of hours in olive oil, the flavor of the dish will be much improved. Allow two tablespoonfuls of oil to a cup of chicken. In creaming it later, use strong celery salt freely.

One on the Doctor.

On Monday evening when the chairman announced at the Convention of the County Christian Endeavour that "Dr. Torrance and Rev. Mr. Shorey would take charge of the enquiry department," the former arose in the centre of the church and said that this was hardly correct;
"Mr. Shorey and Dr. Torrance" was the correct way to put it. Mr. Shorey immediately sprang to his feet and said that both were wrong. It should have been "Father Torrance and Mr. Shorey." The large audience "caught on," and the laughter was loud and long.

Divine Healer Fined.

Schlatter, who visited Peterborough some three or four months ago, pretending to cure all ills by the touch of the hands, and who dressed like Christ, was arrested in Chicago yesterday for being drunk, and fined $5. The judge, in his finding, said—"I have not been disposed to regard your pretensions as a 'healer' very seriously," he said. "In fact, I have considered you a divine healer as a stupendous fraud. But recent developments have somewhat staggered me. They cause me to think that a person who can freely imitate whisky for a week at a stretch and live must have something supernatural connected with his 'in-ards.'"
The judgement of this court is that the state of Indiana has been outraged in the sum of $1 cent. Unfortunately for you this carries with it the cost of prosecution—$2.50 in all.

A STARTLING SPECIES OF WHITE SLAVERY

The Case of Nelson Gray, Who Walked Into the Police Station in Peterborough a Few Days Ago—Sunnyside Home, Toronto, Hire Inmates, But Collect Their Wages.

side Home, Toronto, an institution that receives Government money and is supposed to be under Government control.
About six years ago he was hired to a man named Martin Healy, residing in the township of Asphodel, near Westwood. He never had five cents in his life and was so poorly clad that he was in danger of being frozen. His wages had been sent to the Toronto institution by his employer.

After the lad told his story he was remanded until enquiries were instituted.
In the afternoon of the same day Martin Healy came to town to search for the boy, and virtually corroborated the story told by the lad. He was very that he had been an inmate of the Sunnyside Home to have him go back to work, but Gray positively refused to do so, and was sent to goal awaiting enquiries from the institution in Toronto, where Chief Roszel had written for information, and to whom the particulars of the boy's cruel treatment was fully explained.

Strange to say, the institution advised the boy's return to Healy, notwithstanding the brutal treatment, and in a letter told the lad he was told that if he did not go back at once he would lose the money that was being kept for him, and which is supposed to be his when he attains the age of 21 years.

Healy was on hand and the lad, who

Nelson Gray, the Young Lad Who Complains of Ill-treatment.

A few days ago a young lad walked into the Police Station and timidly asked for a night's lodging. He said his name was Nelson Gray, and that he had walked into town from a farm near Westwood.
The lad was about 14 years of age, and was literally in rags.

He appeared at the police court next day, on a charge of vagrancy. He excited a feeling of pity from those who saw him, and Mr. Roy, who heard of the case, managed to secure a picture of the lad after the court adjourned. We reproduce the picture.

To the police Magistrate the lad, who had an honest, intelligent face, stated had no friend to advise him, reluctantly went back to slavery.

Here is a case which should receive more than a passing notice. If the Sunnyside Home is custodian of the child's money, there should be some means provided to clothe the boy at least half decently. Not only was he in a shameful condition as regards clothing, but the lad was filthy, and showed that he had been treated little better than the hogs in Healy's barnyard. Surely there should be some sort of government supervision over institutions of this kind to make such things impossible.

20 LBS. AT SEVENTY.

Left off Coffee and Made a Remarkable Gain
in Health.

N. H. Baldwin, of Laconia, N. H., is seventy years old and has gained twenty pounds since 1888. A letter says—"I drank imported coffee because I needed something warm with my meals. While I was using coffee I was thin in flesh and nervous, with stomach trouble as well as bowel and kidney trouble. I left off coffee in 1888, taking Postum Food Coffee in its place.

"I was fortunate in the first trial of Postum, when it was well made by the wife of a grocerman, who had used it long enough to know just how to make it right. It tasted so good to me that I have had it at home ever since, and have gained twenty pounds. I am much stronger than I was a year ago.

"It speaks pretty well for the food value of the Postum Food Coffee, for a person seventy years old to gain weight at that age. Not only that, but the old trouble with the stomach, kidneys and bowels has disappeared."
Health does not always set in immediately after a person makes a change in diet, nor does sickness always set in immediately after bad habits are taken up, but the daily life maintained by good food and good drink, free from poisonous element like coffee, will gradually build in new and perfect cells in the human body, so that month by month a sturdy and steady condition of health is set up that will carry a person through many irregularities of sleep and diet, and through a vast amount of hard work whereas a person who is just barely able to make out continual trouble from some sort of ailment caused by coffee and its effects on the nerves, would be completely pro-trated and be unable to carry out the work of life. Moderation and a wise resistance of food and drink brings health, which is true happiness.

THE CHOIR CONCERT.

One of the Most enjoyable Musical Events Ever Held Here.

The second annual sacred concert in connection with the choir of the George street Methodist church took place last night in the church, and was a decided success. The beautiful edition was well filled with leading citizens, who came away pleased with the evening's entertainment. The choir and orchestra, under the capable leadership of Mr. F. W. Walden, opened the programme with a very fine selection, from Rossini.

The second part was opened by the choir, entitled "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," specially arranged for the Sacred quartette, and rendered in their inimitable style. This was followed by "Never Alone," sang by Mr. J. M. Sherlock, after which the quartette gave "One Sweetly Solemn Thought." It is of the Lord's Great Mercies," was then sang by Mr. Sherlock and Mr. Armstrong, after which "Gloria," Mass in F was rendered by the choir and orchestra.

The National Anthem terminated one of the most enjoyable and successful musical events that have ever taken place in Peterborough; the carrying out of which has reflected the greatest possible credit on the choir and its popular and efficient leader.

ON THE ATLIN TRAIL.

Hardships Endured by Gold-Seekers in the Frontier North.

The Times received a letter yesterday from Captain Martin, dated "on trail" to Atlin, March 29. Capt. Martin says that his party have 2,000 pounds of stuff with them, which has to be dragged on sleds over the White Pass. He says that the trail is very bad this year, and few people are going into the Atlin or Yukon districts, the rush being all for Cape Nome.

Capt. Martin, expected to reach Atlin about April 1st, and is now, doubtless, at work digging gold. He has a number of very rich claims, and expects to do well this season. The Cape Nome excitement will be of advantage to the miners in the Yukon and Atlin districts, who have good claims, as it will leave them in peace to work them.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

The rain spoiled the march out of the boys in red last night.

room this afternoon at 3.30.

Major Miller, who assisted in the patriotic concert in Hastings on Monday, reports that $115 was realized from the affair, which was a success in every way.

The Times Job department received an order from British Columbia for a set of blank business books, cash book, Journal

ment is spreading.

A case which will determine the powers of the Retail Growers' Association at Hamilton in publishing lists of persons

quired is to send a postcard or letter,

outline, and we will put it into shape.

day from Mr. J. O. Eyres, of Lindsay, who spent a few days the guest of his uncle, Mr. Wm. Eyres, Antrim street. Mr.
Eyres left for home last night.

Death of Mrs. Sullivan.

We very much regret to have to chronicle the death of Mrs. Sullivan, wife of Mr. Daniel Sullivan, of 287 Rutledge-st., which occurred yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, in the 71st year of her age. She had been ailing for some weeks ago, when she contracted a cold, which developed pneumonia, and notwithstanding that everything which medical science could suggest was done to relieve her, she passed away. Mrs. Sullivan's maiden name was O'Brien. She was born in Ireland, and has with her husband been a resident of Peterborough for upwards of half a century. She was esteemed and beloved by all who knew her. Much sympathy is extended to Mr. Sullivan in the irreparable loss which he has sustained. The funeral will leave the family residence to-morrow morning at 9 a.m., and proceed to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

Honorably Acquitted.

At the police court yesterday morning the charge of theft laid against David Evans by Arthur Rountree was investigated and the accused was honorably acquitted. It was a complaint in that dealings between him and Rountree he held back to himself, the proceeds of the sale of a cow, and thus got the better of his partner.
There were no witnesses but the two principals in the dispute, and each produced a set of books in support of his own testimony and to the destruction of that of the other. After hearing the evidence the magistrate dismissed the case. It is said that proceeding will be instituted against Rountree to false arrest, by Evans.

A Pretty Wedding.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized yesterday afternoon, at the residence of Mr. M. Dobson, 378 Smith street, when Miss Margaret Eliza, daughter of the late Mr. Frederick Cookson, was united in marriage to Mr. Ernest H. Milburn, of Smith. The nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. Mr. Armitage. In the presence of a number of invited guests. The bride was supported by Miss Frances E. Cookson, sister of the bride, while Mr. W. Dickson Jewett acted in a similar capacity for the groom. After the ceremony a superb de-jeuner was partaken of, when the happy couple were escorted to the Grand Trunk station, from which they took their departure for Ottawa, Montreal and other points east. The large number of presents received testified to the high regard in which the young couple are held, and their return Mr. and Mrs. Milburn will take up their permanent residence in Smith.
The Times joins in wishing them a long and happy life.

"To Do Ill Costs More

Than to Do Well."

This "wise saw" might properly read, "It costs more to BE ill than to BE well." The source of all health is rich, strong blood.
It is to the body what the mighty streams are to the earth. If the blood is pure, the body thrives; if the blood is weak or impoverished, then every pulse-beat carries weakness instead of strength.

Why make the cost of living more than it need be? Purify your blood and give your constitution a chance to do its level best. The only perfect blood purifier and vigor-maker in existence is the world-famed Hood's Sarsaparilla. It brings good, perfect health.
It never disappoints.

Erysipelas Sores—"After scarlet fever a running sore was left on my nose. Took Hood's Sarsaparilla and it cured me. My brother was also relieved by it of erysipelas in his face." ELLA COVASSA, Burden, N. B.

Bowel Trouble—"My mother, Mrs.
John Reed, suffered with bowel trouble for four years and tried different doctors, but obtained no relief until she began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. Three bottles of this medicine entirely cured her." LIZZIE REED, Tracy Station, N. B.

A Good Medicine—"We have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla in our family as a spring medicine and used Hood's Pills for biliousness and found both medicines very effective. For impure blood we know Hood's Sarsaparilla is a good medicine." R. S. FURZES, publisher Bee, Atwood, Ont.

Loss of Appetite—"I was in poor health, troubled with distress, tired feeling and loss of appetite. I was completely run down. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and after while I felt much better. Hood's Sarsaparilla built me up." LIZZIE A. EVANS, Old Chatham, near Ottawa, Que.

Dyspepsia—"For twelve years I was dyspeptic and broken in health, had terrible pains in my back and was unable to work. When I had taken three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla I recovered my health.
I always recommend it." J. B. MARON, 303
8th Street, Oswego, N. Y.

A Big Social Event.

The ball in the opera house last night under the auspices of the Golf Club, was a decided success, notwithstanding the rain. The spacious hall was tastefully decorated by Messrs. Turner & Son, and the catering and music was all that could be desired. A most enjoyable evening was spent.

FIGHT AT JAMMERSBERG A BIG LOSS TO BOERS!

They Tried to Rush British Position But Were Driven Back After a Hard Fight.

OVER THOUSAND BRITISH TROOPS LAND AT BEIRA

Heavy Rains Impede Movements of British Columns—The Blockade of Wepener Continues—Roberts' Criticism of Buller the Talk of the Day.

London, April 19, 4.10 a.m.—Heavy rains impede the movements of the British columns. The blockade of Wepener continues, although relief is not far off. Large quantities of stores are being moved southward from Bloemfontein. These shipments are made necessary by the operations in the southeast of the Free State.

There are two thousand sick in the field hospitals, most of the cases being of dysentery and enteric fever.

With the exception of these facts the embargo on war intelligence is almost complete. The special correspondent's trivial statements, obscure rather than explain the situation in their efforts to prepare matter that will pass the censor. Here and there appear indications and expectations that large things are about to happen.

What is to be done with Sir Redvers Buller and Sir Charles Warren occupies everybody's attention. It is now generally accepted that the Government had a purpose in the publication of Lord Roberts' despatch, and that the recall of General Buller and General Warren has probably been decided upon. According to these reports there is a steady flow of foreign volunteers to the Transvaal. Hitherto these adventurers have been attached to the various commandos; now it is said they are to be formed into a special legion with continental officers, and there is a rumor that the command will be given to a distinguished French soldier, lately retired, who is now in the Transvaal, or is nearing the end of the journey thither.

TRIED TO RUSH THE POSITION.

Hard Fighting at Jammersberg Resulted in a Boer Defeat.

The Times has a special from Jammersberg, dated April 15—On Friday morning the enemy tried to rush our left flank, but were driven back after an hour's fighting by a section of Gen. Buller's Horse. The Cape Mounted Rifles received the main attention of the enemy's guns, but their casualties are surprisingly low. This is generally owing to the extended position held by our small garrison. Sniping goes on around the entire position all day, but the attack is apparently weakening, though large numbers of fresh men are visible along the enemy's lines.

TROOPS LANDED AT BEIRA.

Over a Thousand Australian Bushmen Reach South Africa.

London, April 18.—Three transports have landed at Beira, Portuguese East Africa, 1,000 Australian bushmen, with horses, 1,200 mules and a large number of transport vehicles. These will go to Marandellas, 24 miles from Salisbury. Marandellas will be the first base camp. It has already been prepared for occupation. Two more transports have arrived at Beira, bringing railway material. Twenty-two transports in addition to vessels bringing large shipments of South American cattle, are expected to arrive at Beira within a month.

KILLED, 20; WOUNDED, 100.

Colonel Dalgetty's Losses at Wepener Amount to This Figure.

Maseru, April 17.—Colonel Dalgetty's casualties since he has been besieged at Wepener have been twenty killed and one hundred wounded. The Boer losses are reported to have been considerably heavier.

After the night attack on April 13, the dead were left on the field, where they still lie unburied.

There is a conflict of opinion among the leaders. Some want to attack again, while others refuse to do so. Desultory cannon firing and "sniping" continues.

The rising of the Caledon alarms the Boers, as they are now on both sides of the river, and might be cut off if the stream were to become flooded.

Five Boer guns are believed to be disabled.

MANIFESTO FROM THE BOERS.

They Appeal to Afrikaners to Fight Shoulder to Shoulder.

Cape Town, April 17.—The Boer Government are circulating the following manifesto to the Afrikaners throughout Cape Colony:

"We feel that our fate and the fate of the whole of Afrikanerdom is at stake, and we appeal to you to stand and fight shoulder to shoulder with us. You cannot, you may not allow the tyrant to extinguish forever your finest traits of character as a nation. With you on our side the issue cannot be doubtful. We must conquer. God grant that love for your country and your liberty and the noblest virtues of men truly free may induce you to join us in the hour of our supreme struggle."

DIVINING ROD AT FAULT.

Lieut. Smithman's Native Failed Him in the Hour of Need.

London, April 18.—The Times has a special from Mafeking, dated April 7, which says: Lieut. Frank Smithman, an intelligence officer belonging to Col. Plumer's force, is leaving the town tonight. Lieut. Smithman offered to make the journey to carry important despatches to Col. Baden Powell and to become acquainted with the disposition of the enemy's forces and the condition of Mafeking. Accompanied by a native diver, who preceded him carrying a rod, whose power, the native claimed, enabled him to detect the presence of Boers, Lieut. Smithman made the journey from the town to the outlying defenses of Mafeking. When found himself in trenches so distant from the town he concluded that they must be the enemy's and lay quiet. The diver, whose powers were at fault, was unable to decide to whom the trenches belonged. Presently, however, he discovered from the conversation of some natives that they were our lines. Lieut. Smithman stayed at Mafeking for some days and afterwards returned to Col. Plumer's camp in safety.

TRIED TO REACH BLOEMFONTEIN

But the Officers Shunted her Carriage on a Siding.

London, April 18.—The Bloemfontein correspondent of the Daily Telegraph in a despatch dated Tuesday, says:— "It is hoped that the boisterous weather now prevailing may delay the Boers, and afford us an opportunity of capturing a number of the raiding bands, as only a few drifts are possible."

One of the oddities of the situation is the enormous number of civilians, both men and women, who are now stopped at Nurval's Post. The military authorities have properly refused to allow them to proceed up the line, because of the difficulty of feeding the moving army, which is very great, and because it is an object of incalculable importance.

"Many of these people are squatting upon the banks of the Orange River, and looking across longingly. Some of them profess to have business here, while others say they are going to see relatives, but many are attracted by the sheer curiosity."

"Scenes are of constant occurrence. One lady yesterday yamined upon travelling to see her husband at Bloemfontein. The military officers and the railway officials tried to coax her out of the train. She would not budge, and the officers retired, discomfited. Finally her carriage was detached from the train and shunted, and the latest report is that the lady is still sitting tight, while others are watching to see if her persistence is rewarded by victory, themselves ready to assume the same role."

JAPAN'S GREAT NAVY.

Counted Upon to Make Short Work of the Russian Naval Force.

Yokohama, March 31, via San Francisco, April 18.—If the quick and steady despatch of telegrams from Korea means aught of a really serious nature, the inference is that Japan and Russia are on the verge of war. Outwardly, however, there is absolute calm, and the tone of the press is but slightly bellicose.

Japan, with her great fleet, would make short work of Russia's naval force, and command the situation for the time at least, with all the advantages which an added prestige would confer.

WHAT THE TIMES SAYS.

Roberts Renders a Great Service in Speaking of Spion Kop.

London, April 18.—The Times says:—A subject on which attention will be fixed is the despatch of Lord Roberts on the passage of the Tugela and the evacuation of Spion Kop. The comments of Lord Roberts are made in the measured, dispassionate tone observed in his remarks on General Gatacre's report of the Stormberg mishap. His judgment in this case is again severe condemnation, and that condemnation is justified only too clearly by the official narratives of what took place. Lord Roberts has come to the conclusion that Thorneycroft's order for the evacuation of Spion Kop on the night of January 24 was an wholly inexcusable assumption of responsibility and authority on the part of that officer. He holds Gen. Warren guilty of errors of judgment and want of administrative capacity, and criticizes General Buller's disinclination to assert his authority and say what he thought was best to be done. General Buller's plan to relieve Ladysmith was, he thinks, well devised, and he agrees with the author that it ought to have succeeded. It is not the least of the great services that Roberts is now rendering to the country that he exposes with judicial impartiality and with wise and wholesome severity the errors and omissions in high quarters which have cost us so very much.

FROM COL. OTTER.

Thanks to the Ladies of Ingersoll for Their Generous Contributions.

Woodstock, April 18.—Lieut. Col. Heger has received the following letter from Col. Otter.

Koodersand Drift, March 6, 1900. My Dear Colonel.—I have your note of 22nd January, as well as a draft from the Imperial Bank for $110. May I ask you to convey to the ladies of Ingersoll the warmest thanks of the officers and men of the Royal Canadian Regiment for their kind contributions.

Believe me it is warmly appreciated and that I shall do all I can to make their kind gift go as far as possible in adding to the comforts of our men. Situated as we are at present we need much, but it is impossible to obtain at any cost anything beyond the bare necessities of life, to say nothing of comforts. This we trust will eventually change, when I hope to have the opportunity of using the money our kind friends have so thoughtfully sent us.

Yours very sincerely,

W. D. OTTER, D. C. M.

THE AMEER OF AFGHANISTAN KICKS.

He Complains That Great Britain Has Been Using Him
Only as a Tool Against Russia.

Lahore, April 18.—Recent newspaper speculations about Russian designs in regard to Herat and the probable attitude of the Ameers have not passed unnoticed at Kabul. The Ameers, in an autograph letter to a trusted servant, which he permitted to be passed on to the Civil and Military Gazette of Lahore, says that during the last few years he has been subjected to all kinds of rumors on the part of the British public, and adds:—

"Now, when Afghanistan is overwhelmed on all sides, the British Government does not seem to take any interest, but shows pride, aloofness and reserve whenever I have suggested some check upon Russian aggression."

ROBERTS TO NAME SOME CANADIANS.

The Commander-in-Chief Will Name Twenty-Four for Commissions in Army.

Ottawa, April 18.—The following information in reference to the commissions in the regular army recently offered to Canada by Her Majesty's Government has been furnished to the press by direction of His Excellency, by Captain Harry Graham, military secretary:—

"Forty-four commissions are offered. Of these, 14 have been allotted to cadets of the Royal Military College, Kingston, candidates having been selected by the Minister of Militia on the recommendation of the commandant, and whose names have been transmitted in the usual manner by His Excellency to the War Office."

"The remaining 30 commissions are open to Canadian gentlemen and officers, non-commissioned officers, and men of the militia, the responsibility for the final recommendation, as in the case of naval cadetship, resting with His Excellency, who will rely on the assistance and advice of his Government."

"His Excellency is glad to be able to state that Her Majesty's Government, recognizing the excellent services rendered by Canadian troops in South Africa, and the fact that a large number of Canadian officers and men are now serving there, has directed him to request Field Marshal Lord Roberts to transmit to him the names of 24 candidates for commissions for final recommendations from Canada."

"The remaining six commissions will be open to Canadian gentlemen, as already stated."

"Directions as to applications and necessary qualifications will be inserted in the Canada Gazette as soon as possible."

A BRITISH TATTOO IN BLOEMFONTEIN.

The Free Staters Astonished at the Inspiring Entertainment in Their Capital.

Ottawa, April 18.—Capt. Rogers, in a letter dated March 15, and 17, gives a graphic description of a military tattoo at Bloemfontein. The letter says:—

"Last night there was a tattoo of all the pipe bands of the Highland regiments. It was grandly peculiar. Just picture if you can a beautiful still, solemn African moonlight night, almost as bright as day. A large deserted market square surrounded by low, substantial ghastly white buildings. There was first a glare of bugles sounding first post. Then a pause and again a squeal of pipe tuning up, which was almost fiendish. This was followed by a burst of weird music which I suppose a Highlander would call 'ground.'"

"The Scotchmen on the move were hardly able to keep from dancing to the inspiring music. The British officers walked around discussing everything but the music, the principal topic. I must confess, being guesses as to the termination of the war."

HORROR AMERICAN ON IMPERIALISM.

The Prominent Senator Denounces the Administration's Policy of Expansion.

Washington, April 17.—In the Senate today Senator Hoar, of Mass., delivered a lengthy and forcible address against imperialism. Adverting to the authority for expansion to be found in the Declaration of Independence, Mr. Hoar declared:—"There is expansion enough in it, but it is the expansion of freedom and not of despotism; of life, not of death. You have tried governing men of other races than your own at home for a hundred years. You have dealt with the Indian, you have dealt with the negro class at hand, knowing all about them. I suppose you feel encouraged by your success. There are ten million more, 7,000 miles away, of whom you know nothing. You go forth jauntily and boastfully, as Louis Napoleon went to meet his doom at Sedan."

The Senator presented an elaborate defence of the Filipinos against the charge that they were responsible for the present war, justifying their action in resisting the American forces.

WILL THERE BE CHANGE OF LEADERS?

A Political Rumor About the Change in English Liberal Party's Leadership.

London, April 18.—It is stated that Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman has decided to withdraw as Liberal leader in favor of Sir Edward Grey, and that secret arrangements have been made for a Liberal dinner on May 2nd, the day when Lord Roseberry will be the chief speaker at the Australian Federation luncheon, and that there will be a conference with all the leading men of the party present except Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt and Right Hon.

J. Morley.

The rumor that the invitations to this dinner have been issued by Lord Roseberry, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman and Sir Edward Grey is not confirmed, and the Liberal leadership has not yet been flung into the lottery of politics. Sir Edward Grey is a thoroughgoing Radical on domestic questions, as well as a Liberal Imperialist of the Roseberry type.

WARREN ORDERED HOME BULLER MAY BE RETIRED

Sweeping Reorganization by Roberts and the Fall of Many Heads Will Follow.

GEN. WARREN'S STORY OF SPION KOP AFFAIR.

All Was Arranged to Support the Forces That Captured the Ridge
When Thorneycroft Assumed Without Justification
the Authority to Retire.

London, April 18.—Never did a nation administer to itself so vigorously a flagellation as the British nation through its Government is doing. Probably no other nation has sufficient moral courage to do so. The worst that was said at the time of the campaign on the Tugela regarding the ability of General Buller and his officers has been confirmed. Natal has proved the graves of reputations that six months ago were above reproach. The whole melancholy story of the fruitless struggle west of Colenso now stands forth in cold type. Briefly put, General Roberts ascribes the failure to hold Spion Kop and relieve Ladysmith by that route to Thorneycroft's inexcusable action without authority. Discussion is now taking place as to the wisdom or otherwise of publishing criticisms which are creating a sensation throughout England. But it must not be overlooked that the right of the public to know what its servants are doing and how they are doing it must be placed far above the desire to avoid wounding the feelings of men in high places. This is a war of the people and the empire, and the people and the empire must know everything concerning it. Upon the publication of the true state of affairs, moreover, depends the nature of the remedy which it is now more certain than ever must be applied to the British army, and the readiness of the Government to give publicity to General Roberts' censures can only be taken as an indication that a sweeping reorganization of the military system is imminent, in which many heads will fall. Buller, Warren, Thorneycroft, if they have any self-respect, cannot too long remain in the positions they hold, for the verdict of their superior convicts them of incapacity, and they must naturally follow Gen. Gatacre to retirement. The exposures made by General Roberts and the Government is a guarantee that the lessons of the Spion Kop will be turned to profit, and that the rule of reticence and snobbery is at an end.

LORD ROBERTS' CRITICISMS.

Gen. Buller and Warren, as Well as Other Officers Made Errors.

London, April 18.—Lord Roberts, in a despatch to the War Office, deals with the operations in Natal from January 17 to 24, in which he refers principally to the action at Spion Kop, and he freely and severely censures some of the officers, Generals Buller and Warren included. Lord Roberts says that Gen. Warren seems to have concluded, after consultation with his officers, that the flanking movement ordered by Gen. Buller was impracticable, and therefore he decided the plan of advance as to necessitate the capture and retention of Spion Kop. Warren, he says, should have informed Buller of the impracticability of the proposed movement. However, Lord Roberts indicated plainly that Buller was fully aware of all that was happening. Lord Roberts does not concur with Buller in thinking that Thorneycroft exercised wise discretion in ordering the troops to retire. He is of the opinion that Thorneycroft's assumption of responsibility and authority was wholly inexcusable. During the night the enemy's fire could not have been formidable, and it would not have taken more than two or three hours for Thorneycroft to communicate by message with Major-General Coke or Warren. Coke appears to have left Spion Kop at 9.30 p.m. for the purpose of consulting with Warren. Up to that hour the idea of withdrawal had not been entertained. Yet, almost immediately after Coke's departure, Thorneycroft issued the order, without reference to superior authority, which upset the whole plan of operations, and rendered unavailing the sacrifices already made to carry it into effect.

Lord Roberts comments on Buller's report of the operations at Spion Kop, Buller, in this report, tells how he saw the force at Spion Kop was given away before Warren knew of it. Buller, therefore, telegraphed to Warren:—"Unless you put a really good hard-fighting man in command on top you will lose the hill. I suggest Thorneycroft."

Gen. Buller continued:—

"I have not thought it necessary to order an investigation. If at dawn the defence of the summit had been taken in hand, entrenchments laid out, and the dead and wounded removed, the whole place would have been brought under regular military commands, and the hills would have been held. I am sure that no arrangements were made. Coke appears to have been ordered away just as he would have been useful, and no one succeeded him. Those on top were ignorant of the fact that the guns were coming up, and generally there was a lack of organization and system that acted most unfavorably on the defence."

In reference to this Lord Roberts says:—

"It is to be regretted that Warren did not himself visit Spion Kop in the afternoon or evening, knowing as he did that the state of affairs was very critical, and that the loss of the position would involve the failure of the operations. He consequently was obliged to summon Coke to his headquarters, and the command of Spion Kop thus devolved on Thorneycroft, who was under the impression that the command developed upon Col. Hill, as senior officer. I believe Buller was justified in remarking, 'There was a want of organization and system, which acted most unfavorably on the defence.'"

"The attempt to relieve Ladysmith was well devised, and I agree with Buller in thinking it ought to have succeeded. That it failed may in some measure have been due to the difficulties of the ground and the commanding positions held by the enemy, and probably also to errors of judgment and want of administrative capacity on the part of Warren. But whatever faults Warren may have committed, the failure must also be attributed to the disinclination of the officer in supreme command to assert his authority and see that what he thought best was done, and also to the unwarrantable and needless assumption of responsibility by a subordinate officer."

The despatch concludes:—

"The gratifying feature of these despatches is the admirable behaviour of the troops throughout the operation."

IN FACE OF PROTEST.

Thorneycroft Evacuated the Hill Contrary to All Advice.

London, April 18.—A continuation of the despatches regarding the Spion Kop evacuation says:—

Gen. Warren sets forth the fact that the Spion Kop operations had not entered into his original plans, as his instructions were to occupy a plain north of it. On consultation with the commander-in-chief January 21, however, when the question of retiring from or attacking Spion Kop was discussed, Warren expressed his preference for attacking. This was successfully accomplished by Gen. Woodgate. Then came the order of the commander-in-chief to put Thorneycroft in command on the summit. In the meantime, Gen. Warren had sent Gen. Coke up to reinforce him with orders to assume command. Ineffectual efforts were made to telegraph Thorneycroft, and ask whether he had assumed command. Toward sunset, he was finally enabled to get orders through and concluded the position could be held the next day, if guns could be provided and shelter obtained. Both these conditions were about to be fulfilled when "in the absence of Coke, whom I had ordered to come in and report in person on the situation, the evacuation took place under orders given on his own responsibility by Thorneycroft. This occurred in the face of the vigorous protests of Coke's brigade majors and others."

In conclusion, Gen. Warren said:—"It is a matter for the commander-in-chief to decide whether there will be any investigation into the question of the unauthorized evacuation of Spion Kop."

GEN. WARREN ORDERED HOME.

Peremptory Instructions Sent from the War Office.

London, April 18.—It is said that a peremptory order for the return of Lieut.-Gen. Sir Charles Warren, the commander of the fifth division of the South African field force, was cabled to South Africa this morning.

REORGANIZING HIS ARTILLERY.

General Roberts is Making Some Important Changes.

London, April 18.—The Times has a special from Bloemfontein, dated April 16—News received from Gen. Chermanside's column states that on leaving Hederburg on the 15th inst., Montmorency's Scouts came into touch with small bodies of the enemy, the main body of the Boers being then believed to be about fifteen miles further on. This tallies with the report of a convoy near Dewetsdorp. A considerable number of changes have been made in the organization of the mounted artillery. Major King's scheme of increasing its mobility having been adopted. Each battery will now move with a spare team for each gun and with only three wagons. The cavalry brigade and artillery organization is to be one horse battery and section one in Maxim's. Each mounted infantry brigade will have one horse battery in two sections and one in Maxim's attached to the cavalry. Corps of artillery will consist of two horse batteries and a brigade division of howitzer batteries.

CANADIAN HEAVILY PUNISHED.

He Got Fifty-five Days in Prison for Stealing a Chicken.

London, April 17.—A letter from Benet Burleigh, dated at Bloemfontein, and published in to-day's Telegraph, cites a case of real hardship. A Canadian soldier, he says, was court-martialed and sentenced to fifty-five days' hard labor for appropriating one Boer chicken, while thousands who had committed the same offence escape scot free. There was considerable indignation in the Canadian camp over the affair.

WHERE IS PLUMER?

Plumer's Camp, April 6.—Plumer's little force is now strongly entrenched northwest of Mafeking. Native reports that the remnants of Mafeking are very hungry and frequently beg for food. A relieving column is despatched to their relief. It will find the country well grazed and watered as it proceeds northward.

FINANCIAL AND MINING STOCKS

Short Story of the Day

A HOLD-UP OF UNCLE SAM'S

BY MARGARET E. BOND.

Riding on a buckboard through the mountains of western North Carolina, or footing it slowly along the lonely trails, may be very conducive to health—any way you will hear the assertion made at every stopping place in this high-up consumptive's paradise. The effect on the traveler's personal appearance, however, is likely to prove a bit startling. The dust from red clay is a doubtful cosmetic, while the absence of moisture from the air makes your skin tingle and your lungs wince.

Winthrop Hastings was assisting his bride to alight at the door of a mountain inn, when, catching a full-length picture of her as she stood up against the background of the evening sky, he burst into a laugh that made the very hills echo.

"Oh, but you're a sight, girlie!" "Girlie" sprang from his arms, nimbly. "Don't mention it, pray," she said. "Wait till I get the hand glass out of my bag—it will return the compliment much more picturesquely than I could possibly do."

They were only five days out of Chicago—they might have been a century—but for a certain cut of their clothes which was unmistakable. They had left early winter behind them and in twenty-four hours found themselves in the zenith of southern autumn, the country aglow with warmth and color and the Blue Ridge alive with game.

The local papers at home had informed their friends that they would spend their honeymoon in New York and other eastern cities. Well, what of it? Mrs. Hastings had asked her husband that question scarcely an hour after the ceremony that made them man and wife.

"We will stop in on State street on the way to the train and you can purchase a rifle," she said, "I have my kodak and we can expose our extra baggage straight through to Washington. This is my honeymoon, Mr. Winthrop Hastings."

Poor Hastings—he had told the imperious little lady that his editor-in-chief had charged him with the delicate mission of interviewing a noted railway magnate in the east on the present "rate war." They were coming back that way, of course, but that would be late for the interview, he feared, and he felt like a thief—letting it be understood that they were en route one way while they were actually going another.

They were to be feted in Washington by a maternal aunt of the bride. He had innocently mentioned the fact before Partridge, and best if the old driver didn't further impale him to "embrace such an excellent opportunity to buttonhole our senior member and find out what the devil he means by coquetting with the harbor bill the way he was doing lately!" Well, ave, Washington! and long live the land of the "tar-heeders!"

There was a bag of game to send into the kitchen and he paid the guide who had piloted them across the Ridge. The fellow was going back immediately, while they were to stop a day to rest. Now for something to eat—they were as famished as wolves! Their host affirmed that there were "sweet taters and fried chicken galore in the dining room," and they went in to investigate and dined sumptuously.

In the first glow of hunger appeased, neither took special note of a couple of mountaineers who sat over near the chimney, lunching. The evenings are cool in those high altitudes and a mountaineer loves an open fire next to his "baccy and corn whiskey. They were a youngful pair—man and girl; he a glorious type of mountain giant, no flesh to spare, but a frame of iron and a jaw, set to the pattern of his favored granite hills. She an ill-favored specimen—thin, raw-boned and seemingly devoid of aim. Marlan Hastings stole a covert look at them, now and then, as the meal progressed. Cowhide and homespun appealed to her sense of the picturesque, but a polonaise, at this hour of the nineteenth century, and deserved the stake.

In the midst of her rumination the proprietor of the inn blocked the doorway for a moment to inform them that the stage for Morristown was due about this time.

"Parties intending to cross the ridge this evening had better be stirring themselves now," he reckoned. "For this yet stage carries the U. S. mail and won't wait a second over fifteen minutes for the Great Jehovah himself."

The couple before the fire rose and the couple before the fire rose and strolled out of the room leisurely. Hastings was busy jotting down items in a notebook and took no notice of the travelers. His companion watched them disappear with keen interest and presently went into the inn parlor and took a snuff-shut at them through the open window as they stood out in the road waiting to depart.

"They were married to-day, then two," observed the voice of the landlady over her shoulder. "Pretty couple, for crany mountain folks, wouldn't you say?"

Mrs. Hastings assented pleasantly. Her husband had gone for a smoke in the open air. She believed she was tired. Seated in a huge old-time rocker she swung herself back and forth lazily and presently she dozed.

In the midst of a half-formed dream a hand touched her suddenly on the shoulder—she awoke her so lightly. She looked up in the landlady's face.

"They are after your husband, honey," the latter whispered. "They have got him too."

"Who are they that are after my husband?" cried Marlan Hastings earnestly, now wide awake and staring with all her might. "Where is my husband?" "Hush, honey, out this in the office with pap and the federal officers! Hear your husband's voice, honey? Law, how he do go on at them! Pity he should follow such a dangerous craft!"

"Craft?—what are you driving at, woman? Come, let me go to my husband. Yes, that is his voice, sure enough." "Hush, me, air," she heard a suave tone interposing. "We have no warrant for the apprehension of Mrs. Hank Westall. You're our man, though. May we well come peacefully. We ride down the trail to Hot Springs to-night and take train in the morning for Asheville, Come."

"Damn it!—am I to be put about by your infernal mistakes?" Hastings was yelling at the top of his voice. "I tell you my name is not Westall—I know nothing about your damned moonshine whisky. I was married in Chicago last Thursday and am on my wedding trip." "Yes, we heard about your wedding down at Lead Rock. Sorry. May as well be honest about it, about Asheville. Fine little town—good accommodations. Lady can join you there by day after tomorrow, you know. Horse ready, Bill!" Hastings fumbled through his pockets, hopelessly. Money he carried in plenty, but not a credential. The iron ore was on his wrist in a twink and Marlan was hanging about his neck. "Talk was of no account—if it were, the vituperation of this girl from the northwest would have petrified Uncle Sam's representatives in their tracks."

There was good nettle in Mrs. Winthrop Hastings, however. She never shed a tear, standing out on the veranda and watched the cottage bear her husband off, called out that she would be with him next day without fail and waved her handkerchief as long as he remained in sight. This was, indeed, her wedding trip. She went back into the inn and wept unreservedly. What a wilderness they had come into!

In the jail at Asheville sat Hastings two days later, solemnly waiting the march of events. He had telegraphed Hurt Raymond, his best man, as soon as he had reached the town, but so far had received no reply. He learned afterward that Raymond had been called to Omaha on business and ever got the despatch. He had wired Farrington, too, on second thought, much as it went against the grain to do it.

"Tell the authorities here who I am, in a devil of a fix. Winthrop Hastings." About 2.30 p.m. of the second day Marlan walked into the jailroom. The local police inspector was with her and one of the revenue men who had carried Hastings off that memorable evening. The inspector had two telegrams in his hand, one signed Farrington of the "L," the other bearing the grim legend of Chicago's police headquarters.

"Young man," said the inspector, in his funny southern drawl, "we make no further demand on your time; you are free, sub. In the name of the government we beg to apologize, and speaking for Asheville, pray command us—there is nothing too good for you in Buncombe county. Allow me, madame!" springing forward to place a chair for the bride.

Mrs. Hastings sat down, and opening her reticule, drew forth a rolled sheet of paper, which she reached out to the revenue officer. "Sir, let me present you to Mr. and Mrs. Hank Westall," she said. The officer started back.

"Hank Westall, I swear!" he exclaimed, "we've been on that fellow's heels for a year! Stay! I ask you how you came by this, Madam?"

"Snapped them off at Waverly Inn that night you took my husband prisoner. The stage in which they were passengers hadn't gone ten minutes when you rode up."

"Why did you not inform us of this at the time, Mrs. Hastings?" "I am not in the employ of the government," she replied. "And I have a warm spot in my heart for a bride." But the fact was, the idea had never dawned on her until far into that long sleepless night at the inn.

THE COMPANY is incorporated under the most stringent laws (Special Limited Liability) of B. C., and its Charter was granted July, 1899.

owns some 130 acres of valuable mineral lands on the "Horne Ledge" at the head of the Lardeau River.

has three (3) distinct and well-defined Lodes, with nearly a mile in length of ore body.

has built its own roads to Circle City mine, buildings, quarters for 30 to 35 men, blacksmith's shop, forge, powder houses, etc.

has surveyed its "Rob Roy" and "Highland Chief," which are now ready for Crown granting.

has a magnificent Water Power on Galea Creek crossing its own property.

has some 230 feet of tunnel work done with ore showings in 3 different places through the workings, and have lately run into the Gray Copper, which is the mineral that carries such immense values in silver.

has every prospect of being able to pay big Dividends within a reasonable time, and hope to be able to quit selling stock soon.

The natural question arises: "Why, if there is all this, do you have to offer stock for sale?" We answer that if you knew there was a pot of Gold in your garden which you could get by digging and you hadn't a shovel and no money to buy one with, you'd have to raise money! That's where we are! We have to get at the pot of Gold, and then—those who have stock will be fortunate, and those who haven't will wish they had. Come, or send in and investigate.

IRON MOUNTAIN GOLD MINING CO.

GEN. A. P. CURRY, President, W. D. VINCENT, Treasurer, Cashier Old Nat Bank, WILLIS H. MERRIAM, Sec. and Att'y
Capital $50,000. One Million Shares, par value 5c per share
FULLY PAID AND NON-ASSESSABLE

We have already completed over 100 feet development work, 70 feet of which consists of surface work such as cross-cuts, shallow shafts, etc. prospecting to decide the best place to sink our main or working shaft. This has been found to be on the "Big 3" or centre claim, and we are now down 30 feet and still pushing the work as fast as four practical miners and dynamite can possibly accomplish. Remember, we have three full claims, to wit: "Big 3," "Victor" and "Will o' the Wisp," situated on Iron Mountain in the Kerrick mining district, Ferry county, Washington, six miles southeast of the famous Republic mine, and that there is a big ledge of porphyritic quartz crisscrossing all the three claims lengthwise from north to south and cropping for over 2,700 feet, and surface assays furnished $6 to $9 in free gold.

Our manager writes us, under date of March 1, 1900, that at a depth of 30 feet in our proposed main shaft he is working in 4 feet of fine quartz and is widening as depth is acquired. He also says: "I am confident that a shaft 100 feet deep will prove this property nearly as good as, if not equal to any of the great mines of the Republic. "Camp showing that the Republic had at the same depth."

The company now offer 50,000 shares of treasury stock (NON-ASSESSABLE) AT THE LOW PRICE OF 1-2 CENTS PER SHARE, in order to raise funds to push the work with additional force.

There are 300,000 shares in the treasury and the above is the first offered for sale. The company being a reliable one, and with such a phenomenal showing on their properties, it should induce immediate investment, so don't delay the price will positively be raised when this block is sold, every dollar we spend means greater depth to our shaft, wider lead and higher assays. DON'T MISS THIS. IT'S A WINNER. Send your orders at once to the secretary.

SCAVENGER OF THE VELDT.

The Aasvogel, Which Keeps the Wide Plains Clean.

Although the term "vulture" has been used for all time as a term of the vilest opprobrium, no one who knows the bird, its appearance and its habits could doubt for a moment that it expresses a depth of degradation which is barely conceivable. And yet the vulture does a great deal of good in acting as the scavenger of the veldt. But for his quick eye, carion taste and love of dead meat the disease germs in the carcasses of dead oxen would be far more prolific and dangerous. Throughout South Africa is found the aasvogel. Go anywhere you like on the veldt, and sooner or later—and in all probability the former—you will find the remains of his ghastly meal. There are hundreds of thousands of oxen used in the transport and trekking service. Many of them die from exhaustion, want of water or cruelty from their Boer masters. Or they may eat of the poisonous tulip, a bulbous plant growing in marshy places.

A hunter, or teamster, soon knows if any one or more of his oxen have been eating tulip. The neck of the ox swells, his eyes close up, he gives short, sharp coughs, and his case is generally hopeless. Sometimes, however, he may be saved, and this by a peculiar, homeopathic sort of remedy. If the bulb of the tulip plant is crushed into pulp, mashed with hot water and forced boiling hot down the throat of the ox he may recover. The quickness of the eye of the aasvogel is simply astounding. An ox falls out of the team, evidently ill. He is outspanned from his yoke fellow, and he goes down to the spruit, or stream. The sky above and away to the horizon on all sides is absolutely clear and cloudless.

Hardly has the breath left the body of the poor ox than you may observe far, far away up in the sky a tiny black speck, then another and another and another, until there are 20 of them. Gradually they get larger and larger, circling round in ever diminishing circles all the while they descend. The dead ox forms the center of the circumference of their flight. Within a few minutes the grisly horde swoop down upon the still warm beast and commence their ghastly task. An hour afterward there is nothing in the spruit but a bundle of bleached white bones that might have been there for months. The sky is clear and speckless again. The aasvogel has scavenged the veldt.

Whittier's Predicament.
Whittier held "Gall Hamilton" (AM-gall Dodge) in the highest esteem, and the letters that passed between them are really most delightful. Here is one of the series in "The Ladies' Home Journal" that is truly characteristic of Whittier. It was written in 1868:

"I must tell thee something droll. Last week the Amoskeag veterans from New Hampshire and a Massachusetts company, with military bands, came and paraded before our house, and Governor Smyth of New Hampshire and one or two officers called on me. When they left and I stepped out to see them civilly off, the men in epaulets got up a grand military salute, with music and three cheers to wind up with! Was ever a Quaker in such a predicament? I did, I fear, somewhat compromise myself by lifting, almost involuntarily, my hand to my hat. But I resisted the temptation and only pulled my hat lower down over my brows by way of testimony."

India Rubber Industry.
The bulletin of the Royal gardens, Kew, states that the falling off in the production of India rubber at Lagos is due to the reckless way in which the trees are being exhausted. There is a want of control over the collectors, who tap young trees and destroy whole rubber forests by overworking, so that the industry, which is an important source of wealth to the colony, is in danger of extinction. A similar disaster occurred in Madagascar, and now active steps are being taken to preserve the industry by the establishment of plantations of rubber producing plants.

MY FIRE.

It starts;
A drowsy eyelash from the eum.
A golden, leaf-shaped, dancing thing,
Bending fernlike in a magic breeze,
And grows
And mops the virgin forest's strength
With writhing, biting arms,
And with its red jaws through the gloom
Cuts cliff shadows round the room,
And, waxing still,
It lashes round the knotted wood
With soft but cruel stings,
Till, gorged with strength, it fades away
Beneath a coverlet of gray,
And now,
Like molten sunset from the west,
Pulsates as with living breath
Till, dying midst the bones its greed has made,
Its heart is still and alone mark the grave.

INK AS A WITNESS.

Results in One Case Which Amazed the Attorneys.

In a case in the supreme court it was alleged that interlinations had been made in the papers after they were filed, and the papers were submitted to expert chemists to decide whether the interlinations had been made after the papers were filed or at the time the paper was drawn. The process followed by the chemists was simple, though tedious.

Hypochloride of soda was the only chemical used by the expert, but the result was the same as that arrived at by the other experts. Tests were made on each line of the document. The soda bleached the ink, and, as the writing in some parts was done many years ago, the first drop of soda was placed on a line which was not in controversy. The writing slowly faded, and it was 51 seconds before it was bleached.

A drop on another interlineation faded the writing in 40 seconds, on another in 51 seconds, and the interlinations made when the paper was first written faded in about 50 seconds on an average. Suddenly the ink of one of the interlinations faded in 15 seconds, and the conclusion was at once reached that it was fresher ink than the others, as the ink had not had time to thoroughly permeate the fiber of the paper.

Several interlinations were found to fade in from 13 to 16 seconds, and these were marked as having been made at a more recent date.

After all interlinations had been so marked, the next step was to ascertain as nearly as possible at what date the interlinations were made, and for this purpose many manuscripts in which similar ink was used on the same kind of paper were taken. The exact date of the writing of each manuscript was known, and soda was dropped on each, beginning with the date of writing of the manuscript in controversy. The time necessary to fade the ink gradually decreased from 52 and 50 seconds as the soda was dropped on the manuscripts of more recent years.

When the fading took place in 20 seconds, manuscripts but a month apart in writing were used, and the fading in 14 and 15 seconds was thus fixed in a certain month. The examining chemists knew nothing of the points in the controversy, and the report was made that certain interlinations were probably made in the specified month. The attorneys in the case were amazed, as the month named was that in which they believed the more recent writing had been done.—Indianapolis Press.

Uses For Bicycles.

There are many uses to which an old cycle can be put. It is said that a theatrical manager has made rather an excellent chandelier out of his old wheel. He also uses an old tricycle for producing the effect of wind, hail and railway trains. A navy is said to have made a clock almost all out of parts of an old machine. The bell strikes the hours, and a length of solid rubber tire holds the pendulum, which is a bicycle fork. At one small place man has turned a discarded wheel into a kind of pump, and the three do duty for the pipe hose. Another has made a treadle sewing machine out of his wheel. A grocer has turned part of a cycle into a coffee grinding machine, and a bell ringer, being rather feeble in the arm, has an old cycle which he has raised and fixed in one position, and so by a pulley arrangement he can when gently pedalling ring the bell vigorously. Many folks use their old wheels for flower stands, and there is a man who is making quite a decent living by turning old bicycles into conveyances on which washerwomen can take home the weekly load.—London Globe.

The Crusades and Embroidery.
The crusades had a marked effect on the demand for embroidery, as besides the decoration of their cloaks and pouches the kings and their followers wanted gorgeously worked hangings for their tents and heraldic banners for their banners. The last were difficult of execution, and new stitches were invented, and applique work was introduced about this time. The Spaniards are said to have learned the use of spangles and other metal and head ornaments as applied to stuffs from the Saracens. Later precious stones and pearls were used, and in 1414 Charles of Orleans spent about £40 for 900 pearls which were to be used in ornamenting a great coat on the sleeves of which were embroidered the verses of a song beginning with "Madam, I am all joyous." The musical accompaniment of the words was also embroidered.—Spectator.

Worth Seeing.

A Newcastle laborer recently resolved to treat himself to a night at the theater, and, entering the pit by the back of the orchestra, he happened to see the double bass viol set up against a music stand. Having never seen anything of the kind before, he leaned his arm on the orchestra rail and stood transfixed with amazement. The pit was filling rapidly, and an acquaintance, tapping him on the shoulder, said if he didn't take a seat they would soon be all occupied. "Wey, wey, hinny," he exclaimed excitedly, "neever heed a seat. As I want to be a look of the chap that's gann to put that fiddle onder his chin."—London Fun.

Bad Enough.

Patient—It is such a terrible thing to die of consumption!
Doctor—Perhaps you would like to have me call in other physicians in consultation?

Patient—No, I don't know that a complication of diseases would be any better to die of.—Detroit Journal.

A 5-year-old boy fell out of a third story window in Paris, and his life was saved by his falling on a man wearing a silk hat.

Glimpses of South Africa.

Peace and in War—A splendid lot of views.

South Africa, that enormous expanse of tropically verdant territory extending from the Zambesi River to the Cape of Good Hope, has for a century or more lain dormant to the eyes of the civilized world. Only within the past two decades has public attention been drawn to the wonderful natural resources and mineral wealth of this wild and rugged land, and yet, within this period, marvelous creation of brilliant modern cities have supplanted the desert lands and haunts of savage tribes. The steady march of civilization, the all-pervading ambition to accumulate the wealth of diamonds and gold that lay beneath the crust of this bright land, has borne its part in the metamorphosis and led to the world the wonderful possibilities of that "Dark Continent" for the energy and enterprise that the 20th century will bring to light.

In no other country of the world has progress been marked with such adversity and strife as Africa. From the time the early Dutch settlers landed in the Cape Colony up to the present, there has existed almost a constant state of warfare; the natives disputing the advance of the Dutch and they in turn resenting the incursions of civilization. In spite of this, so strenuous were the efforts of the colonists in their determination to turn to account the beauties and resources of the land, that their adoption of that-to-day they enjoy the fruits of their successes in a paradise of tropical vegetation, a salubrious climate and surrounded by the highest advantages of intellectuality and luxuries of civilization.

Cape Town is the metropolis and seat of government of the Cape Colony. Its historical past and present is firmly linked in the traditions of the early Dutch and the Huguenots. True, the old forts and buildings of distinctive Dutch architecture still remain, but the progress of the war, and so eager the thirst for information, coupled with the demand for a pictorial history incident to the scenes of warfare, that the publication of "Glimpses of South Africa" has been undertaken upon a scale of grandeur, fidelity and completeness never before thought of, involving as it has an expense of extraordinary magnitude.

In order that the work might be absolutely reliable and thorough in its character, the publishers have contracted for its authorship with Mr. Wynne Fleming, an Africaner whose authority upon South African matters is world-wide acknowledged. This gentleman—born in the Cape Colony, having traveled over nearly every inch of the country south of the Zambesi River and lived in South Africa for nearly thirty years, with an extensive newspaper experience, in Africa, England and America, the author of many interesting sketches of South African life and scenery, formerly connected with the consular service at Port Elizabeth, whose comments on the war have been so favorably received by the American press, and whose magnificent collection of photographs will appear in this work—will present South Africa as it is to-day, with views of everything of public interest, including most of the important scenes of battle and a graphically illustrated description of each stage in the progress of the war.

Port Elizabeth is the Liverpool of South Africa. It is a great commercial centre, coupled with some of the largest shipping interests in the world; a city of the most modern type, essentially English in character, and possessing some of the largest and most magnificent buildings and public institutions in South Africa.

Natal is the beautiful, tropical Garden Colony. Its luxuriant vegetation and glorious climate, its wide avenue of trees and fine buildings, the native Zulu servants and the picturesque costumes of the Orientals lend an air of peace and tranquility, while the marks of civilization and progress are in evidence at every turn.

Johannesburg, the Golden, with its fine architectural creations, public institutions and parks possesses many attractions that easily place it as the foremost city of South Africa. Its great industry, mining, the apparent inexhaustible veins of gold-bearing quartz, in which upwards of seven hundred millions of dollars are invested, have been the attraction for the thousands and thousands of "Uitlanders" whose "grievances" are substantially the cause for the cruel war between Briton and Boer, the battles of which have been ranked as the "bloodiest of the century."

This great work is published in serial form, and when complete will comprise the most magnificent collection of photographic reproductions of the British-South African war and South African life in general. Portfolios distributed by the Morning Times. For particulars see announcement in another page of this issue.

Will be at Oriental Hotel Peterborough on Saturday April 21.

QUEER MARRIAGE CUSTOMS.

Young Bulgarian Peasants Arrange Nuptials by Proxy.

There are few places within the limits of civilization that boast of more interesting marriage customs than Bulgaria. Every young peasant wishes to marry as early as possible, as he is of little importance in the community until he has a wife. But he is not in danger of forming an alliance in opposition to his parents' wishes, as his earnings belong to them until he is wedded, and his wife must be bought and paid for according to their station in life. The parents usually give him the necessary sum as soon as they can afford it, so that the restriction is less galling than it seems.

A "wife purchase" varies from $200 to $1,500, in proportion to the wealth of the contracting families, for the marriage is strictly a family affair. In addition to this sum a smaller amount is given to the bride's mother for her personal use.

After the pecuniary arrangements have been made by the proxies the betrothal takes place on either a Wednesday or Thursday. It consists of the exchange of written pledges regarding the sum to be paid by the bridegroom on the one hand and the household furnishings to be supplied by the bride on the other.

Kings then are blessed by the priest and exchanged by the couple, the fiancée kisses the hands of the guests assembled and retires with her young friends to a feast prepared in another room. The young people then dance outside the house and sing.

The fiancée's presents are then produced and their value estimated by the father of the bride. These consist of shoes, headbands and necklace of coins, silver belt, bracelets and other jewelry. The father usually regards their value as insufficient, probably to enhance his daughter's worth in her suitor's eyes, and the lover adds coin by coin until an agreement is reached. The marriage does not take place until six months after the betrothal.

During the week preceding the day set for the wedding the house for the young couple is furnished by the bride's parents. Then her home is cleaned and white-washed and every hidden store brought out for decoration. Cakes are made and sent around as invitation cards, requesting the recipients to come to the wedding on Sunday, the invariable wedding day. The articles composing the trousseau are hung up for inspection on cords stretched across the principal room on Friday by the female part of the community. On the following day two of the bride's friends come to help her dress her hair, plaiting it in minute braids, not to be undone until after the ceremony. Then the village maids come with gifts of sweets and flowers, and all sit down on the floor to a dinner of vegetables.

On Sunday the bride is seated in state in all her gorgeous apparel, and with a spangled red veil over her face, to be seen of all the village folk. She wears all the ornaments given by her fiancé and as many more as she possesses. The religious ceremony is that of the Greek church and may take place in the church or in the home of the bridegroom's father. After its performance the party returns to the home of the bride's parents, where the wedding feast is held. Singing and dancing follow until time to escort the bride to her new home.—New York Tribune.

He Was Very Humble.

The Detroit Free Press tells of a disappointed office seeker who at last obtained a gift through a late war humbly. When he arrived at Washington, it was with the idea that he was a distinguished and prominent citizen; but after hanging about and swallowing disappointment, he began to suspect that he was not so very important after all.

Then he thought of home and the means of getting there and sought out Colonel Blank, the passenger agent of a certain railroad.

"I say, colonel," he remarked persuasively, "I want to go home."

"Why don't you go?"

"No money. Can't you give me a pass?"

The colonel stiffened.

"We give passes to nobody," said he.

The countenance of the disappointed candidate brightened with a smile of humility.

"Well, colonel," he pleaded, "can you give me one?"

The colonel admitted the force of the argument and gave the pass.

A Roofed Lake.

A roofed lake is certainly a novelty. We read much of them in fiction. Lakes are made to exist in cave and subterranean passages, but rarely do we hear of such in fact. However, such a thing as a roofed lake does exist, and this is not subterranean. There is a lake at Otdorsk, in Siberia, nine miles wide and 17 miles long. Time was when the rapid evaporation of the water left great salt crusts floating on the surface which gradually came together and formed into a gigantic cake. The water of the lake still further evaporated, but the cake of salt kept its level, thus forming a roof to the lake. Another lake on the Mangishlak Peninsula, in the Caspian sea, is similar roofed with salt crystals and is of such consistency as to permit of man and beast crossing over them with safety.

YOUR BODIES ARE TEMPLES.

You believe that statement. But you only realize in part the obligations implied by it. Do you keep that temple of the body clean? If not, the defilement attaches to every service of the temple. Disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, affects the mind as well as the body. The dull mind stupefied by poisonous gases, enters on its service without desire, and accomplishes it without delight. A healthy body and a clear mind result from the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It removes the clogging and poisonous impurities from the stomach, stimulates the flow of the juices necessary to digestion and increases the blood supply in quality and quantity. The "Discovery" is strictly a temperance medicine and contains no alcohol or whisky, cocaine, nor other narcotic.

"I had suffered from indigestion and only those who have suffered from it know what it really is," writes Mrs. M. J. Fagan, of 1613 East Genesee Street, Syracuse, N. Y. "I had had severe attacks of heart and disease with cold hands and feet; everything I ate distressed me, bowels were constipated and I was growing very thin and nervous. I cannot half express the bad feelings I had when I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took nine bottles of the 'Discovery.' I commenced feeling better with the first bottle and kept on improving. Now I am so strong and healthy in health my friends often speak of it."

GLIMPSES OF SOUTH AFRICA.

Peace and in War—A Spirited Lot of

Southern Africa, that enormous expanse of tropically verdant territory extending from the Zambesi River to the Cape of Good Hope, has for a century or more lain dormant to the eyes of the civilized world. Only within the past two decades has public attention been drawn to the wonderful natural resources and mineral wealth of this wild and rugged land, and yet, within this period, marvellous creation of brilliant modern cities have supplanted the desert lands and haunts of savage tribes. The steady march of civilization, the all-pervading ambition to accumulate the wealth of diamonds and gold that lay beneath the crust of this beguiling land, each has borne its part in the metamorphosis and beaded to the world the wonderful possibilities of that "Dark Continent" for the energy and enterprise that the 20th century will bring to light.

In no other country of the world has progress been marked with such adversity and strife as Africa. From the time the early Dutch settlers landed in the Cape Colony up to the present, there has existed almost a constant state of warfare; the natives disputing the encroachment of the Dutch and they in turn resenting the inroads of civilization. In spite of this, so strenuous were the efforts of the colonists in their determination to turn to account the beauties and resources of the land of their adoption, that today they enjoy the fruits of their successes in a paradise of tropical vegetation, a salubrious climate and surrounded by the highest advantages of intellectuality and luxuries of civilization.

Cape town is the metropolis and seat of government of the Cape Colony. Its historical past and present is firmly linked in the traditions of the early Dutch and the Huguenots. True, the old forts and buildings of distinctly Dutch architecture still remain, but nestled in South Africa and the progress of the war, and so eager the thirst for information, coupled with the demand for a Pictorial History of South Africa, has been undertaken upon a scale of grandeur, fidelity and completeness never before thought of, involving as it has an expense of extraordinary magnitude.

In order that the work might be absolutely reliable and thorough in its character, the publishers have entrusted for its execution with Mr. Wymble Flemming, an Africaner whose authority upon South African matters is world-wide acknowledged. This gentleman—born in the Cape Colony, having travelled over nearly every inch of the country south of the Zambesi River and lived in South Africa for nearly thirty years, with an extensive newspaper experience, in Africa, England and America, the author of many interesting sketches of South African life and history, formerly connected with the consular service at Port Elizabeth, whose comments on the war have been so favorably received by the American press, and whose magnificent collection of photographs will appear in this work—will present South Africa as it is to-day, with views of everything of public interest, including most of the important scenes of battle and a graphically illustrated description of each stage in the progress of the war. Port Elizabeth is the Liverpool of South Africa. It is a great commercial centre, coupled with some of the largest shipping interests in the world; a city of the most modern type, essentially English in character, and possessing some of the largest and the most architecturally magnificent buildings and public institutions in South Africa.

Natal is the beautiful, tropical Garden Colony. Its luxuriant vegetation and glorious climate, its wide avenue of trees and fine buildings, the native Zulu natives and the picturesque costumes of the Orientals lend an air of peace and tranquillity, while the marks of civilization and progress are everywhere at every turn.

Johannesburg, the Golden, with its fine architectural public institutions and parks, possesses many attractions that easily place it as the foremost city of South Africa. Its great industry, mining, the apparently inexhaustible veins of gold-bearing quartz, in which upwards of seven hundred million dollars are invested, have been the attraction for the thousands and thousands of "Uitlanders" whose "grievances" are substantially the cause for the cruel war between Briton and Boer, the battles of which have been ranked as the "Maelstrom of the century."

This great work is published in serial form, and when complete will comprise the most magnificent collection of photographic reproductions of the British-Boer and South African battles obtainable in this country. For those distributed by the Morning Times. For particulars see advertisement on another page of this issue.

Will be at Oriental Hotel Peterborough on Saturday April 21.

QUEER MARRIAGE CUSTOMS.

Young Bulgarian Peasants Arrange Nuptials by Proxy.

There are few places within the limits of semicivilization that boast of more interesting marriage customs than Bulgaria. Every young peasant wishes to marry as early as possible, as he is of little importance in the community until he has a wife. But he is not in danger of forming an alliance in opposition to his parents' wishes, as his earnings belong to them until he is wedded, and his wife must be bought and paid for according to their station in life. The parents usually give him the necessary sum as soon as they can afford it, so that the restriction is less galling than it seems. A "wife purchase" varies from $200 to $1,500, in proportion to the wealth of the contracting families, for the marriage is strictly a family affair. In addition to this sum a smaller amount is given to the bride's mother for her personal use. After the pecuniary arrangements have been made on either a Wednesday or Thursday, it consists of the exchange of written pledges regarding the sum to be paid by the bridegroom on the one hand and the household furnishings to be supplied by the bride on the other.

Kings then are blessed by the priest and exchanged by the couple, the fiancée kisses the hands of the guests assembled and retires with her young friends to a feast prepared in another room. The young people then dance outside the house and sing. The fiancée's presents are then produced and their value estimated by the father of the bride. These consist of shoes, headbands and necklaces of coral, silver belt, bracelets and other jewelry. The father usually regards their value as insufficient, probably to enhance his daughter's worth in her suitor's eyes, and the lover adds coin by coin until an agreement is reached. The marriage does not take place until six months after the betrothal.

During the week preceding the day set for the wedding the house for the young couple is furnished by the bride's parents. Then her home is cleaned and whitewashed and every hidden store brought out for decoration. Cakes are made and sent around as invitation cards, requesting the recipients to come to the wedding on Sunday, the inevitable wedding day. The articles composing the trousseau are hung up for inspection on cords stretched across the principal room on Friday by the feminine part of the community. On the following day two of the bride's friends come to help her dress her hair, plaiting it in minute braids, not to be done until after the ceremony. Then the village mads come with gifts of sweets and flowers, and all sit down on the floor to a dinner of vegetables.

On Sunday the bride is seated in state in all her gorgeous apparel, and with a splendid retinue of her friends, to be seen of all the village folk. She wears all the ornaments given by her fiancé and as many more as she possesses. The religious ceremony is that of the Greek church and may take place in the church or in the home of the bridegroom's father. After its performance the party returns to the home of the bride, where the wedding feast is held. Singing and dancing follow until time to escort the bride to her new home.—New York Tribune.

He Was Very Humble.

The Detroit Free Press tells of a disappointed office seeker who at last obtained a gift through a late war humbly. When he arrived at Washington, it was with the idea that he was a distinguished and prominent citizen; but after hanging about and swallowing disappointments, he began to suspect that he was not so very important after all. Then he thought of home and the means of getting there and sought out Colonel Blank, the passenger agent of a certain railroad. "I say, colonel," he remarked persuasively, "I want to go home."

"Why don't you go?"

"No money. Can't you give me a pass?"

The colonel stiffened.

"We give passes to nobody," said he.

The countenance of the disappointed candidate brightened with a smile of humility.

"Well, colonel," he pleaded, "then give me one. I'm nobody."

The colonel admitted the force of the argument and gave the pass.

A Roofed Lake.

A roofed lake is certainly a novelty. We read much of them in fiction. Lakes are made to exist in caverns and subterranean passages, but rarely do we hear of such in fact. However, such a thing as a roofed lake does exist, and this is not subterranean. There is a lake at Obdorsk, in Siberia, nine miles wide and 17 miles long. Time was when the rapid evaporation of the water left great salt crystals floating on the surface which gradually came together and formed into one gigantic cake. The water of the lake still further evaporated, but the cake of salt kept its own level, thus forming a roof to the lake. Another lake on the Mangishlak peninsula, in the Caspian sea, is similarly roofed with salt crystals which are of such consistency as to permit of man and beast crossing over them with safety.

In the use of the sword in cavalry fighting the point is considered more deadly, the cut more disabling. The cavalry fight at Llerena, in Estremadura, April 13, 1812, is an example. The fight lasted but a few minutes, for the British, charging, broke the French formation. The latter had 12 men killed and lost 128 prisoners, all suffering from sword cuts, while the English had nine men killed and 47 wounded. All the killed were slain by the "point" and the wounded practically in every case had received their injuries by the "cut." Napoleon was a great believer in the point. At the battle of Wagram he shouted to his cuirassiers as they passed him at the trot, "No sabering; give point! give point!" and kept plunging his sword into the air to emphasize his orders.

Considerate.

"Confound it," said the patient, "you have pulled a sound tooth and left the one that ached."

"Never mind, madam," said the dentist, "there will be no extra charge under the circumstances, although a sound tooth is harder to pull."—Boston Transcript.

In the Category of Poetry.

"Being I am associated with the news," said the office cat, as it tumbled into the editor's watchman, "I thought I would drop into poetry."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

YOUR BODIES ARE TEMPLES.

You believe that statement. But you only realize in part the obligations implied by it. Do you keep that temple of the body clean? If not, the defilement attaches to every service of the temple. To digest the food and other organs of digestion and nutrition, affects the mind as well as the body. The dull mind stupefied by poisonous gases, enters on its service without desire, and accomplishes it without delight. A healthy body and a clear mind result from the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It removes the clogging and poisonous impurities from the stomach, stimulates the flow of the juices necessary to digestion and increases the blood supply in quality and quantity. The "Discovery" is strictly a temperance medicine and contains no alcohol or whisky, neither opium, cocaine, nor other narcotic.

"I had suffered from indigestion and only those who have suffered from it know what it really is," writes Mrs. M. J. Fagan, of East Green Street, Syracuse, N. Y. "I had had severe attacks of headache and dizziness with cold hands and feet; everything I ate distressed me, bowels were constipated and I was growing very thin and nervous. I cannot half express the bad feelings I had when I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took nine bottles of the 'Discovery' and commenced feeling better with the first bottle and kept on improving. Now I am so greatly improved in health my friends often speak of it."

NECESSARY REMOUNTS REACH SOUTH AFRICA

Everything Now Points to the Early Advance of British Force Now at Bloemfontein

HEAVY RAINS SOLVE PROBLEM OF WATER SUPPLY

Every Dam in the Surrounding Country is Filled With Water and the Troops Will Now be Able to Move in Any Direction and Have a Good Supply.

London, April 20. The Bloemfontein correspondent of the Morning Post, telegraphing Wednesday, says: "This city of canards has been breeding impossible peace rumors during the last few days. Everyone now awaits eagerly the announcement of a renewed advance. The latest arrivals of remounts show an improvement on the earlier arrivals."

London, April 20. A despatch to the Morning Post from Kimberley, dated Wednesday, says: "Lord Methuen has issued a proclamation forbidding civilians to carry arms without military permits, and ordering rebels to surrender all serviceable modern arms by May 6."

At present the military here are mainly occupied in collecting arms and arresting rebels, but everything points to an early resumption of activity."

Bloemfontein, April 19. During the last ten days there has been constant rain and an enormous quantity of water has fallen, these conditions, although extremely uncomfortable so far as the soldiers are concerned, have had their advantages, for every dam in the country round about is filled, and the question of water, which hitherto during the march of the army has been one of great difficulty, is now practically solved.

The troops will be able to move in any direction with a certainty of finding a sufficient supply of water.

The whole regular and volunteer drafts have arrived and the Highland Brigade is now up to full strength.

Lady Roberts and her daughters have arrived at Bloemfontein.

London, April 20. The Bloemfontein correspondent of the Daily Chronicle telegraphing Thursday, says: "The requisite remounts and equipments have arrived, and all the infantry divisions are supplied with tents. The Boers in the immediate neighborhood dare quiet, but the rest are steadily preparing for the coming struggle. Lord Roberts is now ready. Several lots of concealed arms and ammunition have been discovered here this week. The epidemic of fever is abating."

CARRINGTON AT BEIRA.

Expedition into Rhodesia Lands in Portuguese East Africa.

London, April 19.—The arrival of Gen. Carrington at Beira, Portuguese East Africa, and a reiteration of the report that the Boers intended blowing up the Johannesburg mines are the only items of news that mark today's war cables. Weeks must elapse before General Carrington will be able to concentrate his force on the borders of the Transvaal or approach Mafeking. According to a rumor in circulation at Lorenzo Marques a Boer force has been sent to intercept General Carrington, but it is not thought to be of sufficient strength to cause anxiety.

Fears for Mines.

The Natal Mercury is responsible for the renewed fears concerning the mines, printing accounts from newly-arrived refugees saying elaborate preparations for the destruction of all the Johannesburg shafts have been carried out under the supervision of the State mining engineer, who is alleged to have requisitioned all the copper wire in the town for the purpose of making connections.

The Bloemfontein despatches remain full of trivial details, but are absolutely silent as to the future.

Boers Disconcerted.

According to a despatch from Ladysmith, dated day-day, the Boers are much disconcerted by the present condition of affairs. Their fortifications and forces, numbering about fifteen thousand men, are spread over fifteen miles in contemplation of a British advance through the Wesselsburg Valley, north of Ladysmith, which has not been occupied. The Boer patrols are very active and are constantly laying traps.

Trading Resumed.

A proclamation issued at Cape Town to-day allows trading between Cape Colony and the occupied portions of the Orange Free State to be resumed. A patrol of Cape Police near Hoshof yesterday captured two Boers, some oxen, wagons and two hundred head of cattle.

Two Germans who recently arrived at Cape Town have been sentenced to a year's imprisonment for having suspicious possession of one hundred rifles and six hundred cordite cartridges.

WHO WILL SUCCEED LORD WOLSELEY?

The Office of Commander-in-Chief of British Army Will be Vacant in a Few Months.

London, April 19.—In a few months Lord Wolseley's term of supreme command of the army will expire and, of course, Lord Roberts is expected to fill the position; but, in the inner circles of the War Office there is a strong desire to have Lord Roberts take full charge of matters in the two Republics after the war.

Lord Roberts is not only a soldier, but his moderation, tact and foresight supply a combination of gifts that go to make a statesman; but he is not likely to remain in Africa after the war is over, but will return home to take supreme command of the army. Then Lord Kitchener, next on the ladder of fame, will take full charge of affairs in the annexed districts and may be trusted to drive ahead, over and through all difficulties. A familiar sight on the streets of London to-day is the Imperial Yeomanry, with his military cloak around him, his smart cap, his puttees, his painfully new boots of unlacquered leather, fitted with handsome spurs; but soon they will be gone, the inspection at Chelsea Barracks yesterday by the Prince of Wales, being the prelude to their departure for active service. They are a fine body of young fellows. Many of them younger sons with no alluring prospects at home are going out with the intention of settling down after the war. One far-seeing youth, the son of a Yorkshire farmer, in addition to his sword, carries with him a plough. They will form a splendid nucleus of a colony.

to 5 p.m. There were 200 Transvaalers, but our men beat them off with a loss on our side of one killed, two wounded, one of them mortally. The enemy were collecting their dead and wounded all night, and asked for a doctor and an ambulance. It is supposed that the enemy were Transvaalers who slipped into Griqualand when Lord Kitchener entered Pretoria.

BULLER TOLD AHEAD OF TIME. Manchester, April 19.—The Guardian says when it was decided to publish Lord Roberts' criticism of General Buller's operations in Natal, Buller was informed of the tenor of the Field Marshal's despatches. He took no notice of the despatches, and made no response.

WILL MEET BOER DELEGATES. The Hague, April 19.—Queen Wilhelmina will give private audiences to the Boer peace mission this afternoon. Dr. Leyds, the diplomatic agent of the Transvaal, will be present.

OFFICIALLY CONFIRMED. Ottawa, April 19.—The Militia received a cablegram stating that Pte. J. Murphy, F. Co., Quebec, had died of enteric fever.

TOO HIGHLY FAVORED. London, April 19.—The London papers are growing nervous over the rumor that Count Adalbert Sternburg,

Canada, and fully 700 men have enlisted in Germany. The men were sent to their destination secret, some of them on the regular steamers and others by other means, says Major Armes, was raised in New York, and he was engaged to perfect a scheme for making enlistments. Of course this had to be done privately and indirectly, and even so it was the British authorities objected to Armes' connection with the plan. The correspondence, however, disclosed nothing to which the British Ambassador could make complaint, despite the fact that Armes is a regular army officer.

WHY HE LIKES JOHN BULL. Ameer of Afghanistan Friendliness to Great Britain.

Chicago, April 19.—A despatch to the Tribune from London says—Mohammed Khan, a young Afghan scion, in London, for years the American scion, in London. He says the recent declaration of the Ameer's willingness to assist England was a surprise to the world at large, but was not news to his intimates. From the beginning of his reign he was exceedingly friendly to England, and frequently expressed the opinion that Afghanistan was sure of greater benefits from an alliance with England in preference to one with Russia.

When a youth, he says, the Ameer

QUEEN'S VISIT A GREAT SUCCESS.

Considered in London That a Political Triumph Has Been Won in Ireland.

London, April 19.—Information received in official circles in London represents Queen Victoria as thoroughly convinced of the political success of her visit to Ireland. It is said that Her Majesty is especially delighted by the fact that the Nationalists have been unable to bring about hostile demonstrations of any consequence. The Queen's amiable address appears completely to have won the day, at least for the time being, and she has left a profound impression on many parental hearts in Dublin by her acts of motherly affection toward the children.

When Her Majesty leaves Irish soil next week she will carry with her a collection of specimens of Irish illuminating art of the most exquisite description. Something like forty addresses of welcome have been presented to her during her visit, many of them being superbly designed.

The address of the Royal Irish Academy is done in Celtic form, the idea being taken from the inscription on the famous Ardagh chalice.

who was taken prisoner at Paardberg, has been allowed to come to England. The Pall Mall Gazette says—

"If there is any truth in the suggestion made in the House of Commons that this person is actually invited to dine within the precincts of the House of Commons by a member of the Government, the member of the Government ought to be made to know that such an act constitutes a scandal."

"It appears that this Austrian had no quarrel with England, but was out in mere light-headedness to see a little bit of fighting."

"It is our opinion that such a man should receive the least favored treatment, and, where prisoners are concerned, should be put last and not first."

South Africa now seems the magnet for authors these days, and J. M. Barrie is the latest to join the writers' colony at the front, which included, up to recently, Conan Doyle, Kipling, Richard Harding Davis, Julian Ralph, and several others.

MAJOR ARMES' DREAM.

Washington, D. C., April 19.—Major G. A. Armes, the retired cavalry officer, who is well known in Washington, said to-day he had sent to South Africa more than 25,000 men, who will join the Boers. Most of these men came from this country, but there is a large force also from spent eleven years in Russian Asia, and what he saw then convinced him that Russia meant to annex Afghanistan at the first opportunity. The Afghanists value their independence and would fight to the last to retain it.

"Russia," he said, "is bent upon extending its territory to the south, and England does not want to go further north. If we were Russia's ally we might let her pass her armies through our land, and when she goes to attack India we must surrender our passes to allow the rear guards to maintain lines of communication."

"A chance attack on these guards by some of the hillmen would at once give Russia an excuse for attacking us."

"When our strongholds are in her hands we might be at Russia's mercy, so it is to England's own interest to keep us a free people."

"We often hear talk as though it would be an easy task for Russia to overcome Herat, but in reality it would be the most difficult task Russia ever undertook."

"It would require an army of half a million men. Herat stands to-day, with 30,000 splendidly armed men ready to defend and 50,000 more within easy call."

"The finest modern ordnance, mounted on the forts, is made up of guns from Krupp, Armstrongs, Hotchkiss, and other great makers."

"It is out of the question to try to capture Afghanistan by surprise, as the Ameer has organized a great intelligence department, with agents everywhere."

TEN SICK MEN IN SECOND REGIMENT.

Mounted Rifles at Camarvon Where They Are Keeping Rebels Suppressed.

The Globe yesterday had the following special cable—

Cameroon, Cape Colony, March 21.—Via London, April 18.—The first battalion of Canadian Mounted Rifles and D. and E. Batteries of Royal Canadian Artillery, which with New Zealanders, Australians and a contingent of Imperial Yeomanry, make up Sir Chas. Pearson's column, the Canadians forming the largest part, is still halting here.

The column started on March 11th from Victoria West, to make the hardest and longest march of the war. The route to be traversed includes the Camarvon, Van Wyks Vlei, Konhardt and Preiska districts, thence back to De Aar. The country is largely alkali desert, over which all supplies, even water, have to be carried.

The Canadian 12-pounder guns have produced a sensation among the inhabitants. Small forces of the enemy are retiring. The troops are hearty, and jubilant at the thought of a possible battle.

We are leaving ten sick at the hospital, none of them serious cases, fortunately. Many of the horses have completely broken down. Surgeon-Major Worthington is the principal medical officer, and Lieut. Massey the principal veterinary officer of the column.

STRAINED RELATIONS OF UNCLE SAM AND TURKEY

The Porte Refuses to Pay Damages According to Promise and United States Insists.

AMERICAN FLEET MAY SEIZE PORT OF SMYRNA.

Great Sensation Caused in Diplomatic Circles by Firm Attitude of United States Towards Turkish Government in Demanding Payment of Damages.

Washington, April 19.—Something of a sensation has been caused in diplomatic circles here by the firm attitude assumed by the State Department towards the Turkish Government in the prosecution of its claims for damages to American missionary property.

Those members of the diplomatic body here who have watched the progress of the negotiations between the United States and Turkey for the past five years have come to look with amusement upon the alternating phases of hopes and discouragement by which they have been characterized. Three successive American ministers have prosecuted these claims; each has received a promise of prompt settlement, and yet not a dollar has been paid. With European diplomats that is an old experience, and they have consequently been somewhat surprised at the announcement that the United States is actually going to insist upon performance instead of promise.

The next step to be taken by the United States Government will not be warlike, but will still suggest, in a most dignified manner, the indignation felt by United States at the betrayal of Turkish promises. How this attitude will bear upon the Turkish Minister at Washington cannot be foretold at this moment. He is personally very popular, and his enforced departure would be regretted.

Must Pay the Bill.

The only disclosure of the day related to Minister Straus, whose leave of absence from his post has almost expired. He is not to go back to Stamboul until after Turkey has cancelled its debt of honor to this Government.

Before coming home recently Mr. Straus told the Sultan bluntly that he would remain at a post where it appeared he had not sufficient influence to collect a confessed judgement; that it was too humiliating to him to continue the accredited representative of a great nation to a Government which repudiated a just and insignificant amount.

The rupture of relations would not add to the security of American missionary establishments in the Ottoman Empire, and this fact may force the United States eventually to order a fleet to the Mediterranean of sufficient strength to overcome any forcible resistance Turkey may make to the seizure of the port of Smyrna, after the fashion of the British performance at Corinto, when Nicaragua demurred to an ultimatum.

TURKEY STILL HOLDS OUT.

Threat to Increase the Customs Duties—The Trouble with United States.

London, April 19.—Keen interest is manifested here in the threatened action of the United States against Turkey, particularly in view of the Sultan's recalcitrancy in connection with the increase in the customs duties. The fourth collective note of the Embassies objecting to an increase of three per cent. in the duties on account of the bad condition of the Turkish finances, without a previous understanding with the Powers, was handed to the Turkish Government yesterday. Turkey maintained such a firm attitude that the suspicion is growing that some covert intrigue is frustrating the effect of the note.

Something to Watch.

The St. James Gazette says—"It will be interesting to watch the game of procrastination to which Europe is accustomed, being played with the United States. America has entered the European arena, and apparently has no intention of standing any humbling from the Turks. Why should she? The Eastern question has no terrors for a power with a whole ocean between herself and the Balkans. The President thinks the Sultan has had grace enough. But if America sets foot in Asia Minor, perhaps she will find that neither Russia or Germany will be uninterested spectators. From ourselves she will get nothing but sympathy and good will."

The Pall Mall Gazette says—"Abdul and the statesman are quite used to dodging around each other without damage to anybody, but the brusque hurry of the American Government must be rather disconcerting. These Americans so far from playing a game are positively talking of seizing Smyrna."

The papers generally think Abdul Hamid will pay up.

What the Minister Says.

New York, April 19.—About the threatened trouble between the United States and Turkey, the Herald's Washington correspondent quotes All Ferrough Bey, the Turkish Minister to the United States, as saying—

"I am sure that had the Sultan given his promise to pay an immediate settlement would have been made. I am of the opinion that in the translation of his remarks the Dragoman misinterpreted his language, conveying to the Minister the promise of what he speaks, instead of a declaration that an enquiry would be made of the proper executive department."

GRAVE CONSEQUENCES.

London, April 19.—A Vienna despatch to the Times says—"By further resistance to the claim of the United States, the Sultan exposes himself to grave consequences which he has probably not foreseen. The United States is not accustomed to lodge in empty threats. What will be done in case of its demand should not be promptly complied with has doubtless been already decided. If the Sultan for one moment supposes he would protection from any of the European powers, let him think of Spain."

OUR FRIENDS FROM CHICAGO.

And How They Got Into the Transvaal—A Letter from Miss Barton.

Washington, April 19.—United States Consul Hay at Pretoria, has notified the State Department by cable of the reported action of the Chicago Ambulance Corps, in taking up arms in the Boer army, instead of continuing with the hospital corps to which they had pledged themselves upon leaving the United States.

Apparently the Portuguese authorities at Lorenzo Marques had doubts as to the actual neutrality of these men, for the party was detained many days at the port before they were allowed to proceed by rail to Pretoria. The despatches stated that in a letter from Miss Barton turned the tide in their favor.

Miss Barton was said to have declared that certain members of the party were known to her and believed them to be going under true colors.

The officials here say that nothing can be done by the Government to prevent such violations of faith as are reported from South Africa.

COURT-MARTIAL REBELS.

Cape Town, April 19.—The Coleridge Advertiser says it has the highest authority for stating that the British Government contemplates granting no amnesty to colonial rebels and indicates that it has decided to try and court-martial every person convicted of treason.

Another Gain for Martini.

Vancouver, April 19.—The Victoria Conservatives are going to hold another meeting, to rescind their resolution in favour of party lines. Vancouver Conservatives are hopelessly divided between Tupper and Wilson. Cotton's attempt to start a new Provincial party has failed.

Meanwhile Premier Martin is steadily gaining ground. It is expected that MacPherson, Vancouver's labor member in the late Legislature, will support him. Smith Currier, Minister of Mines, has a splendid reception at Agassiz. The Columbian, representative of the whole Fraser Valley, appears to be about to flip to Martin's side. It controls the big farmer vote. Martin's meeting at Warnock, on the Fraser river, was a big success.

Many Years Near the Pole.

New York, April 19.—The Peary Arctic Club to-day sent to the museum of the Royal Naval College at Greenwich, England, and in accordance with instruction from the Lords of the Admiralty, the sextant left at Repulse Harbour, Greenland, in 1876, by Lieut. (now Admiral) Beaumont, Royal Navy, and brought thence to Fort Conger in 1882, by the late Lieut. James H. Lockwood on his return from his farthest north expedition, and recovered by Civil Engineer Robert E. Barry, U.S.N., in May last.

With the sextant was sent the original record deposited by Capt. (now Admiral) Sir George Nares, commanding the expedition, in a cairn on Norton Lockyer Island in 1875. Both sextant and record are of excellent preservation, and show but little trace of their exposure of almost a quarter of a century to the elements of the Arctic. The articles are to be transmitted through Alfred C. Harnsworth, of the London Daily Mail, honorary member of the Peary Arctic Club.

Blair's Plans Talk.

Ottawa, April 19.—At the Railway Committee this morning the first order called was the Thousand Island and Railway Bill, which extends an old charter owned by the Rathbun Company for a line from Gananoque to the G. and N. and in which powers are given to generate electricity, acquire and work mines, deal in patent rights, etc. Hon. A. G. Blair laid down the principle that it was time to refuse giving general powers to railway companies. There were numerous objections to the combination of railway and commercial business. It interferes with the application of the Railway Act. Hitherto it had been the exception to grant such powers to railway companies. Now there was a danger of its becoming a rule. The time had come to make a decided stand. Mr. Clarke recommended striking out the clause. A long discussion ensued upon the principle involved, and Mr. Blair again insisted that railway bills should be confined to railway enterprises alone. The bill was reported, with slight verbal amendments.

The Quebec Southern Railway Bill to incorporate a company to run the United Counties Railway, was taken up. Mr. Brodeur said switchmen, station agents and other labourers had not been paid by the United Counties Railway when it was sold by the sheriff. He wanted a clause providing for their being paid.

Mr. Blair moved that a clause be added providing that the franchise should only be acquired on the payment of wages due to operating servants of the line. The committee adjourned with the bill undisturbed.

WOOD PULP PAPER.

THE COMPLICATED PROCESS BY WHICH IT IS PRODUCED.Now the Big Trees From the Forests Are Turned Into Half Ton Rolls
of the Finished Material, Ready
For the Newspaper Press.

The United States is in almost all respects the greatest paper making country in the world—in the amount of capital invested, the value of output, the actual per capita quantity consumed, natural facilities and superiority of many of its methods and products. There are over 1,000 paper and pulp mills of all kinds in the United States, making almost every variety of paper and pulp made anywhere in the world.

There are several hundred millions of dollars capital invested in the making and distribution of paper. When we consider that upward of 2,500,000 tons of paper are produced annually and that in general every ton of paper means at least three tons of freight and finally consider that the production of paper is more generally distributed over the whole country than any other leading industry, the importance of the paper industry to every section of the country is apparent. The total value of all kinds of paper made annually in this country, by the time it reaches the consumer, is probably $150,000,000, ranging all the way from $20 to $300 a ton.

News paper is made principally of wood, of which American forests furnish an almost inexhaustible supply. Wood was used first for making news paper, but has now extended to other grades. Considering only news paper, the change in materials has been from rag exclusively to a mixture of rags in small proportions and straw in large proportions, then to a substitution of wood for straw. This wood comes from the forests where only the larger trees are cut, allowing all below a fixed diameter to remain standing so as not to check the growth of the species. It is then brought either by river or rail to the pulp mill. Here it is first prepared by cutting it into suitable lengths for handling and manipulating, and then the bark is removed by a machine which consists of great disks composed of radial knives which remove with lightninglike rapidity. There are other ingenious machines for automatically handling and preparing the wood from the time it is taken from the water until it is ready to be made into pulp.

This is done by forcing the wood under the almost human guidance of hydraulic machinery upon grinders which are turned with great force and rapidity, some pulp paper mills requiring more power than the great manufacturing city of Lowell, Mass. As the wood is pressed with the slightest degree of uniformity upon the grinders under a continual flow of water which prevents the wood from burning a mixture of wood and water emerges from the machine, making a mass not unlike gruel in appearance and consistency, and yet so carefully has this process been performed that only the microscope can detect any variation in the size or appearance of the minute particles of which the mass is composed. Thus the result of years of experience and practice the pulp maker has become able to disintegrate the wood in this manner without destroying the fibrous character, and the pulp does, in fact, consist of multitudes of little fibers which thus become available as a substitute in a measure for the fibers of rag.

Finally the mass which was used in connection with this pulp to make news paper began to be displaced by wood prepared in a more scientific way. To do this the science of chemistry came to the aid of the art of paper making. In simple language this process consists in cooking the wood in chemicals instead of grinding it, thus dissolving all the non-fibrous matter and leaving the fibers practically unimpaired, so that a fabric consisting exclusively of these fibers has almost the strength of parchment.

Before this process became perfected in this country millions of dollars were sunk in pioneer establishments, and even now the process is regarded as most difficult and subtle and in order to be commercially successful must be conducted on a very large scale. It requires great boilerlike structures, the outward shells of which are steel and which have to be lined with several successive linings of different materials so constructed as to make the interior steam tight, acid proof and able to withstand great pressure.

At this stage the process of paper making proper begins, and here is where perhaps even more technical knowledge and experience are required. The mixture of pulps prepared in the two ways described and other ingredients which give color and various other physical characteristics to the finished paper is diluted with water so as to become practically a fluid, which is then projected on to a woven wire cloth constructed with great nicety. This moves along, often at a rate of several hundred feet a minute, and as the pulp liquid falls upon it, guided by delicate mechanical devices, it spreads out evenly, and as the water is withdrawn by every known means available for the purpose, involving the principles of agitation, gravitation, capillary attraction, suction, absorption, pressure and evaporation, the fibers of the pulp gradually interweave with such absolute uniformity that only an experienced eye or delicate scientific test can determine any variation in strength or texture of the finished product.

While these processes have been going on successfully the film or sheet of paper pulp has gradually increased in density until finally it emerges as a sheet of paper, after passing over many large revolving cylinders through which steam is constantly forced under a delicately regulated pressure, creating such heat that three times as much water is evaporated as the weight of the sheet remaining. Thus a machine producing 20 tons of paper a day has to evaporate therefrom approximately 60 tons of water. Consider the vast amount of coal required to generate the necessary heat. It is estimated that the paper mills of the country use annually 3,000,000 tons of coal. After the paper is dried it is passed through massive solid steel rolls or cylinders which must be so regulated as to give just the desired degree of surface to the paper. It is then for newspaper up wound into great rolls which weigh approximately half a ton apiece.

This of course is but an outline of the process of paper making, and there are many features which render it so complicated that even the most experienced paper makers are apt to disagree in their views as to which is the proper method.

Short Story of the Day

OF MORE IMPORTANCE.

"Lady to see you, sir."

The doctor looked up from his book with a shade of annoyance crossing his face. Ladies could be seen at any time, but if he just the thread of this investigation—

"Ah, Miss Willoughby." He gave her the chair opposite, and sitting down, looked at her with grave professional interest. "Isn't it rather early for you to be out? You know I told you—"

"Yes," the girl interrupted hastily, "and I did stay in the entire time—almost."

A wave of color had swept over her face and she became conscious of it, even while he was lingering anxiously at the leaves of the book he had just been reading.

"You certainly have a good color," he remarked professionally. "No fever, I hope." And he bent forward and laid out his fingers on her wrist. "There it is again," he added musingly. "I have often noticed a peculiar irregularity about your pulse—and yet there is nothing wrong with your heart—not in the least. However, I am glad you have no fever."

And he surreptitiously snatched a glance into the book. Girls with a fine color were plentiful, but this treatment for diphtheria, if it should prove successful—

"I didn't come this time for professional advice," he heard the girl saying in a very timid manner. "I came to ask you about something."

She seemed to have lost her voice, and paused to regain it. When she raised her eyes presently he was aware of their color for the first time. They were gray, and they had black lashes. He had not noticed that before, though he had treated her professionally for some weeks.

"You must make allowance for my great loneliness," she cried out desolately. "I have no one really belonging to me—no one in the world. My guardian, Mr. Bond, is a good man—but you know how old he is and troubled about many things. Sometimes he doesn't see me for weeks at a time. The others are servants or dependents—how could I go to them with confidence and ask their advice?"

"Not to be thought of," murmured the doctor, looking at the gray eyes very steadily. Clearly there was something in the world outside of books—and perhaps an unorthodox something in hearts that he had never found with the stethoscope.

"And so I have no one," went on the desolate girl with a look of timid appeal. "And I have—have learned to know you so well—have learned to trust you—will you mind very much if I ask your advice—your friendly advice—in a matter that concerns myself alone?"

The gray eyes drew him on and made him say things that surprised him. They made him reply, without the least reference to the big books and the treatment of diphtheria.

"Why, surely I will be only glad to assist you any way in my power."

And he said it frankly and cordially too, leaning forward and looking at her with eyes that had begun to be unprofessional. Really she did have a lovely color.

"I have received an offer of marriage," she said, with her eyes down again. "You know I had a little money left me—only a few thousands—and my education and other expenses have almost exhausted that. If I don't accept this—this gentleman I must go out into the world as a breadwinner in a little while—a very few months. If I should marry him I would be very wealthy—so rich that it would almost frighten me, I think," she added, with a wistful glance at the attentive face. "My guardian has set these two alternatives before me so many times that I know them word for word. Remember that I am all alone, and tell me what to do, as you would tell your sister, or any friend for whom you cared—a little."

Her fingers were twined together in her lap, and a man who was not studying out a treatment for diphtheria would have seen how tight the clasp was. This, perhaps, would have made him delay a long time in his answer.

"These are difficult questions to decide for another," he said at last, judicially looking out of the window. "My opinion would be that it would be wiser to marry the gentleman—who is a gentleman, I take it for granted—than to go out into the struggle with the world. Personally, I don't like to see women in business if it can be avoided—and in this instance it seems that it can," he added, with a swift look at her face.

At his first calm words she had shrunk as if from a blow, and now she arose and turned toward the door, her eyes lowered.

"Thanks—you are very kind," she murmured. He saw her put out her hand and feel for the knob as though something blinded her, but he was before her, looking at the down-dropped face.

"I omitted to ask one question," he said. "Do you love this man?"

"Does it matter? No!" she replied, as she went out.

But he had seen her eyes.

He sat down at the table and looked at the page he had been reading last—looked at it until the afternoon had waned and night had set in. It is a singular fact that while the eyes of the body can go patiently reading lines and paragraphs and pages of learned treatises the eyes of the mind can be looking steadily at a gray-eyed girl with her fingers twined together in her lap. True, here is this investigation carried on successfully to this interesting point, but why was it that she went away so soon? And her eyes? Now why should there have been tears there? And she would go away and marry the rich man—he had advised it. Well, why should it concern him?

The doctor suddenly arose, leaving his books scattered on the table, and went out into the street for air—his office was insufferable. Where he was going he did not know. He was not conscious of any resolution until he found himself in the door of Miss Willoughby's little sitting-room and a girl with a very pale face rose up from the chair before the fire. Her eyes were wide with fear—what was he going to say? What had he discovered?

"I was forced to come," he said humbly. "I know you will be angry—perhaps you will be amused at the fact that I—a poor student, a physician who has his way to make yet—should dare to fix his thoughts on you, when you have an opportunity to make a wealthy and distinguished marriage. I knew at the first that there was no hope—yet I felt that I must come. It only remains for you to tell me so, yourself, and then I will go back to my work and have done with the dream."

No, it was a mistake about her having been pale; for when she leaned on the mantel with her face turned to the fire she was as rosy as the morn.

"You are too considerate to tell me outright," he said, "but I see what must be. Of course it was impossible that you could take poverty, and the struggle for life with me, when wealth and ease are offered you. It would not be possible unless you loved me so devotedly that your love would set all other considerations aside."

He paused and gazed at her miserably, and without turning she half-whispered a faint suggestion.

"I might learn," she said.

He turned white and leaned against the table for support.

"Learn—learn to love me?" he asked in a daze. "It is impossible."

"We have drawn out—I am willing to try," said the arch-hypocrite with the gray eyes.

When he went back to the office, several hours later, with the step of one who walks on air, he found a number of books scattered in most unseemly disorder on his table.

"Really, John is growing insupportable," he said to himself. "All these books lying around—but I remember now, I was studying about—oh, yes—diphtheria. Well, there's plenty of time for that."

FULLY PAID AND NON-ASSESSABLE

We have already completed over 100 feet development work, 70 feet of which consists of surface work such as cross-cuts, shallow shafts, etc. prospecting to decide the best place to sink our main or working shaft. This has been found to be on the "Big 3" or centre claim, and we are now down 30 feet and still pushing the work as fast as four practical miners and dynamite can possibly accomplish. Remember, we have three full claims, to wit: "Big 3," "Victor" and "Will of the Wisp," situated on Iron Mountain in the Burke mining district, Ferry county, Washington, six miles southeast of the famous Republic mine, and that there is a big ledge of porphyritic quartz crossing all the three claims lengthwise from north to south and cropping for over 2,700 feet, and surface assays furnished $8 to $20 in free gold.

Our manager writes us, under date of March 1, 1900, that at a depth of 30 feet in our proposed main shaft he is working in 4 feet of fine quartz and it is widening as depth is acquired. He also says: "I am confident that a shaft 100 feet deep will prove this property nearly as good as, if not equal to any of the great mines of the Republic at the same stage of development. Our latest assay from a depth of about 15 feet (main shaft) gave $16.53, "a better showing than the Republic had at the same depth."

The company now offer 50,000 shares (1 treasury stock NON-ASSESSABLE) AT THE LOW PRICE OF 1-2 CENTS PER SHARE in order to raise funds to push the work with additional force.

There are 300,000 shares in the treasury and the above is the first offered for sale. The company being a reliable one, and with such a phenomenal showing on their properties, it should induce immediate investment, so don't delay as the price will positively be raised when this block is sold; every dollar we spend means greater depth to our shaft, wider lead and bigger assays. DONT MISS THIS. ITS A WINNER. Send your orders at once to the secretary.

Samson's Talking Man.

Samson's talking man, or "tola-fall," is a character. All the affairs of state of the village in which he holds office are carried upon his shoulders. In ordinary he is the chief adviser, persuader, conciliator and restrainer of the leading chiefs.

Having the gift of eloquence, he makes the most of it. He enjoys immunity from many things. He cannot be spoken of in ordinary terms. If it should be necessary to speak of his eyes or his mouth or his limbs, special honorable words must be used, words which attach to him alone and have never been applied to the personal parts of ordinary men.

As he stands to deliver his soft, persuasive, mellifluous oratory, with staff of office in his hand and his fly duster thrown over his shoulder, any one can see that he is a man of great importance, or if this is not apparent from his attitude it may be gathered from the attention paid to his utterances by gray haired chiefs and by youths and maidens. If the talking man is a clever or fellow and understands his business, he is the chief ruling power in his tribe, although the nominal headship is always vested in a chief or patriarchal figurehead.

The bride was charmingly attired in pale blue muslin, traced with lace and chiffon and carried a bouquet of white carnations. Miss Lotie Ball assisted the bride, gown in a costume of blue and gray, and carried a bouquet of white carnations. The groom was attended by Mr. Ed. Currie of town. ## A PROGRESSIVE FINANCIAL INSTITUTION.

Eighteenth Annual Meeting of the Western Bank of Canada.

We congratulate Mr. T. H. McMillan, the cashier, and officers of the Western Bank of Canada on the result of the year's operations as set forth in the financial statement which was submitted at the eighteenth annual meeting of shareholders, held at the head office, Oshawa, on the 11th inst.

The net profits amounted to $39,025.30, or about 10 1/8 per cent. upon the average paid-up capital of the bank. From this two half-yearly dividends of 3 1/2 per cent. each were paid, and $10,000 carried to Reserve Account. During the year the deposits of the bank increased. The bank has assets readily convertible amounting to $1,242,484.83.

At the conclusion of the business the usual votes of thanks to the officers were proposed and carried. Messrs. John Cowan, R. S. Hamlin, W. F. Cowan, Dr. McIntosh, W. F. Allen, T. Patterson and J. A. Gibson were elected for the ensuing year. At a subsequent meeting of the Board, John Cowan, Esq., was elected President, and R. S. Hamlin, Esq., Vice-President.

Navigation Notes.

It is likely that the steamer Garden City, owned by Mr. Thos. Nihan, will resume her trips between Toronto and Cobourg this summer, which will afford the people cheap travelling between these ports. Last year the fare, return ticket, having been only $1.00—the five-sevenths of a cent a mile.

The steamer North King will commence running on 30th April between Rochester, Port Hope and Cobourg, leaving Charlotte at 8.50, each morning, and arriving at Cobourg at 1.20 p.m. and Port Hope at 2.30 p.m. and thence to Charlotte where she arrives at 7.15 p.m. On Saturday evenings after May the 5th, she leaves Charlotte at 7.15 p.m., calling at Brighton, Belleville, Picton and arriving at Kingston at 10 a.m. Sunday, she leaves Kingston at 5 p.m., Sunday, calling at the same ports and arriving at Charlotte at 7 p.m. on Monday morning.

The Frog Industry.

The American market for frogs' legs has in the past made money for a number of people living on the banks of the Otonabee, who may this year take note that the department of fisheries of Ontario has been considering what steps it may be necessary to take in order to give encouragement to an industry which will no doubt be one of considerable profit to those engaging in it, and likewise an additional source of revenue to the province. It is proposed in localities where the frog abounds, to establish froggeries for the cultivation of frogs for market. Peterborough should have a frogger.

Look After the Boys.

The Havelock Standard says—Our attention has been drawn to the fact that youths from the ages of 8 to 15 years are in the habit of boarding freight trains in the yard here and taking trips out of town, generally west of here, returning in the same manner, Sunday after Sunday. The dangerous work riding in empty box cars, on the bumpers and in fact any old place at all where their lives are in deadly peril. We understand that they have been repeatedly warned by constable Eaton against the practice, but he only met with insults and foul language for his pains. If Mr. Eaton would arrest a number and make an example of them as he has full authority to do so from the C.P.R., perhaps they might be brought to reason.

BACK IN THE OLD STAND.

Mr. J. D. Baple succeeds Mr. Wm. Donnell in the Planing Mill Business.

Mr. John Baple, who for two years filled the position of Market Street planing mill, has purchased the planing mill business heretofore conducted by Mr. Wm. Donnell, on Dublin street. Mr. Baple for many years carried on this business and is the right man in the right place. He has a thorough practical knowledge of the work, and is equipping the mill with all necessary machinery to cater to the requirements of the trade.

There is room for a first-class planing mill in this town, and as the new proprietor intends to place the plant in tip top shape, he will no doubt do a good business. The mill will be open for business on Monday next.

WANDERING WILLIE.

Mr. William Armour, a Peterborough Boy Circumvents the Globe.

Mr. John Armour, who resides at 851 Water street, received a letter from his son William, dated South Africa. Wm. is quite a wanderer. He was last seen by his parents nineteen years ago, when working on the steam shovel on the railway between here and Oshawa. He then went to the Georgian Bay, going from there to Winnipeg and thence to Chicago. He next found his way to Australia, where he joined the British navy, from which he deserted, and sailed for San Francisco. He jumped overboard in the harbor at this place, and saved the life of a British captain, for which he received an honourable discharge. He afterwards went to South America, and thence to China. Returning to New York, he remained a short time, and sailed for South Africa, where he now is, engaged in fighting the Boers.

The Wolf Bounties.

The proposed increase in the wolf bounty will be a move in the right direction. With the increase in deer has come an increase in their greatest enemy, the wolf. The slaughter by wolves, the Globe says, is greater than by legal and illegal hunters combined, and if the bounty can promote a war of extermination against the wolves one of the greatest difficulties of game preservation will be mitigated.

Wedded at Centerville.

A very interesting event occurred at Centerville on the 17th inst., when Miss Smithson, daughter of Mr. Wm. Smithson, of South Monaghan, was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. McClelland, of Peterborough. The wedding took place in the church, the nuptial knot being tied by Rev. J. W. McIntosh. The Times extends its hearty congratulations.

How Feet is Obtained

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I would like to know how peat fuel is procured and manufactured. When could I get a book on the subject? Who are competent to tell a good peat fuel bog? By giving the above information, you will much oblige.

A. M. RICKEY.

Campbellford, April 20th.

Ans.—Mr. A. L. Davis, Peterborough, will be able to supply information on this subject. Mr. Davis is President of a company that has valuable peat deposits near Balsam Lake. The peat we understand covers some thousands of acres, and is from a foot to several feet in thickness.

The process of manufacture is as follows: The peat is cut and air-dried, after which it is pulverized by being passed through a picker, and automatically deposited in a hopper which feeds a steel tube about two inches in diameter and fifteen inches long. The pulverized peat is forced through this tube by pressure and formed into cylindrical blocks three inches in length and almost equal to anthracite coal. The fuel is nonfriable and waterproof by reason of its solidifying and the extreme glaze imparted to it by frictional contact with forming dyes. The inherent moisture of the peat is reduced to 12 per cent. of the mass. In weight it compares with coal as follows: Eighty-three pounds per cubic foot of peat equal seventy-three pounds of bituminous or ninety-three pounds of anthracite coal.

It is claimed for peat that it is superior to coal in its absolute freedom from sulphur and the absence of smoke, soot, dust and clinkers during consumption. In a great measure this solves the problem of furnishing a cheap, clean, uniform and reliable fuel for all domestic purposes, as it is equally serviceable for grates, stoves, cooking ranges and furnaces, giving a long bright flame and intense heat almost from the moment of ignition. It has been tested in locomotives with excellent results, showing that the thermal value of 95.15 pounds of peat is equal to 95.15 pounds of coal; it was also tried at the power house of the Metropolitan Street Railway, Toronto, and gave great satisfaction. The best produced was much greater than that of the coal, but it was 8 per cent. deficient in lasting power. It requires but little draught and burns best in a shallow fire box.

The machinery used in manufacturing peat fuel is not expensive and requires but little attention when in operation.

ENEMY STILL INVESTS BRITISH AT WEPENER.

On Wednesday Last Boers Had Col. Dalgetty's Force Closely Penned In.

FEVER DECIMATES THE GARRISON AT MAFEKING.

Boers South of Bloemfontein Are Said to be Retreating—Mr. Cecil Rhodes on His Way Back to South Africa—The Censorship Even More Rigorous.

London, April 21, 4.20 a.m. General Chermide and General Rundle are moving over the sodden roads. They hold the railway and the southern frontier of the Free State with 20,000 men. How many are going with the generals who will engage the Boers at Wepener is not mentioned in the latest despatches from Doriogspoor, where the British bivouacked Wednesday night. The field telegraph ends there. On Wednesday the Boers still had Col. Dalgetty closely penned in.

The Government's reason for publishing Lord Roberts' Spion Kop despatches was explained last evening at Hull by Mr. Walter Hume-Long, President of the Board of Agriculture, who said that the country was entitled to receive all the information the Government could give. "The Government is told," said Mr. Long, "that having published the despatches, it is bound to deal immediately with the generals affected, but in following such a course the Government might have to dismiss every general the moment he made a mistake. Had such a policy been pursued in the past, many most glorious deeds would not have been performed. General White, if not required in South Africa, will become Governor of Gibraltar towards the end of May."

At Alwal North, April 20, Capt. Little, of Braden's Horse, Lieut. Holbeck and Mr. Milne, a Reuter correspondent fell into the hands of the enemy while they were trying to reach Wepener a week ago. Everything was taken from the prisoners, who were sent to Pretoria. The native servants who escaped from the Boer laager near Wepener, says that there were four guns disabled, and that the Boers had lost 100 killed alone. It is also ascertained that the Boers made a night attack on April 11, but were discovered while creeping along a deep ditch by the Cape Mounted Rifles with maxims, who fired into them at a distance of two hundred yards, with the result that the Boers lost five wagon loads of killed and wounded. A simultaneous attack in other quarters was repulsed by the British, who used their bayonets. The Boers still surround Wepener, but there has been little firing lately.

London, April 21. The Lady Smith correspondent of the Daily News says: "The Boers in Natal are already commencing a guerrilla warfare. That the Transvaalers and the Free Staters are compelling the natives to bear arms again."

Gen. Buller has ordered all the farmers between Lady Smith and the Drakensberg range to retire to Estcourt.

London, April 21. The Bloemfontein correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, telegraphing Friday, says: "The weather is now fine. The enemy still hold the waterworks, and our scouts report that the Boers have a line of outposts and small commandos 15 miles east of Bloemfontein, from the Modder River to the Kaffir River."

HAS ROBERTS ADVANCED?

Report of the Fighting at Karee Siding May be an Indication.

London, April 20.—The report of the fighting at Karee Siding, six miles north of Glen, contained in the special despatch from Bloemfontein may be the first news of the progress of the British advance on Pretoria. But even if this were only an unimportant skirmish, there are many other indications that Lord Roberts is either starting or has already started for the northern goal.

A despatch from Cape Town under today's date says: "The censorship restrictions have been greatly increased owing to the movements of the troops." All the despatches bear traces of the strenuous efforts of the correspondents to give their papers an inkling of what is afoot.

Boers Retreating.

The Boers south of Bloemfontein are reported to be retreating. Large commandos were sent April 19 near Phaba Nchu moving to the north. Their progress was slow, owing to the terrible condition of the country.

Fever at Mafeking.

By way of Pretoria comes a report that fever is decimating the Mafeking garrison, and a letter from the Mayor of Mafeking says Lord Roberts feared

LIEUT. GEN. SIR CHARLES WARREN.

BIG PARIS FAIR DON'T DRAW.

Attendance Declines Despite the Fact That the Admission Fee is Only Six Cents.

Paris, April 20.—The first royal visit was yesterday paid to the exposition. This was that of the Queen of Saxony.

The number of visitors to the Exposition shows a tendency to fall off. On Sunday the number of paying entries passing the turnstiles was over 188,000. On Monday these amounted to 123,000, and on Tuesday to 85,500. The number yesterday was even smaller, to all appearances, than the previous day.

Entries before ten o'clock in the morning, when two tickets are necessary, are also falling off. On Monday these were 7,612 and on Tuesday 938. Yesterday they were estimated at less than 500.

The market price of admission to the Exposition fell yesterday to six Canadian cents. The explanation is that the Government issued three years ago Exposition bonds carrying a total of $5,000,000 tickets. It is now estimated that the figure is hence many millions of tickets will not be used. The authorities will meet the situation by charging two, three, five or more tickets for admission on certain days and at certain hours. The charge has already been doubled for admission in the early morning and after 6 o'clock in the evening.

The appearance of the grounds is now much more unsettled than on the opening day. Many scaffolds have been erected, paths and avenues have again been torn up, and general chaos reigns as the work of construction is resumed. No simple exposition ever opened in such a state of utter unpreparedness. The construction of some of the minor buildings has only just commenced. Many of the principal structures are still incomplete, and as for the installation of the exhibits it is impossible to expect anything approaching readiness before June.

A more careful view of the grounds and buildings, however, gives an overwhelming impression of the gigantic nature of what the completed show will be. None can fail to admit that all previous international exhibitions, that of Chicago, included, will be entirely surpassed.

A YELLOW JOURNAL'S IMAGININGS.

Chicago Paper Prints a Yarn About Australians Discontent
With the Mother Country.

Chicago, April 20.—The Record prints the following special from London:—

Australian premiers will meet at Melbourne, Victoria, to-morrow to determine what reply they shall make to Mr. Chamberlain's demand for the amendment of the Commonwealth bill so as to admit of the appeal of the high court of Australia to the judicial committee of the privy council. The impression prevails in London that the premiers will decide that they cannot sanction the amendment suggested by the Colonial Secretary, for intelligent Britons are beginning to realize the unpardonable fact that Australia is likely to insist on the right to interpret its own constitution and regulate its own judicial matters.

Mr. Walter Griffiths, the member of the South Australian Parliament, whose views to some extent already have been exploited in these despatches, said to your correspondent to-night:—

"Our premiers cannot authorize any amendment which would be subversive of any fundamental principle of the Commonwealth bill. The people of Australia themselves have voted on the bill as it stands—not thoughtlessly, but deliberately, and they are the only persons who possess the power to alter its essential features. If important amendments are to be considered, that means another referendum, more delay and the possible destruction of the whole scheme of federation."

Every one who understands Australian sentiment knows that our citizens demand all the judicial liberty they see fit to exercise. If Great Britain tries to superimpose its own will on ours in this matter the result is sure to be fatal to the project of Imperial unity."

Hatfield men generally are far from imagining that Australia will consent to be drawn away from its position on this question by any promise on the part of the British Government to make the Imperial court of Great Britain a more imposing island in the world place no very high value on pomp and circumstance. They would no sooner submit their legal fancies to a privileged court sitting in palatial chambers than to the judicial committee of the Privy Council.

at Magerfontein the day after the Stormberg mishap: "We have had Gen. Methuen's report on the engagement, but we have not had the advantage of the Commander-in-Chief's observations on the document and on the events with which it deals. Has Lord Roberts, in this instance made no remarks, or have these remarks been suppressed, and if so, why have they been suppressed? The propriety or impropriety of the step taken by the Government seems to us to depend very largely upon whether they have or have not resolved to follow it up by further action. If they have decided to relieve the officers censured by the Commander-in-Chief of their commands, it is right that the public should know on what grounds the decision is taken. If, on the other hand, they intend to leave those officers in their present position, much may be urged against the publication of the despatches. The step will be generally judged by what follows

UNITED STATES SHOULD GO SLOW WITH CLAIMS

The Perplexities of Uncle Sam in the Philippines
Will Prevent Strong Measures.

SULTAN ADVISED NOT TO WORRY UNITED STATES

Outstanding Account Which Uncle Sam Wants Settled But Which the Sick Man of Europe Holds Back—A Story That Constantinople Approves of Demands.

New York, April 20.—It is intimated by diplomats familiar with the situation that there are reasons why the United States should proceed carefully in the matter of forcing the payment by the Sultan of Turkey of the claim for $100,000, which the United States is now pressing, after years of neglected promises, according to a Washington special.

There are in the Philippines more than 3,500,000 Mohammedans, whose devotion to their Caliph is fanatic. The Sultan would have but to lift his finger and these Malays and Moros would join forces with the Tagalogs. The war in Luzon would be extended in every direction throughout the islands, and the American forces would necessarily have to be greatly increased.

"REMEMBER SPAIN."

Austrian Advice to the Sultan not to Worry the American Eagle.

London, April 20.—The Vienna correspondent of the Times says:—

"By further resistance to the claims of the United States the Sultan will expose himself to grave consequences which he probably had not foreseen. The United States Government is not accustomed to indulge in empty threats. If the Sultan for a moment supposes that he would find protection from any European power, let him remember Spain."

THE OUTSTANDING ACCOUNT

Which Uncle Sam Wants Settled, but Which the Sick Man Holds Back.

Washington, April 20.—There has been no suggestion to the Turkish Minister that he is to receive his passport, and it is not expected that the United States will sever diplomatic relations worthy one, and cannot be too strongly condemned, but something of the kind is surely in the wind, and the public may look for further surprises."

A PRINCE KILLED.

London, April 20.—A despatch to the Daily News from Pretoria, dated April 16, says that Prince Bazarat Mografi, a Circassian nobleman, was killed at Ikhshof in the same engagement with the British in which Col. de Villebois Mareuil lost his life.

LORD ROBERTS' SUPREMACY.

New York, April 20.—In his cable to the Post, N. Ford says:—

"Some experts suggest that Lord Roberts' comments on the Spion Kop affair were suppressed long enough to enable Buller to set himself right by relieving Lady Smith, and that there will be a second commentary on the final chapter of the campaign, which will be complimentary to Gen. Buller and will enable him to remain in Natal. Lord Roberts' agents to hold every military reputation in South Africa in the hollow of his hand. The War Office may exercise a suspensive veto, but whenever Lord Roberts' opinion is known the nation and army will adopt it, and there is no appeal from it."

ANSWER TO PORTUGAL.

Paris, April 20.—The text of the correspondence between the Transvaal and Portugal concerning the landing of British soldiers at Beira has been communicated to the press, presumably by Dr. Leyds. In this correspondence the South African Republic expresses profound pain on learning of the violation of neutrality. It concludes that neutrality necessarily suspends the operations as that under which Portugal acted. It keenly regrets that, after the friendly relations hitherto existing between the Transvaal and Portugal, the latter should have suddenly decided to facilitate the arrival of the enemy's troops and transform himself from a neutral to an ally of the enemy.

FOR AMERICAN READERS.

A Story that Constantinople Approves the Demand on the Sultan.

Constantinople, April 20.—The firm attitude of the United States Government regarding the claims of Armenia for losses and massacres in political and commercial circles, and it is hoped that the United States will stand firmly maintain its demand, such a course being the only one likely to succeed. It is thought that all the powers should follow the same course, not only concerning indemnities, but also with regard to an increase of duty.

Negotiations regarding Armenian indemnity are now being conducted in Washington, owing to the presence there of United States Minister Straus. When the prohibition against American pork was issued Mr. Lloyd C. Griscom, American Charge d'Affaires, addressed an energetic note to the Porte.

The C. P. R. purpose making considerable improvement in the yard in Norwood this season. A new siding one thousand feet long is to be built on the north side of its present tracks and the present sidings are to be extended several hundred feet.

THE LIME JUICE CLUB

A Long Way After
The Lime Juice Club

The hall of wisdom was crowded to the doors last night, when the President ascended to read and called the meeting to order.

The President in opening the meeting, stated that he would not be able to do much talking. Three or four days ago he contracted to sing high tenor in Bro. Crane's choir, and it will be some time before his throat gets over the strain.

New Members.

Several new members were elected, amongst whom were Aid. John Smith, who is familiarly known as the knight Ashburnham, and Bro. Jack Gemmill, who has the reputation of being the only man in Canada who can whistle two tunes on his thumb-nail at the same time.

The President announced that he had cancelled the following certificate No. 6428, being the certificate of membership for reasons given.

No. 6428, being the certificate of Judge Hooker, of Toronto. Evidence was furnished by the President that Hooker had three wives, and yet had run away with the fourth.

No. 8763, being the certificate of Col. Hunter, of Lakefield. Evidence was furnished to prove that he was the biggest all-round liar in the Province. No. 6416, being the certificate of Deacon Wallis, of Hastings. The deacon was convicted of stealing two bags of potatoes, and giving up a mule to settle the case, and then hiring a man to steal the mule.

Where Duty Ends.

After Bro. Ed. Brown, had got a fresh place for his feet, the President arose and said: "I am in receipt of a query signed by Bro. Anvil McCann and Bro. Wood Whibbe, asking me where our duty to our neighbor begins and ends up. To be neighborly with a neighbor is one of the highest principles on earth. Our duty ends when we let his chickens scratch our garden, his children ride our gate, and his dog chase our cat without complaint. Our duty ends when we have lent him our hoe, shovel, spade, ice-cream, axe, sugar, tea, coffee, milk and butter, and the Morning Times, Peterborough's brightest and best newspaper, for daily reading, and he has forgotten that he owes us nothing beyond request that we will come over and turn the grindstone for him to sharpen a crowbar."

The Boundary Line.

After Bro. Croft has settled himself for a fifty nap.

Bro. Wm. Snowden, chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, reported as follows: "Your committee to whom was referred the question of the boundary between Canada and Alaska, beg to state that they have interviewed many prominent citizens in the matter, including the Town Engineer, ex-Ald. Langford, Chief Rutherford and Messrs. A. W. Cressman and Robert Fair, till they were all tired, and then went home. We have decided that the only way to adjust the matter is to employ the Town Engineer to run a line, and thus define the true boundary. The Engineer is the only man on record who can run a straight line and get back to where he started without once turning around."

On motion the report was adopted by a vote of 1761 to 1 Bro. Tenice.

Bro. Kennar, chairman of the committee and astronomy, submitted his monthly report as follows:

Number of dark nights since last report, seventeen.

Number of comets discovered, five, but too far off to see any run on the bank.

Estimated distance to the sun, about seven miles, to the moon about the same.

The committee further announced that they had changed the name of Venus to "Betty Jane," of Jupiter to "Sam Hughes," of Saturn to "Jim Stratton," and Mars to "Sir Dick McBude." President of the great club. Astronomers throughout the country will please take notice and govern themselves accordingly. Further changes will be made when the spring opens and the roads improve.

A Few Reflections.

"The other night, in the club library, I heard a member grive because he wasn't a great man," remarked the President, as Bro. Calico Graham of the Lakefield branch, took a fresh chew of slippery elm bark. "It is natural enough that we should all want to get ahead. It is not unreasonable in any man to want to be at the top of the heap. Preachers, poets, editors and lecturers all encourage us to dig along and strive to carve our name on the cupola of the temple of fame. And yet what a hollow mockery fame is! There was Napoleon Bonaparte. He had the toothache name as Bro. Dickson Jewitt there, (sensation). He had his blue days, same as Bro. Anvil Davis. The rain poured down on him same as on Bro. Tyrrell. His grocer wanted cash, the same as Hyson, (sensation). There was Byron, the poet sensation. His name was as high as the steeples, and yet his corpse asked, same as Bro. Anvil Davis, butcher carts run him down same as Bro. Steppoff Kelly, he was caught without a king in playing pedro, same as Sun Life. Dixon. There was Queen Elizabeth. She had a large palace, home of waiters with lots of clothes but she had big feet, got bald-headed, and couldn't see any more of Niagara Falls for five dollars than Bro. Max Hamilton can for fifty cents. There is Col. Sam Hughes. He can't eat any more at a ten cent luncheon in Central Africa, than Bro. Bert Wallace, when he tackles the lay out at the Snowden House. Greatness may bring some clothes but it don't always bring happiness. Fame may bring a house provided with a burglar alarm, but the higher the burglar alarm, the higher the gas bill. (Great uneasiness in the vicinity of the stove when several directors of the Gas Company were seated.) If greenness comes feeling around you, catch him by the coat tail. If he never comes, be content without him. A house, wife and children, plenty to eat, pew rent paid, and a pig in the pen, is good enough for any man, and he who seeks to climb higher, is just as apt to burst his suspender buttons as to get there. If Bro. Ed. Brown will wake up Bro. Croft, we will now proceed to other business."

More Villainy.

Another attempt has been made to wreck the venerable building, known as the Hall of Wisdom. Some unbeing wretch entered the alley late on Sunday night and after ascending the rear stairs, built a scaffolding with some shelving that had been left out to dry, and entered by the east transom. After carefully removing the bear traps, he with diabolical intent, took the quicksilver from the club's thermometer, and replaced it with a few drops of hard oil. The bear traps were placed so that the janitor, on entering would step right into them. Fortunately, however, he escaped, leaving only a piece of his toe-nail in the trap, and it was only after consuming half a cord of wood, seven large packing boxes and five barrels, in trying to raise the thermometer to 80 degrees, that he discovered the thermometer had been tampered with. The legs of the stove had become red hot, and large beads of perspiration had broken out all over the face of the statue of Pontius Pilate, that adorned the museum shelf.

After the janitor had taken his seat, the silence was so intense that the ticking of Harry LeBurn's Waterbury watch could be distinctly heard all over the hall. Suddenly darkness rose apace, and in accents of righteous indignation moved that a reward of $10,000 be offered for the arrest, conviction and execution of the human vermin.

The resolution was promptly seconded by Bro. Sloping Benwider, in a speech 27 feet long, and carried with a bang.

The Close.

After the members were warned to discontinue the using of the club's stove polish to blacken their boots with the meeting took short cuts for home.

THE PEOPLES Building and Loan Association OF LONDON, ONT.

SEVENTH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE SHAREHOLDERS.

The Seventh General Annual Meeting of the Shareholders of The Peoples Building and Loan Association of London, Ontario, was held at the office of the Association, Molsons Bank Building, London, Ontario, on Wednesday, March 7th, 1899.

Among the Shareholders present were:—Judge Edward Elliott, Dr. W. F. Roome, John Overell, W. W. Hesson, James Spencer, Alf. Robinson, E. Gardiner, Wm. Spittal, K. A. Jones, A. A. Campbell, Robt. Henderson, John Whittaker, William Chamberlain, F. F. Hellmuth, M. Inwood, C. H. Armistage, Major Geo. W. Hayes, S. B. Coon, J. E. Adkins, F. T. Harding, Arch. Simmie, Geo. J. L. Langford and others.

The chair was occupied by Judge Edward Elliott, and Mr. William Spittal acted as Secretary of the meeting.

After reading the notice convening the meeting, the Secretary read the minutes of the last Annual Meeting held March 1st, 1898, which were confirmed.

The President read the Report of the Directors, and then called upon Mr. A. A. Campbell, Managing Director, to read the Financial Statement.

To the Shareholders:—

The Directors of The Peoples Building and Loan Association of London, Ontario, beg to submit herewith their Seventh Annual Report showing the results of the business of the Association from December 31st, 1898, to December 31st, 1899, accompanied by the Balance Sheet duly attested by the auditors.

NEW BUSINESS.

Commencing the year with 10,867 terminating shares in force, there has been added, after deducting all lapsed, cancelled, withdrawn and matured shares, 425 shares, making a net total at the close of the year's business of 11,292 shares representing $11,292,000.00 of the capital stock. There has also been sold during the year 234 shares of Fully Paid up or Permanent Stock, bringing the total of this class of stock now sold up to 1,236 shares, and representing $123,600.00 of the capital stock. The aggregate amount of capital stock now in force is 12,528 shares, representing $1,252,800.00. The amount paid on withdrawals, including interests allowed thereon, and for matured stock, is $46,109.68. At first sight this might seem a large amount to pay to withdrawing members, but when it is considered that of this amount $226,562.92 was paid to holders of Prepaid Stock which had reached the expiry period, and $10,000.00 for matured stock, it will be seen that the withdrawals have not been heavier than in former years. The movement of stock again emphasizes what has been frequently pointed out in previous reports—that withdrawals are confined almost entirely to members who have made only a few payments, showing that when the habit of making regular monthly payments is once acquired only sheer necessity will induce members to surrender their shares, and even this contingency is minimized by the privilege that members have of obtaining temporary advances on their shares at any time without in any way disturbing the earning power of their stock.

MATURED STOCK.

The Directors have pleasure in announcing that during the year there has been paid for matured stock $10,000.00, the investment having returned the holders thereof profits at the rate of 9 per cent. per annum on the actual money paid in.

ASSETS.

The assets have increased from $352,894.24 to $413,864.24 making a net gain of $60,770.00.

LOANS.

The amount loaned on first mortgage real estate security is $325,752.63, in 487 loans, being an average of $668.46 to each loan. This shows a net gain of $62,279.95, interest on matured stock, Ontario Government and Municipal taxes, and providing for any possible losses on real estate, there has been appropriated to Instalment Shares "A" "B" and "C" $20,095.68 giving a compound rate of 9 per cent. per annum, and to Prepaid Shares "C" $421.55, being at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum. Out of the balance of the profits two semi-annual dividends at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum have been paid on the Fully Paid up or Permanent Shares "D" amounting to $3,927.35, and the balance of the profits not appropriated has been carried to the Reserve Fund and Contingent Account.

RESERVE FUND.

The Reserve Fund, which stood at $3,000.00 has been increased by $2,000.00 making a total of $5,000.00.

EXPENSE FUND.

The expenses for the conduct of the business of the Association is limited to the amount authorized by the By-laws (Article 2), from a perusal of which it will be observed that there can be no excess of expenditure.

REAL ESTATE.

The Real Estate held by the Association is $8,209.76, after deducting $598.22 written off for unascertained losses, which is $116.03 less than the amount held last year. The properties held are mostly cottage homes, with the exception of one property, and contribute a good revenue to the funds of the Association. Since the close of the year $3,000.00 worth has been disposed of, and offers for several other properties held by the Association are now under consideration.

AUDITORS.

The books, securities and vouchers of the Association have been duly examined and verified by Messrs. John Overell and Major Geo. W. Hayes, and their certificate is attached to the financial statement.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

EDWARD ELLIOTT,

President.

adjoins the above; the Copper Queen of Salda, a very promising property, only a few steps from the depot in Salda. This claim occupies an imposing position on a mountain just north of the city, and last, but by no means least, the Hutchins, located two miles west of Salda, at Chocoma station, on the main trunk line of the great Denver & Rio Grande Railroad, and also on the Arkansas river, which is length a one of America's greatest streams.

FULLY PAID AND NON-ASSESSABLE

We have already completed over 100 feet development work, 70 feet of which consists of surface work such as cross-outs, shallow shafts, etc. prospecting to decide the best place to sink our main or working shaft. This has been found to be on the "Big 3" or "Big 4" claim, and we are now down 30 feet and still pushing the work as fast as four practical miners and dynamite can possibly accomplish. Remember, we have three full claims, to wit: "Big 3," "Victor" and "Will o' the Wisp," situated on Iron Mountain in the Barke mining district. Ferry county, Washington, six miles southeast of the famous Republic mine, and that there is a big ledge of porphyry quartz crossing all the three claims lengthwise from north to south and cropping for over 2,700 feet, and surface assays furnished $5 to $10 in free gold.
On the "Big 3" claim, while doing development work, we discovered a true fissure vein 4 feet wide cutting the formation east and west, which from picked samples assayed $92.00 in gold.
Our manager writes us, under date of March 1, 1900, that at a depth of 30 feet in our proposed main shaft he is working in 4 feet of fine quartz and it is widening as depth is acquired. He also says: "I am confident that a 'shaft' 100 feet deep will prove this property nearly as good as, if not equal to any of the great mines of the Republic 'Camp'
as the same stage of development. Our latest assay from a depth of about 15 feet (main shaft) gave $15.58, 'a better showing than the Republic had at the same depth.'"
The company now offer 50,000 shares of treasury stock (NON-ASSESSABLE) AT THE LOW PRICE OF 1-2 CENTS
PER SHARE in order to raise funds to push the work with additional force.
There are 300,000 shares in the treasury and the above is the first offered for sale. The company being a reliable one, and with such a phenomenal showing on their properties, it should induce immediate investment, so don't delay as the price will positively be raised when this block is sold; every dollar we spend means greater depth to our shaft, wider lead and higher assays. DON'T MISS THIS. IT'S A WINNER. Send your orders at once to the secretary.

CYCLE SHOW.
Chicago, April 21.—A cycle show is be- ing given by the Lincoln Cycling Club here to-day, and will continue until the 28th. It differs materially from the af- fairs of the kind usually given every year by professional promoters. It promises to be one of the most unique shows ever given in this city. The Lincoln cycl- ing Club will entertain 30,000 visitors during the week, including many from northwestern cities. The only con- nection the trade has with the enterprise is to furnish the exhibits. Spaces for sev- enty-seven exhibitors has been provid- ed on the three floors of the clubhouse. Several years ago, before the present elegant quarters of the club were re- ceived, shows of this kind were given, but were opposed when the professional promoter entered the field and occupied it for several years. As the local trade made no effort to give an exhibition this year the Lincoln Cycling Club decided to fill in the breach. It is practically the only club of Chicago devoted to the interests of cycling that has maintained its iden- tity, and is one of the largest of its kind in the country.

Buffalo, April 21.—The training ship Buffalo left the navy yard this morning for League Island, Pa. From there she will go to Hampton Roads, where 300 landmen will be picked up. The vessel will then sail for European waters, where the entire summer will be spent. The itinerary of the trip will include several months in the Mediterranean with stops at Gibrat- tar, Rome, and several other ports. When the weather grows warmer the Buffalo will go northward, visiting Havre, and several smaller cities. Con- siderable is to be spent in the Baltic sea, with a visit to St. Petersburg. Naval officials say this is an ideal cruise and will be a most delightful trip for the landmen. They will have an opportunity to see more in six months than most sailors enjoy in as many years. Before cold weather sets in next winter the Buffalo will return to America.

How would a Regatta go for Queen's birthday with a brilliant illuminated canoe parade on the Little Lake at night, accompanied by some fireworks, which could be set off on Burnham's Point?

A Big Sale of Republic Stocks

THE FAIRFAX CO., OF REPUBLIC, J. J. Brown, Pres., Willis Merriam Sec., after securing the Jim. Hill claim adjoining it on the north, annexed the ledge and W. H. Stowell reports on this cropping $10.00 in gold, immediately, upon the re- sults becoming known in Republic, a Mining Sept. through our agent there, Texa. Angel, negotiated the purchase of $1,500 worth of Treasurer's stock, the company has authorized me to place a small amount of this stock at $1.00. Remember the Fairfax and Jim. Hill are less than 800 feet from the Mountain Lion, which is now $1.00 per share, and is an investment at that. The Fairfax at $1.00, is a speculation. Work is to be pushed.

"Carry Sunshine With You."

A bright, fresh, sunny face is always inspiring, and it always denotes good health as well as a happy heart. Many faces that were once overcast with gloom have been made bright and sunny by Hood's Sarsaparilla which cures all dyspeptic symptoms, strengthens the nerves and tones up and invigorates the whole system.

Constipation is cured by Hood's Pills, the non-irritating cathartic. Sold by all druggists.

UNCONSCIOUSNESS.

The Causes That Induce This Condition and Its Various Phases.

It is often difficult when a person is found unconscious to determine the cause of the condition. Yet this determination is of the greatest importance, since upon it must depend the treatment and perhaps the life of the sufferer.

Of course this is a task for the physician, and it is often one that takes his acumen to the utmost. But there are certain signs which every one may learn to know and so be prepared to prevent maltreatment before the physician arrives.

The chief causes of a sudden loss of consciousness are apoplexy, Bright's disease, diabetes, drunkenness, opium poisoning, injury to the head, epilepsy and fainting.

A person found unconscious should be placed on his back, the clothes, especially those about the neck, should be loosened, and he should have plenty of air, curious spectators being kept at a distance. If the breath smells of alcohol, the first thought is that the man is drunk, but it is most unsafe to assume this to be the case without corroborative evidence. The man may have taken a drink just before the accident befell him, or he may have been slightly drunk, and in that condition he may have had a stroke of apoplexy or have fallen or been struck a blow on the head, or some bystander may have poured whiskey down his throat with the mistaken idea of helping him.

The head should first be examined to see if the skull is broken, if there is a wound of the scalp or if blood is coming from one of the ears, which is a sign of a fracture of the base of the skull.

Note should be taken of the breathing. If it is very slow, six or eight times or less a minute, the probability is that the case is one of opium poisoning. If the respiration is rather slow and snoring, with blowing out of the lips and of one cheek, apoplexy or concussion of the brain may be suspected.

In unconsciousness resulting from Bright's disease the breathing is usually more rapid and not noisy, and in that resulting from diabetes the inspiration is slow and prolonged, while expiration is short and quick.

A drunken man can usually be aroused temporarily if spoken to in a loud voice or pricked with a pin, and the same is true of one suffering from Bright's disease, but in apoplexy and opium poisoning the unconsciousness is usually complete.

Unconsciousness may be hysterical in its nature and may simulate any of the types mentioned above. A dash of cold water in the face will often restore consciousness with great rapidity in such a case.—Youth's Companion.

RAILWAY TIES.

The Vera Cruz and Pacific railway has sent its representative to Italy to obtain laborers to push the construction of the road.

The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad is equipping its locomotives with electric headlights, to which a current is furnished by a small dynamo directly forward of the smokestack.

The superintendent of the White Pass and Yukon railroad took the snowfall at various points along the line of the railroad for December, with the following results: Glacier, 80½ inches; White Pass, 55 inches; Fraser, 42½ inches; Log Cabin, 74½ inches.

The officials of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad have decided to follow the lead of other roads in the matter of providing technical instruction for their employees on the road. The "school on wheels" for engineers, firemen, conductors and brakemen is to be a part of the Rock Island system.

TRUST THRUSTS.

If it be true that the ax manufacturers have organized a trust, the consumers may now be prepared to receive it in the neck.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The flour trust mixed its paste too thin, and as a result it refused to stick. Water is a good thing, but a flood of it, even in trust stock, is bound to produce disaster. Omaha Bee.

"Smash the trusts" is a fetching and very simple formula for dealing with the trusts, but unfortunately it does not mean anything, as any one will discover who will try to draft a law intended to have that effect.—San Francisco Chronicle.

ARTS OF WAR.

A battery of artillery consists of six guns.

A bomb weighing about 70 pounds explodes into a shower of 1,200 pieces.

Cavalry cover four miles an hour when walking, nine miles an hour when trotting, 15 miles an hour galloping.

According to the Kaiser's new naval programme, Germany will have 40 battleships in 1910 instead of the 17 she has now, 20 large cruisers instead of 11, 48 small cruisers and gunboats in place of 32 and 114 torpedo boats instead of 84, as at present.

The Architect.

One must wonder why it really is that so little is said or thought about architecture, the grandest, the mother, of all arts, a great, a most useful, science, one in which a greater revolution has lately taken place and in which more progress has been made, with more stupendous results, than in any other, remarks a writer in The International Magazine.

Was it not Richelieu who, paraphrasing an ancient writer, said: "If it is verifiability you seek, go find an architect. He must be an artist, or his buildings will offend the eye; an engineer, or they will crumble into trouble; a lawyer, or he will get his patrons into trouble; a doctor, or his buildings will be hygienically unfit to live in, and, last, but not least, he must be a gentleman, or we will have nothing to do with him."

Any breed of fowls can be profitably kept on a dry, sandy or gravelly soil.

There is nothing so fruitful of disease among chickens as damp or unclean quarters.

Fowls should not be killed when they have a full crop, for as soon as they are dead the flesh turns blue and dark immediately over the crop.

Throwing soft feed upon the ground is poor economy. Troughs or smooth boards can be used, and are not only much cleaner, but avoid waste of feed.

Young chickens will eat wheat when 2 weeks old, and as it is one of the very best grains that can be given for growth, it is quite an item to feed them liberally with it.

The best turkeys for breeding are those 2 years old. If yearling stock be used, the earliest hatched males and females should be selected. It is of no advantage to hatch them too early.

Gifts that involve no sacrifice return neither happiness nor pleasure.

Where the body is wrung with pain, where it is filled with disease, one cannot be happy.

THE ART OF WAR.

For the first time in the history of the British army there is actually a desire among officers that commissions should be given men who have served in the ranks.

The mounted police of Cape Colony are picked men, used to fighting and proud of the high reputation of their corps. The force consists of 2,000 enlisted men and 68 officers.

THE COOKBOOK.

Always scald rhubarb before cooking it, for it then requires much less sugar, and yet loses none of its flavor.

A new idea is to put the flavoring of cake, puddings, sauces, etc., with the butter. The butter holds the flavor better than any other medium.

Cold steak may be acceptably served as a left over by passing it through the meat chopper and arranging it neatly on a platter, garnished with parsley or water moss.

THE FORCE OF HABIT.

Showing How Completely One Habit May Supplant Another.

"Habit is a curious thing," said Mr. Joggleton, "but the completeness with which one habit can be supplanted by another seems more curious still."

"I had a chair that I had used for years and which, as I was firmly convinced, was by long odds the most comfortable chair ever made. After breakfast, when I read the paper, I used to sit in that chair, and after dinner at night I settled down into it, with a cigar, in peace and happiness and thought there never was a chair that combined so many good points as to height and pitch of seat and slope of back and all that. I had never seen a chair that suited me so well."

"But one day this chair was tipped over or something or other happened to it, I don't know what, but something so serious that it was put out of commission. With our usual conservative slowness we put off from day to day and from week to week getting that chair repaired, and, as a matter of fact, it was two or three years before we had it fixed up and brought into use again. Meanwhile I had singled out another chair which I came commonly to occupy. This didn't begin to be at first so comfortable as the old one had been, but gradually its objectionable points disappeared, and I'm blessed if it didn't begin to develop good points that I had never suspected in it, and I came at last to look upon it as a very comfortable sort of chair indeed. But at last the old chair—the good old chair—was fixed up again and brought back into use, and the day it appeared I looked forward to settling down in it at night with all the old time comfort."

"But when, with all those pleasant anticipations, I came to sit in it again I did not find the pleasure that I had expected. It was too high or too low or the seat sloped too much or something, I don't know what. It wasn't as it used to be to me. I tried it once or twice more after that and then gave it up and went back to the new chair. My new habit had become firmly fixed. I liked the new chair better, and now as I settled down in it its good points were at once emphasized and softened and rounded into completeness, and I accepted it in full as the chair of satisfying comfort and wondered as I looked across at the other what I ever could have seen in it to make me like it so much."

"Such is the force of habit."—New York Sun.

English-Law as to Fitts.

A mackintosh that did not fit was the subject of a legal decision in the Westminster county court. The Regent street shopkeeper who made the garment said that the purchaser (who sued for the return of three guineas paid) did not give him time to make another that would fit. The judge said a person was entitled to a "fit" when a garment was sent home, and any permission to alter or make a fresh article was mere good nature and not law. The case should not have been defended. He gave the disappointed customer his three guineas, with costs.—Birmingham Post.

PETERBOROUGH, APRIL 21, 1900
TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

New Post Office.

Mr. John Lang, M. P., has written the Times to say that he has secured a summer postal service at Julian's Landing, Mrs. Church has been appointed postmaster. This will prove a great boon to the people, and Mr. Lang deserves great credit.

Apprentices Wanted.

The Times requires a smart boy for night work to set headings and run messages. Must be good at spelling. A fine chance for a smart lad. Apply at Times Bookstore in daytime, or to Mr. F. Thomas, at night.

A Chance for Contractors.

We direct attention to the advertisement in another column of sewer work to be done at Smith's Falls. There are a number of local contractors who thoroughly understand this class of work, and who will doubtless be pleased to put in tenders. The fact that the Times is selected by surrounding towns to advertise in is evidence that our paper is becoming widely known and that it is taking the place of the Toronto morning dailies throughout eastern Ontario.

Boy Wanted.

A good, smart boy wanted, about 16 years of age. Apply at 28 Gilmour street.

Dog Lost.

On Saturday last, at the C.P.R. station, a brown spaniel, answered to the name of Jack. Any one giving such information as will lead to his recovery will be suitably rewarded by leaving word at Times Bookstore, or at 213 Hunter street.

He Knew Better.

General Butler was in Canada with the King's Royal Rifle, and went out on the Red River expedition. One day on the march, Mr. W. H. Anthony, of this town, who was a member of the expedition, was trying to beg a pipeful of tobacco in vain, when he observed a figure just ahead of him that seemed familiar, and stopped him on the back saying—"Got a pipeful of baccy, mate?" The figure turned, revealing Capt. Butler. Mr. Anthony was a little surprised when he found he had tackled an officer so familiarly. "Very sorry I can't oblige," said Butler, "but I haven't a pipeful for myself!" showing at the same time an empty pipe.

STOP THE PAIN BUT DESTROY THE STOMACH.—This is sadly too often the case. So many nauseous nostrums purporting to cure, because they are so loaded with injurious drugs and narcotics, in the end do the patient immensely more harm than good and in many cases so destroy the digestive organs that a cure is impossible. Dr. Von Stau's Pineapple Tablets are a purely vegetable peptic preparation, as harmless as milk. One after eating prevents any disorder of the digestive organs. 50 in a box, 35 cents.

"Gospel Belts."

A song service and sermon entitled "Gospel Belts" will be given in the Mark street Methodist church by the pastor, Rev. J. E. Moore, Ph.D., and the choir, on Sabbath evening, April 22, at 7 o'clock. This is the third song service Mr. Moore and his singers have given, all of which have been interesting and helpful. It is also "Red Letter Day," and the congregation will contribute a special collection for circuit funds. New and specially prepared music.

Must Be Settled.

Parties indebted to the estate of the late Dr. King are requested to call and settle their accounts, as the books must be closed in order to wind up the estate. Accounts remaining unpaid after May 15th will be placed in other hands for collection.

Electric Belts.

Attention is called to the advertisement in another column of this paper of the Dr. Spalding Electric Belt Co. Dr. Spalding claims that Electricity as introduced into the body by his electric Belts and appliances, is the only permanent and quick cure for all diseases such as Rheumatism, Kidney trouble, Lame Back, Varicose, lost vigor, etc. A small book describing the various diseases the electric belt and appliances are good for, and containing many testimonials, all of the latter being guaranteed as genuine, by Dr. Spalding, will be sent free in sealed envelopes to any address on application to Dr. Spalding, Canada Permanent Building, 18 Toronto-St., Toronto.

A PROSPEROUS INSTITUTION.

Annual Report of the People's Building and Loan Association.

Elsewhere will be found the report of the Seventh Annual Meeting of the shareholders of the People's Building and Loan Association, which took place at the head office of that institution in London, on March 7. We heartily congratulate Mr. A. A. Campbell, the Managing Director, and officers on the result of the year's operations as shown by the financial statement. The profits for the year amounted to $30,470.68, and after deducting all charges, there has been apportioned to Instalment Shares "A," "B" and "E," $20,095.08, giving a compound rate of 9 per cent, per annum, and to Preferred Shares "C" $421.55 being at the rate of 8 per cent per annum. Out of the balance of the profits two semi-annual dividends at the rate of 6 per cent, per annum, have been paid on the Fully Paid-up or Permanent Shares "D," amounting to $3,927.95 and the balance of the profits not apportioned has been carried to the Reserve Fund and Contingent Account.

The President, Judge Edward Elliott in moving the adoption of the report, said: "The business of the Association has been good during the year, and the management have exercised the greatest care in the loans they have accepted, and I may say that if we had twice the money at our disposal we could have it all loaned out. Two give you an idea that the Association has been doing all it possible could do, the best guarantee, I think, is that we have no money on hand. Our money is all invested."

Mr. F. F. Holmuth, in seconding the motion, remarked that the People's Building and Loan Association has never met its shareholders in annual meeting assembled without being able to say we are bigger, stronger and better than we were a year before. The growth has not been rapid one year, and nothing or behind the next. It has been, and is, an institution that has grown steadily and surely, and every year the Directors have with considerable pride, been able to point to increased assets, greater profits, a larger amount of business, and also to a growing reserve fund.

The Association has many friends in Eastern Ontario, where its business is gradually and steadily increasing. What will be of interest to many is the fact that the company is putting an issue of $50,000 of Permanent Stock, which is being sold at $103 per share, at the par value of $100 each and which in the past has paid 6 per cent in dividends, payable half yearly.

The President Judge Edward Elliott is a native of Perth, Ont., and is well known to many of our readers. Mr. Geo. W. Hutton, barrister, the Association's Secretary for Peterborough.

SHOULD BE INVESTIGATED.

The Toronto World Calls on the Government to Look into Nelson Gray Case.

The exposure of the Nelson Gray case in connection with the Sunnyside House matter, which appeared in the Times a few days ago, has excited attention throughout the Province. In Toronto there is strong feeling that the Government should cause an investigation to be made at once.

The World of yesterday says—"A lady in Toronto telephoned the World last night that she had read the item (re Nelson Gray) in the Times, and that she could get the boy in question a position in Toronto, with a good home. At the same time, the World would suggest that the Ontario Government ascertain the facts of this case, and let the public know the truth. The story printed in the Peterborough Times is worthy of full investigation."

Editor World.—In perusing your edition of Thursday, the 19th inst., I noticed, under the head of "Went Back to Slavery," a sad case of brutality, which, I think, should be investigated by the authorities. It is surprising that an institution like the Sunnyside Home should allow one placed under their care to be treated in such a manner. This case brings to one's mind the Yorkshire schools, so ably portrayed by the late Charles Dickens in "Nicholas Nickleby." I think, in justice to the lad, an example should be made of the parties connected in this case.

UNCO.

A READER.

Editor Morning Times.
Sir,—Surely the authorities are not going to allow white slavery to exist in our fair land? Yet it looks like it. Nelson Gray, the poor lad, who has not a friend in the world, is taken back to slavery. God help the land where such a crime is possible.

SCHOOL GIRL'S FOOD.

A Very Important Question for Crowding Girls.

A little girl in Providence, R. I., high school, was badly run down, owing to the fact that she was not properly fed. When her parents discovered the value of Grape-Nuts food, she quickly recovered. Her father's letter is as follows:—

"Without any desire whatever for publicity—in fact, with every desire to avoid it, I yet would like you to know of the following in reference to Grape-Nuts."

"My daughter is in the Providence High School, English department, and working very hard, her studies tending on her severely, partly because of a serious illness she had some two or three years since. She has been accustomed to take meat lunches with her, and to obtain a cup of hot drink, often of milk, at the school building. She came home quite hungry, however, on most occasions and somewhat exhausted."

"Three months ago, she began to carry Grape-Nuts instead of her meat sandwiches, and will not forego them. She says she can stand the after study on them better and has no sense of exhaustion in reaching home, although always able to enjoy her meal, as her appetite is good."

"We regard this as strong testimony in favor of Grape-Nuts, and if you can use it without publishing our names, we shall be pleased to have you do it, and will further say that we shall be glad to answer questions on the subject through the mails. We have used Grape-Nuts as an article of diet for nearly two years. Yours truly,"

The name of this gentleman can be had by application to the Postum Cereal Co. Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

TEMPLE OF FAME.

Successful Presentation at the Opera House Last Night—To Be Repeated To-Night.

DELICIOUS INDEED!

The Editor of This Grand Family Journal Receives a Present.

The Times yesterday received a very nice present, which was delivered at noon, hour, securely parcelled up, and addressed to the editor. Inside was the following note:—

Dear Friends,—Please accept this token of my appreciation (and that of our household) of your great family journal. May your paper never grow old. My boy Jack says that the Lime Juice Club is the greatest institution on earth; my girls think the daily story and local gossip is out of sight, and my wife and I like the paper because it defends the weak and exposes wrongdoing, and gives us all the news. God bless you, dear old Times.

AN ADMIRER OF THE TIMES
This g. f. p. can't stand flattery, although we know every word of the above is true. We expect to spend most of next week sucking our thumbs and maple sugar alternately, and if the paper presents a somewhat "sticky" appearance for a short time our readers will know the cause. We were always partial to sugar of the maple variety, and when it comes to us in the form of a token of good will and regard, accompanied by kind words, the thing is delicious indeed.

The Trent Valley Canal.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I see your two local contemporaries are squabbling over the delay in letting the contract for the construction of the Trent Valley Canal from Trenton to Hastings. The Tory organ says that the Government is humbugging the people, and the Crit sheet answers by referring to the way the Tories "worked" the canal, for political purposes for years. Now, I for one would like to know what Peterborough's great family journal thinks of it.

A CITIZEN.

Ans.—So far as our little contemporaries are concerned, it is a case of the pot calling the kettle black. Mr. Blair is justified, we think, in delaying operations on the lower sections for a few months, in view of the representation which has been made to him in regard to changing the route.

The Orange Celebration.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—How about the Orange celebration in Peterborough on July 12th? I hope the Orangemen should try and have the demonstration held in Peterborough. As I see Norwood is after it, I hope there will be no time lost in getting invitations out to outside brethren to attend. The merchants will all contribute to help to pay expenses.

Book on Golfing.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I would suggest that the local Golf Club, issue a prospectus, in book form, with history and rules for playing the game, so that the public may obtain an insight into this really fascinating sport. There is plenty of literary talent in the club to prepare such a book, I need only mention the name of Mr. J. H. Burnham, in this connection. I would suggest that a copy of the book be sent to Lord Minto, and also to the leading golf players in Canada.

A LOVER OF SPORT.

Ans.—The Times would suggest that a few copies also would be sent to Lord Roberts to use on the Boers. There is nothing in the Geneva convention to prevent it. When the Powers decided to leave the horrors of war, they did not foresee that the Peterborough Golf Club was likely to write a book. We are sure that

"A Cheerful Look Makes a Dish a Feast."

"Cheerful looks" depend just as much upon physical well-being as upon natural disposition and temperament. If the blood is disordered, the brain is starved, and no "dish is a feast," for the reason that the vitalising elements do not reach the proper spot.

A step in the right direction is to purify the body by the use of a natural remedy. Hood's Sarsaparilla is Nature's remedy. It acts upon the blood, and whether the seat of the disorder is brain, stomach, liver or kidneys, the purifying process of this medicine is equally sure and successful. It never disappoints.

Great Sufferer.—Have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for indigestion, constipation and finds it builds up the whole system and gives relief in cases of catarrh. WILLIAM L. WELDON, Montreal, N. B.

Sour Stomach.—"My system was out of order. I suffered from headache and sour stomach. Took Hood's Sarsaparilla, my health improved and I gained 15 pounds." MAXWELL D. SHAWBRAW, Colorado, Ont.

Cold Cough.—"My sister was troubled with a cough which caused pain in her left side. She was confined to her bed. We gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla and in a few weeks she was able to sit up in bed, her appetite improved and the cough and accompanying pain disappeared." L. E. WALKER, St. Cuthbert Street, Halifax, N. S.

Dyspepsia.—"My husband suffered with dyspepsia. Physicians did not benefit him. Two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla relieved him. My husband's father and our little boy have been wonderfully benefited by this medicine." Mrs. O. F. CHAMBERLAIN, Glen Station, Que.

Run Down.—"My system was run down. I could not sleep nights and my appetite was poor. Hood's Sarsaparilla restored an appetite and strength and has made me feel like a new woman." Mrs. E. D. DAVIS, Amherst, N. S.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Never Disappoints

Hood's Pills cure liver bile; the non-irritating and only cathartic to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Mr. Burnham, Mr. McHarris, Mr. Parker and other leading golfers will agree with this. Besides who knows but the example thus set might induce General Ham Hughes to compile his numerous letters into book form. This would surely secure the supremacy of British arms, as no enemy could possibly survive a broadside of such matter.

Girl Wanted.
Wanted at once, a good smart girl for general housework. Apply to Mrs. W. H. Meldrum, 52 McDunnell street, between 7 and 9 o'clock p.m.

Dr. Tucker's famous method the only positive cure.

GIVES PERFECT RELIEF IN 15 MINUTES

Over 50,000 persons have tested it, 1,500 in Ontario. The only treatment used and endorsed by physicians. Geo. W. V. Minto of the Night Directory Co., 1879, testified almost every night with me for 15 years, everything I tried failed me, but when I used Dr. Tucker's method, I have had an absolute cure, it has cured me, it has cured my wife, it has cured my children, it has cured my friends, it has cured my neighbors, it has cured my countrymen, it has cured my fellow-citizens, it has cured my fellow-creatures, it has cured my fellow-men, it has cured my fellow-women, it has cured my fellow-children, it has cured my fellow-fellow-citizens, it has cured my fellow-fellow-creatures, it has cured my fellow-fellow-men, it has cured my fellow-fellow-women, it has cured my fellow-fellow-children, it has cured my fellow-fellow-fellow-citizens, it has cured my fellow-fellow-fellow-creatures, it has cured my fellow-fellow-fellow-men, it has cured my fellow-fellow-fellow-women, it has cured my fellow-fellow-fellow-children, it has cured my fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-citizens, it has cured my fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-creatures, it has cured my fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-men, it has cured my fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-women, it has cured my fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-children, it has cured my fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-citizens, it has cured my fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-creatures, it has cured my fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-men, it has cured my fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-women, it has cured my fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-children, it has cured my fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-citizens, it has cured my fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-creatures, it has cured my fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-fellow-men, it has cured my fellow-fellow

BRITISH ADVANCE GUARD IS FIGHTING WITH BOERS

Advance of Brabant's Force Engage With Boers at Bushman's Kop on Saturday.

BOER GUNS AT WORK ON DALGATTY'S POSITION.

It is Quite Probable That General Rundle Has by This Time Won a Decisive Battle—No Further News of the Long Expected Advance of Lord Roberts.

Mamers, Basutoland, April 22.—General Brabant's advance guards reached Bushman's Kop last evening. The Boers held a strong position there with two guns. The engagement opened at sunrise with heavy rifle fire. At 8.30 a.m. cannonading began and continued for several hours. General Brabant's forces are on the plain and have fairly open country all the way to Wepster.

Four Boer guns were hard at work all Saturday on Colonel Dalgatty's position. The British guns replied at intervals. Col Dalgatty telegraphed: "All well. Boers fired 300 shells yesterday without doing much damage."

The Boers are divided into three divisions two being in positions to repel the relief column, the distant roar of whose artillery is audible.

The Basutos are posted on the border for defensive purposes. They are behaving in orderly fashion, but are showing the most intense interest in the outcome of the developments in the next 24 hours.

Walkerstrom, near Dewet's Kop, Saturday, 21st.

Fighting was continued to-day, mainly with the artillery. The yeomanry and mounted infantry pushed forward on the right flank and were subjected to shelling and a heavy rifle fire. The Royal Irish Rifles captured a Free State flag. The Boers are well entrenched and hold their ground tenaciously. The British casualties have been slight.

London, April 23, 5 a. m.—It is quite probable that by this time General Sir Henry Rundle has fought a decisive battle with the Boers. He entrenched himself on Saturday to await the arrival of Gen. Campbell with the 10th Brigade. That commander arrived Saturday evening and news of a battle may be expected at any moment. It is still impossible to ascertain his position of affairs at Bloemfontein or to learn when the long expected advance northward will begin. The despatches conflict regarding the state of the preparations. Present indications point, however, to still further delay.

In Natal there is no diminution of Boer activity. It is reported that Sir Charles Warren is to be appointed Governor of the Free State. Nothing is known regarding Sir Redvers Buller, but there is little doubt regarding his removal, and rumor has it that Lord Kitchener will get an important independent command. The Boer Peace Commissioners are understood to have been disappointed by their visit to the Hague, but to be determined to visit Berlin and Paris before going to Washington.

BATTLE AT DEWETSDORP.
Bloemfontein, Friday, April 20.—Continuing their march on Friday, Generals Chermide and Rundle came into contact with the Boers near De Wet's Kop. The fighting continued until dark, and was principally carried on by the artillery, which temporarily silenced two of the Boers' guns.

The British command the hills, for miles around the Boers, who are reported to hold strong positions, but are probably retreating.
To casualties on the British side were slight, and most of them occurred among the Yeomanry and Mounted Infantry.
The firing was at long range.
None of the British troops were killed.

COUNTRY DEEP IN MUD.
Violent Rainstorms Delay Operations in the Free State.
London, April 21.—The rain in the Orange Free State is almost of a tropical character, and has created conditions that recall the American campaign in the Philippines. There is a thirty-foot flood in the Caledon river, and all the drifts in the Modder and Tiet rivers are impassable.

The ballast of the railway south of Bloemfontein has been washed out, and traffic has thus been stopped. Farmers' carts are unable to reach the town, the country being deep in mud.

Doubtless these conditions explain the slow progress that is being made by the third division, General Chermide's, and the eighth division, General Rundle's, which are moving to the east. According to a despatch from Oorlogspoort, about 15 miles west of De Wepster, the two divisions arrived there Thursday morning. They had been constantly in touch with Boer patrols, which retreated slowly, enfilading in the meantime, but not causing any casualties nor checking the advance.

POLICEMEN TO USE THE RIFLE.
Suggestion to Train Policemen as Part of Force to Resist Invasion.

London, April 21.—A proposal from Pembrokehire that the police should receive military training, so as to enable them to co-operate with the regular force in the event of an invasion of this country, has elicited a qualified refusal from the Home Secretary, which was read at a meeting of the Pembrokehire standing joint committee yesterday.

Sir Matthew White-Ridley said that on the broadest grounds of national interest it was expedient that police should receive regular military training. In the event of a great national emergency the necessity of maintaining order and suppressing crime would present any reduction being made in the normal strength of the police.

"The question of encouraging police to learn the use of the rifle, apart from military drill, was, however, on a different footing; and, if necessary, he would communicate with the War Office or other authorities in regard to facilities being given for practice at convenient rifle ranges."

On the suggestion of the chief constable, the committee decided to obtain permission for the constabulary to make themselves efficient with the rifle in the way proposed by the Home Secretary.

MR. TARTE IS INFLUENTIAL.

Canada May be Directly Represented at Capital of France.

Montreal, April 21.—Mr. Tarte's paper, the Patrie, published last evening what purports to be a special despatch from Paris, stating that Mr. Chamberlain has signified to the French authorities that it is the desire of the Imperial Government that Canada should be directly represented in Paris. "Until the present," says the Patrie, "the name of our country has been completely ignored in the catalogues and also in all official demonstrations."

The Patrie, referring editorially to the matter, claims that Sir Wilfrid Laurier has made Canada a nation, and that it is due to the intervention of Mr. Tarte and his eloquent appeals to Lord Salisbury that the Dominion has the honor of being accredited to the French Government, "which will give to this young nation a new prestige."

The Patrie overlooks the fact that the Dominion has been ably represented in Paris for many years by Mr. Hector Fabre, the Canadian Commissioner, whom it seems to completely ignore.
Mr. Tarte is said to cherish the ambition to be the High Commissioner for Canada to "his dear France." Mr. Tarte has agreed to become president of the committee formed in Paris with the object of collecting subscriptions to erect a monument to Jacques Cartier at St. Malo. Paul Deschanel, president of the French Chamber of Deputies, has consented. The Patrie has become president of the committee.

HEROES BURIED IN A THORN GLADE.

Graves of Members of First Contingent Who Fell in the Charge at Paardeberg.

Halifax, April 21.—A correspondent describes a visit to the Paardeberg battlefield, where the Canadians made themselves famous, a week after Cronje's surrender. He says—

Paardeberg can be seen a long way off and when the traveler reaches it, he finds a flat-topped hill, the highest in the neighborhood, with the Modder river skirting it on the farther side.

A horrible stench fills the air, without exaggeration, for miles around, and so many carcasses of oxen and horses are lying all about the field, where the bullets or shells dropped them, that to bury them would require an army. Therefore they are left for the sun and the vultures, although numerous enough, seem to be satiated.

When the Modder river, by the act of Providence, "came down," and drove Cronje and his army hurriedly from their shelter beneath its high banks, they trekked from Paardeberg for a few miles up the river, and then formed laager. At this spot, naturally, there is most to be seen. The wagons which formed one side of the laager caught alight through the British shells, and nothing remains of them but ashes and scraps of iron. On the north of the river they dug trenches, which will probably remain for many years to mark the spot.

It is terrible to contemplate the storm of shell that must have fallen around these trenches when once the British, fighting the wily marksmen every mile of the way, had completed their manoeuvre and got ahead of the Boers. The greenish-yellow of the lyddite shells covers whole patches of ground, whilst shrapnel must have been bursting, without exaggeration, one shell to every dozen yards. How the Dutch escaped annihilation can only be put down to their skillfully-constructed trenches in the first part of the fighting, and to our general action, when he had got his guns into position, in allowing them to surrender.

Down from the laager to Paardeberg there is a large number of wagons standing where the retreating Boers left them. Male and female apparel, letters, household utensils and broken boxes are strewn all over the place. Empty shells, cartridge cases and bullets are also plentiful, although the ground being all loose, every shower of rain helps to bury them from view.

One grave is conspicuous in a glade amongst the thorn trees. It is that of six of the brave Canadians who fell, when one of the Boer trenches was rushed. The grave is covered with large stones, and a cross formed of planks stands at the head, with the inscription, "In memory of Corporal Wilhelmy, Corporal Withers, Privates O. Orman, J. M. Johnson, J. B. Scott, W. A. Hogg, Royal Canadian Regiment, killed in action, February 27th, 1900."

THE MURDERER OF VARGOE IDENTIFIED.

Henry Williams, Hanged in Toronto, Said to be the Son of a Detroit Citizen.

Detroit, Mich., April 21.—Yesterday Superintendent Martin of the Detroit police force received the following letter from H. J. Gammelt, chief constable of the Toronto force:—"Sir,—We find that Harry Williams, who was hanged here on Saturday last for a murder committed in the city in November last, escaped from the Michigan State House of Correction at Ionia on the first of March, 1900, where he was serving a three years' term for a burglary committed in Oakland county. When he was received at Ionia in December, 1898, he gave his name as August Schmidt, and stated then that his father Julius Schmidt, was then living at 182 Lancaster avenue, Detroit, Mich. Will you kindly have enquires made with a view to the verification of this statement and let me know the result at your earliest convenience."

Upon the receipt of the letter yesterday Detectives Kane and Coffey were sent to the Schmidt home, which is at 182 East Alexander avenue instead of Lancaster avenue. They found that young Schmidt had not been seen by his parents for nearly four years, and they had no idea as to his whereabouts. They did not know that he had ever been in prison, although they had heard rumors to that effect. Many circumstances seem to indicate that Schmidt and Williams are one and the same person. Young Schmidt was a wayward son and during his entire career at home he caused much trouble for his parents. His father did not know what to do with the young man and finally the son disappeared completely.

In December of 1898 Detective Baker and the sheriff of Oakland county arrested a young man, giving the name of August Schmidt. He gave his address as 182 East Alexander avenue, and said that his father's name was Julius Schmidt. He was taken to Pontiac and held for a series of burglaries of cottages near Orchard Lake. His conviction followed and he was sentenced to the State House of Correction at Ionia. Here Schmidt behaved himself so well that he soon became a trusty. He remained in prison till March 1st, 1900, when he managed to make his escape. A reward was offered for his capture, but nothing was ever heard from him after that by the authorities. Since the hanging of Williams the Toronto police appear to have made the identification, learning that Williams and Schmidt are the same person.

GEN. METHUEN'S FORCE IS ALMOST AMBUSHED.

Boers Were Discovered Just in the Nick of Time and Held in Check by British.

THE CONVOY WITHDRAWN UNDER A GALLING FIRE.

Boers Advanced to Within Three Hundred Yards and Were Greeted With a Fusillade From Concealed British Marksmen—Beaten at Their Own Tactics.

21.—At midday yesterday General Methuen's field force at Swartkopsfontein was ordered to return to Boshof. Its convoy extended over six miles. The escort took up a position on a hill commanding the road just in the nick of time, as a force of 2,000 Boers with two guns and a pom-pom suddenly appeared in the vicinity and opened a very heavy fire. The British, however, held them in check until the column reached a point of safety, when they retired. The British had suffered casualties. The Boers fought determinedly and must have suffered considerable, as they once advanced to within 300 yards of the hill, whence a concealed detachment of the British opened a heavy fusillade on them.

BOERS CLAIM A VICTORY.

They Say that they Defeated Methuen's Force Near Boshof.

Pretoria, April 19, via Lorenzo Marques, April 20, 3 p.m.—Advices have just reached here from Hoopsstad, Orange Free State, to the effect that a sharp engagement has taken place to the north of Boshof, between General Methuen's advance guard, consisting of 150 Boers and a British force. The latter were repulsed and left 20 dead on the field.

ENEMY ACTIVE IN NATAL.

Report that they are Withdrawing Their Heavy Ordnance.

London, April 21.—Natal advices show that strong Boer patrols are active between General Buller and the Biggarsburg range. The correspondence of the Standard and Daily Telegraph claim to have reliable information that this activity is really intended to cover the withdrawal of the Boers' heavy ordnance from the Biggarsburg range preparatory to the evacuation of Natal, and to strengthen the main opposition to Gen. Roberts.

ROBERTS NOT CRITICISED.

British Public has Unbounded Confidence in the Chief.

London, April 21.—It is marvelous to note the wholeheartedness of the English public trust in Lord Roberts in his capacity regarding the engagement at Spion Kop. Not one paper has attached to his criticism of General Buller's predecessor in self-interest. This, perhaps, is explained by the universal recognition of the fact that the field marshal has little to gain by this campaign, and that he gave up all which long and brilliant service entitled him in order to serve his country. Whatever the outcome of the war, Lord Roberts' name would stand in England's military annals as one of the most successful and best loved of our commanders. And they believe in his Commander-in-Chief in South Africa to be miles above any jealousy or rivalries that might actuate other generals.

GOVERNOR OF FREE STATE.

Major-General Pretorius will Administer Occupied Territory.

London, April 21.—The Times in a despatch from Bloemfontein dated April 20, says:—Major-General Pretorius has been appointed military Governor of the whole occupied territory in the Free State. This extension of our authority has become necessary in view of the preservation of law and order. A large number of volunteers have already applied for places in the new force of mounted police. The arrangement of a provisional police force composed largely of burghers, to prevent Kaffir looting, has proved successful, but it is felt that a more regularly organized force is necessary. The collection of the land tax due at the end of March has been temporarily postponed, but a certain amount of revenue is expected, from that source as well as from the Free State's share of the South African customs union. We shall be ready to collect revenue as soon as civil traffic is resumed. At present the chief source of revenue is from surcharged postage stamps, which are eagerly bought by collectors. Owing to indications of a movement among some of the inhabitants of the Free State, who have taken the oath of neutrality, with the object of helping in the concealment of arms, supplying information to the Boer army and otherwise causing trouble after the advance of our main force, the military authorities have found it necessary to arrest and deport several suspected individuals.

ANOTHER CANADIAN DEAD.

Several Others Sent to England on the Steamer Austral.

Bloemfontein, April 20.—Private J. MacMillan, of Winnipeg, an artificer, who came here with the second contingent and was attached to the 24th Company of the Army Service Corps, died to-day.

The following were sent to England by steamer Austral on the 16th instant:—Color-Sergeant Thompson, Private Lub-man, Finch-Smiles, Bench, and Carter, of the western company, private Craig and Marentette, of the London company, Pte. Rae, of the Toronto company; Pte. O'Connell, of the Ottawa company; Ptes. Johnston, Durant, Frandham and MacFarlane, of the New Brunswick company. Most of these men were among the wounded in the fighting at Paardeberg.

NEW BOER COMMANDER.

General Louis Botha will Take Joubert's Place.

Pretoria, April 20.—The two Transvaal officers rendered vacant by the death of General Joubert have been filled, and the new appointments are to-day gazetted. General Louis Botha is appointed acting commander-general of the Transvaal forces. Major-General Schalk Burger is made Vice-President of the Transvaal.

INSPECTOR STRICKLAND DECLINES.

Ottawa, Ont., April 20.—Inspector Strickland, for family reasons, has been compelled to refuse the command of the draft of fifty men for Strathcona's Horse. Captain Angus Adamson, of the Governor-General's Foot Guards, has therefore been offered and has accepted the position. Captain Adamson is at present serving with Garrison regiment at Halifax, but will return to Ottawa immediately.

PRINCE OF WALES POPULAR.

Scenes in London When His Royal Highness Returned from Denmark.

London, April 21.—The return of the Prince of Wales to this city was made the occasion of a spontaneous demonstration of enthusiasm by thousands of persons who thronged the Charing Cross railroad station and its approaches, waiting patiently to show their gladness at the heir apparent's escape from death. The whole route to Marlborough House, especially Pall Mall, was thick with people, and around the Charing Cross station the police had the utmost difficulty in controlling the crowds.

The Duke of York awaited his father's arrival on the platform of the station, and when the train bearing the Prince drew in.

A Mighty Shout Went Up from the mass of spectators outside the barriers. By that time the King of Sweden, now on a visit to England, his white head inches above the waiting crowd, had joined the Duke of York.

When the Prince of Wales stepped out of the train he was affectionately greeted and congratulated by his son and the visiting sovereign, and then, amid tremendous cheering, he entered a closed carriage and drove off with the Duke of York.

His Royal Highness bowed repeatedly as he passed through the cheering throngs, and was met by the omnibuses which had been stalled for several blocks, and which were then used for grand stands. The heir apparent appeared to be in excellent health, and was dressed in a light tweed suit. Behind his closed vehicle was an open carriage containing King Oscar, who received an ovation.

which almost equaled in enthusiasm that of the Prince of Wales, and to which His Majesty replied by vigorously waving his hat, which urged the crowd to still greater enthusiasm. All along the route similar scenes occurred. The crowds around Marlborough House being particularly large. The spectators of the Prince's homecoming consisted chiefly of the well-dressed, and eminently respectable elements. From their comment it was evident how genuine and heartfelt was the gladness over the Prince's escape from Spionkop's bullet. The most common remark was "How well he looks," from the women. "What a blessing he has come back safe and sound."

King Oscar's unexpected appearance and democratically expressed enthusiasm created intense delight, and made that monarch quite the hero of the hour.

SYMPATHY FOR THE KASIER.

Berlin, April 21.—Emperor William's meeting with the Prince of Wales at Altona last night was an absolute surprise. When the Imperial train arrived General von Mooson had ordered the troops to present arms opposite the track in order to be ready to greet the Prince of Wales, and for the first time in his life the Emperor's troops turned their backs to him. The Emperor laughed and then gave the regulation command, "Right about, attention!" adding, "Good evening, soldiers." The troops replied with a shout, "Good evening your Majesty."

When the train arrived the Emperor and Prince Henry kissed and shook hands with the Prince of Wales. Then the trio took luncheon, while the band played "God Save the Queen."

All the newspapers attach political importance to the Altona meeting. They regard it as an expression of sympathy with England, and not congratulation of the Prince on his escape from an assassin's bullet.

ENEMY STILL INVESTS
BRITISH AT WEPENER.On Wednesday Last Boers Had Col. Dalgetty's Force Closely Pinned In.

FEVER DECIMATES THE GARRISON AT MAFEKING.

Boers South of Bloemfontein Are Said to be Retreating—Mr. Cecil Rhodes on His Way Back to South Africa—The Censorship Even More Rigorous.

London, April 21, 4.20 a.m.
General Chermide and General Ruddle are moving over the sudden roads. They hold the railway and the southern frontier of the Free State with 20,000 men. How many are going with the generals who will engage the Boers at Wepener is not mentioned in the latest despatches from Doriogspoor, where the British bivouacked Wednesday night. The field telegraph ends there. On Wednesday the Boers still had Col. Dalgetty closely pinned in.

The Government's reason for publishing Lord Roberts' Spion Kop despatches was explained last evening at Hull by Mr. Walter Hume-Long, President of the Board of Agriculture, who said that the country was entitled to receive all the information the Government could give. "The Government is told," said Mr. Long, "that having published the despatches, it is bound to deal immediately with the generals affected, but in following such a course the Government might have to dismiss every general the moment he made a mistake. Had such a policy been pursued in the past, many most glorious deeds would not have been performed. General White, if not required in South Africa, will become Governor of Gibraltar towards the end of May."

Allwal North, April 20.
Capt. Little, of Brabant's Horse, Lieut. Holbeck and Mr. Milne, a Reuter correspondent fell into the hands of the enemy while they were trying to reach Wepener a week ago. Everything was taken from the prisoners, who were sent to Pretoria. The native servants who escaped from the Boer laager near Wepener, says that there were four guns disabled, and that the Boers had lost 100 killed alone. It is also ascertained that the Boers made a night attack on April 11, but were discovered while creeping along a deep ditch by the Cape Mounted Rifles with maxims, who fired into them at a distance of two hundred yards, with the result that the Boers lost five wagon loads of killed and wounded. A simultaneous attack in other quarters was repulsed by the British, who used their bayonets. The Boers still surround Wepener, but there has been little firing lately.

London, April 21.
The Ladysmith correspondent of the Daily says—"The Boers in Natal are already commencing a guerrilla warfare. That the Transvaalers and the Free Staters are compelling the natives to bear arms again."

Gen. Buller has ordered all the farmers between Ladysmith and the Drakensberg range to retire to Estcourt.

London, April 21.
The Bloemfontein correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, telegraphing Friday, says—"The weather is now fine. The enemy still hold the waterworks, and our scouts report that the Boers have a line of outposts and small commandos 15 miles east of Bloemfontein, from the Modder River to the Kaffir River."

HAS ROBERTS ADVANCED?
Report of the Fighting at Kamei May be an Indication.

London, April 20.—The report of the fighting at Kamei Siding, six miles north of Glen, contained in the special despatch from Bloemfontein may be the first news of the progress of the British advance on Pretoria. But even if this were only an unimportant skirmish, there are many other indications that Lord Roberts is either starting or has already started for the northern goal.

A despatch from Cape Town under today's date says—"The censorship restrictions have been greatly increased owing to the movements of the troops." All the despatches bear traces of the strenuous efforts of the correspondents to give their papers an inkling of what is afoot.

Boers Are Retreating.
The Boers south of Bloemfontein are reported to be retreating. Large commandos were sent April 19 near Thaba N'chu moving to the north. Their progress was slow, owing to the terrible condition of the country.

Fever at Mafeking.
By way of Pretoria comes a report that fever is decimating the Mafeking garrison, and a letter from the Mayor of Mafeking says Lord Roberts asked Col. Baden-Powell to hold out until May 20.

Rhodes Goes Back.
Mr. Cecil Rhodes returns to Cape Town tomorrow. The announcement of his departure was unexpected. Never has a man so prominently connected with the vital questions of the day paid such a quiet visit to London. It is learned that the so-called "Empire maker" came to England purely on business connected with the British Chartered South Africa Company and the De Beers Mines Company. He has accomplished his object, and, having inaction, and not wishing to meet people or freely express his views, has suddenly determined to return to South Africa, where he will watch the interest of these two companies. Mr. Rhodes has absolutely refused to be interviewed, though privately he has expressed scathing comments on several of the generals still holding commands at the front. Lady Gatacre will be a fellow passenger of Mr. Rhodes. She is going as far as Madeira to meet her husband, the British general who has been sent back to England.

NORTH OF BLOEMFONTEIN.

A Battle is Evidently Going on Near Kamei Siding.

London, April 20.—A special despatch from Bloemfontein under yesterday's date, says firing is reported to be in progress south of Kamei Siding, six miles north of Glen. The strength of the Boers is not known. The British infantry, supported by artillery, hold a strong position on a large dam.

READY TO ADVANCE.

British Force with Roberts Has Got Hemorrhoids and Tents.

London, April 20, 8 a.m.—The Chronicle correspondent at Bloemfontein says that both sides are steadily preparing for the coming struggle, and that Lord Roberts is now ready. The necessary reinforcements have arrived, and the infantry divisions are supplied with tents. Since General Hunter left Ladysmith there has been considerable speculation as to what part of the seat of war he was destined for, and it is now announced by Bennett Hurleigh that he has arrived at Bloemfontein, although it is said, only once visit.

TROUBLE IN GAMAN NOW.

British Troops Sent Northwest of Ashanti—French Meddling Helps It.

Lagos, British West Africa, April 20.—Three hundred Nigerian troops have been despatched overland to the Gaman country, northwest of Ashanti, where the British resident reports a resurgence of the troubles which necessitated the expedition of last year. One hundred and fifty other troops are proceeding from the Gold coast.

There are unconfirmed rumors here of trouble with the French at Meko, in Yoruba country, in the neighborhood of the Dahomey frontier. Owing to the distance, however, this can hardly be connected with the troubles in Ashanti and Gaman.

The governor, Sir Frederick Mitchell Hodgson, wires from Kumasi that the other tribes are rising again, and he asks for assistance. The loyal Bekus have been attacked by the Ashantis, and 500 have been killed. It is feared this will compel them to join the rebellion. Evidently the matter is extremely serious, and was minimized until it was too late.

LORD ROBERTS SUPREME.

New York, April 20.—In his cable to the Post, I. N. Ford says—
Some experts suggest that Lord Roberts' comments on the Spion Kop affair were suppressed long enough to enable Buller to set himself right by relieving Ladysmith, and that there will be a second commentary on the final chapter of the campaign, which will be complimentary to Gen. Buller and will enable him to hold in Natal. Lord Roberts seems to hold every military reputation in South Africa in the hollow of his hand. The War Office may exercise a suspensive veto, but whenever Lord Roberts' opinion is known the nation and army will adopt it, and there is no appeal from it.

ANSWER TO PORTUGAL.

Lisbon, April 20.—The text of the correspondence between the Transvaal and Portugal concerning the landing of British soldiers at Beira has been communicated to the press, presumably by Dr. Leyds. In this correspondence the South African Republic expresses profound pain on learning of the violation of neutrality. It contends that neutrality necessarily suspends the operations as that under which Portugal acted. It keenly regrets that, after the friendly relations hitherto existing between the Transvaal and Portugal, the latter should have suddenly decided to facilitate the arrival of the enemy's troops and transform himself from a neutral to an ally of the enemy.

Sustain Heavy Boer Fire at Leeuv Kop.

35 MEN OF WORCESTER THE REGIMENT MISSING

Col. Dalgetty Still Holding Out at Wepener and Reports That Enemy Has Crossed to North Side of River—The Boers
Hurriedly Evacuate Leeuv Kop.

London, April 23.—The War Office late this evening issued the following despatch from Lord Roberts, dated Bloemfontein, Monday April 23, 2.50 p.m.—
"Yesterday I despatched the Eleventh Division under Gen. Pole-Carew and two brigades of cavalry under Gen. Francis from this point to assist Gen. Rundle. The force reached Kameelskloof without much opposition. Casualties reported—Welsh Regiment, private killed, Capt. Prothers mortally wounded, and seven men; Yorkshires, eight wounded; Eight Hussars, one killed, one wounded; Fourteenth Hussars, one wounded. Royal Artillery, two wounded; Seventh Dragoons, Lieut. Jennings and 10 men missing. Capt. Bolton, Royal Artillery, broken by a fall.
Gen. Pole-Carew's Mounted Infantry seized Leeuv Kop and High Hill, a few miles north of their last night's position. The enemy evacuated hurriedly leaving some rifles and ammunition."

Allwal North, April 23
Col. Dalgetty is holding out at Wepener. It is reported that all the Boers have crossed to the north side of the Caledon River.

London, April 23
Gen. Rundle reports that 35 men of the First Worcester's are missing. Fifty three were sent with Wood to an outpost after dark. Only 15 returned. Their numbers and names will be reported to-day, as well as four wounded yesterday."

The War Office has given no explanation of the apparent discrepancy in the figures as to the men of the Worcester regiment.

Bloemfontein, Monday, April 23
Col. Alderson's corp of Mounted Infantry consisting of the first battalions of the First and Second Canadian Regiments and Strathcona Horse, was engaged in the operations of Gen. Pole-Carew and Gen. Kitch. Alderson had undertaken to drive the Boers from their line of defence south of the Waterworks. The Canadians sustained a heavy fire. The Boers shelled Alderson, who made a marching movement around Leeuv Kop on the extreme front of the Boer position. When the British battery opened fire the Boers removed the gun. Leeuv Kop was found evacuated this morning. Gen. Dickson's Cavalry Brigade, which made a wide detour to the left found its further progress barred by a strong Boer position.

London, April 24
The Cape Town correspondent of the Daily Mail says that General Carrington's force is the only one going to the relief of Mafeking and that no force of any kind is operating from the south.

WHERE THE SURPRISE WAS.
Boers Occupied Ground Which Had A Boer Thoroughly Examined.

A Special from Boshof, dated April 21 says—Gen. Methuen's return was entirely unconnected with the increase of the Boer forces about Zwartkopsfontein. Major Mahon, with two squadrons, searched the west and southwest during the morning, meeting only small parties. The enemy's chief strength was that General Douglas's flying column, by proceeding to Bruckendam, suggested that General Methuen was about to operate towards the east. The Boer commando occupies strong positions about Spitzkop, eight miles northeast of Boshof.

BOERS NUMBER 80,000.
The Times' Correspondent Says That Originally They Had 80,000

A special from Lorenzo Marques, dated April 21, says—The Boer press is usually reliable. Present information shows that at one time the republic had no less than 100,000 men in the field, including colonial rebels, and

DREAFUL STATE OF FAMINE CENTRE.

Nearly Five Million People in India Are Dependent Upon the Government for Sustenance.

Bombay, April 23.—Mr. Donald Smeaton, member of the Viceroy's Council, who was sent as a special commissioner to visit and report on the condition of the provinces affected by the famine, thus describes the situation—
In my visit to the famine-stricken provinces, which was undertaken by order of the Viceroy, I travelled through Central and part of Western India. The condition of the country is much worse than I anticipated. For hundreds of miles on and not a single stalk of corn or even dry stubble is to be seen, nor yet a blade of green pasture. There is no water except in the larger rivers and streams. The whole country is one vast bare, brown, lonely desert. The mortality among cattle is appalling. The officers of the Government are doing their very best to alleviate the general misery, but they cannot achieve the impossible. They have not money enough to do more than barely sustain the life of the five millions who are now employed on relief works and of thousands upon thousands of those who suffer in deserted villages who would rather die than labor in relief works. More money is wanted, and wanted quickly. I have witnessed two famines; I know the people well and their patience under suffering, but I think the crisis through which we are now passing is by far the most acute of the century. Great Britain and Ireland owe a debt to the Indian peasant, a debt of millions upon millions. India has risen as one man to support by her voice as well as by money her fellow subjects in the South African struggle. Let the United Kingdom stretch out to her a helping hand and extract her from the deadly grip of famine. The tracts affected by the present famine contain a population of 55,000,000, of whom perhaps 62,000,000 may be severely affected. Of the 85,000,000, 43,350,000 are in the Native States and 41,750,000 in British territory.

Many of the Boers are moving southward.

FIGHTING EVERY INCH.

Boers are Sternly Contesting the Advance of General Rundle.

London, April 23.—General Rundle is evidently advancing slowly towards Wepener, every step being closely contested by the Boers. From the republican side there is a good deal of interesting news to-day. A Theba N'Chu despatch dated Friday, April 20, reports the arrival of three Commandants De Wet and Villiers, and an attack upon three thousand British under Gen. Gatacre. The latter of course is a misstatement, and probably Gen. Rundle is referred to. The British, it is added, occupied some kopjes, but their left wing was driven back. The Boer loss was one killed and five wounded.

Patrol Surprised.
From Brandfort comes the news that on Saturday, April 21, a British patrol of ten men ventured near that place.

EXPRESSION OF GREAT LOYALTY.

Patriotic Resolution Passed at the Evangelical Conference Held at Listowel.

Listowel, April 23.—To-day the 36th session of the Canada Conference, Evangelical Association, convened, with Bishop Thomas Bowman, D.D., of Chicago, in the chair.
The Committee on Schools and Education recommended that Bible history should be taught in the Public schools.
The Temperance Committee want prohibition. They ask for prohibition. A resolution on the war was passed. It was to the following effect. That we greatly deplore the action of the Boers in precipitating this war by their unprovoked and insulting ultimatum and at the same time invading British territory and suffered the loss of one man killed and two men captured, including a Free State, who was leading the party.

A Pretoria despatch dated April 21, says the latest official news was that fighting was proceeding within half an hour's ride of Dewetsdorp, with no results.

Clergymen for Cronje.
The Transvaal Government, it is added, has asked Lord Roberts to be allowed to send a clergyman to St. Helena and also a neutral consul to watch the interests of the prisoners in the same manner as Mr. Albert S. Hay guards the interests of the British at Pretoria.

A proclamation has been issued prohibiting the working of the mines on Sundays and inflicting punishment on managers paying over a pound a month to natives.
Quiet at Ladysmith.
From Ladysmith to-day comes a despatch saying all is quiet and that the Boer guns are silent.

THE GREAT TRUST OF FARMERS.

The Project to be Proposed at the Coming Agricultural Congress in Paris.

Minneapolis, April 23.—The uniting of all the farmers of the world in a sort of international trust to agreement to restrict the production of wheat and to raise prices in the project which it is hoped to carry out at the International Agricultural Convention to be held in Paris July 9 to 16. It is proposed to ask the farmers of the world to reduce their wheat output 20 per cent. and not to sell a bushel for less than $1.
J. C. Hanley, of St. Paul, executive agent of the Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union, the National Cotton Growers' Association, the Farmers' Federation of the Mississippi Valley, and the National Grain Growers' Association, is the chief promoter of the International Agricultural Trust in America. Prof. O. H. Hubbard, of the University of Fribourg, Switzerland, is the chief promoter of the plan in Europe. The idea was conceived by these two men independently.

Mr. Hanley has been a worker in the interests of the farmers for years. He has been interested in many hold-your-breath schemes and is prominently associated with the farmers' elevator and various co-operative undertakings. He has without provocation. We hold that the war in South Africa on the part of Britain is a contest for civil and therefore for the advancement of civilization and Christianity in the dark continent.

That we as citizens of the glorious Empire of our most gracious Sovereign Queen Victoria, herewith express our sincere loyalty and support to Her Majesty's government. We hope and pray that this war may soon end and that the result will be the establishment of peace, justice and civil equality in South Africa. Among the appointments of the preachers for the ensuing year is G. F. Halst, Toronto.

points out that before the main body can advance from Bloemfontein it is absolutely necessary to clear the flanks and rear from mines and also to accumulate stores in case of an interruption of the long lines of communications, but when the army does move it will be seventy thousand strong and perfectly equipped.

HAS AN EYE TO BUSINESS.

A Canadian Who is Doing Trade in the Free State.

London, April 21.—A despatch from Bloemfontein, dated Friday, April 20, commenting on the improvement in industrial prospects which the system is likely to bring about, says—"An instance of the business acumen of the colonial is the case of a Canadian private who has a large interest in a soap business. During the present half he has been pushing his wares with the same energy as he and his comrades rushed the trenches at Paardeberg."

DASTARDLY ATTEMPT TO DESTROY CANAL LOCKS!

A Cool, Daring But Unsuccessful Attempt Made to Blow Up Lock Gates at Thorold.

LIKELY THE WORK OF PRO-BOERS OR FENIANS.

Three Men Arrested Charged With the Deed, Having Been Caught in the Act—The Militia Called Out to Prevent Rescue and Guard Government Property.

Thorold, Ont., April 23.—Saturday evening a cool, daring, but unsuccessful attempt was made to blow up the lock gates of lock 24, new canal, at this place.
About 6.20 p. m., two men were seen to alight, each carrying a small valve. They walked a short distance up the railway track, and then made for the canal bank, which they followed until they arrived at lock 24. They were seen to go behind a more house at the lock, evidently to arrange the fuses. One of the men proceeded to the lower gates and the other to the upper gates. Nothing was thought of their action at the time.

The man at the lower gates quickly tied the valve to a rope, and, setting fire to the fuse, lowered it down about eight or ten feet against the side of the lock gate. He then walked quickly away, passing his companion on the way to the road, and calling to him to "hurry up and drop it," which his companion did. At this time the first explosion occurred, smashing the iron work of the gate to pieces and blowing a hole in the "woodwork." In two or three minutes after the second charge of dynamite exploded, doing similar damage to the upper gate.

WOULD HAVE BEEN TERRIBLE.

Both gates, although badly sprung, on a settled firmly on the bottom of the lock and held their places, thus preventing the large body of water, nearly a mile in length, between locks 24 and 25 from bursting through. Had this occurred great damage would have been done, not only to the canal but also to the surrounding country which would have been flooded. By the time the second explosion occurred the two men were running rapidly down the road towards Niagara Falls. The windows in all the neighborhood were broken. The explosion was, in fact, felt both in St. Catharines and Port Dalhousie, five and eight miles distant. The damage to the lock gates will be fully repaired in a few days, and will not delay the opening of the canal on Wednesday next. Had the plans of the men been successful great damage would have been done not only to the canal but to the surrounding property, together with probable loss of life. The Welland division of the Grand Trunk Railway runs in a deep cut alongside of the canal, only the banks separating them, with the station immediately below. This, with a number of houses, would no doubt have been swept away, and the country for miles around been flooded, as the level above is about a mile long with sixteen feet of water in it.

THREE MEN ARRESTED.

Niagara Falls, Ont., April 23.—Saturday night three men who made the attempt to blow up lock 24 on the Welland canal were arrested by Detective Mains, of the Ontario police. The prisoners are—
WATSON, JOHN, Washington, D.C., aged 28, small-sized, clean shaven.
NOLAN, JOHN, Philadelphia, aged 50, tall, stout, aged 215 pounds.
DUIJMAN, KAREL, aged 30, stout set, well dressed, evidently the leader of the gang.

After the arrest of the three men the American police at Niagara Falls, N.Y., located the abode of Nolan and Watson on the American side to be at the Dolphin House, Suspension Bridge, N.Y., and on searching their room found exploding fuses concealed there. It has been further learned that the Canadian inspector of customs, Rappfield, and American Customs Inspector Lewis, had been shadowing the three men for the past week as opium smugglers, and both officers came to the conclusion that they were a gang of crooks.

FOUND IN THEIR ROOMS.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., April 23.—The police here were asked to search the rooms occupied by the three men at the Dolphin House. The proprietor said that the men came to his house a week ago and engaged a room. They said little to anyone, and told absolutely nothing about themselves, where they came from or why they were in the Falls. They were well dressed. They spent all their nights, so far as known, in the hotel, but made frequent trips abroad by day, several times crossing the river.
In the room was found a rubber bag filled with fuses, such as are used in dynamiting operations. Taht was the only thing to be found that would seem to connect the occupants of the room with any possible use of high explosives.

WHO ARE THEY?

Without a doubt the Ontario police here have made a very important arrest in the three men. Chief Young and Detective Mains have been working assiduously all day to-day, and with the American police and Buffalo detectives, have probably unearthed a gang of dynamiters operating from the Dolphin House at Suspension Bridge, N.Y., the Rivoli Hotel here and Buffalo, N.Y. The leader is supposed to be the man registered as Dullman at the hotel.

The three men left Saturday evening on the Niagara Central train at 6 p.m. Thorold, with two canvas telescope valves, which contained the dynamite cartridges and fuses attached. The police have witnesses who can identify the two men, Walsh and Nolan, as the men who lowered the two valves in lock 24 and lighted the fuses.

Information was received yesterday afternoon that probably an attempt would be made by a crowd of 200 men from Buffalo to forcibly liberate the prisoners some time last night. Mayor Slater, with two other magistrates, made a demand for a detachment to guard and frustrate any such attempt, as the Ontario and local police would be inadequate to cope with such a gang of thugs. Capt. Vanderaulys called out his men and a detachment of 25 men in full uniform and accoutrements, under his own command, were put on guard at the jail. Each man was served with ten rounds of ammunition and rifle, and are doing guard duty at the jail, parading up and down the four sides of the building with fixed bayonets. Special police deputies are guarding the three bridges and any attempt at rescue will be promptly frustrated.

Special patrols have been placed on the canal, an dthe Grand Trunk have a posse of men guarding their tunnel under the canal near Merrifield. The prisoners will have a hearing before Judge Magistrate Logan to-day, when they undoubtedly will be committed for trial. The greatest excitement is prevailing on both sides of the frontier.

Both Walsh and Nolan when arrested carried loaded revolvers in the outside pockets of their coats, ready for instant use.

WHY DID THEY DO IT?

The district round about is greatly excited at the daring attempt, and all kinds of rumors are flying around as to the object of the attempt, some placing it to opposition to the grain shovellers, others to the grain shovellers' trouble in Buffalo, and, again, to those sympathizers from across the river. The majority of people, however, claim it is in connection with the grain shovellers' trouble, and a desire to prevent the grain that would otherwise go to Buffalo from coming through the canal and down the St. Lawrence route. But all this is mere

IN MONTREAL.

Montreal, April 23.—The report that the dynamite outrage on the Welland canal was the work of parties opposed to the Corners syndicate gains little credence here. The obstructions to navigation would depend upon the extent of the damage done, and on this point the despatch was not clear, but it does not appear to assume it was the work of opponents of the syndicate.

AT THE CAPITAL.

Ottawa, April 23.—Yesterday morning Hon. A. G. Blair, Minister of Railways and Canals, received news of the attempt to blow up lock No. 24, but that the damage done is trifling. It is not believed by the officials of the Department of Railways and Canals that it will be necessary to postpone the opening of the canal, which was set for the 25th inst. Chief Inspector John Murray was ordered to go to the frontier and investigate the matter. He left this morning.

EMPHATICALLY DENIED.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 23.—The most careful enquiry has failed to discover anything to indicate a movement of anything to indicate a movement of Buffalo grain-shovellers to release the Welland Canal dynamiters, now in jail just across the Canadian frontier.

The grain-shovellers seen along the water front seemed surprised at the story when it was told to them by newspaper reporters. President McMahon, of the Grain-shovellers' Union, branded the story as ridiculous.

THE COLORADO COPPER MINING COMPANY

LOCATION OF OUR MINES

THE COLORADO COPPER MINING COMPANY is fortunate in being the possessor of extensive copper property in the great Salt Lake copper belt, the principal copper producing region of this part of the Rockies. All of our claims have been more or less developed, and it is our policy to put the same on a paying basis as soon as possible.
Our company owns, clear of all encumbrances, the following claims: The Redalia Extension, the Redalia Extension No. 2, which property adjoins the great Redalia mine, which has been a big producer for upwards of seven years; the Copper King of Colorado, which immediately adjoins the above; the Copper Queen of Idaho, a very promising property, only a few steps from the depot in Salt Lake. This claim occupies an important position on a mountain side north of the city; and last, but by no means least, the Buckhorn, located two miles east of Salt Lake, on the main trunk line of the great trans-continental railroad, and also on the Arkansas river, which is length is one of America's greatest streams.

FULLY PAID AND NON-ASSESSABLE

We have already completed over 100 feet development work, 70 feet of which consists of surface work such as cross-cutting, shallow shafts, etc. prospecting to decide the best place to sink our main or working shaft. This has been found to be on the "Big 3" or "Victor" claim, and we are now down 30 feet and still pushing the work as fast as four practical miners and dynamite can possibly accomplish. Remember we have three full claims, to wit: "Big 3," "Victor" and
"W.D. of the West," situated on Iron Mountain in the Bertha mining district, Ferry county, Washington, six miles southwest of the famous Republic mine, and that there is a big ledge of porphyry quartz ore along all the three claims lengthwise from north to south and cropping for over 2,700 feet, and surface assays furnished $5 to $10 in free gold.
On the "Big 3" claim, while doing development work, we discovered a true basic vein 4 feet wide cutting the formation east and west, which from picked samples assayed $22.00 in gold.
Our company writes us, under date of March 1, 1900, that at a depth of 30 feet in our proposed main shaft he is working in 4 feet of the quartz and it is widening as depth is acquired. He says: "I am confident that a shaft 100 feet deep will prove this property nearly as good as, if not equal to any of the great mines of the Republic." Camp as the name stage of development. Our latest assay from a depth of about 15 feet (main shaft) gave $6.55 "a better showing than the Republic had at the same depth."

The company now offers 50,000 shares of treasury stock (NON-ASSESSABLE AT THE LOW PRICE OF 1 1/2 CENTS PER SHARE) in order to raise funds to push the work with additional force.
There are 200,000 shares in the treasury and the above is the first offering for sale. The company being a reliable one, and with such a phenomenal showing in their properties, it should induce immediate investment, no one's duty at the price will positively be raised when this block is sold; every dollar we spend means greater depth to our shaft, water lead and higher assays. DON'T MISS THIS, IT'S A WINNER. Send your orders at once to the secretary.

Short Story of the Day

A DISCORDANT HARMONY.

BY LOUISE A. McGAFFEY.

They met on the steamer after coming over from Europe. He was a professor in a western college, tall, thin and solemn; she, medium, plump, and merry, with a settled conviction that silent and moody people were public nuisances, whose elimination from society not only would be a good thing, but a positive necessity if other folks were to have any comfort in living.

She was holding forth in this wise to the professor one evening as they promenaded the deck, together after supper, and as might be expected, she met with strenuous opposition.

"You're an out-and-out barbarian, Miss Waring," he protested. "Don't you know that it takes all sorts of people to make a world? The very essence of pleasure lies in contrast, and wouldn't it be a dreary thing if every person you met should be on the broad grin?"

"That is just what I would like," replied
Waring with a merry laugh.

"But that is absurd, and you know it," persisted the professor a little testily.

"I do not know any such thing," retorted the young lady. "I'd much rather see everybody on the broad grin, as you put it, than to meet nothing but faces full of woe, or, if not that, with a look in them as if their owners were carrying the weight of the world upon their shoulders."

"Like mine, for instance," suggested the professor glumly.

"Yes, like yours, since you have said so," rejoined Miss Waring, mischievously.
"But, professor," she went on, a little sobered, "why should we waste this delicious evening in discussing things that neither of us understand—I mean that I do not understand? She blushed as she hastily corrected herself. "Give me the sunlit foam on the top wave of things, and anybody who likes may have what lies beneath."

"But my dear young lady, the foam is the scum."

"Well, foam or scum, or whatever you like to call it, I am content with it, and with these abide."

"In the scum?"

"In the scum."

"Woe is me!" The professor looked almost angry.

Miss Waring was too kind-hearted wantonly to give pain, so she hastened to say—
"You have made the voyage very pleasant for me, Professor Farnsworth. As soon as I saw you were an American I received your kind attentions as a matter of course, but you and I could never be congenial friends for long."

"I should like to know why? he asked stiffly.

"Of the difference in our theory of life would always be a barrier," she answered. "There's your theory of contrasts, for instance; how would you reconcile two such opposite natures as ours?"

"By observing the agreements and letting the disagreements alone," he replied.

Miss Waring laughed. "Yes, that might do for mere acquaintances, but if I ever marry my husband must be of my own way of thinking. I could never endure to have a death's head facing me every morning at breakfast, nor a dismal spook taunting its shins at my fireside on winter evenings."

"And if I ever marry," he remarked after a pause, "my wife shall be an exact opposite of myself. The play of continual contrast is what suits me."

"There you are again, professor, with your theory of contrasts," exclaimed Miss Waring with mock disdain. "Just cut your eyes outward, professor; that is, if you can get away from yourself a moment, and tell me what lesson that scene beyond teaches. There is the ocean, smooth as a ballroom floor, away up above are the peaceful stars shining with all their might. Nothing but wondrous air blow around this ship; every thud of the engine is one step nearer home. And about this time tomorrow evening we shall drop anchor in New York harbor, and I shall see again that dear old Dick from whom I have been parted a solid year."

"Wonder," she went on musingly.
"If the dear fellow got my cablegram from Berlin? I should just hate awfully not to find him when I land."

"If you love him so I don't see how you could leave him so long," remarked the professor gloomily.

"Oh, Dick had a great opinion of my abilities and insisted that I should take a turn at art and music and a few other trifles over there in Berlin, and I was nothing loath to go I assure you. Dick has been making barrels of money out in the mines, so I knew I was not putting him to any inconvenience in the way of expense, and I dearly love to travel, and the excitement of new scenes and faces.
Now, after this frank confession, I know what my attitude is with you. It is just
"nil and nothing else."

"It is nothing of the kind, as you ought to know, and now I also have a confession to make. Ever the way in which you speak of this Dick I take it that you are engaged to him, and you would have done me a great favor if you had mentioned him at first, together with your prospective relationship to him. I should then have saved myself from falling in love with you and from making an idiot of myself as I am this minute, when I tell you you are the only woman I ever met whom I wanted to marry. There, I've said it, and you can settle with Dick according to your pleasure."

"You have been watching it every since we came on deck, and now it has begun to rise rapidly. If I am not mistaken we shall have a storm tonight that will turn this lovely scene into wild uproar and give this good ship such a shaking as it has not known before."

A shade of apprehension crossed Miss Waring's sunny face. "I call that too bad," she said. "After such delightful weather as we have had, to wind up with a storm that will turn everybody topsy-turvy, ruin all our dresses and make every woman on board into a perfect fright, it's an imposition."

"It has been written," said the professor solemnly, "from the beginning that there should be contrasts in everything in this life. Sunshine and shade, storm and calm, peace and war, plenty and poverty; there is no escaping these conditions. And out of them comes all the beauty of virtue, all the glory of great deeds, all the harmony of music. You ought to understand these things, Miss Waring, if not for your own sake, for that of your future husband."

"Thank you, professor. You are very kind, but as the rest of the folks are going below, I will join them, leaving you to your meditations and your storm. May you enjoy them both."

The professor escorted her to the stairway, bowed coldly to her bright "Good night," and then betook himself to a lonely vigil on the after deck. He lit a cigar, and sat smoking and thinking, while the cloud rose higher and the storm came nearer.

On the second evening after this a somewhat battered ocean steamer crept into her slip on the North river and a bedraggled crowd poured out upon the landing stage. The storm had blown it self out, but while it lasted it had been severe enough to satisfy the most exciting theory of contrasts.

Miss Waring had no sooner put her foot on terra firma than she found herself in the arms of a big, bearded fellow whom she called Dick, and who was so busy kissing her that he did not see the individual behind her with his hands full of satchels and things, and an amused smile on his face.

But when he did look up there was a great shaking of hands and exclamations on each side at finding the other there, and then the professor asked in an aggrieved tone—

"But why is it, Dick, that I didn't know you were Miss Waring's brother?"

"Dick's answer was irrelevancy itself.
"Here's the carriage now," he said. "Get in, both of you; I'll explain as we go along."

There was a delightful reunion at the Waring home that evening, and another affair some months later, when Professor Farnsworth and Beattie Waring decided to reconcile their differing theories and out of their many contrasts to evolve a permanent harmony.

Mrs. Frances M. Wolcott has secured an absolute divorce from Senator Edward O. Wolcott on the ground of desertion. No evidence was introduced for the defense.

Mrs. A. L. Vrooman Wood of Minneapolis has been appointed judge of the decorated china to be exhibited at the Paris exposition by the National League of Mineral Painters. The selection of Mrs. Wood was made by Commissioner General Peck.

Miss Eva Hooper of London is now on her way to Australia, where she is to organize the kindergarten work in the public schools of Victoria and to give kindergarten training. Miss Hooper recently spent about a year in this country studying the schools.

Mrs. Humphry Ward suggests the establishment in every town of Great Britain of an organization to study Christian dogma and Christian history with the aid of such books as Harnack's "History of Dogma" and Schure's "The Jewish People in the Time of Christ."

Mrs. Alexander Capperton, who died in Kirkhill, Scotland, the other day, was one of the few links connecting the present with the time of Sir Walter Scott. She entered his service when 18 and was with him when he died and received a lock of his hair from Mrs. Lockhart.

A woman has been appointed assignee of the savings bank at Hindsdale, N. H., by the supreme court. She is Miss Cora A. Wellman, who has occupied the position of treasurer of the institution, having succeeded her father. She was recommended for appointment by the incorporators of the bank.

The Duke de Orleans, who is now making a cruise in the Mediterranean on her fine yacht Maroussia, is a very clever draftsman, and a daily amusement of hers is the designing and execution of dainty little menu cards for the day's use. She never fails to produce these cards, whether at home or on the sea.

A new aspirant for legal honors is Mrs. Catherine V. Waite, a western woman, 71 years old, who will soon go to Denver and establish a law office there, with her husband as a partner. Mrs. Waite is the owner of large tracts of land, many horses and a block of real estate in Chicago. Her husband was at one time a judge in Idaho.

Lady Dundonald, whose husband, the earl, has been distinguished himself with the Buller in Natal, got into a quarrel with the town authorities of Abercrombie, Wales, recently over land needed to widen a road passing through the chief attraction of the place, an avenue of old sycamores on her land. On the town council's threatening to acquire the land needed by condemnation the countess had all the old trees cut down.

TWO LADS WHO STARTED EVEN.

Years When One Prospered While the Other Stood Still.

Thirty years ago Mr. H., a nurseryman in New York state, left home for a day or two. It was rainy weather and not a season for sales, but a customer arrived from a distance, tied up his horse and went into the kitchen of a farmhouse where two lads were cracking nuts.

"Is Mr. H. at home?"

"No, sir," said the eldest, Joe, hammering at a nut.

"When will he be back?"

"Dunno, sir. Maybe not for a week."

The other boy, Jim, jumped up and followed the man out. "The men are not here, but I can show you the stock," he said, with such a bright, courteous manner that the stranger, who was a little irritated, stopped and followed him through the nursery, examining the trees, and left his order.

"You have sold the largest bill I have had this season, Jim," his father, greatly pleased, said to him on his return.

A few years later these two boys were left by their father's failure and death with $200 or $300 each. Joe bought an acre or two near home. He has worked hard, but is still a poor, discontented man. Jim bought an emigrant's ticket to Colorado, hired as a cattle driver for a couple of years and with his wages bought land at 40 cents an acre, built himself a house and married. His herds of cattle are numbered by the thousand, his land has been cut up into town lots, and he is ranked as one of the wealthiest men in the state.

"I might have done like Jim," his brother said lately, "if I'd thought in time. There's as good stuff in me as in him."

"There's as good stuff in that loaf of bread as in any I ever made," said his wife, "but nobody can eat it. There's not enough yeast in it." The retort, though disagreeable, was true. The quick, wide awake energy which acts as leaven to character is partly natural, but it can be facilitated by parents.—Industrial Kater-prize.

Bread in Havana. Havana's bread carts are usually two-legged—that is, bread is carried about the streets in large, shallow baskets borne on top of men's heads. It is served in sticks as long as a baseball bat or in loaves or pones, one of which is supposed to serve for the morning meal of an ordinary citizen.

HER COMING.

A month ago the year was growing gray: The festive swallow and the oriole Had lured the summer southward, and the gay The living green from the confiding leaves, Deluding them with sickle reds and gold, And lured her on to empty cheeks. That murmured hollow protests to the cold. And then you came, a fair enchantress who, With half-revealing smile replaced the skies, Repaired the dreary autumn with kind eyes, That offered spring and tenderness and cheer. A wealth of roses in my path the day You turned a mid-November into May.

THE SELF MADE MAN.

This Writer Must Have Met One That He Did Not Like.

Notwithstanding these self-made man does not reflect unadulterated credit upon his maker; he is himself fully convinced that he is the perfect article.

Even if, as may sometimes be the case, he is conscious of a few imperfections, he refers them to his parents, who were responsible for the man in the rough, so to speak, before he began to mold himself into the ideal creature that you now behold and therefore not chargeable to his account.

It is a constant wonder to him that others with no worse material than he had to found himself upon should have turned out such inferior pieces of work, and it is natural, therefore, that he should condemn the droves of failures that he sees about him.

But happily for him he only observes others sufficiently to exalt his own greatness by comparison. His best hold and his strong suit is introspection. By looking within he has ever before his mental vision an object that awells his bosom with pride to look upon, and he makes the most of the show, which, being a continuous performance, keeps him ever busy and always supremely happy.

To others he may seem a sublime egotist and a conceited ass, but what is that to him? How are these underlings either to recognize or appreciate grandeur which it is impossible to conceive or to understand?

So he goes through the world worshipping his creator increased in an armor of self-sufficiency which is impervious to the slings and arrows of the cynical or the contemptuous.

If he could see himself as others see him, he might discover many shortcomings and possibly some glaring defects, but he has no eyes for other's eyes. His own are good enough for his purpose, which is to admire his own handiwork.

He is a continual satisfaction to himself and is happy, and to others he is not without his uses. He gives them something to laugh at and something, besides, to avoid copying. In fact, who knows how much worse the world would be and how less amusing were it not for the self-made man?

So, on the whole, we owe the self-made man a great debt for his workmanship, and therefore let us thank him for his achievement.—Boston Transcript.

An Awkward Cigar Holder. "Probably no one but a German would ever have invented the thing, and now that he has invented it not even a German could tell to what use it could be put."

So commented the buyer for a big department store in search of novelties. The thing commented on appeared to be an umbrella, tight rolled and looking like other umbrellas with natural wood handles except that there was no ferrule at the tip. It turned out to be a cigar holder, for a silver cap on the handle end uncovered, and there was a place for the butt of the cigar. Through the rod of the umbrella was a tube, and the thing was smoked by pulling at what turned out to be a mouthpiece at the tip.

A more ungainly thing for the purposes of a cigar holder could hardly be devised, and it was useless as an umbrella, for that part of it was a "fake." Yet somebody in Germany manufactures them, and a Chambers street dealer has had a lot shipped to him for sale. Why any one should buy one is a mystery, and what he would do with it after the purchase is an even greater one.—New York Times.

Squirrels and Turkey Calls.

Did it ever occur to you to use a turkey call in squirrel hunting? I once had three gray squirrels up a large gum tree and had tried to slip up to them, but they saw me and hid. I went up as close to the tree as I wanted and sat down to wait for them to come out. I sat there 20 or 30 minutes, and they did not move that I could see. I was in a fairly good turkey country and so got out my turkey call and made a few calls, and in less than two minutes all three squirrels were in sight, and in a good deal less time they were all mine on the ground. I take it that they thought that if it was safe for a turkey to be calling they were in no danger. I would like to know if any one else ever had a like experience, and if I ever get in a like situation I will make experiments until I am satisfied.—Forest and Stream.

GENERALS BRABANT AND HART TURN POSITIONS OCCUPIED BY THE ENEMY

Roberts Has Spread a Net With 40,000 Men and 150 Guns Covering the Whole Western Semi-Circle Around Wepener.

LADY SARAH WILSON WRITES FROM MAFEKING.

The News of Check of Relief Column Caused Bitter Disappointment.
A Number of Natives Surprised by Boers While and Shot Down Without Mercy.

London, April 24, 11.15 p.m. The War Office issues the following from Lord Roberts:—"Bloemfontein, April 24.—Generals Brabant and Hart yesterday turned the position occupied by the enemy, who tried to prevent their moving northward and got into half-groing communication with Col. Dalgetty, commander of the besieged garrison at Wepener, who reported all well. Gen. Brabant has three wounded and one missing. Three were wounded on the previous day. The Border Regiment had seven wounded.

At one p.m. yesterday Brabant and Hart were eight miles south of Wepener. The Eleventh Division, under Gen. Pole-Carew and Gen. French's two brigades of cavalry reached Tweede-Drifk yesterday afternoon without having met serious opposition.

London, April 24, 11.15 p.m. Heliograph communication has been established with Gen. Rundle. A patrol of the Seventh Dragoons under Lieut. Jenkins, which was reported missing yesterday, has rejoined Gen. French's camp, with the exception of corporal Taylor and private Cook, who are believed to be wounded and prisoners. Mounted infantry yesterday under Gen. Ian Hamilton, occupied the Waterworks at Sannas Post. As the enemy are holding the neighboring hills in some strength, the Ninth Division, consisting of Gen. Smith-Dorrien and Gen. Macdonald's Brigades have been despatched to support Hamilton.

Gen. Maxwell's Brigade, formerly Gen. Chermide's, of the Seventh Division, yesterday moved eastward and seized the hills covering the wagon bridge over the Modder River at Kranz Kraal, an important communication much used by the Boers during the last three weeks. Our only casualty was Pte. Brun, New South Wales Mounted Rifles, taken prisoner.

London, April 22. Lady Sarah Wilson, in a despatch to the Daily Mail from Mafeking, dated Sunday April 22, says:—"Our bread is now made entirely of oats, and is full of lumps, which causes much illness. There are many cases of nervous prostration and malaria typhoid among the garrison. The news of the check to the relief column is a terrible disappointment. Last Friday thirty-three natives issued forth to recover some cattle which had been looted by the Boers. They were betrayed by unfriendly natives to the Boers, who surrounded them while they were sleeping and shot them all but one, giving no quarter; none escaped to tell the tale. The natives are now mad for revenge, and it will be very difficult to control them.

The bombardment continues. Our casualties to combatants up to the end of March aggregated 363 in killed and wounded.

London, April 25, 5 a.m. The reports that the siege of Wepener had been practically raised were apparently premature. The Boers' attack upon Col. Dalgetty's northern position as described from Naseru was probably a final attempt to rush the garrison before securing a safe retreat. As Col. Dalgetty successfully repulsed the attack, no further anxiety is felt on his account. Lord Roberts has now spread a net with some 40,000 or more men and 150 guns covering the whole western semi-circle around Wepener while General Hamilton has occupied the waterworks practically without opposition. The seventh division, under Gen. Tucker, assisted by the naval guns, has made a demonstration from Karree siding, the Boers showing some opposition. At the same time a brigade moved out from Glen to take up a position on a range of hills at Gen. Macdonald's, north of the Modder. The waterworks were undamaged with the exception of the removal of the sliding valves of the pumping engines.

BOERS SKILFUL GAME.

London, April 24.—The Boers are playing an exceedingly skilful game. They have made a countermove to the attack of Generals Rundle and Chermide upon Dewetsdorp. By digging in upon the rear of the British forces at the latter place they have compelled General Roberts to send out another army of ten thousand infantry and another three thousand cavalry from Bloemfontein in order to protect the rear, flank and communications of such forces. Leeuw Kop is about midway between Bloemfontein and Dewetsdorp on the main road, and so long as the Boers held the hill it was impossible for communication to be established between the two places by the direct route. It appears certain, therefore, that the reason for the battle of Sunday last in which the Canadians were engaged was a raid upon the communications of Rundle and Chermide, which had assumed dangerous dimensions. This is what Lord Roberts means when he refers to the despatch of troops "to assist General Rundle." So far the object of the force under Pole-Carew and French would appear to have been achieved. The maps do not show any other position of strength between Leeuw Kop and Dewetsdorp, and there is no reason why the remaining twenty miles separating the two places should not be quickly covered, thus placing an army of over 30,000 men at Dewetsdorp, and threatening the retreat of the southern Boers. Once Dewetsdorp is occupied by the British the Boers would only have a narrow tract of country, thirty miles in breadth, through which to retreat, and it goes without saying that with the Basuto mountains lined with menacing tribesmen on one and three British divisions on the other they would be in a serious predicament. The most significant part of the whole affair is that the burghers have succeeded despite the hitherto vigorous abstinence of the British from turning to right or left in again forcing the latter to fight on a battle ground not of their own choosing, and divide their strength in order to clear their threatened flanks. The advance northward is therefore postponed until such time as the enemy has been driven northward or captured. The opening of operations last few weeks offer a striking illustration of the effectiveness of the guerrilla method of warfare in prolonging operations and annoying the enemy.

TROOPER WOOLLCOMB DEAD.

Another Soldier of the Canadian Contingent has Succumbed.

Carnarvon, Cape Colony, April 22.—Trooper J. Woolcomb, a Canadian, died in the hospital here to-day of puerility, though he received every attention. He was buried with military honors. The remaining sick are convalescent. A further contingent leaves for the front on April 26th.

CANADIANS IN HOSPITAL.

Another List of Men Who are Seriously Ill.

Ottawa, April 22.—Sir Alfred Milner to-day telegraphed as follows to Lord Minto:—"Cape Town, April 22.—Regret to report that the following men are seriously ill:—At Wynberg hospital:—Ptes. T. Moore, E. Coe, E. Finch, B. Coe, enteric fever. At out-patient hospital:—O. Matherson, P. Coe, gunshot wound. At Woodstock hospital:—Pte. T. L. McGilverin, Q.O.R., enteric fever, and Pte. Agassiz, formerly 2nd Canadian Dragoons, now with Mounted Infantry, enteric fever. (Signed) Milner."

REDOUBTS STEADILY PUSHED ON.

British are Preparing to Attempt the Passage of the Vaal.

Warrenton, April 22.—Shelling was resumed this morning, the fire being directed at the British river redoubts, which are steadily being pushed forward. The Boers appear to be in stronger force down the river, and the Tecomany patrols are frequently "sniped."

CANADIANS IN A TIGHT FIX.

Boers Used the Hospital Flag to Lure the Mounted Rifles into a Trap.

London, April 24.—During the course of General Alderson's advance on Leeuw Kop the Canadians found themselves in a tight corner Sunday, near Donkerpoort. The Canadian Mounted Infantry sent to reconnoitre the Boer position approached within 300 yards of a farm flying the hospital flag, under cover of which the Boers opened such a hot fire on the Canadians that they were unable to attempt to retire until another force of Canadians covered their retreat by threatening the rear of the Boer position.

AN ACCOUNT OF SUNDAY'S FIGHT.

Boers Had One Krupp Gun and Two Pom-Poms.

London, April 24.—A despatch from a correspondent at Karrientein, dated Sunday, says:—"A patrol of the 17th Lancers this morning rounded Leeuw Kop and found that the Boers had evacuated the Forage farm house, where they had made a rapid night move. There were not more than 500 men in the command which is supposed to be screening a large force to the east. They had one Krupp gun and two Pom-poms. The engagement commenced at 2.30 o'clock yesterday morning. General Porter's Horse artillery shelled Bushman's Kop, but elicited no reply. Thompson's Generals Stephenson and Porter advanced to Rietfontein. Stephenson at noon signalled General Pole-Carew that the Boers were shooting his pickets. The order came back to shell them out. Field battery 84 was posted on Long Dry Spruit, from which they threw sharpshooters into the Boers and silenced their guns. Artillery batteries 83 and 85, with two naval 12-pounders, joined the brigade near sunset, and then a long backward detour was made around the spruit to join Pole-Carew, who established his headquarters for the night at Karrientein. Stephenson and Porter joined Pole-Carew and Dickson in the forenoon. General French arrived at Karrientein yesterday evening and assumed general command.

CHARGE OF THE ESSEX MEN.

Their Gallantry Captured the Boer Position at Leeuw Kop.

London, April 23.—The Bloemfontein correspondent of the Standard, describing the operations at Leeuw Kop, says:—"At an early stage the cavalry came under a heavy fire from a 'pom-pom' on a ridge, adjoining Leeuw Kop. Unable to continue its march to the south-east, General Dickson's brigade fell back to the north to await the infantry attack.

"The flanking movement having failed, General Pole-Carew, with General Stephenson's brigade, advanced in crescent form from the west and south, with the object of enveloping the kopjes. The Welsh, Warwickshire, Essex and Yorkshire Regiments advanced in extended line, covering the west, while the Guards brigade took up a position to the south, with two field batteries and naval guns.

"Sheltered by the rocks, the enemy opened a heavy fire from rifles and 'pom-poms.' Our men advanced over the open ground in splendid style, by a succession of short rushes, falling prone while pouring in their volleys. The approach of darkness threatened to leave the Boers in possession, but just before sunset the Essex regiment gallantly pressed forward and drove the last of the enemy from Paardekraal, a bald spur of Leeuw kop."

SITUATION IS COMPLICATED.

Developments of Great Importance Expected in the Near Future.

London, April 24.—All attention is centred on the interesting, though complicated, situation in the south-eastern portion of the Orange Free State, from which developments of the utmost importance must ensue in the near future. Gen. Rundle, apparently, has found the Boers confronting him at De Wets Dorp stronger than he cares to engage, so he is marking time, pending the arrival of support.

While Gen. Rundle is preparing to strike De Wets Dorp, Generals Brabant and Hart are pushing along the frontier of Hopetown, whence they will be able to threaten any attack on General Rundle's right, and Generals French and Pole-Carew are hastening from Bloemfontein, to bar the Boer line of retreat northwards.

Gen. French's Difficult Task. In the meanwhile, the burghers' forces occupying Thaba Nchu are in a position to fight a delaying action, giving the Boer forces at De Wets Dorp and Wepener time to retire in case of defeat, and it seems as though General French must dispose of this Thaba Nchu force before he can reach the rear of the Boer forces opposing Generals Rundle and Brabant, otherwise his flank would be open to assault.

A Second Paardeberg.

The Boers, driven out of Leeuw Kop by the probably rally at Thaba Nchu, where a suit might be expected, should the British fall in this attempt, to bring about another Paardeberg. It must immensely affect the larger issues of the war, as it would undoubtedly lead to a persistent repetition of the guerrilla warfare, which has been largely responsible for the stay of Lord Roberts at Bloemfontein for many weeks.

CRITICISM SUPPRESSED.

Conviction that Part of Roberts' Report is Kept Secret.

London, April 24.—Some exciting scenes are likely to be witnessed in Parliament when it reassembles, for several members are preparing to bombard the government with questions touching Lord Roberts' recent communications to the war office on the subject of the conduct of some South African generals. The impression is deepening into conviction that important despatches condemning the alleged blundering of General Lord Methuen at Ficksfontein have been suppressed in deference to the wishes of the general's friends. The Sunday Special declares it is possessed of definite knowledge that Lord Roberts has arraigned General Methuen scathingly. Whether or not he actually did so remains to be seen, but the simple report has created bitter feeling among the people and the demand for light promises to become irresistible.

The more the disclosures are made in chief and his adverse comments on the commanders at the Tugela river are talked about the less they are understood. It is beginning to be accepted that the episode is not the forerunner of the recall of the men censured, and therefore it is declared by many to have been useless, mischievous and mortifying to the whole country. It would seem that the government has been playing politics again by throwing the matter into the arena of public controversy in order to assuage the feeling of "the man in the street." Whatever that feeling may appear to be, it probably will have a weighty influence in determining the governmental policy.

MAJOR-GENERAL SIR FREDERICK CARRINGTON.

The British commander who is advancing to relief of Mafeking through Portuguese territory.

In other words, the Salisbury ministry is sitting on the fence until it shall discover which way the people think it ought to jump.

Evidences of this sort of diplomacy on the part of the authorities have been seen frequently since the war began, and they are likely to become more conspicuous the nearer the general election approaches.

BOERS WERE PUZZLED.

Disposition of the British Force Placed them in a Quandary.

Leeuw Kop, April 23.—The Boers retired from their positions here so hurriedly that they left a quantity of ammunition and many rifles behind them. When the Warwickshire regiment took the farm house at the foot of the ridge, the Boer pom-poms inflicted no damage, the Welsh regiment advanced along the Warwickshire's left and approached the ridge, experiencing a cross fire.

When the Boers fled they were obliged to move for some distance along the skyline, and the artillery planted a shell with great accuracy. It burst just above the Boers, rolling over three houses.

It appears that General Dickson met with opposition, the Boers firing their rifles at long range. Their position was one of great natural strength. General Pole-Carew's admirable disposition of his force thoroughly puzzled the Boers, who were unable to see the direction of the attack owing to a deep spruit.

The British artillery was unable to join the right in time to reply to the Boer gun, which was shelling the mounted infantry vigorously. The shells, however, burst 800 yards high and did no damage.

It is stated that General De Wet holds the waterworks with a strong force. The Boers who held Leeuw Kop retreated to the eastward. Gen. French sent out a body of cavalry to the south, and a few shots were heard, but apparently the Boers do not hold strong positions anywhere in close proximity to Leeuw kop.

SUNNYSIDE REBELS SENTENCED.

The London Times Thinks They Have Got off Rather Easily.

London, April 24.—In its editorial leader to-day the Times says:—"The most important news from South Africa this morning is that the trial of thirty-six rebels at Cape Town has ended in their condemnation to various terms of imprisonment, ranging from five years downwards. These sentences certainly do not err on the side of severity. According to the usages of war and the practice of nations engaged in war, these men made themselves liable to summary execution. In the ring-leaders got off with five years in jail, and their less responsible followers with from three years to a few months. These men made themselves liable to rigorous punishment on having played most dangerous games upon remarkably easy terms. In saying this we do not mean to imply an regret that stern measures were not resorted to. The British public is not vindictive, nor would they desire any greater rigor than that imperatively called for in self defence. There was a time when the spread of rebellion threatened to place us in such a position that we should have had no choice but to adopt the most drastic measures for its suppression. But that danger has passed away, and what we now have to do is to make the punishment certain rather than to intimidate by its severity.

Trial of the Rebels.

At the opening of the trial of these rebels, who were captured at Sunnyside by Colonel Picher's force, the court refused a postponement, whereupon counsel for the prisoners abandoned the defence and left the courtroom. The prisoners refused to plead, and a plea of "not guilty" was entered for them. Then a jury was empanelled and the trial proceeded. All the accused were convicted. Three of the ring-leaders were sentenced to five years' penal servitude, with the exception of several youths, who were condemned to from six months to a year, according to their age.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

Two elegant new tennis courts will shortly be completed in connection with the Y.M.C.A. For some time the lack of some outside amusement, such as tennis, has been a sad y felt by the members in general, but it will be good news to the lovers of this popular sport to know that plenty of amusement will be had in this regard during the coming summer months.

It is understood that the Nicholls estate have given the use of the grounds south of the Y.M.C.A. building, providing the Association maintain the courts.

Yesterday morning workmen commenced operations at putting the grounds in shape. The courts will be of cedar, and will be ready within a few weeks' time.

The use of the courts will be confined entirely to members of the Y.M.C.A.

A meeting of the executive of the lacrosse club will be held this evening. A number of important matters are to be dealt with. The practices will commence in about a week.

The Lindsay Post says:—"On account of Bowmanville and Okawa being taken into the Midland amateur Baseball League, recently formed, Lindsay, and Peterborough clubs are dissatisfied and threaten to withdraw. Their reasons for this is that games cannot be played in either Okawa or Bowmanville unless under a great expense, as the railway connections are not good." The Peterborough boys deny this and say the league is all right. The schedule will have to be rearranged.

LIKELY THE WORK OF FENIANS.

A Report of American Consul at Clifton Exonerates the Grain-Handlers.

Washington, April 24.—The result of the enquiry so far as it has gone into the attempt to wreck the Welland canal lock by the use of dynamite was laid before the State Department yesterday in a special telegraphic report from the United States Consular Agent Brush at Clifton, a town opposite Niagara, on the Canadian side of the boundary.

The report completely exonerates the Buffalo grain handlers from all connection with the crime, and strongly intimates that the attempt was the working out of a regularly organized conspiracy among certain persons in the United States believed to be affiliated with the Irish secret associations.

RESULTS OF THE EXPLOSION.

A Government Diver Examines the Walls and Gates of Damaged Lock.

St. Catharines, Ont., April 24.—The Government diver was at work yesterday examining the walls and gates at lock 24. It was found that no damage had been done to the walls, but the gates and iron-work were so badly damaged that new ones will be placed in new position. The position used for hanging them is now on the way up from Port Dalhousie with two new gates. This, however, will not delay navigation, and Mr. Thompson, the superintendent of the canal, says the canal will open Wednesday, 25th, as advertised. The damage around Thorold will amount to quite a large sum. The store of Messrs. Cloy and Mawdsley, situated at the lock, was badly damaged, not a pane of glass was left whole and the stock on the shelves were thrown to the floor and much of it destroyed. The house of Mr. William Newton is a complete wreck.

Nearly all the plaster was knocked from the walls, and all the dishes in pantries and cupboards were destroyed. The windows in all houses for a distance of 200 or 300 yards were broken. The concussion wave passed over Thorold in a north-easterly direction, and shook everything in its course. John Simpson was close by at the time of the explosion on his wheel. He was thrown to the ground and badly shaken up. After the deed had been done the two men started on the run down the road, and a short distance out were joined by a third, who was evidently on guard. A fourth, who had stood on the N.C.R. bridge crossing the canal, signalled the men with a flag. This man, who is supposed to be the ringleader of the gang, escaped, and it is supposed took the 7.30 Grand Trunk train.

THE COLORADO COPPER MINING COMPANY

LOCATION OF OUR MINES

THE COLORADO COPPER MINING COMPANY is fortunate in being the possessor of five splendid showing properties in the great Saluda copper belt, the principal copper producing region of this portion of the Rockies. All of our claims have been more or less developed, and it is our purpose to put the same on a paying basis at once.
Our company owns, clear of incumbrances, the following claims: The Saluda Extension, the Saluda Extension No. 2, which property adjoins the great Saluda mine, which has been a big producer for upwards of seven years; the Copper King of Colorado, which immediately adjoins the above; the Copper Queen of Saluda, a very promising property, only a few steps from the depot in Saluda. This claim occupies a position of great importance, being the city; and last, but by no means least, the Sunshine, located two miles east of Saluda, at Gloria station, on the main trunk line of the great Denver & Rio Grande Railroad, and also on the Arkansas river, which in length is one of America's greatest streams.

FULLY PAID AND NON-ASSESSABLE

We have already completed over 10 feet development work, 70 feet of which consists of surface work such as cross-cuts, shallow shafts, etc., prospecting to decide the best place to sink our main or working shaft. This has been found to be on the "Big 3" or centre claim, and we are now down 30 feet and still pushing the work as fast as four practical miners and dynamite can possibly accomplish. Remember, we have three full claims, to wit: "Big 3," "Victor" and "Will o' the Wisp," situated on Iron Mountain in the Kurka mining district, Ferry County, Wisconsin, six miles southeast of the famous Republic mine, and that there is a big ledge of porphyritic quartz ore showing for over 2,700 feet, and surface assays furnished show $20 to $30 in free gold.
On the "Big 3" claim, while doing development work, we discovered a formation east and west, which from picked samples assayed $92.00 in gold.
Our manager writes on, under date of March 1, 1900, that at a depth of 100 feet deep will prove this property nearly as good as, if not equal to any of the same stage of development. Our latest assay from a depth of about 15 feet shows that the Republic had at the same depth.

The company now offer 50,000 shares of treasury stock (NON-ASSESSABLE) AT THE LOW PRICE OF 1-2 CENTS
PER SHARE, in order to raise funds to push the work with additional force.
There are 300,000 shares in the treasury and the above is the first offered for sale. The company being a reliable
one, and with such a phenomenal showing in their properties, it should induce immediate investment, so don't delay
as the price will positively be raised when this block is sold; every dollar we spend means greater depth to our shaft, wider lead and bigger assays. DON'T MISS THIS. IT'S A WINNER

MATRON AND MAID.

Lady Estella and Lady Dorothea Hope make a pastime of the management of their Highland pony farm.

Lady Henry Somerset said recently that she gained her first impulse toward philanthropic work from reading John Stuart Mill's works during her girlhood.
Lady Roberts and Lady Wentage are the only two English peeresses who have the distinction of possessing the Royal Red Cross for service on the field of battle.

cessful candidates for the degree of M. B.
at the London university in 1898, is filling the post of medical officer to the Grove hospital, Lower Tooting, England.

It has just been made public that the sum of 50,000 francs, the interest of which is to be used by the University of Paris for the aid of poor students, was the gift of the late Baroness von Hirsch.

Miss Hattie Bumgarten of New Milford, Conn., has a novel plan for reforming saloons. The scheme is to have the best citizens frequent the saloons, not to drink, but to form a social surrounding of a high order.

Miss Edith Rhodes, one of the sisters of Cecil Rhodes, has better and more diamonds, it is said, than most of the royalty. These were given to her by her brother and taken from the famous Wessington mine at Kimberley.

was the dowager Duchess of Montrose.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt has announced that it is her firm conviction

Lady Louisa Madeline Tighe died on March 2. She was a daughter of the

She danced at the famous ball at Brus-

field of battle.

When Mrs. Joubert was in Amsterdam
a few years ago, a friend took great pleasure in showing her the fine collection of powder in the big Rijks museum.
Her only comment was, "Good to make bullets of." She ought to be a judge, for in the early wars with the natives she often was one of the women who made bullets for the use of the Boer army.

THE FORCE OF HABIT.

Showing How Completely One Habit
May Supplant Another.

"Habit is a curious thing," said Mr.
Joggleton, "but the completeness with which one habit can be supplanted by another seems more curious still."

"I had a chair that I had used for years and which, as I was firmly convinced, was by long odds the most comfortable chair ever made. After breakfast, when I read the paper, I used to sit in that chair, and after dinner at night I settled down into it, with a cigar, in peace and happiness and thought there never was a chair that combined so many good points as to height and pitch of seat and slope of back and all that. I had never seen a chair that suited me so well."

"But one day this chair was tipped over or something or other happened to it, I don't know what, but something so serious that it was put out of commission.
With our usual conservative slowness we put off from day to day and from week to week getting that chair repaired, and, as a matter of fact, it was two or three years before we had it fixed up and brought into use again. Meanwhile I had singed out another chair which I came commonly to occupy. This didn't begin to be at first so comfortable as the old one had been, but gradually its objectionable points disappeared, and I'm blessed if it didn't begin to develop good points that I had never suspected in it, and I came at last to look upon it as a very comfortable sort of chair indeed. But at last the old chair—the good old chair—was fixed up again and brought back into use, and the day it appeared I looked forward to settling down in it at night with all the old time comfort."

"But when, with all those pleasant anticipations, I came to sit in it again I did not find the pleasure that I had expected.
It was too high or too low or the seat sloped too much or something, I don't know what. It wasn't as it used to be—to me. I tried it once or twice more after that and then gave it up and went back to the new chair. My new habit had become firmly fixed. I liked the new chair better, and now as I settled down in it its good points were at once emphasized and softened and rounded into completeness, and I accepted it in full as the chair of satisfying comfort and wondered as I looked across at the other what I ever could have seen in it to make me like it so much."

"Such is the force of habit,"—New York Sun.

RAILWAY TIES.

The Vera Cruz and Pacific railway has sent its representative to Italy to obtain laborers to push the construction of the road.

The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad is equipping its locomotives with electric headlights, to which a current is furnished by a small dynamo directly forward of the smokestack.

The superintendent of the White Pass and Yukon railroad took the snowfall at various points along the line of the railroad for December, with the following results: Glacier, 90½ inches; White Pass, 55 inches; Fraser, 42½ inches; Log Cabin, 74½ inches.

The officials of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad have decided to follow the lead of other roads in the matter of providing technical instruction for their employees on the road. The "school on wheels" for engineers, firemen, conductors and brakemen is to be a part of the Rock Island system.

TRUST THRUSTS.

If it be true that the ax manufacturers have organized a trust, the consumers may now be prepared to receive it in the neck.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The flour trust mixed its paste too thin, and as a result it refused to stick. Water is a good thing, but a flood of it, even in trust stock, is bound to produce disaster.

"Smash the trusts" is a fetching and very simple formula for dealing with the trusts, but unfortunately it does not mean anything, as any one will discover who will try to draft a law intended to have that effect.—San Francisco Chronicle.

walking, nine miles an hour when trot-

now, 20 large cruisers instead of 11, 48 small cruisers and gunboats in place of 22 and 114 torpedo boats instead of 84, as at present.

where we are! We have to get at the pot of Gold, and then—those who have stock will be fortu-

THOSE BOER LADIES.

By Middle Life They Are Almost Too
Fat to Walk.

The Boer woman is very little like the trim, handsome Dutchwoman of her ancestral Holland. She is seldom pretty. Her complexion is her principal charm, and she guards this carefully whenever she goes out. She is never seen outdoors without a great peaked bonnet on her head, her visits to church being made behind an almost oriental seclusion of veils. This is necessary to preserve the pink and white of her skin, for the climate would otherwise soon tan it to the color of sole leather. Her eyes are small and set close together, and her features are irregular. Her cheeks are broad and flat, and her hair is naturally light in color, although time and weather soon bleach it from its early straw color. At a very early age she loses all her teeth, for she is constantly chewing sweet cakes and confectionery.

A European woman would replace the molars that nature has deprived her of with well mounted works of art, but the Boer woman does not do this. She thinks it would be impious thus to try to duplicate the work of the Creator. Her figure is thick and almost waistless. While still a young woman she begins to grow fat, and by the time middle life is reached she is often so unwieldy that the only exercise she is able to take is to waddle cumbersomely from one armchair to another. She is clad in a loose, scantily made gown, devoid of trimming and apparently waistless. The day garments of the Boers are also their night-clothes, so the gown is generally wrinkled.

has ambition, and no man can succeed in life if he has nothing else.—Somerville

"Murder will out." Impurities in the blood will also be sure to show themselves unless expelled by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Formal Opening.

The opening of the new parochial rooms in connection with St. John's church took place last evening and was attended by a large number of the congregation and their friends. The proceedings opened with a high tea, which was enjoyed by all. The tea was followed by an informal entertainment consisting of songs, piano and banjo solos. Addresses were given by Archdeacon Allen, of Millbrook, Rev. J. C. Davidson and Rev. H. Symonds. A most enjoyable evening closed with the singing of the National Anthem and the hymn, "Abide With Me." The piano used was kindly loaned for the occasion by the Stanley Piano Co.

NORTH SMITH:

A Promising Young Man Passes Away Aged Only 20 Years.

It is our sad duty to record the death of Arthur, son of Mr. W. J. Northey, of Smith, which sad event occurred on the morning of the 18th instant. He had been in poor health for some months, but that his death was not altogether unexpected. The deceased was respected and beloved by all who knew him, being a general favorite. He was a member of the Methodist church and C.O.F. The funeral was largely attended. The Times extends its deepest sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Northey in their sad and irreparable loss.

Wedded at Milwaukee.

The following appeared in a Milwaukee, Wisconsin, paper, and refers to a Peterborough lady, daughter of the late Arthur Rutherford. "The marriage of Miss Belle Rutherford and Rev. T. Willard Sprowls, was solemnized at 8 o'clock last evening at Kingsley M. E. church. The bride and groom were unattended and entered the church together, preceded by two of the ushers, W. D. Ertson and Fred Ford. At the altar they were met by Presiding Elder D. C. John, who, assisted by Rev. Mr. Grant, performed the marriage ceremony. The altar was effectively decorated with palms and calla lilies. Miss Maud Ward presided at the piano, and played the wedding march from "Lohengrin." The ushers were—Messrs. W. D. Ertson, Fred Ford, George Moss, Joshua Hughes, Alfred Kopf and Earl Norcross. Nearly 200 people were present at the church, and after the ceremony an informal reception was held to afford the many friends of the young couple an opportunity to tender their congratulations. The groom was formerly pastor of Kingsley church, and is now stationed at Tomahawk, Wis. After a brief wedding journey they will be at home in Tomahawk, Wis."

Two Tramps Arrested.

Yesterday morning the Chief received a telephone message stating that the peg leg tramp who was wanted at Havelock, was in the vicinity of the Protestant Home, in company with a "pal."

The Chief and P. C. McGinley immediately proceeded in the direction indicated, and found their men on the railway track. They were asked to accompany the officers to the police station, which they did quite willingly.

Frank Sheriff is the name the peg leg gives, and says that his home is in Ridgeway, Kent county. The other stranger says that he is William Davis, or so place in particular. They deny having any knowledge of the burglary at Havelock, while admitting that they were in the village on Sunday. They say, however, that they left Havelock on a freight before ten o'clock on Sunday night for Peterborough.

The two were brought up before Magistrate Dumble and were remanded for one week. They are now confined on the mill for safe keeping.

All Saints Vestry Meeting.

The annual vestry meeting of All Saints church took place on Monday evening, when the election of officers took place. Messrs. E. Good and James Mulholland being elected. The sidesmen elected were Messrs. A. Smoot, Thos. Hooper, W. H. Smith, R. E. Layfield, Wm. Butler, Wm. Hutchins, Charles Cleverly and William Brundette. The Advisory Board will consist of the Wardens, sidesmen, Vestry Clerk and Lay Delegates. Rev. Mr. Armitage gave his annual report, showing a marked increase in the number of communications and general work. He had made over a thousand parcels during the year. Through the assistance of Messrs. Hopkins and Kingsmote in the Sunday school he had been enabled to take up the work of a Bible class, which promised for much good. The report of the Sunday school showed it to be in a flourishing condition.

HARD TO BELIEVE.

Effects of Coffee on Human Beings.

"Every time that I indulged, even in a weak cup of coffee, I suffered with a terrible headache and disordered stomach. Ten months ago I quit coffee altogether and took up Postum Food Coffee. I have no more headaches; am very much stronger and in better flesh than I was before I began. I can work hard all day without feeling tired at all.

"Before I drank Postum I got so tired at my work that I had to lie down in the afternoon. Occasionally I would faint away. A lady friend, an author, says she would not get without Postum Food Coffee for anything in the world. She uses it three times a day and says it keeps her mind clear and bright and her body healthy.

"Another friend, a lady who is a cripple and has been an invalid for a long while, took up Postum Food Coffee about two years ago. She has gained many pounds, and her flesh is now hard and firm. It is natural we should sing the praises of Postum."

Miss Ida M. Purney, 24 Highland Ave., Melrose Highlands, Mass.

It will be observed from the above that each person should find an increase in sturdy strength, brought about by leaving off coffee and the use of Postum Food Coffee. The reason for this experience is that the poisonous alkaloids contained in regular coffee, prostrated the nervous system, bringing all sorts of aches and pains, and disintegrating the delicate cells in the nerve centres, destroying and throwing out the elements absolutely required by Nature for maintaining good, sound, nervous strength and health.

When coffee is discontinued, Nature seeks to set up a healing and repair the damage. The efforts of Nature are powerfully aided by certain elements in Postum Food Coffee which come from parts of the field grain, selected especially for the purpose, by the makers of Postum. One of the principal elements is phosphate of potash—a delicate, microscopic product used by the system in combination with albumen of the food to make up the cells in the nerve centres of the human body. There is a well-defined reason why people can add greatly to their strength and health by leaving off coffee and using Postum Food Coffee.

THE CASE OF NELSON GRAY.

The Charges Made by the Times fully Bore Out on Investigation.

County Constable Cochrane Makes a Report that Should Cause a Sensation—The Government Must Investigate the Methods of this "Home."

Mr. Cochrane County Constable has returned from his trip to Westwood where he went to investigate the case of Nelson Gray, and was reported to the Secretary of the Children's Aid Society, who was instructed by the Ontario Government Department to look into the matter. The case was first brought to their attention by the Times. The boy is outside the age limit of the Children's Aid Society, although they have been requested to report. It proves to be a case of downright hardship. Roman Catholics and Protestants alike agreed that it was necessary for the boy to be retired of his contract and to be taken away.

His clothing all winter consisted of a pair of cotton trousers, cut at the knee, no drawers and no stockings—I find the picture of his appearance in Peterboro was not overdrawn. He rarely could go to church. His school record is poor. He was knocked down with a club more than once—Mrs. Healey doing so once. His hours of work are from sun rise in the morning till dark, and altogether his condition was little better than that of a slave. Since his scanty wages were paid to the home in Toronto, who declared that they would reappropriate them if he did not return to work with Healey, and Mr. Mr. Burnham will recommend in accordance with Mr. Cochrane's report, that the boy be taken away.

The Government should order an investigation into the methods of the Sunnyside Home. If an institution is to exist that is permitted to deal in slaves, the sooner it is brought to book the better.

A Sure Remedy.

The caterpillar plague is on us again. Here is a remedy that is safe and sure. See what others say—

28th May, 1930.

This is to certify that Mr. F. Johnston, of Peterborough, treated my trees with his remedy for destroying caterpillars. His work proved quite satisfactory and my trees never were so healthy before. The caterpillars dried up and blew away and not a leaf was destroyed. In one particular case he applied his remedy to a small bunch of haw trees and in ten days there was not a caterpillar on it and not a leaf destroyed. Any person who wishes to enquire about the matter may do so by applying to me. Thos. Huston, Okanabe, P. O. Box 100, Peterborough, April 13, 1930.

To whom it may concern—This is to certify that Samuel Johnston treated number of my shade trees in the spring of 1930, with his caterpillar remedy. It proved quite satisfactory to me; the grubs did not eat the leaves after being cured. I cannot see that it injured the trees in any way. I intend giving another trial this season. Yours respectfully, Adam Hall.

For further particulars apply to Samuel Johnston, No. 100 McDonnell street.

DALGATTY IS RESCUED BOERS IN FULL RETREAT

It is Officially Announced That General Brabant Has Relieved Garrison at Wepener.

REPORT THAT BOERS HAVE REOCCUPIED BOSHOFF

Richter's Farm Near Leeuw Kop From Which While Flying White Flag
Canadians Were Fired Upon Has Been Burned Down as a Punishment.

London, April 25. A special despatch from Pretoria, dated Tuesday, says that the Boers have re-occupied Boshoff, the British retiring.

London, April 25. The War Office has issued the following from Lord Roberts, dated Bloemfontein, April 25, 2.35 p.m.—"The enemy retired from in front of Wepener last night and this morning, and fled north-eastward along the Ladybrand road. Their number was between 4,000 and 5,000."

London, April 25, 11.05 p.m. It is officially announced that Wepener has been relieved.

London, April 25. The War Office has issued Lord Roberts' list of the casualties prior to the occupation of Dewetsdorp, showing that Capt. Denny of the Thirtieth Hussars was killed and that a captain, two lieutenants and twenty-two men were wounded.

Cape Town, April 25 (Thurs.). The relief of Col. Dalgaty was accomplished by General Brabant.

London, April 25. The Times has the following from a special correspondent, dated Mafeking, Beaufortland, April 25.—"I rode from Wepener and met General Brabant's advance guard four miles south of Wepener. They report three successful fights Saturday, Sunday and Tuesday with 22 casualties."

The Boers were relieved and 5,000 of the enemy retired along the Ladybrand road within our sight and unpursued. Col. Dalgaty's casualties are 33 killed and 132 wounded.

Bloemfontein, April 25. Richter's Farm, near Leeuw Kop, from which while flying a white flag the Canadians were fired upon has been burned as a punishment. Richter is a prisoner.

London, April 25, 5 a.m. The Boers have everywhere retired at the first pressure of the British advance and the hope that General Rundle would be able to induce them to remain at Dewetsdorp until they had been forced to fight or to surrender has been disappointed.

No attempt was made to pursue the commandos retiring from Wepener. Everything now depends upon the progress of General French's cavalry brigades, but they are entering a very difficult, hilly and practically unknown country. The cavalry have already had a long march over heavy, sandy roads, and nothing is known regarding the condition of the horses. In any case it is now a race between the Federals and the forces of General French and General Hamilton.

The slowness of the recent movements of the British infantry, and previous experience of the ability of the Boers to move rapidly with guns and baggage over their own country, leads to the belief that Lord Roberts' enveloping operations will have to be repeated further north. At the most he will perhaps capture some Boer guns and baggage and harass the retreating burghers.

Considerable results have been attained in the relief of Wepener, and in the clearing of the south-eastern corner of the Free State of Boers, but the Boer army, whatever its strength, has still to be dealt with.

Besides the casualties among the men, the Boer bombardment of Col. Dalgaty's position wrought great havoc among the cattle and horses.

The garrison could have held out for another fortnight, but it is in no condition to render much assistance in pursuing the Boers. There is little news from other quarters. The inhabitants of Mafeking are now on a daily ration of two pints of soup, and two quarts of "stilly."

FIRE A SHOT. THEN DIED.
London, April 25.—A despatch from Bulawayo, dated April 17, says—"There were some gallant deeds during Col. Plumer's recent fighting in his attempt to relieve Mafeking. Capt. Crowe was killed while trying to bring in Capt. Gales, whose horse had been shot. Trooper Leach, who had been wounded, said—"Com-somewhat increased during the last few days. But it is not likely there will be much trouble in the neighborhood of Wepener once Dewetsdorp is occupied by our troops."

"I inspected the city Imperial Volunteer Battalion, on their arrival at Bloemfontein yesterday. They are in fine form and look very workmanlike. I also inspected the first company of Imperial Yeomanry, which has arrived here. The men turn out smart and their horses are in admirable condition."

IN CONTACT WITH THE ENEMY.
Brabant and Hart are Edging Up Towards the Basuto Border.

Allwal North, April 24.—It is reported that firing has been heard between Brabant and Wepener, and it is believed that Generals Brabant and Hart are in contact with the enemy.

The Boers are so numerous that it took them two days to cross the Caledon river at Bastards Drift.

WAR HERO'S RECEPTION.
Lieut.-Gen. Sir George White's Banquet at Portsmouth.

Portsmouth, Eng., April 25.—Capt. Hedworth Lambton and the naval brigade of the Powerful marched through the city yesterday, amid waving flags and crowds of troops and citizens, afterwards being banqueted in the Town Hall, where the Mayor's guests included the defender of Ladysmith, Lieut.-General Sir George White, and the Earls of Durham and Northbrook.

CONDENSED DESPATCHES.
DOMINION.
The business part of Gattineau Point has been burned. Loss $30,000.

The trial of the Halton election bribery was concluded yesterday. Argument is being heard to-day.

The Opposition at Ottawa is attempting to re-open the Brockville and West Huron election cases.

More Information Obtained as to the Antecedents of the Men Under Arrest at Welland.

Niagara Falls, Ont., April 25.—On reliable information procured yesterday, "Dullman," or whatever his name may be, has been a citizen of the United States for years, and has been a frequent visitor at the Washburn hotel at 84 East Eagle street, Buffalo, N. Y., while John Nolan, which is certainly his correct name, became a citizen of the United States, making his declaration at Washington during March, 1894, and his late residence has been Philadelphia. He has a wife living in Dublin, Ireland, and holds a membership in the Society of Amalgamated Engineers of the United States. While John Walsh is a fresh arrival in the United States from the Emerald Isle, probably not over six months, and apparently a Dublin friend of Nolan. The work of the trio and their relations together show plainly that both Nolan and Walsh have been the tools of "Dullman," who has been hired to do the work of dynamiting the canal lock.

Nolan, it is said, was first approached and dragged into the job by "Dullman," then Nolan easily brought his friend Walsh, lately arriving from Ireland, with strong anti-British prejudices, into line.

A new feature has been introduced into the case by the arrival yesterday of two women, who, evidently unaware that Mr. Murray had had the prisoners removed to Welland for safe keeping, were making cautious enquiries for the men. One of the two is a tall, dark woman, about forty years of age, with grey hair, and the other smaller and younger. It is believed that they are the wives of two of the prisoners. The matter has been reported to Mr. Murray, who will investigate it to-day on his return from Buffalo.

POSSE OF ARMED CONSTABLES.
P. Welland, Ont., April 25.—As a result of a message from Niagara Falls, advising a strengthening of the guard on the three dynamites, County Constable Dowd was yesterday sent out to organize a posse of armed constables, and the sheriff sent a request to Major Cohen, asking for a detachment of the 44th Battalion to be put in readiness for action. The officers of the town have since collected between 5 and 30 men of No. 502 company. These have been served with their accoutrements and are armed and ready to turn out at a moment's notice.

They were served with the old Snyder rifles, and, although there was not a round of ammunition in the county, some have since been sent from Toronto, and at 8.30 last night the company was given ten rounds each. The fire bell is the signal for an alarm.

THE SUBLIME PORTE MUST WHACK UP.
Uncle Sam Insists Upon Prompt Payment of Claims Arising From Massacres

Constantinople, Tuesday, April 24.—In view of the steps taken by the United States Government in regard to the claims arising out of the Armenian massacres the embassies of Great Britain, France, Austria, Italy, and Germany have asked their Governments for instructions as to their similar claims.

The promulgation of the irade authorizing the rebuilding of the American structures turned at Kharput and the enlargements of Roberts College is regarded as showing clearly the desire of the Yildiz Kiosk to be agreeable to the United States in the hope that the latter will not press for the payment of the indemnity.

The United States Government, however, has no intention of abandoning its claim.

The American Legation has also succeeded in obtaining permission for

BECAUSE THEY HATE GREAT BRITAIN.
Editor Wheeler's Explanation of Yankee Sympathy With the Boers in War.

New York, April 24.—The Universalist club at its regular meeting at the St. Denis last night heard arguments on the question, which side Americans should sympathize with in the Boer war. Col. Alexander S. Bacon took the English side of it, and Edward Jewett Wheeler, editor of the Literary Digest, the Boer end.

Col. Bacon said that the tyranny of the Boers was a tyranny such as was known nowhere else in the world and that it was a mistake to call their Government a republic or a democracy.

"The Boer cause," said Mr. Wheeler, "has suffered more from its advocates than from any other cause. They favoured the Boers mostly, not on account of any love for the Boers, but because of hatred for England. This Boer war is a Tory war, and is

THEY ONLY ESCAPE BY LEAVING DEAD BEHIND.

General Pole-Carew Drives the Boers Back and Reaches Roodkop With Casualties.

DFWETSDROP IS OCCUPIED BY GEN. CHERMSIDE.

French Sweeping Behind the Boers and Upon His Swift Ride to Close Avenues of Retreat Depends the Success of Plan to Pen Kruger's Forces.

London, April 25.—General Roberts is playing the game of war on a large scale. He is manoeuvring his divisions, brigades and battalions in a manner which convinces Great Britain that the crisis in her history has brought forth a great general to cope with it. It now begins to suggest itself that the garrison at Wepener was left as a bait to tempt the Boers into the trap which is about to be sprung.

Though proceeding very slowly, the operation now being conducted are surely tending to crush the Boers south of Bloemfontein to the sea. From information at present to hand it scarcely seems possible that the enemy can escape. To the south Brabant and Hart back of the main road over which the enemy must withdraw. Stiff further north French is waiting with two brigades of cavalry to dash upon them when they endeavor to move northward along the Caledon river; while further away still, to the north, Smith-Dorrien's brigade, with the Canadians and a large contingent of mounted infantry, are pushing to the east in the hope of cutting off the enemy should he by any chance pass Chermeside and French in turn. This is undoubtedly the object of the march of the ninth division. In the direction of Thaba N'Chu, and the fate of war may again throw in the way of the Canadians an opportunity to win glory by taking part in the surrounding and surrender of thousands of Boers. Briefly speaking, the present operations have for their end the pressing back of the Boers toward the Hanuts border and the stopping up of their avenue of escape to the north, which is growing smaller and more impracticable all the time. As it is, the tract of Southern Free State which the enemy formerly occupied has shrunk up into a piece of land about 30 miles square, and the shrinking process will go on.

The occasion now seems ripe for a strong blow on the part of the British which will undoubtedly be delivered within the next few days.

The presence of Pole-Carew's division at Valbank, on the Modder river, evidently to the north of Dewetsdorp, indicate an intention on the part of the British to march across country and get between the Boers at Wepener and the north.

DEFEATED WITH LOSS.
Pole-Carew's Division Sweeps Boers Out of His Path.

London, April 25, 4.57 p.m.—The War Office has received the following despatch from Lord Roberts—

"Bloemfontein, April 25.—Pole-Carew's division reached Roodkop yesterday evening without casualties.

"Its advance was covered by cavalry and horse artillery, which drove back the enemy with heavy loss, their dead being left on the ground. The mounted troops halted for the night at Grootfontein and at 7.30 this morning were crossing the Modder river at Valbank in accordance with my instructions to French to endeavor to place himself astride the enemy's line of retreat. French's arrival near the Modder evidently, however, alarmed the Boers for they evacuated their strong position near Dewetsdorp during the night and it was occupied by Chermeside's division this morning.

"The mounted infantry, under Ian Hamilton, drove the enemy off the kopjes in the neighborhood of the Waterworks with out casualties on our side."

ARE UNABLE TO ESCAPE.
Boers Unable to Escape North and Great Events Expected.

Herschel, Cape Colony, Tuesday, April 24.—It is reported that the British have occupied Wepener after heavy fighting. It is also said that the Boers are unable to escape to the north and that great developments are expected.

DEWETSDROP SEIZED.
Chermeside Occupied Dewetsdorp Without Opposition.

London, April 25, 2.35 p.m.—Lord Roberts has telegraphed the following message to the War Office—

"Bloemfontein, April 25.—Dewetsdorp was occupied by Chermeside, without opposition, at 9.30 o'clock this morning.

ALL DEPENDS ON FRENCH.
Roberts is Aiming to Pen the Boers in as at Paardeberg.

London, April 25.—The indecisive actions and slow progress of Generals Hart and Brabant are relatively unimportant when compared with the progress of General French. It is now evident that General Roberts wishes not only to defeat the Boers, but to pen them as at Paardeberg. For this end 45,000 troops are concentrating in the southeastern portion of the Orange Free State and are operating according to carefully-devised plans, in which the delay may be as much due to strategy as to necessity. The success of this important movement almost entirely depends on General French. If he can sweep down from the north with the rapidity of execution which he displayed at Kimberley and Paardeberg, he will effect the same swift, sudden transition which followed the cavalry evolutions two months ago. According to last accounts he was pushing on successfully.

Every day the Boers remain at Wepener improves General French's chances of success. To put a fine round the 25,000 Boers estimated to be in the south-eastern part of the Orange Free State Lord Roberts has evidently taken large chances.

The British critics differ regarding the result, some declaring it is already impossible for the Boers to escape from the net.

THE MAIN ADVANCE.
There is a general impression that the main advance upon Pretoria will be taken up without any concentration at Bloemfontein. With more than half the British army stretched in a chain across the Orange Free State such a change in direction would indefinitely delay the accomplishment of Lord Roberts' main objective.

The news received to-day has little bearing on the question of the hour. A despatch from Durban dated Tuesday, April 24, reports that Gen. Lucas Meyer is dead. He is known to have been well on the previous day.

A Boer deserter of the recent British attack at Fourteen Streams says that two Boers were killed and four wounded.

CAPTAINS CHANGED.
Canger of Belleville Succeeds Adamson—Latter Goes to South Africa.

Ottawa, April 25.—Capt. W. S. Canger of the 15th Battalion, Belleville, has been appointed to succeed Capt. Adamson at Halifax, Capt. Adamson having been placed in charge of the additional force of 60 men, which is going to South Africa to join Strathcona's Horse.

The Strathcona reinforcement is expected to arrive here from the West this afternoon.

FRENCH IN COMMAND.
Victor of Colenso's Command in the Army at Leeuw Kop.

London, April 25.—The Times has a special from Leeuw Kop dated April 24.—General French has taken command of the whole force assembled here. The Boers have fallen back in a northeastern direction, leaving observation posts on the eastern extremity of the kopjes, from which they opened fire at long range on our cavalry advance guard. There is so far no sign of the enemy's artillery. The Lancashire brigade is pushing on with all rapidity, and there is another brigade at Paardekraal, eight miles west. It is intended to expedite getting into touch with General Rundle's command, with whom French got into telegraphic communication at midday. Having by General Pole-Carew's action of yesterday disconcerted the Boer cordon holding the Brandfort and Dewetsdorp line of communication, French can effectively turn any position on General Rundle's front, or reduce the opposition to him. General Stephenson's little force last evening, while not effectually driving the enemy, did considerable execution, the enemy leaving some dead behind.

AFRAID OF PERSECUTION.
Many Will Sign Annexation Petitions if Names not Published.

Cape Town, April 25.—Col. Stowe, the American consul-general at the Cape, is forwarding large quantities of clothing and general supplies to the British prisoners at Pretoria, at the cost of the British Government.

The annexation movement is growing. One hundred and ten meetings, with 60,000 persons present have been held and reported to the Vigilance Committee. It has been ascertained that many persons in nominally pro-Boer places will sign the petitions if their names are not published. They are afraid of being boycotted and persecuted.

STRONG FORCE OF BOERS.
Tuesday, April 24.—Evening.—Generals Hart and Brabant covered only a short distance to-day, and finding a strong force opposed to them, bivouacked on the ground they had occupied.

The firing has been desultory and the casualties very slight. The British are edging up the Basuto border.

Persistent rumors are in circulation that Commandant Oliver with 1,500 men is preparing to attack Gen. Hart's rear. There is no sign of the advance of Gen. Rundle from Dewetsdorp.

ATTACKED WITH SIX GUNS.
Maeser, Beaufortland, April 24.—On the breaking up of the bivouac this morning Generals Brabant and Hart discovered that the Boers who fell back towards Wepener yesterday had advanced during the night several miles nearer to Stratus Farm, which is a favorable position for resistance.

Colonel Dalgaty was severely attacked with six guns this morning, probably with a view of preventing him from assisting the relief column. It seemed yesterday that Dalgaty had practically been relieved, but the offensive attitude assumed by the Boers this morning shows this idea to have been erroneous.

Gen. Hart is now a few miles behind Gen. Brabant's division, which is waiting for the former to come up.

Thirteen British wounded were removed to Mafeking, in Beaufortland, at midnight and placed in the English church.

JAPAN AND RUSSIA

A war between Japan and Russia would be a very different affair from that between Japan and China and would be watched with interest by the whole world. Japan would have the advantage of a superior fleet and close proximity to Korea, in and around which most of the battles would be fought. Russia would have to transport troops, munitions of war and provisions an immense distance over sea or carry them across Siberian railway is not yet completed. There are no doubt large forces of Russian soldiers and enormous stores of war munitions at Vladivostok and Port Arthur but the whole power of the Russian Empire would not be brought to bear against Japan. Much would depend upon the attitude of the people of Korea. If they would co-operate with the Japanese, although they are probably not worth very much as fighting material, their sympathy would be of much value, for it would give the Japanese the great advantage of fighting on the defensive, provided they could land large bodies of troops in Korea before the Russians assembled in force. The Japs have been watching the war in South Africa with great interest, and their sympathies have been with the British, but they are ever on the alert to get new ideas, and no doubt they have learned valuable lessons in defensive warfare from the Boers.

Japan gained little except prestige by the war with China. The Japanese victories by weakening China merely paved the way for Russian control of Manchuria. Japan has always been desirous of an alliance with Great Britain, and the British have always regarded the Japanese with friendly interest, not only on account of their unique rejuvenation, but also because it has been felt that Russia is the common enemy of the two nations. But the British did not interfere when Russia prevented Japan from enjoying the fruits of victory and the Japs are not likely to count on British assistance at the present time when the best part of the British army is locked up in South Africa.

A POPULAR CITIZEN.

Mr. Jackson Reid, of Huntsville, Banqueted by the Citizens.

Mr. Jackson Reid, of Huntsville, who for many years kept hotel in Bobcaygeon, town and who is well and favorably known in Peterborough, was in town a few days ago, a guest at the National Hotel. Mr. Reid has retired from the hotel business in Huntsville and was banqueted by the citizens. The following is a report of the proceedings, taken from the Huntsville Forester, which will interest Mr. Reid's hundreds of friends in this locality. "Fewer greater time has been." During the historical life of Huntsville many banquets of a highly significant nature have been held but that of Friday night last seems to be the favorite of them all. Invitations had been issued by Mr. Edward Forbes, late manager for Shaw Cassels &

Co., and in response about 100 of Huntsville's business men and the hotel's former employees congregated in the stately dining room of the Reid House on the night above mentioned. The room was beautifully decorated with evergreen bunting and the two great emblems of the Anglo-Saxon Race, the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes were affectionately entwined. After full justice had been done a most magnificent supper the chairman, Mr. Harry S. May presented the toast list, and the crowd sang "God Save the Queen" with Mr. H. W. Goodolphin officiating at the piano.

Many of the speakers were greeted with "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." "He's a dandy," etc. Following is a complete list of toasts.—

The "Maple Leaf" by the crowd followed, after which Mr. Andrew Laddlaw recited that stirring selection "Edinburgh after Fiodden." "Our Municipal Institutions were upheld ably by Mr. Geo. Page spoke plainly favoring a town hall, and by Mr. J. Calderwood who reserved his remarks until nomination night.

The "Board of Trade" was upheld by its energetic President, Mr. W. H. Matthews, who reviewed its past efforts and gave those present an inkling of some important questions yet to come before it. Mr. E. S. Anderson, Manager of the Dr. McKinnon Bank followed with an interesting selection from Kipling.

"The Learned Professions" was responded to by Dr. J. W. Hart, Medical Sup't, and proprietor of the Huntsville Hospital and Dr. LeClair of the General Hospital staff. Both gentlemen referred to the rapid advancement Dr. Hart gave an interesting talk on Tuberculosis and Diphtheria.

Following this toast was an event of importance, the presentation to Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Held, by Mr. R. J. Wattson of Burke Falls of the following address and token of respect on behalf of the citizens of Huntsville.

ADDRESS.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Held:—

It is with regret that we the Residents of Huntsville and therefore your friends have heard that you are about to leave public life in the capacity of "Mine Host and Hostess" of the house that you have occupied for the past five years. During the time that you have occupied this position we have no hesitation in saying that you have formed friendships among the traveling public that neither you nor they will forget. The Hostess, that you have been the heads of has long been acknowledged to be one of the best north of Toronto. While we regret that you are leaving your public position, we are still pleased to know that you will both remain in our village and continue to reside among us. We hope that you will accept these two chairs as a small token of the esteem in which your friends hold you, and trust that you will live long to enjoy and use them. With best wishes for your prosperity, we remain,

Yours in Friendship,
Signed on behalf of the citizens of Huntsville.

H. S. May, D. M. Grant, R. J. Wattson, Ed. Forbes, W. H. Matthews, W. M. Hutchart.

"Our Manufactures" were ably upheld by R. J. Wattson of Burke Falls and Jno. Whitehead, "Manager of the Huntsville Syndicate," "Mercantile Business" W. H. Hutchison of Hanna & Hutchison Bros., W. H. Pugh and W. B. Strachan J. N. Shearer D. D. G. M. of A. F. & A. M. for Muskoka, Parry Sound and Nipissing Districts spoke very fluently on "Fraternal Societies, and paid a special tribute to local S. O. E. in the late practical manifestation of their fraternity. The press was responded to by F. W. Clearwater, late editor of the "Forrester," and Harman Rice, one of its present representatives. The good qualities of the ladies were acknowledged by Geo. Simpson of the G. T. R., and W. Mackie, and were heartily reciprocated by all present. The health of the Host and Hostess was proposed in appert speech by chairman May and the large crowd arose and sang with a vengeance. "He is a Jolly Good Fellow." Mr. Reid in replying thanked them all for their many kind words and was pleased to know that his Huntsville friends were more numerous than he had supposed. In conducting his business he had endeavored to meet the wishes of the people, and hope that his efforts in that direction had been appreciated. He was heartily applauded after which a vote of thanks was tendered the chairman. The Banqueters dispersed at 11 p.m. after singing "God Save the Queen" and a general hand-shake of congratulation all around.

A BUSINESS MAN'S FAITH.

Tortured by Rheumatism for Months, He Finds His Faith in South American Rheumatic Cure and is Healed—It cures in One to Three Days.

Mr. S. Barker is a business man in Toronto, and lives at 9 Suffolk Place. He contracted very acute rheumatism, and for months was a great sufferer. He treated with best hygienic means, and any relief. He took South American Rheumatic Cure for what it claimed to be in advertisements he read of it, and when he had taken two bottles he was completely cured. He says, "I voluntarily give this testimonial that our sufferer may be benefited, as I believe the remedy is a perfect specific." For sale by Ormond Walsh.

The Architect.

One must wonder why it really is that so little is said or thought about architecture, the grandest, the mother, of all arts, a great, a most useful, science, one in which a greater revolution has lately taken place and in which more progress has been made, with more stupendous results, than in any other, remarks a writer in The International Magazine.

Was it not Richelieu who, paraphrasing an ancient writer, said: "If it is versatility you seek, go find an architect. He must be an artist, or his buildings will offend the eye; an engineer, or they will crumble into trouble; a lawyer, or he will get his patrons into trouble; a doctor, or his buildings will be hygienically unfit to live in, and, last, but not least, he must be a gentleman, or we will have nothing to do with him."

Bread in Havana.

Havana's bread carts are usually two-legged—that is, bread is carried about the streets in large, shallow baskets borne on top of men's heads. It is served in sticks as long as a baseball bat or in loaves or pones, one of which is supposed to serve for the morning meal of an ordinary citizen.

ACROBATIC COOKING.

MIRACLES DONE IN THE GALLEY OF AN ATLANTIC LINER.

Concocting Dishes While the Kitchen is Trying to Turn Somersaults and the Pots and Pans Are Dancing Jigs With the Cooks.

Cooking on the high seas isn't so exciting a profession as it was in the old days, but even now it presents problems and situations that would drive a landman chef to despair. It is one thing to sit down in dignified calm in a hotel kitchen and compose a symphonic entree, and it's quite another thing to clutch a rope swung across a kitchen that is trying to turn turtle and to master an entree that is attempting to dance a cancan on top of a plunging range. It would be a happy thing for stewards and cooks if every disgruntled passenger on a transatlantic steamer could, in rough weather, be forced to pay a visit to the galley and watch the efforts by which the meals with which he has been finding fault are prepared. The chances are that two minutes amid the fumes and heat of the galley would reduce him to a state of seasickness which would rob him of all interest in meals of any sort, but if he could wait long enough to receive a few mental impressions he would climb the galley stairs a humble and contrite traveler and accept food fit to eat as a miracle wrought in his behalf.

On the modern steamers galley arrangements have been improved to a degree that would make an old time sea cook open his eyes in amazement, but even under such conditions the cooking is difficult work. In the first place, room is necessarily limited, and every inch of space must be made to count, yet a large number of cooks and assistants are employed. One of the large steamers will have 30 men at work in its galley, and 30 men prying jeffrog about a microscope, titching and doing juggling feats with pots and pans and knives and rolling pins while the ship stands on its beam ends is a sight to bring tears to the eyes of a lover of a quiet life.

In these narrow quarters cooking is done on a scale larger than the ordinary saloon passenger realizes. The crew must be fed in port and out. So the cooks have from 500 to 600 men on their hands every day of the year. Then during the voyage the steerage, second cabin and first cabin must be provided for. The steerage passengers do not have an elaborate bill of fare, but about 3,000 small loaves of bread are baked for the crew and steerage every day, and that in itself is no small task.

The very sight of the baker's dough trough is enough to discourage a faint hearted cook, for flour is dumped into it by the barrel. One hundred and fifty barrels of flour melt away on a voyage like spring snowflakes, and 20 tons of potatoes dance merrily up the galley stairs to table land in hand with 20,000 pounds of beef, while 10,000 eggs, more or less mawkish, follow wearily. Then 150 gallons of fresh milk scum the 1,000 gallons of condensed milk stored beside it and advise the 1,000 pounds of coffee to have nothing to do with it. The ghosts of countless chickens, turkeys, ducks and fishes haunt the larder where their slaughtered bodies hang in hundreds at a time. As for the incidentals, no one but the head steward knows the tale of them. Imagine all this food prepared in an apartment house kitchen added to hand springs, and you have the steamer galley situation.

Along the end of the room run the ranges. The ovens are divided into compartments which will hold firm pans of varying sizes. On top of the stoves a steel bar runs along the front and back, and separate crossbars may be clamped to them at convenient intervals. Pots and kettles are brummed in in this way, and to add to their firmness each is clamped to a crossbar with what looks like a large iron clothespin. All cooking utensils are made much deeper than would be necessary in ordinary cooking in order to avoid spilling of the contents in case of rough weather. The huge copper stock pots in which wholesale boiling is done are heated by steam, and all broiling is done over an immense charcoal fire. The bakers have a separate cubby hole and ovens for themselves, and beyond them is a cold room where confections and pastry are made.

Everything is swept and garnished in a fashion to satisfy the heart of a Dutch housewife. The copper shines resplendent—but the smells! Ye gods, the smells! Let the seasick man who has held his breath and plunged madly up the companion way to escape the deadly whiff of air coming from the galley imagine that gust of odor intensified, concentrated, mixed with steam and smoke and multiplied by four, and he may have some idea of the atmosphere down in the galley.

A steamer kitchen is no place for any one with a tendency toward seasickness, and the first few voyages of a young cook's assistant are tortures. There isn't any fine glow of majesty about his martyrdom, and he doesn't get an atom of sympathy. His galley mates guy him, and his superiors bully him. He sounds a depth of seasickness beside which the state of the greatest passenger on deck in a steamer chair is rose colored and agreeable. Often one voyage is all that he can stand, and he bolts inconspicuously when the ship reaches port, but if he has the courage to suffer until he is thoroughly seasoned he overcomes his qualms and is ready to laugh at the next green head.

Sea accidents occur in the steamer galleys nowadays when innumerable patents and safeguards are employed. Once in awhile a stock pot blows up from too much steam pressure, or a careless or unskilled cook is cut or burned or scalded, but such cases are rare. Ropes are stretched across in front of the ranges, and when the ship is plunging badly the cooks hold these ropes while working over the fire. Fortunately for the workers in the galley, when the weather is very rough a large percentage of the passengers lose their interest in food, so the work of the cooks is lessened, and this fact offsets the added difficulty in the preparation of the food. The galley is separated from the rest of the boat by water tight doors and can be shut off so securely that it is practically impossible, except in case of serious accident, for water to reach the fires and put a stop to culinary proceedings.

LOCATION OF OUR MINES

THE COLORADO COPPER MINING COMPANY is fortunate in being the possessor of five splendid showing properties in the great Salda copper belt, the principal copper producing region of this portion of the Rockies. All of our claims have been more or less developed, and in our purpose to put the same on a paying basis as soon as possible.

Our company owns, clear of incumbrances, the following claims: The Sedalia Extension, the Sedalia Extension No. 1, which property adjoins the great Sedalia mine, which has been a big producer for upwards of seventeen years; the Copper King of Colorado, which immediately adjoins the above; the Copper Queen of Salda, a very promising property, only a few steps from the deposit in Salda. This claim occupies an important position on a mountain just north of the city; and last, but by no means least, the Sitka mine, located in Salda east of Salda, on Queen's Station, on the main trunk line of the great Denver & Rio Grande Railroad, and also on the Arkansas river, which in length is one of America's greatest streams.

We have already completed over 100 feet development work, 70 feet of which consists of surface work such as cross-cut, shaft, etc. prospecting to decide the best place to sink our main or working shaft. This has been found to be on the "Big 3" or centre claim, and we are now down 30 feet and still pushing the work as fast as four practical miners and dynamite can possibly accomplish. Remember, we have three full claims, to wit: "Big 3," "Victor" and "Wagon Wheel," situated on Iron Mountain in the Burke mining district, Ferry county, Washington, six miles southeast of the famous Republic mine, and that there is a big ledge of porphyritic quartz cropping all the three claims lengthwise from north to south and cropping for over 2,700 feet, and surface assays furnished $8 to $9 in free gold.

On the "Big 3" claim, while doing development work, we discovered a true fissure vein 4 feet wide cutting the formation east and west, which from picked samples assayed $22.00 in gold.

Our manager writes us, under date of March 1, 1900, that at a depth of 30 feet in our proposed main shaft he is working in 4 feet of fine quartz and it is widening as depth is acquired. He also says: "I am confident that a shaft 100 feet deep will prove this property nearly as good as, if not equal to any of the great mines of the Republic." Camp at the same stage of development. Our latest assay from a depth of about 15 feet (main shaft) gave $1.53, "a better showing than the Republic had at the same depth."

The company now offer 50,000 shares of treasury stock (NON-ASSESSABLE) AT THE LOW PRICE 1-2 CENTS PER SHARE, in order to raise funds to push the work with additional force.

There are 300,000 shares in the treasury and the above is the first offered for sale. The company being a reliable one, and with such a phenomenal showing on their properties, it should induce immediate investment, so don't delay as the price will positively be raised when this block is sold; every dollar we spend means greater depth to our shaft, wider lead and higher assays. DONT MISS THIS. ITS A WINNER. Send your orders at once to the secretary.

Short Story of the Day

THE DRAMATIC CRITIC'S STORY

It was nearly midnight and the dramatic critic sat still at his desk with his pencil held idle in his fingers and not one line written about "The Second Cousins," certainly the most delightful comedy of the season, just presented for the first exceedingly conscientious reviewer of the drama. He was never savage, satirical or stern, but immovable just. The critical faculty was so well developed in him that the beauty of no woman could move him to admire a poor performance. He was looked upon as the ideal dramatic critic, for he was honest, dispassionate, and without fade.

A single electric light with a green shade was over his desk and kept his narrow room partly in shadow. Half a dozen photographs of distinguished actors and actresses could be seen indistinctly upon the wall. On top of his desk stood a picture of Barnum which by some odd mistake the great actress had sent to the right man instead of to the editor in chief, who had not written that noteworthy criticism of the divine Sarah "Adrienne," but who under ordinary circumstances would have gotten the credit for it.

As Roberts sat musing in his chair it could be seen by any one passing by his room that he was a handsome fellow, possibly a trifle over thirty, with finely cut features, a tender mouth and clear brown eyes. The somewhat ghastly light gave to his face a paler tint than did nature intend it to have. As he sat thus in his reverie the minutes were running out like sand in a glass, for time is never so rapid in flight as between midnight and 3 o'clock in a newspaper office. But the truth of the matter was that Roberts was not perplexed, puzzled, vaguely disturbed. He had lost his critical equilibrium entirely. The play possessed only shadowy outlines and his principles of criticism were gone glimmering. He could not get himself together because of a beautiful face. Never in his experience had he seen a woman upon the stage who appeared to him personally as did Miriam Dulany, who took the part of one of the second cousins. She was an extraordinarily beautiful young woman with a face that haunted Harold. It seemed to him that there was an appeal in it, mingled with a girlish timidity not often seen in members of the theatrical profession. When she came upon the stage there was the look of wonder and helplessness in her eyes that might have been seen by Pygmalion in the face of Galatea, when the statue awoke him to find itself a woman. The role assigned to Miss Dulany was full of sparkling drollery, and one would have said that it would fit her as a glove the hand. But Roberts realized what a shock that Miss Dulany's Betty was simply execrable. She did not have the faintest conception of the part. She missed its humor entirely from sheer inability to act, and where she should have been tenderly elusive—as in the scene where she makes the double discovery that she loves her cousin and that he is not cousin at all—she was playfully frivolous. She was green, raw, impossible. She had no business on the stage at all. He felt wrathful at the thought of it, yet somehow the memory of her face disturbed him.

"Hello there, Harold," said a cheery man with the hoe wake up and shake hands with Miss Miriam Dulany. Her mother and mine were schoolgirls together in Baltimore.

Roberts arose as a man in a dream and shook hands with the beautiful young woman whom his friend Wesley Nevill has brought to see him.

"Miss Miriam has just gone on the stage. Has a deuced lot of talent that way; born actress, my boy, and all the rest of it; and I want this town to do the right thing by her. I told her I knew you and that, while you were a polar iceberg where your art or science I was simply going to hold you up and or whatever you call it was concerned, make you give me a good send-off."

Miss Dulany was much embarrassed and Roberts thought she winced under the designation of "a born actress." A great doubt had evidently entered her soul as to whether she had a right to be there, and she had a strangely sweet impulse to take her in his arms, tell her she had made a mistake and comfort her.

"Mr. Nevill is too kind, Mr. Roberts," she said. I am afraid some local applause rather upset my judgment. I thought I had some talent and it became necessary for me to have an occupation. Don't let anything that he has said prompt you to say anything but what is candid about my performance to-night. But I do hope you liked it."

Roberts was not naturally diffident man; but on this occasion he was helpless. No gift of commonplace came to his tongue and he stammered and rambled around until Miss Dulany's eyes grew big and round and she wandered if he were sane or sober.

When they had gone the dramatic critic turned to his desk, but his hand refused to move. He could not write the truth as it was just as impossible for him to write a lie.

At 2 o'clock a wild man in his shirt sleeves with a week's beard on his face, a lead pencil in his mouth and a cornucopia pipe stuck up over his ear rushed in and yelled out: "Where the devil are the amusements, 'Rob'?"

Roberts braced himself and said quietly: "There will be no amusements to-night."

"Thank God!" said the managing editor; "this is the night of the deluge. Riot in the Austrian parliament, a mob in Dublin and Oom Paul raining hell on the world; and off he went. Roberts heaved a sigh of relief. He had expected a scrap with "the wild man from Borneo," as the managing editor, Fitzgerald, was once called at 2 a.m., and he had received a vote of thanks. He put on his overcoat, lighted a cigar, turned off his light and went home.

The next day he explained to Nevill not quite honestly that a news rush had crowded out the "amusements." Nevill asked him to call upon Miss Dulany with him, and he found himself unable to refuse. She was gracious but distant in her reception of the dramatic critic, but nothing was said of the absence of any notice of "The Second Cousins" except perfunctory notices in general terms of its financial success. He dropped in to see the performance two or three times, a veritable stranger to his delight he observed absolutely no improvement in Miss Dulany's acting. It was a tragic mistake, yet he was glad of it.

It was near the end of the engagement of "The Second Cousins." Harold and Miss Dulany were together, looking out over the lake, and there was a wistfulness in her eyes that gave an added tenderness to her beauty. They were both silent for a little space and she was the first to break it.

"Mr. Roberts," he said, "I will be here only a few days longer and be-

"For you?" she faltered, the color coming to her cheeks.

"Yes, for me. It meant that you would go as you came, go on the passing summer cloud, hopelessly beyond my reach. It meant that my love for you would be condemned to starvation, for it was my love that kept me from ever mentioning your name in the paper. I thank the stars you can't act, for I am going to win you all for myself, I give you fair notice now. I know that you look upon me as a brute."

"But I do," she said, raising her eyes with the nameless sweet light in them, to his face and placing her hand in his.

Washing bronze chandeliers removes the bronze. Dust with a feather brush and a soft cloth.

When musing at night, something white should be thrown over the table beneath the light to relieve the eyes.

Articles of old furniture are sometimes made to appear new by washing them with lime-water and then applying a coat of oil.

THE COOKBOOK.

Always scald rhubarb before cooking
it, for it then requires much less sugar, and yet loses none of its flavor.

A new idea is to put the flavoring of cake, puddings, sauces, etc., with the butter. The butter holds the flavor better than any other medium.

Cold steak may be acceptably served as a left over by passing it through the meat chopper and arranging it neatly on a platter, garnished with parsley or water cress.

THE DRESSY WOMAN.

There has been an unprecedented demand this season for novel and fashionable black dress fabrics.

Khaki fabrics are among the popular materials for spring wear, and it will be found, wherever in every instance to relieve this ugly sand color with white or colored silk or satin.

Many of the modish spring blouses and other jackets have narrow, medium length stole ends in front, with short, double revers on each side, reaching in length a little below the bust.

Some of the smartest street gowns for spring wear are formed of handsome, smooth finished costume cloth of light weight, with the still fashionable decoration of stitched straps of the same material.

In keeping with the revived fashion of plaiting dress materials, the Norfolk jacket will reappear en suite, with kilted costumes of tweed, cheviot, frieze, silberline, camel's hair, serge and other utility fabrics.

One of the great French authorities has said that, while many other effects will vie with it, the overskirt will take the place as a factor among other spring styles particularly suited to tall, slender women.

Among new French costumes are those of black satin faced cloth, with a finish of rows of white silk stitching on skirt edge and bolero or jacket, the costume finished either with a row of black and white ostrich tips or one of black and white chiffon and fringe.

On models for summer gowns appear skirts alternately tucked and flared in horizontal rows, with perpendicular side plaitings in clusters of five alternating with one rather wide box plait, with a mixture of fancy kilt and fan plaitings, the fabric first scalloped at the lower edge or bordered with braid or ribbon.—

GLEANINGS.

A common sight in Cape Colony is a herd of ostriches accompanying a railway train as it speeds on its way.

A New Yorker who was in Kimberley recently was cured of homesickness by a familiar sight, nothing else than an old Broadway horse car, still bearing the legend, "Battery to Central Park."

A young man who was struck by lightning in Berlin a few weeks ago remained unconscious a long time, but shouted in his delirium that he was in hell and begged to have the devil taken away.

Thomas H. Gilbert, Jr., of Orono, Me., lately cut in Orono a pine tree that contained 3,200 feet and is claimed to be the largest pine or tree of any kind ever cut for lumber on record in the New England states.

A new method of preserving telegraph poles is to surround the portion in the ground with an earthenware pipe like a drainpipe. Into the space between the pole and the pipe is poured a mixture of sand and resin.

There are two well known families in Devonshire, England, the Careys and the Careys, and it is said that the members of the Carey family pronounce the name "Carey," while the Careys call themselves "Carew."

His "Dear Old Jim."

"Corbett is my friend and benefactor," says Mr. Jeffries. "I was once his sparring partner, and he treated me as a gentleman. Hence I have gladly agreed to fight him as a return for favors. I am bound by all the ties of friendship and gratitude to give him a chance to fight me." Was there ever such a touching instance of devotion? Mr. Jeffries will reward his old patron and benefactor by beating him into pulp and knocking his head off.
One can fancy him saying, as he puts his terrible right into his friend's ribs,
"Dear old Jim!"—Kansas City Star.

A Curious Lake.

A curious phenomenon is that metal never rusts in the waters of Lake Titicaca. You can throw in a chain or an anchor or any article of ordinary iron and let it lie for weeks, and when you haul it up it will be as clean and bright as when it came from the foundry. And what is stranger still, rust that has been formed upon metallic objects elsewhere will peel off when immersed in its waters. This is frequently noticed by railway and steamship men. Rusty car wheels and rails and even machinery can be brightened by soaking them in the waters of Lake Titicaca.—Chicago Record.

Just where the large crowds that suddenly fill the galleries of the senate and house when a notable speech is being made come from is a puzzle. They spring up, however, and as strangely disappear into nothingness.

Mr. Jacob Payne, of Dummer, yesterday delivered his annual supply of maple syrup to his customers in Peterborough. Mr.
Payne has customers that he has supplied regularly for 15 years, a fact that speaks well for the quality of his syrup.

A Lakefield Industry.

Lakefield is likely to have a substantial addition to the manufacturing establishments in the shape of a cement works. As far as the Times can learn, the proposal is that the village pay a bonus of $10,000 in cash and exemption from taxation for ten years. The cement company will agree to employ not less than 75 men the year round. It is said that valuable marl and blue deposits have been acquired close to the village. We will have something further to say when the matter comes before the council.

He Likes the Times.

A letter received from Mr. W. E. Watson, the well known broker on King street, says:—"Time received. I feel like complimenting you on your fine paper, and have found it an excellent medium for advertising."

Death of Mr. G. E. Robertson.

Yesterday morning Mr. G. E. Robertson, assistant engineer at the Balsam Lake and Lake Simcoe division of the Trent Valley Canal, died at Hamilton. About Christmas last, Mr. Robertson, who had been for 35 years connected with the engineering and construction of many of the largest public works in the Dominion, came to Peterborough to reside, where he soon made many warm friends. He was 44 years of age and was born and educated in Brockville. Mr. Robertson's death will be deplored by many. He leaves a wife and one child who will receive the deepest sympathy.

SUPPLANT COFFEE.

Belief of a Raymond Lady.

Mrs. J. T. Bartlett, Raymond, N. H., says—"I suspected that coffee was the cause of my persistent dyspepsia and terrible feeling of weakness and faintness at the heart. It was hard to give up coffee, but when I got some Postum Food Coffee and learned how to make it properly, I quickly obtained relief from the old troubles. The unpleasant sensation of faintness at the heart has entirely gone. When I first tried Postum, I failed to notice the injunction to boil it fifteen minutes, and so let it boil just a few minutes, as I would coffee. I was disappointed in the flavor, and did not try it again until told by a friend that this was one of the absolute essentials. I have since observed the rule and am entirely satisfied with the drink. It is simply perfect. I believe it to be the beverage of the future, and that it is destined to supplant coffee everywhere."

"One of our business men here has been improved in health by the use of it. No one could wish to return to coffee drinking after properly testing your delightful and healthful Postum Food Coffee. Made at the pure food factories of the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich."

HIS FIRST CLIENT.

A Few Legal Lights were Recalling Old Reminiscences Last Night.

A prominent lawyer, who is now an M. P., stopped off last night on his way west. He was met by one of two local legal lights, and the trio passed the time in spinning yarns and recalling early recollections in the back parlor of the Snowden house.

The greatest disappointment that I ever met with happened at the beginning of my career," said the M. P. "I was young at the time and inclined to hold my parents responsible for this handicap which was keeping me from the fame and glory that I thought was my due."

"My bright new shingle was somewhat weather-beaten, and my office desk had two holes worn in it by my heels before my first client came."

"But come he did one day, charging my office like a mad bull. Glaring at me and throwing down a roll of bills as large as my fist, he shouted: 'I want to see Mr. Blank!'

"I am Mr. Blank," I said, edging up to the roll.

"Good Lord, sonny," he roared, "I want to see your father, the lawyer!"

"I am Mr. Blank, the lawyer," I answered, with all the dignity I could muster.

"Oh, Christmas!" he yelled, as he seized his roll and put it in his pocket. "What have I been retained for?" I asked marking a bluff at the roll.

"He stared at me for a moment and then said: 'See here, sonny, I've got an important engagement to meet. I'll be back in an hour. Here's your retainer,' he added, throwing down a quarter."

But he never came back. I was looking at my picture the other day, taken about half time, and I cannot say that I am to blame him."

Syrup making is almost a total failure this season.

The season for fighting the caterpillar pest has arrived.

The ferry at Gannon's Narrows is in operation again.

It is time the watering carts were out. Yesterday the dust was very bad.

High County Constable Cochrane was in Dumfries to-day serving documents in the case of Cuffie vs. Cuffie.

It is no use setting an alarm clock to wake you up in the morning, if you turn over and go to sleep again. The Times never sleeps.

Machinists are on strike in Toronto, nearly every machinist and boiler maker being out. Peterborough men have been asked to stay away.

A Boer Bible that was found in the camp by one of the Canadians after Cronje's surrender at Paardeburg, is on view in one of Grafton's & Co's. windows.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL.

Mr. J. H. Brandon, of Fenelon Falls, is in town.

Mr. John Craig, of Lakefield, was in town yesterday.

Captain Maurice Lane of Lindsay, was in town yesterday.

Mrs. J. R. Stratton has gone to Toronto, to attend the Horse Show.

Rev. J. H. Cowart, pastor of the Belleville Baptist church, was in town yesterday.

Mr. E. B. Stone, who is conducting the Crown business at the Court of Assize in Perth, was addressing the jury yesterday when one of the jurymen suddenly expired. Eloquence is sometimes dangerous.

Peterborough's Turn.

The Times suggested some weeks ago that the brigade camp should be held in Peterborough this year. We are that one of the evening papers is pretending to originate the idea, but if our contemporary will turn back and look through the files he will find that this great family journal first mentioned the matter. Major Edwards and officers of the 5th battalion should at once take steps to secure his for Peterborough. No stone should be left unturned to have the camp here. We have grounds, on the bank of the river, either up or down, that would make a splendid camp, with plenty of room for manoeuvring. Mr. Fournelle, president of the Veterans' Association, might take a hand in and do what is necessary to influence the powers that be to do so to Peterborough.

Letter of Condolence.

Mr. George Milne, whose son, Mr. George A. Milne, died a short time ago at the Nicholls Hospital, received a letter of condolence from officers and members of Court Langton, C.O.F. The letter was couched in terms of deepest sympathy.

Should be Patented.

Messrs. White & Grylls, owners of the Steamer Sunbeam, plying on the Honey Lake waters, have an automatic ship launching process that should be filed in the Government patent office at Ottawa. On Monday as some of the finishing touches of paint were being applied to the Sunbeam at Lakefield, the good ship, impatient at the backwardness of the season, suddenly shook herself free from restraint and plunged into her native element. She landed for the dam, and was secured and tied up at the lower island and is now safe at the wharf ready for business.

NELSON GRAY TO BE REMOVED.

The Authorities of Sunnyside Home Send Their Agent to Bring the Lark Back.

Mr. Patrick Hynes, agent of the St. Vincent de Paul Children's Aid Society, was in town last evening. Mr. Hynes is here acting for the Sisters of the Sunnyside Orphanage of Toronto and will to-day take the boy Nelson Gray from Mortimer Healey, to whom he was apprenticed by the Home. Mr. Hynes wishes it known that the Sunnyside authorities took action in this matter before they knew anything about proceedings of the local Aid Society and as soon as they found sufficient grounds for so doing. The following is the authority given Mr. Hynes by the Sunnyside institution:

Toronto, April 25.

Patrick Hynes, Esq.,
St. Vincent de Paul's Children's Aid Society, Toronto.

Dear Sir,—As superior of the Sisters of St. Joseph in charge of the Sacred Heart Orphanage at Sunnyside, Toronto, and pursuant to the provisions in that behalf contained in articles of apprenticeship of one Nelson Gray, dated 2nd April, 1894, and made between the said Sisters of St. Joseph and one Mortimer J. Healey of the Township of Asphodel, farmer, I hereby authorize you to take and remove the said boy, Nelson Gray, from the said Mortimer J. Healey and to bring him to the said Sunnyside Orphanage; and I give you authority as agent of the said Sisters all power, authority and discretion necessary and proper for this purpose. Yours truly, (Sd.) M. Beneard.

Approved,
(Sd.) Frank A. Anglin, Solicitor.

Mr. Hynes states that the wages earned by children apprenticed out are saved up for them and given when such apprenticeship is in order to give them a fair start in life. The institution, he states, does not receive one cent of revenue from the unfortunate children.

"Difficulties give way to diligence," and disease germs and blood humors disappear when Hood's Sarsaparilla is faithfully taken.

Model School Changes.

Hon. Richard Harcourt, the new minister of education, contemplates some important changes with reference to model schools. The number of such schools will be reduced, the county and government grants increased and the terms lengthened. The whole time of the principal will be devoted to the model students. In cities and towns where there are a number of ward schools the model students are to be distributed among the various schools, thus securing to them a greater number of classes and obviating the bad effects of having raw teachers experimenting on the pupils of one school only.

Queen's Birthday.

Editor Morning Times:
Sir,—By all means let the day be properly celebrated. Peterborough is a city of patriots and it is our duty to our Queen and our country to make the day a day of rejoicing. Our various clubs are willing and anxious to join in the good work. All we need is to make a stand, and the Mayor should take the initiative, as suggested by the Times.

Poke 'em up, Mr. Editor, and earn at least the gratitude of one loyal CITIZEN.

Double Trading Stamps.

At Times Bookstore for the next thirty days we will give double trading stamps on all purchases. We also offer some inducements in prices and quote a few lines here—5 note size writing tablets, ruled, good quality, for 25 cents; three unruled tablets, containing 100 sheets of good note, for 25 cents; four letter size writing tablets for 25 cents; five cent bottle of ink for four cents; six exercise or dictation books for 25 cents; counter books, containing 200 pages each, two for 25 cents; day books, ledgers, and journals in best quality and make, 200 pages, for 50 cents. Times Bookstore, Market Block, Peterborough.

The Late Miss Sarah Weyer.

The death occurred yesterday morning of Miss Sarah Weyer, aged 72 years, daughter of Mr. William Weyer, No. 24 Weller street. Deceased sank into a decline about two months ago, since which time she has rapidly failed. Condolences to the bereaved family will be extended by a large circle of friends. The funeral will take place this morning at nine o'clock from the family residence to St. Peter's cathedral.

New Counterfeit.

A new bogus 25 cent piece was shown this week, and perhaps there may be many others in circulation. It is an exact reproduction of the genuine coin, is lighter in weight, whiter in color, and the letter not so prominent. It bears the date of 1899, and is a piece of money by which any person might easily be deceived in handling. Look carefully at the new coins in use.

A Sure Remedy.

The caterpillar plague is on us again. Here is a remedy that is safe and sure. See what others say—

28th May, 1899.

This is to certify that Mr. F. Johnston, of Peterborough, treated my trees with his remedy for destroying caterpillars. His work proved quite satisfactory and my trees never were so healthy before; the caterpillars dried up and blew away and not a leaf was destroyed. In one particular case he applied his remedy to a small bunch of haw trees and in ten days there was not a caterpillar on it and not a leaf destroyed. Any person who wishes to enquire about the matter may do so by applying to me, Thos. Huston, Ontario.

Peterborough, April 12, 1900

To whom it may concern—This is to certify that Samuel Johnston treated a number of my shade trees in the spring of 1899, with his caterpillar remedy. It proved quite satisfactory to me; the grubs did not eat the leaves after being cured. I cannot say that it injured the trees in any way. I intend giving another trial this season. Yours respectfully, Adam Hall.

For further particulars apply to Samuel Johnston, No. 169 McDonnell street.

His Idea of Humor.

A janitress living on Washington square had an adventure one day which she will not soon forget. It seems that the building which she has under her care was at one time used by a trust company, and afterward it was turned into an apartment house. When this was done the vaults were left intact, and they were very seldom opened. The janitress was showing a party of gentlemen through the building and pointed out the desirability of the vaults as refrigerators. When she opened the vault and stepped in, one of the party, who has a rare idea of humor, shut the door suddenly and imprisoned the janitress. That was all right so far as it went, but the lock was a spring affair, and the janitress had the keys on the inside. The room hunters were thoroughly frightened, and one of them ran for a locksmith in haste. Luckily a neighbor, who is an expert locksmith, came into the place and in a few minutes succeeded in releasing the woman, who was in anything but a pleasant frame of mind. The room hunters made themselves very scarce before the enraged janitress came forth.—Philadelphia Record.

In the Same Pen.

"One of the boys at the hotel put me on to a little pool game," said the dry goods drummer, "and I went around to see what it was like. There were about 30 respectable looking people in the room, and one of them was trying to teach me the value of the cards, when the police broke in and made a clean sweep of everybody. Next morning, when arraigned at the police court, I wanted a lawyer, and there was a general laugh in court as his honor replied: 'I don't know where you'll get one. There are nine in town, but all are in the pen with you!'"

He Was Very Thoughtful.

A north country miller noted for his keenness in financial matters was once in a boat trying his best to get across the stream which drove his mill. The stream was flooded, and he was taken past the point at which he wanted to land, while farther on misfortune again overtook him to the extent that the boat was upset.

His wife, realising the danger he was in, ran frantically along the side of the stream, crying for help in a pitiful voice, when, to her sheer amazement, she was suddenly brought to a standstill by her husband yelling out:

"If I'm drowned, Molly, don't forget that she's come up 2 shillings a month!"—London Telegraph.

FRENCH IS AT DEWETSDORP WITH HIS CAVALRY.

Boers Are in Full Flight to the North With General Rundle in Close Pursuit—Boden-Powell Was Holding Out Gallantly
Up to the Tenth of April.

London, April 26. The Boers' horse and French's cavalry time after time engaged the Boers and held them while the infantry and baggage passed. He says—"Gen. Pole-Carew found it necessary to use shell on the left flank. The Boers evidently intended to draw him into action in order to delay the column, but the admirable tactics adopted enabled a steady advance, only interrupted by short delays. The Boers always took good care to keep their baggage and guns well out of range.

"Gen. French's general plan was to push forward in light order, leaving the baggage train to follow with infantry. Few casualties have been sustained during the march. Gen. Cole-Carew burned the farmhouse from which the Boers fired while flying a white flag, and he informed the owners that the farmers would no longer be allowed to play a double game without reprisals, as they must deliver up their arms or openly join the enemy.

"In the afternoon the Boers evacuated their position. Gen. French's advance cut their communication north of the town. The action was fought at Hooi Kop. The Boers retired to the northeast. They were commanded by Botha and De Wet. Rundle, with artillery, is pursuing them. Gen. French creating a position here, afterwards going to Dewetdorp.

RUNDLE AFTER THE BOERS.

French and Rundle Joined Hands at Dewetdorp Yesterday.

London, April 26.—A special despatch from Dewetdorp, dated yesterday, says:—Owing to the approach of Gen. French and to Gen. Rundle's persistent shelling the Boers relinquished their positions last night, retiring with their guns in a northeasterly direction. Generals French and Rundle joined hands east of Dewetdorp this morning.

Gen. Rundle is pursuing the Boers in forced marches.

RUNNING FIGHT IN PROGRESS.

London, April 26.—All the interest in the South African war is now centered in the running fight in progress between the burghers retreating from the southern portion of the Orange Free State and General French's horsemen and the infantry of General Pole-Carew, Cherride and Rundle. The Boers, clinging to their position as long as it was safe to do so, and they have now slipped off to hold the next commanding ridge through a broken country admirably suited for a rear guard defence.

Despatches from Aliwal North, under date of Wednesday, April 25, says the Boers left Wepener so hurriedly that many of the dead were left in the trenches unburied.

Commandant S. Gronje is reported to have been killed.

According to advices from Bloemfontein, the attempt of the Boers at Brandfort to get in touch with the command at Thaba N'Chu was frustrated by a force despatched by Gen. Tucker from Glen.

A despatch from Pretoria reports the arrival of Lord Rossmlyn as an unwounded prisoner.

FIRST OF THE STRATHCONAS.

Private Simmill Died at Cape Town of Blood Poisoning.

Ottawa, April 26.—A cable from Col. Steele was received this morning by the British Department announcing the death from blood poisoning of 392 J. Simmill, of Strathcona's Horse. He died at Cape Town yesterday. His mother lives in Newport, England. This is the first death among Strathcona's Horse.

SIEGE OF WEPENER RAISED.

Four or Five Thousand Boers in Full Retreat Northward.

London, April 26.—The Times says:—There is substantial progress in the Free State. The advance of Pole-Carew's division and the cavalry and horse artillery under General French scared the Boers out of the strong position they held at Dewetdorp, and raised the siege of Dalgetty's gallant little band at Wepener, thus breaking their combination in the southeastern corner of the Free State. It is a great gain, but our success cannot be thought complete unless we succeed in intercepting the retreating commandos and capturing their supplies. General French will do all that is possible to attain that end. It is estimated that from four to five thousand Boers are now in flight to the northeast, but that number does not by any means represent the whole force of their commandos in the district. They will probably divide, and in the last resort the Boer army can always melt away in the disguise of honest farmers.

FRENCH AT DEWETSDORP.

He Entered the Town Yesterday Evening with Cavalry.

Dewetdorp, April 26.—Evening.—Gen. French entered this town to-day with two cavalry brigades. He left camp at daylight and found the Boers holding the hills. These were shelled and the Boers retreated. The cavalry pushed forward around the position of the Boers above the town, where they were holding Gen. Rundle in check.

It is reported that 5,000 Boers passed through the town last night in order to avoid Gen. French's attack in the rear.

ULTIMATUM TO THE BOERS.

Pole-Carew Tells Them That They Must Decide One Way or the Other.

London, April 26.—A Reuters correspondent with Gen. Pole-Carew and Gen. French wires from Damfontein under date of April 26, as follows:—

"River since Sunday a Boer force of about 1,500 with one gun and one commando has been trying to impede our progress."

He then proceeds to describe how the various mounted bodies, the Canadians,

TO BE DISCUSSED BY THE COMMONS.

The Spion Kop Despatches Will be Brought Up by the Parliamentary Secretary of War Office.

London, April 26.—The House of Commons reassembled this afternoon.

James M. Barrie, the novelist, has accepted the invitation of a committee to contest the vacancy in the representation of the House of Commons of Edinburgh and St. Andrew's Universities providing the Liberals of the constituency generally approve of his candidacy.

James Lowther, Conservative, was heartily cheered when he gave notice that he would call attention on May 22nd to Lord Roberts' recent Spion Kop despatches and move the production of further papers on the subject.

George Wyndham, Parliamentary Secretary of the War Office, replying to questions, declared Lord Roberts had made no comment whatever on General Methuen's Magersfontein operations.

Neither, he continued, did Lord Roberts' despatches indicate that the advance was either retarded or modified by the scarcity of remounts. At the same time, the Secretary declared, it was true that the expenditure of horse flesh had exceeded all the estimates, and that the War Office had invariably exceeded the regulations from South Africa. The difficulty in procuring ships had handicapped the authorities, but already this year had sent out 27,041 horses and 17,142 mules as remounts, in addition to those accompanying the troops, and by the end of May the remounts delivered would number 42,000 horses and 23,000 mules. Steps had also been taken to supply the necessary rolling stock for the railways. But as far as the Government was aware the military problem before Lord Roberts had not turned on the question of remounts or rolling stock, but on the fact that Lord Roberts had shifted his base from Cape Town to Bloemfontein, thus necessitating the recapturing and repair of the railroad, and the clearing of the line of communication for a distance of 750 miles on a single track with a rise of 4,500 feet.

Regarding the relief of Mafeking, which Mr. Wyndham asserted, all had at heart, the Secretary said the House would realize that speedy relief would not be aided by divulging the objective of any of Lord Roberts' forces.

of the Boer trenches across the river. The horses and carriages were withdrawn beyond range, and, at daybreak the British opened a heavy bombardment with shrapnel and lyddite.

The Boers were taken completely by surprise, but they replied with five guns, including a forty-pounder and a heavy rifle fire was opened at the same time. The duel continued many hours, the Boers finally evacuating the position with—it is believed—considerable damage.

There were no casualties on the British side. During the evening the guns were safely withdrawn. The shipping to-day showed that the Boer laager had been removed far back to the eastward.

ADDRESSED BY KRUGER.

The Irish-American-Boer Brigade Leaves Pretoria.

London, April 26.—The Daily Mail's Lorenzo Marquez correspondent telegraphing under date of Wednesday, says that the Irish-American brigade, consisting chiefly of the members of the so-called ambulance corps, left Pretoria Saturday under Col. Blake, after being addressed by President Kruger. They responded to the address with an American college cheer.

ERIN'S FAREWELL TO THE QUEEN.

Dublin, April 26.—Queen Victoria and Princess Christian and Henry of Battenberg left the Vice-Regal Lodge at noon, and drove to King's Bridge Station, on their way to Kingstown, and England. Large crowds at every point of vantage gave Her Majesty a loyal farewell.

The train started for Kingstown at 12.30 amidst the heartiest demonstrations. An enormous number of people had preceded the Queen to Kingstown and occupied the quays and other places from which the Royal yacht Victoria and Albert was visible.

A memorable demonstration occurred as Her Majesty, attended by a brilliant suite boarded the yacht, which steamed seaward at 1.15 p.m., amid the firing of a royal salute by the fleet and hearty and prolonged cheers from the throngs lining the water-side.

STORY OF FRENCH'S SUCCESS.

Eighth Hussars Raced for a Hill and Drove the Boers Off-Mell Before Them

London, April 26.—The Times has the following despatch describing the fighting at Hooi Kop, 30 miles south of Bloemfontein, on April 24:—

General French pushed forward, leaving the baggage to follow with the infantry. He found the enemy at 8 o'clock holding a line of kopjes on the left front, commanding the Dewetdorp road. One squadron of the 8th Hussars reached the top of the ridge, but were driven back. They were reinforced by three squadrons and two Maxims. The Hussars dismounted and returned to the attack, reaching the crest just as the enemy were coming up the opposite side. A heavily sustained carbine fire drove the enemy

C. P. R. Depot and Freight Sheds, Presbyterian Church, Numbers of

Post Office and Public Buildings Gone.

Ottawa, Ont., 8.30 p. m.

Fire in Hull is worse than ever. It is in the lumber piles now. Nearly every public building in Hull is gone, and fire spreading fast. It looks as if the whole city will go.

In Ottawa the fire is spreading very rapidly in the southwest of the city. Most of Hochesterville has gone. Loss will be very heavy—two million dollars or more. At the present time it is estimated that between 12,000 and 15,000 people are homeless.

Ottawa, 9 p. m.

Thus far a thousand houses are burnt.

Ottawa, 12 midnight.

Fire in Ottawa is reported to be under control.

Ottawa, Ont., April 26.—Probably the most disastrous fire that ever occurred in Hull broke out this morning about 11 o'clock. Up to 1 o'clock this afternoon about fifty families had been rendered homeless and the loss reached the vicinity of $100,000. The fire is still raging, and it is thought that the whole city of Hull will be destroyed.

Ottawa itself is threatened, as the fire has come across the Ottawa river, and part of Booth's lumber piles are already in flames. The fire started in the residential portion of Hull a lot of frame houses. A burning chimney was the origin. A fierce wind which was blowing at the time fanned up the flames and blew the burning embers all over the place. A new fire appeared to break out to a different spot every few minutes. The flames finally reached Main street, the business portion of the town, and many of the stores became a prey to the flames.

A Hundred Houses.

Later—The fire is still raging and already one hundred houses have been burned to the ground. It commenced on the Chelsea road and swept that part of the city to the Ottawa River. It has now crossed the Ottawa River, and the lumber piles and wharf of Bronson & Co. are in flames. There is danger of all the lumber mills at the Chaudiere being burned.

They are in Danger of Being Destroyed With Other Yards.

Ottawa, Ont., April 26.—A disastrous conflagration started in Hull this morning at 11 o'clock, and threatens to wipe out most of the city. It started in the northern and central part of the town, and fanned by a strong north wind, swept down towards the river, taking in about 75 houses and stores in its path.

The Eddy lumber yards caught fire in several places and at the time of writing are in imminent danger of being totally consumed along with a number of the large mills.

About 12.30 the sparks carried across the river by the wind by the wind set fire to the Bronson lumber yards in Ottawa, and these are now burning. The Ottawa Carbide works and other Ottawa buildings are threatened. All the Ottawa and Hull brigades are fighting the fire, but so far their efforts have been of little avail.

The Hull Postoffice has been consumed.

EDDY LUMBER YARDS ON FIRE.

Thousands of French-Canadians in Hull will be rendered homeless and will be thrown out of work by the burning of the lumber mills along the water front.

At 2.30 the fire shows no signs of lessening in violence and it is likely to burn all afternoon.

Loss Over Three Millions.

The loss is estimated now at between three and four millions. The Canada Carbide Works loss will be about $500,000; the Booth Company's loss is estimated at nearly $1,000,000, and the Eddy Company's loss at $1,000,000. The Hull Lumber Company's loss will be nearly $400,000, and these are only rough estimates.

One Million Shares, par value 5c per share

FULLY PAID AND NON-ASSESSABLE

We have already completed over 100 feet development work, 70 feet of which consists of surface work such as cross-cuts, shallow shafts, etc. prospecting to decide the best place to sink our main or working shaft. This has been found to be on the "Big 3" or centre claim, and we are now down 30 feet and still pushing the work as fast as four practical miners and dynamite can possibly accomplish. Remember, we have three full claims, to wit: "Big 3," "Victor" and "Will of the Wind," situated on Iron Mountain in the Bonanza mining district, Ferry county, Washington, six miles southeast of the famous Republic mine, and that there is a big ledge of porphyritic quartz cressing all the three claims lengths wise from north to south and cropping for over 2,700 feet, and surface assays furnished $6 to $9 in free gold.
On the "Big 3" claim, while doing development work, we discovered a true fissure vein 4 feet wide cutting the formation east and west, which from picked samples assayed $32.00 in gold.

Our manager writes us, under date of March 1, 1900, that at a depth of 30 feet in our proposed main shaft he is working in 4 feet of fine quartz and it is widening as depth is acquired. He also says: "I am confident that a shaft 100 feet deep will prove this property nearly as good as, if not equal to any of the great mines of the Republic Camp as the stage of development. Our latest assay from a depth of about 15 feet (main shaft) gave $16.53, "a better showing than the Republic had at the same depth."

The company now offer 50,000 shares of treasury stock (NON-ASSESSABLE) AT THE LOW PRICE OF 1-2 CENTS PER SHARE, in order to raise funds to push the work with additional force.
There are 300,000 shares in the treasury and the above is the first offered for sale. The company being a reliable one, and with such a phenomenal showing in their properties, it should induce immediate investment, so don't delay as the price will positively be raised when this block is sold; every dollar we spend means greater depth to our shaft, wider lead and higher assays. DON'T MISS THIS. IT'S A WINNER.

Short Story of the Day

THE LITTLE TOUGH SERGEANT.

He was tough there was no doubt about it. He was wicked too; inhumanly so. Blasphemy, classic, unerring phenomena, sat him like a tailor-made suit; he had run the gauntlet of immorality; Satan had never conceived a crime he had not committed; every commandment had been shattered at his hands.

He was so bad the regiment could not even take a pride in him; he inspired terror and commanded respect; he never did a thing because it was right nor refrained from doing anything because it might be wrong; he had no moral sense, but he was a dead shot, quick on the trigger and absolutely fearless.

When the Twentieth Kansas was recruiting at Topeka he slouched in, and said he wanted to enlist. The recruiting officer jumped at him for he was an old Indian fighter and could distinguish the nam of fighting breed at a glance. What name the recruit assigned himself doesn't matter. This story is composed of facts and undoubtedly the name he was known by was no fact.

Within a few hours after this enlistment he was made first sergeant of his company and when the men under him looked at his eyes they made up their minds to obey his every order and obey it in a hurry. When on duty they called him "Sergeant," and said "yes sir," and "no, sir," when off duty they never spoke to him, he was not companionable in the least. Although he was a pure blond and freckled the men never called him "Sandy," he was thin, but they never referred to him as "Fatty," short in stature, yet he was not dubbed "Lenthy." It was feared he might resent the familiar and pleasant diminutives so common among the friends, and as no man in the regiment could draw with him the little tough sergeant was allowed to pursue his way in peace and quiet. The officers of his company treated him with respect and Colonel Funston was tickled to death when he heard of him.

"He'll be a treasure when we get to the Philippines," was the comment of the little red-headed commander.

And so it proved. Nothing could tire the little tough sergeant. He was on duty apparently all the time, day and night, and hungered and thirst for no place but the very front of the firing line. Whatever he could see he could hit, and he could spot a Filipino as far as his rifle could carry. When his Krag-Jorgenson spoke it meant business.

There was no man in the regiment who could get a team out of the mud like the little tough sergeant. He even put life into the gentle Luzonite oxen, each one of which is as lazy and slow as two snails and as strong as Atlas, but greatly disciplined to exertion. When a wagon became firmly rooted in a rut and the exhausted teamsters could swear no more, they sent for the little tough sergeant, whose influence over animals was wonderful. As soon as he opened up each individual ox seemed imbued with electric life, and the records of the Twentieth Kansas show that in one instance, so anxious were the oxen to oblige him, they not only pulled a wagon loaded with ammunition out of the toughest rut in the mired slough in all Luzon, but dragged the rut itself up to the high and dry ground. He was the mules' delight, and these usually obstinate creatures would break their backs for him. They love a man who knows what he is talking about, although they have small ear for ordinary oratory. They thoroughly appreciated whatever the little tough sergeant had to say.

After the Twentieth Kansas had burned Calocan, together with a lot of folks who didn't get out of the houses in time, the regiment moved northward, fighting as it went. One day Colonel Funston ordered a scouting party of a sergeant and five men to locate a Filipino regiment known to be in the neighborhood, and the little tough sergeant was assigned to the task. He wasted no time in obeying, tore off the first five men from the file in front of him, said "Trust us, now," and started off. The men followed him with alacrity, preferring the risk of being shot by the enemy to that of incurring the anger of the "little tough sergeant who allowed no malingering. Besides, the Filipinos missed a good many of the things they shot at; the little tough sergeant never missed anything.

All at once they ran into the regiment they were looking for. Quick as a flash the little tough sergeant sent a bullet through the officer nearest him, a captain, and shouted to his men to take cover behind a small barricade of trees near by, erected by the enemy for the fight of a few days before. It was small protection but better than nothing. The Filipinos were not a hundred yards away but so great was their surprise they did not fire a shot until the Americans were on the other side of the barricade, and then the lead rattled against the logs in a shower.

"Take good aim before you let her go," was the order of the little tough sergeant who fired steadily, calmly and carefully bringing down a man every time. He was not excited, but the ferocity of battle shone in his eyes and he was thoroughly happy. "Surrender!" came in fairly good English across the interval separating the combatants.

"N't," was the answer of the little tough sergeant. This wasn't all he said, but it enough to convey his meaning. Ever reticent, a man makes in a fight can't be priggish in the newspaper.

Then a white flag tied to a small pole cut from a near-by tree, was hoisted on the Filipino side, and the little tough sergeant promptly shot the pole in two. A few days before the enemy had hoisted a similar flag indicating that a conference was well on foot on the ice," refused the of the Twentieth walked toward the opposite lines to see what was wanted he was shot full of holes. So the little tough sergeant wasn't taking any chances.

"Do you really mean to fight?" shouted the English-speaking Filipino.

"What in hell do you suppose I crossed 8,000 miles of ocean for?" sneered the little tough sergeant interrogatively as he carefully picked out an officer and shot him through.

"You can't hold out much longer," was the answer. "Better surrender."

"We can hold out till hell freezes over and then we'll crem on the ice," retorted the little tough sergeant, not permitting the conversation to interfere with the work. Every man who showed himself fell before the deadly aim of the gallant six whose rifles rested easily between the chunks of the logs.

But it was apparent that the end was not far away for two of the six were wounded and the cartridges must soon give out. Then all at once the little tough sergeant, who was standing near the barricade, grew pale, his face whitening to the hue of ashes. He said nothing but the men knew he was hit and their hearts grew faint.

"Chuck me your hats," he said hoarsely, and in a second the five pieces of headgear fell at his feet.

He stooped, painfully, picked them up, placed the five upon five short sticks and arose unsteadily.

The firing almost ceased, occasional bullets pattering against the outside of the breastworks, and it was evident a flank-log movement was being planned or actually in progress, this being indicated by the practical silence of the enemy.

"What put these hats over the top of the logs you run," was the little tough sergeant's order. His voice was very weak.

He raised the hats, they were an unswerving volley, and the five men dashed away, the two wounded ones being supported by their companions. They did not look back, for they were more afraid of the little tough sergeant than of the Filipinos, but forged ahead amid a storm of lead.

Two hundred yards brought them out of the brush to the edge of a clearing, where a slight met their eyes that caused their hearts to give it was the Twentieth on the double-quick. Funston at their head, eager for a chance to get into the fight.

A shrill Kansas cheer, or rather yell, greeted the heroic five, who, ready to drop, could only point into the brush. Into the straggly underbrush the yellow lines rushed, spreading out like a fan, and soon quickly recurring volleys denoted that they were in action. The Filipinos made but a short stand, then divided into the deeper brush, and gaining the forest disappeared, taking their dead and wounded with them. Unlike their fellow-citizens in battle, they do not make reports of their casualties to the war department at Washington.

When the Twentieth found the little tough sergeant he was in a sitting position, his back propped against the logs, his rifle on his lap, and in his right hand his last cartridge ready to drop into place.

There was almost a smile upon him as he reclined in the awful majesty of death, the wind slightly stirring his sparse hair, his features undisturbed by his last great agony.

They buried him there and the regiment presented arms as the earth was cast over the blanketed form of the little tough sergeant.

CHICAGO CUTLETS.

The indications are that things have come to the pass when Chicago will have to go out and get things like conventions—Omaha World-Herald.

The fact that Chicago women have to carry arms to protect themselves from thugs ought to act as a check to the vanity of the inhabitants.—New York Sun.

Chicago has had no prairie fire in its new wards this winter, but shooting the rapids of the Chicago river is sufficient excitement for the season.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Persian priest is trying to introduce sun worship in Chicago. As the sun is an unfamiliar object to most Chicagoans, it is doubtless regarded with reverence, and the gentleman from Persia may find a fruitful field in the dark city if he works it right.—Minneapolis Times.

Chicago is getting good. A large number of druggists have signed an agreement to close their places of business on Sunday. Well, there is need of reform in a town where building operations and other work of that character used to be carried on on Sunday.—Cleveland Leader.

Slow Suicide.

A source of great evil among all workers is the widespread habit of eating a hearty meal hurriedly when the body is in a state of exhaustion. Too often, alas, the evil is enhanced by the fact that the food is insubstantial, badly cooked and clogging in itself. This is one species of slow suicide, causing a long train of evils which are usually attributed to overwork. Now, it were better to go without food than to take it under these conditions. Your dog knows better than to eat when he is tired, and if you will watch him you will notice that he is always reluctant to be coaxed into play after eating. Left to himself he will take a nap, or at least drop care for awhile and rest. Humanity might raise its standard of health by following the example set by the instincts of the brute creation.—Health Culture.

QUEEN MARRIAGE CUSTOMS.

Young Bulgarian Peasants Arrange Nuptials by Proxy.

There are few places within the limits of civilization that boast of more interesting marriage customs than Bulgaria. Every young peasant wishes to marry as early as possible, as he is of little importance in the community until he has a wife. But he is not in danger of forming an alliance in opposition to his parents' wishes, as his earnings belong to them until he is wedded, and his wife must be bought and paid for according to their station in life. The parents usually give him the necessary sum as soon as he can afford it, so that the restriction is less galling than it seems.

A "wife purchase" varies from $200 to $1,500, in proportion to the wealth of the contracting families, for the marriage is strictly a family affair. In addition to this sum a smaller amount is given to the bride's mother for her personal use.

After the pecuniary arrangements have been made by the proxies the betrothal takes place on either a Wednesday or Thursday. It consists of the exchange of written pledges regarding the sum to be paid by the bridegroom on the one hand and the household furnishings to be supplied by the bride on the other.

Rings then are blessed by the priest and exchanged by the couple, the fiancée kisses the hands of the guests assembled and retires with her young friends to a feast prepared in another room. The young people then dance outside the house and sing.

The fiancé's presents are then produced and their value estimated by the father of the bride. These consist of shoes, headband and necklace of coins, silver belt, bracelets and other jewelry. The father usually regards their value as insufficient, probably to enhance his daughter's worth in her suitor's eyes, and the lover adds coin by coin until an agreement is reached. The marriage does not take place until six months after the betrothal.

During the week preceding the day set for the wedding the house for the young couple is furnished by the bride's parents. Then her home is cleaned and whitewashed and every hidden stone brought out for decoration. Cakes are made and sent around as invitation cards, requesting the recipients to come to the wedding on Sunday, the inevitable wedding day. The articles composing the trousseau are hung up for inspection on cards stretched across the principal room on Friday by the feminine part of the community. On the following day two of the bride's friends come to help her dress her hair, plaiting it in minute braids, not to be undone until after the ceremony. Then the village maid comes with gifts of sweetmeats and flowers, and all sit down on the floor to a dinner of vegetables.

On Sunday the bride is seated in state in all her gorgeous apparel, and with a spangled red veil over her face, to be seen of all the village folk. She wears all the ornaments given by her fiancé and as many more as she possesses. The religious ceremony is that of the Greek church and may take place in the church or in the home of the bridegroom's father. After its performance the party returns to the home of the bride's parents, where the wedding feast is held. Singing and dancing follow until time to escort the bride to her new home.—New York Tribune.

He Was Very Humble.

The Detroit Free Press tells of a disappointed office seeker who at last obtained a gift through a late won humility. When he arrived at Washington, it was with the idea that he was a distinguished and prominent citizen; but after hanging about and swallowing disappointment, he began to suspect that he was not so very important after all.

Then he thought of home and the means of getting there and sought out Colonel Blank, the passenger agent of a certain railroad.

"I say, colonel," he remarked persuasively, "I want to go home."

"Why don't you go?"

"No money. Can't you give me a pass?"

The colonel stiffened.

"We give passes to nobody," said he.

The countenance of the disappointed candidate brightened with a smile of humility.

"Well, colonel," he pleaded, "then give me one. I'm nobody."

The colonel admitted the force of the argument and gave the pass.

A Roofed Lake.

A roofed lake is certainly a novelty. We read much of them in fiction. Lakes are made to exist in caverns and subterranean passages, but rarely do we hear of such in fact. However, such a thing as a roofed lake does exist, and this is not subterranean. There is a lake at Obedsk, in Siberia, nine miles wide and 17 miles long. Time was when the rapid evaporation of the water left great salt crystals floating on the surface which gradually came together and formed into one gigantic cake. The water of the lake still further evaporated, but the cake of salt kept its own level, thus forming a roof to the lake. Another lake on the Mangishlak peninsula, in the Caspian sea, is similarly roofed with salt crystals which are of such consistency as to permit of man and beast crossing over them with safety.

The Point of the Sword.

In the use of the sword, cavalry fighting the point is considered most deadly, the cut more disabling. The cavalry fight at Llerona, in Estremadura, April 11, 1812, is an example. The fight lasted but a few minutes, for the British, charging, broke the French formation. The latter had 12 men killed and lost 128 prisoners, all suffering from sword cuts, while the English had nine men killed and 47 wounded. The killed were slain by the "point" and the wounded practically in every case had received their injuries by the "cut." Napoleon was a great believer in the point. At the battle of Wagram he shouted to his cuirassiers as they passed him at the trot, "No sabering; give point! give point!" and kept plunging his sword into the air to emphasize his orders.

Considerate.

"Confound it," said the patient, "you have pulled a sound tooth and left the one that ached."

"Never mind, madam," said the dentist, "there will be no extra charge under the circumstances, although a sound tooth is harder to pull."—Boston Transcript.

In the Category of Poetry.

"Being I am associated with the mews," said the office cat, as it tumbled into the editor's wastebasket, "I thought I would drop into poetry."—Washington Herald.

IS MARS PEOPLED?

Such a Claim Advanced by a German Scientist.

"Is Mars Inhabited?" has been asked very often during recent years and has engaged the serious attention of many astronomers and especially of M. Camille Flammarion, a noted French scientist and author.

Some new light is now thrown on this subject by Professor Ernst Haeckel, an eminent German philosopher, in a book entitled "World Problems." After pointing out that men have been studying the heavens for more than 4,500 years and have only been studying themselves for the last half century he says we may safely assume that the many fixed stars whose light requires thousands of years to reach us are suns and are surrounded by planets and worlds similar to those we know. We may also assume, he holds, that thousands of these planets have arrived at the same stage of development as our world, and it actually follows that on them the same conditions of life prevail as on this earth, and there is no valid reason why human beings should not live there as they do here.

Professor Haeckel takes care to explain that there are doubtless many planets the temperature of which is such that life, as we understand the term, cannot be sustained on them. He thinks it very probable that there are types of animals and plants on some planets which are not to be found on this earth. According to him it is very likely that the biogenetic process exists on Mars, Venus and possibly some other planets of our system, as well as on planets on these planets have reached a higher stage of development than has been reached by animals and plants of this earth.

If we assume that Mars is inhabited—and Professor Haeckel seems pretty well satisfied that it is—we must assume, he holds, that the men and women whose home is on the planet are not such as we, but of a far higher type. They may resemble us exteriorly, but they are free from our physical defects and excel us in strength and gracefulness. It is in the intellectual sphere, however, that their superiority is most clearly shown. If there are human beings on these planets says Prof. Haeckel, it is extremely probable that they far surpass ordinary men and women in intelligence.

Steel Combs.

A man who saw in a sidewalk showcase some steel combs and who wondered what steel combs could be used for found upon inquiry that they were used by furriers in combing furs. There was one of these combs that looked much like a comb of the ordinary kind, coarse toothed for half its length and finer toothed the other half. And then there was one comb that had teeth for half its length, the solid end serving as a handle.

There are other steel combs that are used for a similar purpose, as steel combs made to comb dogs with. The dog comb looks somewhat like the fine toothed comb in its general shape, but it is larger, toothed on one side only and coarser toothed than the so called fine comb. The untoothed side combs of this sort are used on various kinds of dogs, including, for instance, long haired dogs like the French poodle.

Aggravating the Offense.

"You are charged, young man," the magistrate said, not unkindly, "with searing the complaining witness nearly out of his senses by putting him through some mock ceremony of initiation. I can make allowance for exuberance of spirits among college students, but sometimes this exuberance is carried too far."

"It was this way, your honor," explained the youth who appeared to be the spokesman—"we were out for a little lark, and we caught a jay."

"The fine will be $2 and costs each," said his honor, his face hardening.—Chicago Tribune.

English Law as to Pity.

A machinist that did not fit was the subject of a legal decision in the Westminster county court. The Regent street shopkeeper who made the garment said that the purchaser (who sued for the return of three guineas paid) did not give him time to make another that would fit. The judge said a person was entitled to a "fit" when a garment was sent home, and any permission to alter or make a fresh article was mere good nature and not law. The case should not have been defended. He gave the disappointed customer his three guineas, with costs.—Birmingham Post.

OFF TO THE CAPITAL.

Peterborough Fire Brigade go to Assist in Quelling the Great Fire There.

Yesterday afternoon a message was received here from the Minister of Public Works asking the assistance of the Peterborough Fire Brigade in subduing the fearful fire raging there. On receipt of the message a special alarm was sounded and shortly afterwards the greater part of the brigade, with fire engine and about half the hose embarked on a special train, provided by the Canadian Pacific Railway, en route for the capital. The brigade was in charge of Chief Rutherford. The departure of the fire-fighters attracted a large crowd around the station and the boys were heartily cheered.

"There is no little enemy." Little impurities in the blood are sources of great danger and should be expelled by Hood's Sanguiferina.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

The steamers Star, Beaver and Belipse are expected to-day, from lower ports.

A number of Peterborough delegates to the Y.M.C.A. convention at Lindsay went up yesterday.

The lot squab at the Y.M.C.A. is being leveled and will be used as a tennis court by the members of the Association.

The watering carts were out yesterday for the first time this season. The order blowing about was very disagreeable. The Times' note of warning took effect.

It is the close season for speckled trout, pike, pickerel, muskellunge and bass; and the person giving information of a violation of the law, is entitled to one-half the fine whenever a conviction is made.

Government engineers are now surveying a route for the Trent Valley Canal from Rice Lake to Port Hope. They began at the high levels at Rice Lake, and will thoroughly investigate the merits of the report presented in 1845 by Engineer Maines.

At an adjourned special meeting of the Ashburham Council the street widening contract for the season was let to J. McMahon at the figure of $175, this being the lowest tender. There were two other tenderers, Wm. Frith at $190, and A. Valois at $200.

In a few days hence the angler will suffer three scores and ten scratches or more while pushing his way through the tangled wood that is often met with along the stream where the nimble trout are found. However, there is wholesome sport and serene delight in pulling out the most palatable fish on earth.

WENT ONCE TOO OFTEN.

Mistake of a Man Who Made His Living by Austerity.

"I have had many queer experiences with transient boarders," said a lady who has kept a first class boarding house in this city for a number of years, "but the queerest case came under my observation only last week. To be brief, an old man, at least he seemed to be about 60 years of age or thereabouts, came to me about five years ago, if I remember aright, and secured a room in my house for a week. He said he was a lecturer and gave the customary remarks in such a nice way, however, that I omitted, very foolishly, to ask him for his board in advance. To make a long story short, he walked out at the end of the week to go to some small town near by, where he was to lecture to young folks on the twin subjects of temperance and honesty, and conveniently forgot where he lived temporarily.

"The old man must have been mixed up in his dates or locations, for he applied to me again for board here a few days ago 'for a few days.' Foolishly I let him in and still more foolishly decided not to ask him for the price in advance, for out of curiosity I wanted to see if he was still playing the old game. Sure enough at the end of a few days he knocked at the door of my room and informed me that he would not be back for breakfast in the morning, as he was going to give a lecture to young people in a nearby town on the twin subjects of temperance and honesty, but would be back to luncheon. I knew I had him and proceeded to tell him so, probably astonishing him more at his own lack of memory than my excellent ability to remember deadbeats.

"Fortunately, however, my room was on the second floor and his on the first, and when he assumed a righteous wrath that I well knew was feigned I could not but let him go to his room to get the 'filthy lucre' that would square us. I say un- luckily his room was on the floor below mine, because he kept right on walking, and I haven't seen him since. You may exploit the mysteries of boarding house life, but don't forget that the boarding house mistress has her trials too."—Washington Star.

The Wounded in War.

Army doctors look out for good news even more eagerly than the general is command of the forces, for they know that it makes the difference between life and death to many of their patients. Nothing hinders the recovery of the wounded so much as depression of spirits and anxiety. And when they hear that things are going badly at the front many of them who are on the turning point grow worse and die.

On the other hand, the news of a great victory will pull a man out of the jaws of death. This fact was very noticeable when both British and French wounded were congested at Antwerp during the Waterloo campaign. When news of Napoleon's complete defeat reached the hospital, the French began to die at about twice the rate of the British troops.—London Globe.

Chinese Criminal Law.

Hell was guilty of bashing up for money the murder of one of his sons. Another son brought the case to light and it was held that the father might be excused, while the son, on the other hand, was sentenced to 100 blows and three years' transportation for denouncing his brother's murder, because in doing so he had brought his father into danger of the law.

A father who buried his son alive was let off because the boy abused him, and it is quite permissible for a father to strangle his daughter if she misbehaves.—Notes on Chinese Law by E. Alabaster.

Vegetable at Least.

Hicks—They tell me Skinner is a vegetable. Wicks—Never heard of that before. I knew he was a good deal of a heat, however.—Boston Transcript.

As He Figured It Out.

"Now," said the man who owned a poor little house on a lot, "I know why it is better to give than to receive."

"Why is it?" his wife asked.

"You don't have to pay taxes on what you give."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Why They Are So Salty.

Compared with the waters of the Dead Sea, those of the Salt Lake are decidedly fresh, and a scientific man whom I met in London gave me this explanation of the cause of their extreme saltiness: All water carries a percentage of salt, and in both the cases of the Dead Sea and the Great Salt Lake there is no outlet to the lakes, and they maintain their levels through evaporation. Through the countless centuries during which they have existed this salt, since it does not evaporate, has accumulated until these bodies of water have attained their present brackish condition.—New York Tribune.

About Newspapers.

Sir,—I have been very much interested in Rev. Mr. Sheldon's experiment, in which he pretended to conduct a newspaper as Christ would conduct it. It leads me to ask—

"1. Can a daily newspaper be published in accordance with the teachings of Christ, and meet the demands of the public market upon it?"

"2. If your reply is affirmative, why, in your judgement, do not daily newspapers take that position more frequently?"

"3. If in the negative, does the reason lie with the public in not demanding such a paper, or with the publisher in not taking an advanced step?"

"4. Do the daily journals fairly represent the extent to which the public is in accord with the teaching of Christ?"

A CONSTANT READER.

Ans.—There is no reason why a daily newspaper should not be "published in accord with the teaching of Christ" which does not apply to other business and undertakings of men, and there is no demand of the public which prevents such a publication. As a matter of fact, moreover, our newspapers are just as much "in accordance with the teachings of Christ" as in any other form of business or the actual conduct of mankind, including Christian believers themselves. It may be said truly, however, that the conduct of all society is discordant with those teachings—the competition of business and social life, that struggle for richness, the litigation of the courts, the accumulation of money, and generally the pursuit of the things of this world when Jesus taught that the concerns of this world to come should engage the thought of man to the exclusion of the other. If civilization was "in accord with the teachings of Christ" and the ideal raised by Jesus, it would be transformed completely; but, as we have said, the principle governing the management of newspapers, does not differ from that of the existing civilization in its better manifestations. In saying this we answer the second question of our correspondent—"Why newspapers do not take that position more frequently?" Actually they take it more frequently than do men generally, and are governed by principles more elevated than those which the run of men apply to their conduct, even men whose degree of fidelity to Christian precepts is far higher than the average. For admission to newspaper editorship no diploma is exacted as in the profession of medicine, and no examination as in that of law, and for journalists there is no formal "code of ethics" yet practically there is such a code to which, with few exceptions, the hundreds of newspaper men in this country render strict obedience. No profession has standards of honor, of propriety, of truth, which are higher, and in none are they lived up to more religiously than in the newspaper. Of varying degrees of intellectual ability, how many are there which do not exhibit in their conduct the guidance of moral principle? The number is very small. Almost invariably newspapers are on the side of righteousness and right living in the communities where they are published, and their combined influence, the greatest in modern society, is exerted to that end. By a narrow and superficial view they are reprobated for publishing a record of the bad as well as the good; but it is not that exactly what the Bible itself does. The Rev. Mr. Sheldon, when he undertook to edit the "People's Capital" as Christ would have edited it, omitted reports of the wars and military operations going on; yet the Bible from Genesis to the description of the battle of Armageddon in Revelation is full of stories of war and glorifications of victory and lamentation over defeat. It came not to "spread peace," said Jesus, "but a sword," and the whole history of Christian civilization is a record of war. The Boreo goes into battle inflamed by the spirit of prayer to God and every man carries a Bible in his knapsack. Meantime, England prays for victory over them and Canada offers thanks to God for the triumph of British arms.

"Do the daily journals fairly represent the extent to which the public is in accord with the teaching of Christ?" No, they do not, for they represent a closer accord with those teachings than is manifested by that public. They are better than the public and the influence, as a whole, is to lead up to a higher moral plane.

Consumed—Tremendous Loss.

London, April 27.—The Times editorially refers to the grief and sympathy that Englishmen throughout the world will feel for the Ottawa fire sufferers. Speaking of the misery endured by innocent sufferers, the paper says: "We cannot allow Canada to bear this burden unaided at a time when she has come to our aid, not merely with her purse, but with the best of her blood. It must be our privilege to do what in us lies for the relief of the suffering children. The war and the Indian famine are heavy claims on the generosity of the British public, but the claim of Canada is not the less binding. It is a claim that we should meet freely at any time, but which we will now meet with joy that we can show ourselves sensible of the service that Canada has done us."

STORY OF THE HORROR.

Ottawa, April 27.—The total loss of the great fire is estimated to be not less than fifteen million and may reach twenty million, distributed thus—British Lumber Company, three million; Eddy Co., three million; Hull Lumber Company, seven hundred thousand; McKay Milling Co., five hundred thousand; Electric Light Co., one hundred and fifty thousand; houses destroyed, 2,000; persons homeless, 13,000. It is estimated that not half a million of insurance exists. The fine residences of E. B. Eddy and Mr. Champagne, M.P., in Hull, were destroyed, with their contents.

Three deaths are reported—Mrs. Cook, who was suffocated in a house on Queen street west. She was sick, and before she could be removed from her house she was dead. John Watkins, a fireman, suffocated in a burning house; an unknown woman killed at Wellington and Albert streets.

HOW IT BEGAN.

The fire started in a little wooden house of Alphonse Kluwe, a mill hand, who lives in Chaudiere street, Hull. Madame Kluwe was preparing the noon day meal and had piled dry kindling wood into the stove before she lighted the fire. The wood was like tinder, and in a minute the chimney ignited. In five minutes three adjoining houses were in flames. No rain had fallen for three weeks, and the wooden houses around were as dry as tinder. Water was spouted on them, but in fifteen minutes a block of houses was blazing high. A tremendous column of black smoke struggled thirty feet high, and then was whirled horizontally south by the fierce north wind that was blowing 30 miles an hour.

AMAZING RAPIDITY.

The fire with almost inconceivable rapidity and in some places suddenly assumed such fierceness that the firemen were compelled to retreat for their lives, leaving their lines of hose. Families carried their household effects into the streets, threw bedding and large pieces of furniture from the upper windows. Some were fortunate to have horses to remove their goods to a place of safety, but in the large majority of cases effects were simply saved from the flames in the buildings to be destroyed in the streets. Men, women, and even children, displayed the utmost tenacity in trying to save their goods. Trip after trip was made into burning buildings, even after the firemen had been compelled to retreat from the flames, and it sometimes seemed to be apparent that they could not get out again. Families became separated; women cried that perhaps their children cried that they could not find their parents, and generally the scene was of the wildest and most confusing nature. Scores of women carried babies in their arms and stood at a distance watching everything they possessed go up in flames.

SWEEP OF THE FIRE.

The firemen made very effort to extinguish every one of the hundreds of little blazes. Citizens helped them, and even the members of Parliament were not absent. For Messrs. Chris B. Heyd and T. B. Flint, M.P.'s, took off their coats and handled buckets manfully. The fire at Booth's caught at the end of a long shed in the rear of the office. While the men were rushing about to get hose, and firemen were taking ladders to get up at the small beginning, the wind caught the flames, and in a few minutes the whole place was a mass of fire, rolling down towards Duke street, and in the direction of the Ottawa Electric Railway Co.'s power-house. The lumber piles across the slides from Booth's office also caught. As they consisted of large piles of deals, the destruction was quick and terrific. All the houses in the vicinity of Queen street and along Duke street were destroyed. The fire ate its way into the Chaudiere district, and soon the Bronson lumber mills, the C.P.R. station and freight sheds had all, like the Eddymills on the other side of the river, been destroyed. The fire continued its march into the west end of the City of Ottawa.

ALL IS EATEN UP.

The whole district between this cliff, probably at some remote period the river bank and the river, has been swept out of existence. The cliff formed a rampart, protecting a greater part of the city from destruction. The Canadian Pacific Railway station, called the Union Depot, is in the centre of this flat district and early in the afternoon a swath of flame swept from the Eddymills through the Booth lumber yards to the station, the destruction being so swift that the railway authorities had barely time to haul out the cars from the yards. The fire leapt over spaces of hundreds of yards, so that at 2 o'clock there were three waves of flames following in line. A path of fire quickly ran through the millions of feet of lumber piled here, and the poor little houses of the residents, into Rochesterville. A cluster of frame houses closely packed formed a perfect fuel. The fire ran through this village almost as rapidly as a horse could travel and away on to Hintonburg. Skead's Mills and St. Louis Dam, where a great effort was made to check it and save the lumber piles.

By 4 o'clock a line of flame extended from the starting place of the fire, three-quarters of a mile from the Ottawa River, in Hull, through the Chaudiere district of Ottawa, and for more than two miles up the Ontario side of the river. At the same time Gilmore's immense lumber piles on the Quebec side, a couple of miles below Hull, were blazing fiercely, and the fire was eating its way in the teeth of the wind from Eddy's Yards, where it crossed the river, back towards Eddy's sulphite factory, licking up the court house and every building of importance, except the church.

MILES OF FLAMES.

The line of fire was not less than five miles in length, and the area covered at least four square miles. This rocket of fire simply ignited the district, and for hours the flames kept eating their way on each side of this path licking up the wooden houses and lumber piles like so many chafins.

A peculiar feature of the fire, was that the fire in Hull travelled against the wind for a distance of at least four blocks, from the end of Main street away up to the Court House. The population of Hull is about 15,000, and it is estimated that fully ten thousand of them are homeless.

The seriousness of the situation is materially increased by the fact that not only has the fire rendered them homeless and destitute, but it has destroyed all the mills and factories in which they were employed. Their means of livelihood has been taken away and it will probably be many months before similar lines of employment will again be opened to them.

SCENE AT MIDNIGHT.

At midnight the fire at Hull had also exhausted itself. All that is left standing of the city of Hull is a portion of the Fourth Ward, around the Cathedral of the Notre Dame de Grace, the convent of St. Mary, and the academy. The Eddy Sulphite Mill was also saved by the herculean efforts of the employees. Last evening a double guard of police was stationed around the Parliament buildings. A line of sentries was also furnished by the militia for the "Lovers' Walk," which runs around the river front of Parliament Hill, to guard against the possible contingency of the wind changing or the sparks and flying embers being carried across the river. The lines of hose were also kept laid and connected in readiness for use.

At midnight the fire in the city had greatly abated its fury. The wind died down, and the fire had ceased fighting in all quarters, except west on Division street. It was under control and Ottawa was in no danger.

THE HOMELESS ONE.

At the Exhibition grounds Ottawa's leading society women gave comfort to the 500 persons lodged in the quarters that were formerly used by the contingents and Strathcona's Horse. Counters were erected and sandwiches, coffee and cheese and other luxuries melted out to the famished homeless citizens.

Tons of hay was scattered about, and formed an easy mattress, while 500 blankets from the militia stores had been sent to the shed. At the Drill Hall the scene was re-enacted, and the city and its generous women are doing all in their power to comfort those in distress.

The destitute people in Hull are camping out in the fields, and are staying in the church. Many of them came over and joined those at the Exhibition grounds.

HOW LOWES GOT AWAY.

Young Man, Arrested on a Serious Charge, Escapes.

It will be remembered that a young man named Frederick Lowes, of Emily, left the country suddenly last fall on the eve of the day set for his marriage with one of Emily's fair damsels. The guests had assembled and everything was in readiness for the marriage ceremony. But the bridegroom came not, and after an hour's vain wait, a committee of investigation was sent over to the Lowes' farm to see what was the trouble. It was then learned that the young man had skipped the night before. Of course the wedding could not take place.

In the course of a few months the girl gave birth to a fine, healthy child, and soon after criminal proceedings were entered against Lowes by the girl's father changing him with seduction.

After waiting patiently Lowes was traced to Manitoba, where he was arrested. Chief Constable Bell, of Lindsay, went for his man, but did not get him, as the following letter will show—

Windsor, April 14th, 1900
Frederick Lowes was arrested by me on the 4th April, near Roland on a letter from J. Bell, of Lindsay. I brought him to Morden and locked him up in a cell and left him there until the 18th of the month, when his friends and his relatives

QUEEN VICTORIA HONORS IRISHMEN.

Moyors of Dublin, Belfast, Cork and Londonderry Have the Prefix "Sir."

Dublin, April 27.—Before her departure from this city the Queen briefly conferred with the Lord Mayor and the Lady Mayoress, and expressed her regret that she was obliged to leave. She said she had had a most pleasant visit, and most affectionate memories of the time spent in Ireland.

The Queen conferred baronetcies upon the Lord Mayor of Dublin and Belfast, the title of Lord Mayor on the Mayor of Cork, and his successors in office, and knighthood upon the Mayor of Cork and Mayor of Londonderry.

Her Majesty gave £1,000 to be distributed among the poor in the Dublin hospitals.

By the Queen's command Lord Cadoogan, Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, has published the following:—

The Queen is very anxious before leaving Ireland, where she has spent a most agreeable time, to express through the Lord-Lieutenant to her Irish people how very much gratified and how deeply touched, she had been by her reception here during the three weeks the Queen has spent in this charming place.

She has been received by all ranks and creeds with an enthusiasm and affection which could not be surpassed. Each time the Queen came before with her husband they kindly and warmly welcomed her, but on this occasion, after the lapse of 39 years, her reception equalled that of previous visits, and she carried away the most pleasant and most affectionate memories of the time spent in Ireland.

The Queen earnestly prays that good will and harmony may prevail among all her people and that they may be happy and prosperous.

London, April 26.—Queen Victoria arrived at Holyhead at 6.30 p.m. The Channel fleet fired a royal salute as Her Majesty's yacht anchored. The town was profusely decorated, and this evening there was a general illumination of the town and harbour.

The Channel fleet proceeded to Milford Haven.

London, April 27.—Thousands of persons this morning witnessed the landing of the Queen at Holyhead, where she arrived yesterday on her return from Ireland, and the royal special train started southwards at eleven o'clock amidst an enthusiastic demonstration. On the arrival of her Majesty at Chester, the mayor and corporation of that place presented her with an address.

ALMOST AN ULTIMATUM TO TURKEY.

United States Note Couched in Peremptory Terms for Immediate Payment.

Constantinople, Thursday, April 26.—The American note handed to the Turkish Minister of Foreign Affairs, Tewfik Pasha, on Tuesday, as intimated in the despatches of the Associated Press yesterday, is couched in peremptory terms demanding immediate payment of the indemnity several times promised, to Minister Strausz by the Sultan.

The note does not fix a time limit for an answer, but its tenor is not far from the character of an ultimatum. It has produced a great impression upon the Porte, which, however, shows no disposition to modify the attitude hitherto maintained, namely, repudiating the responsibility and seeking to diminish the importance of the matter.

It is presumed that the Porte's reply will be in this sense, and hence it is feared the United States Government would be obliged to take steps to enforce its demands.

Turkey's decision to send an officer to America to study naval construction is interpreted to be another sop. It is a revival of an old project to buy a cruiser in the United States.

Mr. Bell had arrived the prisoner had escaped I have searched the country with three men beside myself, and have notified all policemen in the province, at the different villages and towns in the States near the line.

The cost of Chief Bell's fruitless trip, and the incidental expenses connected with the arrest—including the pay of the "watchmen"—will have to be defrayed by Victoria county, and will amount to a pretty penny.

in the price of which the indemnity shall be included, so that the Porte will be able to pay it has not paid the indemnity. The American government has already categorically refused such a compromise, which would mean prolonged negotiations and the dragging out of the matter indefinitely, to which the United States will not listen. As regards the indemnity, it is in the nature of a debt of honor. If the Porte wants to buy a cruiser, that is a matter in no way connected with the indemnity.

The Porte's reply to the last collective note on the subject of duties has not yet been made and the Embassies are exchanging views in regard to the terms on which to consent to an increase of duty. It is thought that before the beginning of negotiations the Embassies will invite the Porte to abolish ransoms and measures introduced in violation of treaties.

Constantinople, Thursday, April 26.—Twenty arrests were made yesterday of Muslims alleged to be sympathizers with the Young Turkish party.

Mr. Bell had arrived the prisoner had escaped I have searched the country with three men beside myself, and have notified all policemen in the province, at the different villages and towns in the States near the line.

The cost of Chief Bell's fruitless trip, and the incidental expenses connected with the arrest—including the pay of the "watchmen"—will have to be defrayed by Victoria county, and will amount to a pretty penny.

GEN. ROBERTS REPORTS RELIEF OF THABA N'CHU

Boers Were Still Holding Eastern Outlets of Town
British Proceeding to Oust Them.

COL. OTTER WAS WOUNDED AT ISRAEL'S POORT.

All the Despatches in London Papers Credit Canadians With Doing Particularly Good Work in the Action at Israel's Poort on Wednesday Last.

London, April 27, 11.12 p.m.

The War Office has issued the following from Lord Roberts, dated Bloemfontein, Friday April 27—"Gen. French relieved Thaba N'Chu this morning with cavalry. He met General Ian Hamilton and Gen. Smith-Dorrien's brigade there. The enemy were still holding the eastern outlets of the town, where from Gen. French and Gen. Hamilton were proceeding to turn them out.

"Gen. Bunde's Division was eight miles south of Thaba N'Chu last evening. "Additional casualties thus far reported—Lt. Hamilton's Mounted Infantry—Lieuts. Barry and Hill wounded, both of Marshall's Horse; the former severely, the latter slightly.

"A patrol from Bethulle came across a body of the enemy on Smithfield road. April 25. Private King, of the Prince Alfred Guards was killed, and two of the Royal Scots Guards corps were taken prisoners.

"The Yeomanry Cavalry under Gen. Brabazon after reconnoitering as far as Wepener returned to Dewetdorp this morning."

COL. OTTER IS WOUNDED.

Canadians Do Well in the Action at Israel's Poort.

London, April 27.—Col. Otter was slightly wounded in the action which Gen. Hamilton's division fought at Israel's Poort on Wednesday.

All the despatches in the London papers credit the Canadians with doing particularly well in the action at Israel's Poort on Wednesday.

ADVANCING ON THABA N'CHU.

Canadians Are Moving Forward to Intercept the Boers.

London, April 26.—The War Office publishes the following despatch from Lord Roberts, dated Bloemfontein, April 26—"General Ian Hamilton yesterday drove the enemy off a strong position at Israel's Poort by a well-conceived turning movement, which was admirably carried out by General Ridley, commander of the 2nd Mounted Infantry Brigade, and General Smith-Dorrien, commanding the 15th Brigade, which includes the Canadians. These troops are to-day advancing toward Thaba N'Chu.

ARE BOERS OVERTAKEN?

Result of Race Between Rundle and Boers in Doubt.

London, April 27.—The result of the race between Briton and Boer is still in doubt. The contest, if finished, as by this time it probably is, was neck and neck. But whether Rundle overtook the fleeing enemy before they reached Ladybrand, or whether they escaped and fell into the hands of Hamilton and the Canadians who on Wednesday were at Thaba N'Chu, near the Boer line of march, remains to be seen. Of one thing it is certain. The Boers have been outgeneralled and outmanoeuvred, though they may not have been outman. The proverbial difficulty of concluding a stern chase was played in the way of their being surrounded and captured, but Roberts has easily driven them from his line of communication and is ready at any moment to sweep northwards. The disclosures made in the Commons yesterday as to the immense supply of horses furnished the commander-in-chief were evidently made with a purpose and clearly presage an early march from Bloemfontein, to hinder which there is now nothing formidable. The second stage of the campaign in the Free State is therefore at hand, and in a few weeks it will be known to some extent when Roberts and his victorious force are likely to appear before the forts of Pretoria.

WAITING FOR NE. S.

Has General French Succeeded in Cutting off the Boers

London, April 27.—The country is eagerly awaiting to hear whether General French succeeded in cutting off the retreating Boers. But of his progress there is no word. The military critics of the afternoon newspapers differ as to the chances of another Paardeberg, but they agree in considering the situation in the Free State as being eminently satisfactory. They argue that even if General French is unable to intercept the main Boer forces he may score considerable success in a series of rear-guard actions or the isolation of straggling Boers.

Lord Roberts' peculiar reference to Sir Alfred Milner over Warren's appointment lends itself to the inference that the commander-in-chief of the British forces in South Africa scarcely approves of it, and that the previous report that Warren had been recalled was correct, but that he was saved from coming home by the action of the British High Commissioner.

ENFILADED THE BOERS.

Riflemen at Wepener Inflicted Heavy Loss Upon Them.

Mafeking, Basutoland, Apr. 25.—The Boer retreat from Wepener was conducted in a leisurely manner. The Wepener incident is thus successfully ended. All through the brilliant defense of the position the only fear was lest the gun and rifle ammunition should run out. The Boers expended an enormous amount of ammunition, frequently without reply on our side. The Boers' casualties undoubtedly were heavy. Yesterday a party of Cape Mounted Riflemen managed to creep down a long wall and succeeded in enfilading the enemy, whose ambulance cart was very busy later, and on the north side of the position also. The force of the enemy which withdrew from Dewetdorp before the advance of French probably includes that which was recently before Wepener.

GOVERNOR OF GRIQUALAND

Sir Charles Warren Appointed to an Office in the Kobel District.

London, April 27.—2 p.m.—The following despatch has been received at the War Office from Lord Roberts: "Bloemfontein, April 26.—At the request of the High Commissioner Warren has been appointed Military Governor of Griqualand West, while that part of the country is in a disturbed condition."

LIEUT MASON BETTRE.

London, April 26.—The War Office announces that Lieut. Mason, Toronto, a member of the first Canadian contingent, who was wounded at Paardeberg, has been discharged from the hospital, and will rejoin the regiment.

OUR POPULAR RESORT.

Cheong Park Hotel Being Placed in Ready state for the Rush.

Mr. George H. Brown, the popular proprietor of the Cheong Park Hotel, was in town yesterday, and gave the Times a call. He says that the house is being put in first class shape, preparatory to the influx of summer guests. Already a number of applications have been received from people who have enjoyed Mr. and Mrs. Brown's hospitality last season, and who desire to repeat it. It is to be hoped that the season will see an electric road to the Park. The outlook for a railroad is very bright, as it is understood that negotiations looking to the transfer of the Peterborough Street Railway to a strong company, is very bright. Then Cheong Park will hum.

An Illuminated Parade.

With his usual enterprise, Mr. Thomas Barrie has commenced preparations for an illuminated bicycle parade on Thursday evening next. In connection with the same, Mr. Barrie has issued the following:—"We will give for the best illuminated and decorated wheel, lady or gentleman's, in a parade on Thursday evening, First Prize, One Radiant Carbide gas lamp; Second prize, One Burdick Cyclometer. Parade will leave the Central Park at 8 p.m., via George, Charlotte, Water, Argyle and down George street. Thomas Barrie, agent for Cleveland, Tribune, Columbia, 30th Century, Hartford, Columbia, Iver Johnson, Admiral; successor to J. W. T. Fairweather & Co."

POPULAR, PROGRESSIVE AND PROSPEROUS.

THIRTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT

BY THE DIRECTORS OF

The Manufacturers' Life Insurance Company.

In submitting the thirteenth annual report of the transactions of the company for the year ending the 1st of December, 1899, the Directors have good reason to congratulate the stockholders and policyholders on its substantial growth and prosperity.

Perhaps the most striking feature of the report is that the large gains in new business, insurance in force, assets and income have been secured with a reduction in total expenses of management of $9,772. Had it not been for the new Ontario tax of $2,343 this reduction would have been $11,015. A reduction of over 7 per cent. in the expenses would be a great accomplishment, if the new business had shown no increase; but when at the same time the new premiums are increased from $100,471 to $122,071 and the renewal premiums from $350,265 to $400,109, or a total increase in premium income of $71,444 the accomplishment is one which should be highly satisfactory to all interested.

The total income for the year was $594,951.79 and the total expenditure, including $109,573.50 paid for death claims and $32,044.49 to living policyholders for dividends, surrenders and matured endowments, was $398,934.03 leaving $296,017.76 to be added to the reserves and surplus.

The net death claims falling in during the year amounted to $110,045.00, being about $8.00 per $1,000 of mean assurance in force. This is well within the loss provided for in the tables of mortality.

The assets now amount to $1,810,155.17 50 per cent of which is invested in first mortgages of real estate and over 20 per cent in municipal bonds. The small amount of the overdue interest demonstrates the high class of these securities.

Applications were received for new assurance amounting to $3,713,055 and policies were issued for $3,446,078 being an increase over the previous year of $280,311. The total assurance in force now amounts to $14,394,478, being a gain of $1,321,754 for the year.

The Directors at a meeting held on the 16th day of January 1900 decided to increase the subscribed capital from $621,000 to the even $1,000,000 and the paid-up capital from $137,320 to $200,000 the new stock to be allotted pro rata to the stockholders at that date. We are pleased to be able to state that the whole new issue of stock has been applied for.

The Auditor and Auditing Committee of the Board have made their usual audits, and their certificates are appended to the financial statement.

The Directors acknowledge and appreciate the hearty and loyal services of the company's officers and representatives, which have been crowned with such marked success.

Robert Jaffray,

Vice-President.

J. F. Junkin,

Managing Director.

The following figures show the highly satisfactory and steady growth of the Manufacturers' Life:

	1899	1898	1897
Applications for new assurance	$3,713,055	$3,182,114	5 per cent.
New assurance issued	5,440,076	230,311	7 per cent.

Surplus on policyholders account	159,402	12,544	8 per cent.
Expenses of management	140,357	10,185	7 per cent.

In 1890 our average premium for $1,000 of assurance was $23.50, in 1894 $22, and in 1899 $20, indicating the growing popularity of our investment policies.

The report is in every way the most satisfactory in the company's history. Mr. J. F. Junkin, the Managing Director, pointed out that the new assurance issued was not only the largest level premium business in the company's history, but that the returns in the last Government report, namely, that for 1898, showed it was only equalled by three out of the fourteen Canadian companies, and by the regular Canadian business of one American company. It also exceeds the combined Canadian business of all the British companies. Our agents certainly have deserved much credit for this magnificent volume of business.

The increase of $71,443 in premium income is a very handsome gain. Taking the same government report, this increase was equaled in 1898 by only three Canadian companies and by the Canadian business of one American company. The total increase in premium income from Canada of all the British companies combined was only a little more than one-half the gain made by the Manufacturers' Life.

Had the reserves been all calculated according to the Government requirements instead of on the more conservative standard adopted by the company a larger surplus could be shown. The Board of Directors were all re-elected, with the addition of Mr. E. R. Wood, and at a subsequent meeting of Directors Mr. George Gooderham was elected President and Mr. R. Jaffray and Mr. C. D. Warren Vice-Presidents.

REFUGE OF EXILED KING.

BORDENTOWN IN NEW JERSEY ONCE SHELTERED BANISHED MONARCH.

Napoleon's Fugitive Attempt to Escape Accomplished by Brother-Joseph Bonaparte Gets to America on Brig Commerce.

Material for a book like Alphonse Daudet's "Kings in Exile" one would expect could hardly be collected elsewhere than in Paris, where dethroned royalty usually gathers. Yet the little New Jersey village Bordentown on the Delaware, in the vicinity of Trenton, was years ago the refuge of a banished king.

Napoleon I is reputed to have said on a certain occasion that if he ever were forced to leave France he would make his home in America, somewhere between Philadelphia and New York, where news from across the sea would reach him quickest. After the battle of Waterloo Napoleon and his eldest brother, Joseph the ex-king of Naples and of Spain had a meeting on the island of Aix, a small rocky dot in the Bay of Biscay, north of the Gironde river. They parted, never to meet again, and while Napoleon surrendered to the English, to close his career at St. Helena, Joseph, under the name of M. Bokuchard, boarded the brig Commerce for the American shore. Three times the vessel was searched by English naval officers, but he arrived, with "M. Bokuchard" aboard, July 15, 1815, safely at New York. The fugitive king traveled for a while and finally he settled in the vicinity of Trenton under the name of a Count De Lervilliers.

It was an ideal, beautiful spot which Joseph Bonaparte purchased near Bordentown. The northern line of the estate formed by a meandering creek and upon a steep hill overlooking the Delaware, known as Point Breeze, the exiled king built his magnificent home, which soon became known to those who passed up and down the river. The rocky ground, cut up by numerous ravines, was changed to an attractive park; the ravines were bridged, pretty little arbors and pavilions were built and an extensive swamp was deepened to a miniature lake. On one end of this lake a cozy white villa was erected for Charles Lucien Bonaparte, prince of Muegnano and Canino, a nephew of Joseph Bonaparte, who had married the latter's daughter, Zenaide. Village gossip was very busy with the Count De Lervilliers, whose identity with the banished king of Naples and Spain did not remain a secret very long. It was said that he was in constant fear of detection by British and Spanish emissaries, and that for such an emergency a labyrinth of subterranean passages had been constructed with a view to successful escape. Inasmuch as Joseph had taken most of the Spanish crown jewels along with him the possibility of an attempt to regain this treasure was by no means far-fetched, though it is not likely that either the Neapolitans or the Spaniards cared very much for the person of Joseph. A fact is that much treasure and many documents were hidden in secret vaults because it became known at a fire which destroyed the house three years after Joseph moved into it. The building was doomed despite the efforts of the village people to save it and but little of the treasure was recovered in the ruins. The new building immediately erected after the fire was connected by a tunnel with the villa on the lake, so that the inmates of both could visit each other in all kinds of weather.

His Hospitality Unlimited. The hospitality of Joseph's American home was unlimited. The gates of the park were open throughout the year and no visitors of decent appearance were denied admission by the keepers. Even the house itself was open to visitors, and its appointments appeared to the New Jersey farmers the height of royal splendor. Servants were always ready to show visitors through the apartments, which contained many costly articles of virtue from the Luxembourg. Of prominence was a well-stocked library. It is said that Joseph himself was an author, and that he wrote a novel, "Monia." His daughter was well known in literary circles as translator of Schiller's dramatic works. His nephew and son-in-law was a real scientific character, who had travelled much and made natural science a specialty. During his sojourn near Bordentown, Charles Lucien Bonaparte continued Wilson's orichology, which had been left incomplete by the death of the author. Other zoological works made the king's nephew famous all over the world.

Art had a liberal home in the Bonaparte house. In its picture gallery such masters as Rubens, Raphael, and Titian, Joseph Vernet, Teniers and other masters were well represented, and the art treasures were open to all comers. These visitors were numerous and included not only all the prominent French exiles, but many famous Americans of the period. Webster, Lincoln, and other statesmen were frequent visitors.

In the domestic circle of the Bonaparte mansion the wife of Joseph, Julie Marie, was missing. She had remained in Europe on account of her health. The other members of the family were beside Chas. Adams, Clay, Commodore Stewart and Lucien and Zenaide, Charlotte, the younger daughter of Joseph, subsequently married to Napoleon Louis, the brother of Napoleon III; Prince Lucien Murat, Francis Lacombe, subsequently consul general of France in New York; Guillaume Thibaud, subsequently curate of the French gallerie in Rome, and Louis Maillard.

All the members of the Bonaparte family Joseph resembled his great brother most in outward appearance. The characters of the two were widely different. During one of the revolutions in Mexico a delegation of Mexican citizens visited Joseph and offered him imperial crown. He refused with the remark that he had worn two crowns and that nothing in the world could induce him to accept a third.

Despite his long sojourn in America, and despite the fact that he had acquired citizenship, Joseph spoke only a broken English. But he was a universal favorite in Bordentown. When he left the place for England in 1831 the entire village population accompanied him to Trenton. Without the exiled king, whose generosity and kindness had won every heart, the seemed desolate, and it was the joy when he returned after an absence of five years. But he did not return to stay. After settling the affairs of his estate he returned to Europe in 1838. He died in Florence in 1844 having been reunited to his wife.

LATEST MARKET REPORTS

PETERBOROUGH.

The market for the past week has been very slow owing to the opening up of the spring work and farmers are apparently too busy to get into town with produce. Very little if any grain is moving the principal marketings being peas. Hay comes in in fair quantities but the market was only fair so far as price is concerned. It is expected that higher prices will range next week. There was considerable maple Syrup offered and there was a great demand for it, the supply not being equal to the occasion. Butter and eggs were in demand but prices were much lower. Potatoes are wanted badly on the market. There has been a few complaints to the market Clerk as to rolls of butter being short in weight. Farmers wives will please see that there is no cause for complaints in the future as Mr. English does not wish to have to take advantage of the law to compel weight to be given. The Market Clerk will also consider it a favor if the ladies will make any suggestions to him of desirable improvements to the laying out of the tables in the market hall.

Capital $50,000, One Million Shares, par value 5c per share

FULLY PAID AND NON-ASSESSABLE

We have already completed over 100 feet development work, 70 feet of which consists of surface work such as cross-cut, shallow shaft, etc. prospecting to decide the best place to sink our main or working shaft. This has been found to be on the "Big 3" or centre claim, and we are now down 30 feet and still pushing the work as fast as four practical miners and dynamite can possibly accomplish. Remember, we have three full claims, to wit: "Big 3," "Victor" and "Wagon Wheel," situated on Iron Mountain in the Butte mining district, Ferry County, Washington, six miles southwest of the famous Republic mine, and that there is a big ledge of porphyritic quartz covering 60 to 80 feet in length from north to south and cropping for over 2,700 feet, and surface assays furnished $6 to $9 in free gold.

On the "Big 3" claim, while doing development work, we discovered a true fissure vein 4 feet wide cutting the formation east and west, which from plink sample assayed $92.00 in gold.

Our manager writes on, under date of March 1, 1900, that at a depth of 30 feet in our proposed main shaft he is working in 4 feet of fine quartz and it is widening as depth is acquired. He also says: "I am confident that a shaft 100 feet deep will prove this property nearly as good as, if not equal to any of the great mines of the Republic 'Camp' at the same stage of development. Our latest assay from a depth of about 15 feet (main shaft) gave $ 0.53, 'a better showing than the Republic had at the same depth.'"

The company now offers 50,000 shares of treasury stock (NON-ASSESSABLE) AT THE LOW PRICE OF 1-1/2 CENTS
PER SHARE, in order to raise funds to push the work with additional force.

There are 300,000 shares in the treasury and the above is the first offered for sale. The company being reliable
one, and with such a phenomenal showing in their properties, it should induce immediate investment, so don't delay
as the price will positively be raised when this block is sold; every dollar we spend means greater depth to our shaft, wider lead and higher assays. DON'T MISS THIS. ITS A WINNER. Send your orders at once to the secretary.

Short Story of the Day

AN IDYLL OF MESQUITELAND

BY H. S. CANFIELD.

The train of Mexican carts, each drawn by six yokes of oxen, huge solid wooden wheels, four inches thick, groaning and creaking on the rough rails, came slowly down the south bank of the Rio Grande. The ford was shallow at Hidalgo, which is sixty miles above the river's mouth and the patient beasts, after stopping to drink their fill, staggered and heaved across. Drivers, holding long poles, tipped with steel, goaded them up the Texas bank and they came to a halt in the wide plaza, with its white baked soil. It was late in the summer and the shadows of the oxen and the carts lay inky black upon the ground.

Mounted upon a powerful gray horse, his saddle decked with silver, his bridle decked with gold, was the owner of the train, Juan Gonzalez, best known as "Juan the Trader." In his carts were all the goods of far Mexico—strange ornaments, silks and satins, strong, sweet wines, melates, cloths of little steel weapons of beauty, images of saints, relics from mysterious shrines, water in bottles from the blessed fountain of Our Lady of Guadalupe, curiously carved caskets, hats laden with tinsel, hats woven in Panama, gorgeous blankets, saddles with pommetts twice the size of a dinner plate, an endless mixture of quaint and rare odds and ends, gathered from every corner of a rich and hidden country. The silks and satins, of course, were from France, but they paid no entry on coming into Mexico and paid no duty on going out of it. From the small house which surrounded the plaza men and women and children poured, their voices joined in greeting.

"Buenos dias, Juan Gonzalez! Buenos dias, Juan!"
It was the first trading which had visited Hidalgo in a year, and it was welcome. Money was waiting for it. In an hour the carts had been emptied of their contents, booths had been erected, the goods displayed and sale begun. Juan, tall, young and dark, stalked to and fro, directing his men. He was a personage and therefore sought after by the head men and women of the village.

"What luck, Juan, in coming up?" the alcalde asked him.

"Fair, by the favor of the virgin. A brush with the Lipans raiding down from Coahuila; one man lost and five oxen. No more." All day the trading continued. When the sudden night fell and the stars burned in the blue black of heaven (the torches flared on the plaza and the graceful figures of girls mingled with the older women and the picturesque wide-hatted males. Laughter rose up and the melodious tinkles of a dozen guitars. The news of the trading had gone abroad in the mysterious fashion of thinly settled countries and now people were riding into the little town from twenty and thirty miles away. Juan the Trader said that there would be a thousand by the nightfall of the next day, and smiled. The booth where the monte game was running was packed and the round silver dollars, bearing the eagle and snakes, the liberty cap and the sunburst, jingled as they went from dealer to dealer and from prayer to dealer. It was said of Juan that his goods were always good, but his measure was better. Indeed, it came from far Oaxaca, to the southwest of the great capital itself. It was distilled under a tropic sun from magueys fifty feet high. It ran hotly in the veins and made the blood thick and red. Juan would have no other.

"This," he said, unscrewing a crimson earthenware jug, hand-made in Durango, and pouring for the jefe municipal, "comes from a plant of the proper green and purple, which grows upon an American's grave. There is no mescal so sweet as that which is pressed from maguey that sprigs from a northman's grave."

They laughed, the old man heartiest, for he remembered the invasion from the north, when the blue troopers of Scott and Taylor rode over them on huge horses that had iron hoofs.

On the third night the booths were emptied and the silver of the trader, packed in canvas bags, and stored in the largest and strongest of the carts, to be drawn by twelve yokes of oxen. Eight men heavily armed would ride upon this cart all through its long journey to the south.

The men of the caravan were hidden to the "balle"—the dance which always marked the closing of a trading trip. It was held in a square stockade, made of mesquite poles twenty feet high, so closely set, that they made solid walls. The stockade measured sixty feet on each of its four sides. Entrance was through a narrow single door. Built for pleasure and not for war it had no loop holes. It was the village's "town hall"—the place for all public meetings and public enjoyments. Its floor was the smooth, hard white earth, packed almost to the density of stone by thousands of pairs of dancing feet. It was lighted by pine torches stuck into brackets, which rested upon iron rods driven into the ground. In one corner the band sat upon two long benches. There were ten musicians, with guitars of thirty-two strings, eight and four strings, violins, mandolins and a drum. In the light of the burning pine the jet black eyes of the girls melted and flashed. Around each man's middle was a crimson scarf—the "banda," Juan was glorious in tight buckskin trousers, with silver bells down the seams, a puffed shirt on the weaving of the women of Sopora, a black velvet jacket, trimmed with gold, and a hat that weighed eight pounds and cost $175 of Mexican silver.

The alcalde, the jefe politico and their wives led off stiff-legged in a dance resembling the minuet. Then the guitars took a quicker, wilder measure and there bounded into the center of the white space a figure so lithe, so graceful, so powerful, so beautiful that the heart of Juan the Trader, sprang into his throat and he gazed with all his eyes. Above this figure was a face dark and passionate, with coral lips, shining teeth, eyes of the shoe, that flame and languished, ebony hair and clear cheeks that held the bloom of the sun-kissed peach. She swayed backward and forward and whirled and glided in the intricate movements of "La Cahuaca" and always it seemed to him she spoke an invitation and a challenge.

He cast his hat aside and stepped to the center of the stockade. Their hands joined and their eyes became as the eyes of one. The four guitars, the three violins, the two mandolins and the drum swung into "Bonita afortunada." Truly, they were a beautiful pair.

Love-making is fast upon the Rio Grande. She was Candelaria Flores, 15 years old and the daughter of a good man of the town. Juan Gonzalez was known from Vera Cruz to Chihuahua. What more could be asked? The old men and women smiled and nodded and whispered. The young men and women whistled and did not smile. They were envious.

Near to the dawn Juan stood by the musicians and lifted a plaintive tenor in "Mi Corazon," a folk song of love. "Heart of my heart," he sang that all might hear. "I love you. Lovest thou me? Do I hear you say 'Yes'?" Then, come with me to the land where the husky blooms always and the scent of the white desert flower is on the air.

From the far side of the enclosure rose a contralto untrained but sweet, in "The Maiden's Mourning." "Voy a morir mi desventura mia, porque en este mundo la vida es muy enganosa. . . . Y que tan joven me voy apearcar." ("I weep my sad lot, because in this world life is uncertain. And so a young man is going to enchain me." It was a public avowal and acceptance.)

A week later the train wound down the north bank of the Rio Grande. At its head rode Juan the Trader and by his side, swaying lightly upon a glossy black, was Candelaria, her dark face beaming. The silver cart with its guard came next, and after it the long line of lightly laden vehicles, their wooden wheels creaking only faintly. The ford was still shallow, the mounted beasts had drunk their fill—and the shuddering masses of mist quite closed behind them.

We answer that if you knew there was a pot of Gold in your garden which you could get by digging and you hadn't a shovel and no money to buy one with, you'd have to raise money! That's where we are! We have to get at the pot of Gold, and then—those who have stock will be fortunate, and those who haven't will wish they had. Come, or send in and investigate.

A QUEER EXPLOSION.

HOW A MOUNTAIN LOCOMOTIVE CAME TO AN UNTIMELY END.

There Was Neither Fire In Her Furnace Nor Water In Her Boiler, and Yet She Managed to Blow Up in the Most Approved Style.

Mr. Henry Alquist, a prominent railroad man, relates the story of a curious wreck, the facts in which he will vouch for.

"It is such a remarkable thing," said Mr. Alquist to a reporter, "that I fear many will be inclined to brand it as 'pips.' I have been railroaded now for over 20 years, and never in all my varied experience have I seen such a unique and complete wreck as the one I speak of - that of engine 1,129 of the Rio Grande Western. Railroad men will tell you that locomotives seldom explode nowadays, but 1,129 did and in a very peculiar way.

"At the time this wreck occurred I was holding down the job of train dispatcher at Soldier Summit, Utah, and a tough old job it was. Never been there, I suppose? Well, Soldier Summit is a station on the top of one of the Wasatch divides, a bleak and lonely place, where the Rio Grande Western has a roundhouse and coal chute located. At the summit are long snowbanks covering the tracks. These sheds protect the line from the winter. And it is only due to this method that a train ever gets over the mountain.

"On both sides of the mountain the line winds down in a succession of winding curves to lessen the grade. Running off from the railway are switches, which, diverging from the grade, run up into the hills and gradually come to a dead level. These switches, as they are called, are so constructed that they can be thrown from any point on the grade. And if a train breaks in two while ascending the steep grade the runaway cars can be switched on to one of these spurs, where the runaway finally stops after it has run up the spur as far as the momentum attained in its descent will take it.

"All heavy trains have an extra locomotive before the grade is tackled. These are called helper engines and are kept in roundhouses at each side of the mountain with steam up.

"One night I got word from Clear Creek, a town in the western valley, that the 9:20 freight would be 30 minutes late on account of having to pull out a crippled engine, 1,129. She had burned out her fuel and had to be hauled to Grand Junction for repairs.

"That night about 10 o'clock, after I had passed down the Salt Lake express, I heard the freight coughing up the long grade from Clear Creek. There was a snowstorm raging, and the wind howled around the station like the mischief. When the overdue 9:20 pulled into the shelter of the big snowsheds on the wind swept summit, the first thing I asked was, 'Where's the dead engine?'

"Behind the doghouse," shouted the 'men.' But as I held my lamp above my head I failed to see it. I was just about to call his attention to it when, during a lull in the storm, we plainly heard the familiar rattle of the rails as the runaway engine flew at lightning speed down the mountain. No. 1,129 had broken loose and was tearing down the grade to destruction.

"I jumped and pulled the lever which opened the spur switches. This I knew would prevent a smashup, as the engine would run up on the switchback and come to a stop. But I was too late. Almost at the same instant I threw the lever a terrific explosion was heard from far down the mountain. The runaway had exploded."

"I thought you said a moment ago, Mr. Alquist," interrupted the Scimitar man, "that the locomotive was a 'dead one.' If she had no fire under her boiler, how could she explode?"

"That was the only thing I couldn't understand myself," the railroad man replied. "I could easily see how the dead engine could break loose on that grade, and I could understand not hearing its descent during such a howling blizzard, but the explosion scored me. The only theory which in any way solved the mystery was that the old kettle was blown up by compressed air."

"You see, when the engine broke loose from the freight and started down the mountain the pistons in the cylinders began to act as air compressors. During the rough trip up her throttle probably jarred open, and as the speed increased with every revolution of her drivers her boiler soon filled with compressed air. It was not long before these flying pistons had worked up a pressure of nearly 500 pounds to the square inch, which came in faster than it could escape by the safety valve, and before the old machine reached Clear Creek her boiler let go."

Wanted to See the President. The Washington Star says that a big, gawky country lad went to the White House the other day just as the president had gone out for a morning stroll.

"I want to see the president," he announced to the first man he met.

"Well, there goes the president now," said the man addressed, pointing to the president's retreating form.

"Dear my time!" the young man ejaculated. "He walks just like any other man," and the fellow struck out so that he could get close enough to see the president well.

PUZLED HIS PAP.

Questions That Made the Boy's Father Take a Day Off.

"Going to take the day off, eh?" said the chief of division to the clerk when the latter reported at the office at 9 o'clock and put in a slip for a day's leave. "Nothing the matter, I hope? No sickness at home, is there?"

"No," replied the clerk cheerily, leaning heavily on the chief's desk. "No sickness or anything like that. But I've got to put in a day of research. It's this way: That 10-year-old boy of mine sprung a lot of 'em on me when he was going over his lessons after dinner last night that stumped me and put me temporarily out of business. This was one of them:

"Three-eighths of a pole stands in the mud, one-fifth in the water, and the remainder of the pole, 21 feet, is above the water. What is the total length of the pole?"

"Sounds dead easy, doesn't it?" went on the clerk. "Well, it just stood me on my head, that's what it did. Y'see, I took my civil service examination over ten years ago, and I've tried earnestly and prayerfully to forget all the digging I had to do to squeeze through that.

Then he asked me how old George Washington was when he died, how old the Polish Kosciuszko was when he offered his sword to the Revolutionary commanders, the date of the battle of Bunker Hill, the nature of the Missouri compromise and 10 or 15 little ones like that. I had to distinguish him by telling him that I was reading my paper, but I promised him that I'd give him all the answers tomorrow, Sunday, in time for him to be right on them at school on Monday. Now, that kid thinks I'm 'it.' He thinks I know it all. He brags to all the other kids in the neighborhood that his dad can give their dad cards and apades and big cassine and beat them to death when it comes to Brains with an upper case B."

"Well, I want to have him go right on thinking that. I wouldn't lose that young one's exalted opinion of me for a house and lot. It'd be a solid, pleasant finish for me to have him direct the blighting gaze of suspicion at me. So I'm going up to the library, yank out a bundle of books of reference, get the answers to that list of questions, and tonight I'll spring 'em on the kid in an offhand sort of way, as if I knew 'em all the time, but just didn't have time to give 'em to him. I couldn't stand it to have that kid get on to me; not just yet anyhow. He'll have time to do that when he grows up." - Washington Post.

THE HEIGHT OF POLITENESS.

As Exemplified by an Officer on a British Man-of-war.

This is a story of the height of politeness. It is told by Angus Evan Abbott, the author, and it is, I believe, absolutely true. Mr. Abbott is a Canadian by birth and education, and on first coming to England he was, as most Americans and Canadians are, eager to catch a glimpse of the queen. But as her majesty did not live in his suburbs, Mr. Abbott's wish remained ungratified for some time. However, one day he found himself in Portsmouth and learned that the royal yacht, with the queen and Princess Beatrice aboard, was to cross from the Isle of Wight to Portsmouth.

Hastening down to the landing place, he discovered that there was not the ghost of a chance of catching sight of her majesty on land, so he went to the water side, hired a small boat and rowed out into the great harbor. Pushing out from the inner port, where there is a mighty fleet of battleships and cruisers all saluting with bunting in honor of the queen, the writer found himself on the broad outer bay, alone except for a dotted line of men-of-war's boats indicating the route to be taken by the queen's yacht.

Pulling in his oars and allowing the boat to float at will, Mr. Abbott got his glasses focused ready for the queen's yacht and put in his time reading a book. All at once he heard a voice sounding as though it came from the clouds. It was gentle, aristocratic of accent and apologetic in diction. It said, "I beg your pardon, but would you mind letting us pass?"

Glancing quickly up, Mr. Abbott beheld the bow of the mighty battleship Minotaur towering over his little rowboat like a precipice, and peering over the brow of the cliff of iron was the calm face of a naval officer. The ship was swinging slowly into harbor and was but a few yards away, coming directly toward the tiny rowboat.

In the words of the novel, "To seize the oar and pull for his life was the work of an instant." When Mr. Abbott was clear of the battleship, the naval officer, not a ghost of a smile on his face, said, "Thank you very much," and the ship crept past. Mr. Abbott claims that naval officer to be the politest man living - London Cor. Saturday Evening Post.

How She "Guides" Them.

There is a jolly mother in Brooklyn who has several grown up sons boarding at home with her, and they declare she wants to "boss" them all the time, just as if they were children. She laughingly repudiates their charge and declares that she merely wishes to advise and guide them, but has long ago ceased to rule them. Here is an example of the way she "guides" them: At dinner the other night a big meat pie and a small roast duck were brought on together. The duck was intended for the father principally. The boys were death on duck, their mother well knew, but it would not make a mouthful of pie for them; so, addressing the boy who sat nearest her, she said, "Which will you have, Bobbie, duck or pie?" and at once began eating the pie.

"Duck!" said Bobbie promptly.

"No, Bobbie," answered his mother cheerfully, "you can't have duck, dear. Take your choice, my son, take your choice, but you can't have duck!"

For Williams and Didn't Know It. "John," said the wife, "who air you fer in the race fer sheriff?"

"I'm fer Tompkins fust an last."

"No, John, you ain't fer Tompkins; you're fer Williams."

"I said Tompkins," replied John.

"I know you did, John. But, all the same, you're fer Williams!"

Then he made a grab for his hat and was about to make for the door when she locked it and, standing against it, said:

"Don't let us fuss over this matter, John. Be reasonable now an own up that you're fer Williams."

He rumbled with his hat and kicked the fire.

"Molly," he said, "if you ain't as good as a mind reader I'll give it up! Course I'm fer Williams fust an last! Dam him!"

A SKY FANCY.

Oh, the moon's a mighty golf ball,
By stroke of Titan hurled;
From off the far horizon "tis"
"Tis driven round the world!
And Venus looks in wonder,
And the war god redly blinks
As the big white ball goes sailing high
Along the starry links.
It soars o'er cloudy bunkers
That seek its flight to stay,
And in its path it crosses swift
The misty Milky Way.
And when it has completed
Its course across the sky
On yonder hilltop of the west
It finds its distant "lie."
Where waits a giant player,
Who "lets" with steady aim,
And so without a pause goes on
The everlasting game.

HIS FIRST LECTURE.

The Way Artemus Ward Made It a Brilliant Success.

"I told a story several years ago in my house, when I was living in Philadelphia," said Robert C. Ogden, the famous New York merchant, "about a traveler on a New England railroad. When I ended it, I added, 'So Artemus Ward once said.'"

"Yes," spoke up John Sears, a Philadelphia journalist of wide fame and broad attainments. "Yes," he repeated, "that is just what Artemus Ward did say."

"How do you know?" I asked. Now, I had known Mr. Sears for many years, and I had never heard him mention Ward before. "Tell us all about it," I heard him say. It was there, said Mr. Sears, "in 1859 or 1860 Browne, who had made a great reputation by his humorous work in the west and in New York under the name of Artemus Ward, worked for one of the metropolitan papers. I was employed by another one, and we had two friends who were working in other offices. We used to dine together every night. We advised Ward to become a lecturer. We told him that he could make much more money lecturing than writing. But Ward demurred. He was afraid to venture it. One day, however, he went to a lecture bureau and gave his name. He chose for the title of his lecture 'The Children in the Wood.' That night he told us all about it. With a few days he received an offer to lecture for the benefit of the Mechanics' library in Brooklyn, and he told us of that too."

"I'm afraid I shall fail utterly," he said. "I know I can't face an audience."

"But you'll have your manuscript," some one said.

"I know it," he replied, "but I'll be too flustered to manage even that."

"In that case," I said, "you can tell stories, just as you tell them to us, and that will carry you through all right."

"The night of the lecture we three men went with Ward to Brooklyn, and it was just as he had feared. He forgot his lines, and he was so frightened that he even forgot his manuscript. He faced his audience with a blank look of despair that most of the people took to be assumed. But I knew it was real. Then he started off with a story that had no more to do with 'The Children in the Wood' than with the tariff question, and when he ended it he observed, 'That is what I should have told you if I were not lecturing upon 'The Children in the Wood.' From that he went on in his own inimitable fashion, story following story, until he had his audience convulsed with laughter, and the lecture was a brilliant success. That was Artemus Ward's first appearance on the platform. Now, Mr. Ogden, what do you know about it?"

"I arranged that lecture," I replied. "That is all. I was living in Brooklyn and was interested in the library. We wanted a lecture. I went to the bureau, and, seeing the name of Artemus Ward, I engaged him." — Saturday Evening Post.

German Searchlight on Hamlet.

This Shakespeare story comes from the Frankfurter Zeitung. The question has often been asked why Shakespeare removed Hamlet, who was born in Jutland, to the castle of Kronborg, near Helsingor, or Elsinore, in Seeland, and how he came to have such a curiously exact knowledge of the local conditions of the little seaport.

These questions are answered by an old document found a short time ago in the archives of Helsingor. The document says that the burgomaster of the town had a wooden fence erected in the year 1585 and that this fence was destroyed by a troupe of English actors. The names of the latter are mentioned, and among them are found some who, it is certain, were members of Shakespeare's company.

From this it is concluded that this troupe or several members thereof had given representations in the year named Helsingor and that Shakespeare had obtained from them a description of the castle of Kronborg and its neighborhood.

Breaking Even.

"Excuse me, Brother Hogback," said an Arkansas matron who was one of the high pirates at the church festival, addressing a demure-looking gentleman who was gastronomizing at one of the tables, "but are you—ah! going to stop eating pretty soon? You have your fifth bowl of oyster stew now, and—ah!"

"The case," replied Brother Hogback, with his mouth full, "stands like this, Sister Hooks: You made me pay in advance. I forked over a $5 bill, and you sweetly told me that as it was for the benefit of the church it was against the rules to give any change back. So, now, sister, I'm going to keep right on eatin' till one of three things happens—till the rules are amended for my benefit or I get my money's worth or bust. That's the kind of man I am, Sister Hooks." — Life.

Knows What He's About.

"I believe Higginbotham smokes the vilest cigars of earth. When he drops in at my office, I always give him a good cigar to keep him from lighting one of his own."

"Drops in every day, doesn't he?"

"Generally."

"I thought so. I know Higginbotham. He is a fellow of a good deal of thrift and industry." — Chicago Tribune.

Wit and Humor.

"What's the difference between wit and humor?"

"If a man says humorous things about you, it makes you laugh; if he says witty things about you, it makes you mad." — Chicago Record.

In France and Italy it is believed that the maiden who buries a drop of her blood under a rosebush will be rewarded with rose tinted cheeks.

A miser is one of the things that will hang in any climate. — Chicago News.

MILLBROOK

We regret to note the loss of one of our most popular merchants, in the person of Mr. J. A. Vance, who has disposed of his grocery stock and business to Mr. Adams, of Onemee. He intends going on the road as commercial traveller. Although we deplore the loss of such an esteemed business man, we wish him every success in his new step and congratulate his employee on securing the services of such a valuable representative, who, we are confident will make a booming salesman, and win numerous friends by his courteous manner. We take great pleasure in welcoming Mr. Adams as a citizen to our town and trust the surrounding community will join with us in giving him a liberal share of their patronage, as we believe him to be an able successor, owing to his previous experience and amiable business methods.

A LOVE SERENADE.

When a number of our young men were returning to their homes Tuesday evening they were suddenly startled upon turning up Tupper street on hearing what they thought was an English sky-rail, but which proved on an investigation to be C. F. singing to his sweet contentment the following lines:

Oh! charming is the month of May
With trees so green and daffodils so gay,
And lovely is the month of June
When we test to the trapper's merry tune;
But sweeter is the drowsy month of July,
When on my bike the time I make fly,
As on Dominion day to Cobourg I'll go
And see dear Katie I met a year ago.

LEAVING TOWN.

Mr. O. Lebeater and family of Dalhousie, left Tuesday for Souris, Man., when he intends going into business. Mr. Lebeater who although had a splendid trade in our sister village, has been struck with the glowing prospects of the west, and will no doubt do a flourishing business. ## A SUGGESTION.

We might suggest to our popular restaurant keeper, Mr. McPherson, that it would be advisable to replenish his stock of cent chewing gum with a car load, as we noticed Arthur D. ## NOTES.

There is one good paymaster who is around on time, gives full value, and never fails in his duty. It is your privilege to select him, and his name is pure, wholesome blood. This paymaster makes the rounds of the body, visits brain, stomach, kidneys, liver, heart and head alike. Hood's Sarsaparilla acts as guarantor that this paymaster will do his duty.

If the blood is impure, it cannot do its duty, and you are the sufferer,—but you need not be. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies, vitalizes and enriches the blood. It never disappoints.

They Keep one Eye Shut.

A recent traveler in Mexico, who visited the mines there during his journey, says that he was much astonished at seeing the men who carry the ore come out of the mine, each with one eye shut.

The foreman, giving his surprise, explained the matter. He said the candles belonging to the tarreros (who drill and blast) do not give sufficient light in the drifts, where it is consequently quite dark, but where, nevertheless, the tarreros are well enough not to run their heads against the rock, but on emerging into daylight, they would be blinded did they not take precautionary measures.

For this reason, as they approach the mouth of the shaft, at the point where they catch the first glimpse of light they drop the eyelid of one eye and keep this down while they are discharging their ore and until they have descended the shaft. When they are again in the dark, they open the eye kept hitherto in reserve and so close one everything all neatly, while the bread is savored.

Havana's bread carts are usually two legged—that is, bread is carried about the streets in large, shallow baskets borne on top of men's heads. It is served in sticks as long as a baseball bat or in loaves or pones, one of which is supposed to serve for the morning meal of an ordinary citizen.

What It Means.

The large sum of $500,000 has been set aside as an invested profit-earning fund by the Canada Life Assurance Company. This is in view of the recent Government legislation requiring the Life Companies to strengthen their reserves. It is a long stride toward the 3 1/2 per cent. basis which all Canadian companies MUST reach in fifteen years.

Let us suppose this amount to earn an average rate of 4 per cent. during that period. At the end of the years of grace it will have amounted to over $900,000.

In other words, the prompt action of the Canada Life SAVES ITS POLICY-HOLDERS OVER $400,000. Those joining the Company now will share in the benefits of this large fund.

Companies which delay providing for the higher reserves till compelled to will eventually have to invest a much larger amount than if they had followed the prudent and far-sighted course of the Canada Life.

But every company is not in a position to take such prompt, definite action, and that is why it is to your advantage to choose the strongest company—The Canada Life.

The Canada Life assets on 31st December, 1899, stood at $21,364,062. Those of the next Canadian company stood at $9,247,665.

The Company's report for the year 1899 was

IN 1899 the Canada Life wrote more business in Canada than any other company, native or foreign.

IN 1899 the Canada Life's total new business was greater than that of any previous year.

IN 1899 the Canada Life earned more surplus than any other Canadian company.

IN 1899 the gains in every department of the Company's affairs were of the most gratifying nature.

The funds of the Canada Life were already largely in excess of the present Government requirement, and this added fund has made the Company's pre-eminent position even more secure.

Intending assured have in the Canada Life the choice of the most liberal conditions and the most valuable privileges compatible with all that is best in life assurance.

They also secure the advantage of the largest, strongest, safest and most profitable company in the Dominion.

The George Matthews Company will probably be heavily insured through the Ottawa fire. It is altogether likely that two of their retail stores have been destroyed. They are considerable from them, much of which will be lost.

A LOUD CRY FOR HELP

The Times Starts a Relief Fund for Ottawa and Hull

THOUSANDS ARE HOMELESS

The Times Has Been Requested to Start a Relief Fund.

Contributions should be sent in at once—No gives twice who gives quickly Money to be Forwarded Daily.

The appalling calamity which has overtaken the Canadian capital and her sister city across the Ottawa river has awakened a feeling of profound sympathy in the heart of every citizen of this country. Thousands have been left homeless and entirely destitute.

Peterboro has never been backward when called upon in the hour of distress. Let us do our duty quickly.

The Times received the following despatch yesterday which speaks for itself.

"Thousands homeless and destitute in Ottawa and Hull. Could you not at once start a relief fund through the Morning Times, and forward to relief committee here. He gives twice who gives quickly." (Signed) OTTAWA CITIZEN CO.

The Times has consented to receive subscription which will be forwarded daily to the Ottawa relief committee. The names of those who subscribe, together with the amount given, will appear in this column. We ask our readers to act quickly.

Since writing the above, we notice that our local contemporary, the Examiner, has started a fund, and it would, perhaps, facilitate matters if the subscriptions were sent to that office instead of to the Times. There is no use in keeping two sets of books when one will answer the purpose. We therefore ask our readers to send or leave their subscriptions to the Examiner office with as little delay as possible.

The following contributions were received yesterday by the Examiner—

Examiner Printing Co.	10 00
Peter Hamilton	10 00
Stratton & Hall	10 00
Peterborough Lock Mfg. Co.	10 00
Wm. Hamilton Mfg. Co.	10 00

Death of Mr. John Wells.

Yesterday morning, about four o'clock, Mr. John Wells, one of Peterborough's oldest and most respected citizens, passed away. The deceased was 81 years of age, having been born in London, England, in 1819. He was present at the coronation of Queen Victoria, coming to Canada in 1875. Fifty-five years ago Mr. and Mrs. Wells came to Peterborough, where they have resided ever since, living for 46 years in the dwelling house on London street. The deceased was of a retiring disposition, and industrious in his habits. He leaves a wife—a noble example of a good and faithful woman—to mourn his loss. His family are all grown up and living in different parts of the country. The funeral will take place from the family residence on Monday, at three o'clock.

A Treat in Store.

Many of Dan Simons' friends about town have been urging him to give one of his unique entertainments in Peterborough. Mr. Simons came home for a rest, and did not care to do so. However, yesterday he was induced to change his mind, and the Times is authorized to state that an entertainment will be given at an early date, in which Mr. Simons will appear in all his leading specialties. He will be assisted by some of the best local talent, including Miss Lillie Simons, the popular young elocutionist. We predict a bumper house, and an enthusiastic audience, as "our Dan" is very popular with all classes of the community.

A BUSY FACTORY.

Never Closes Its Doors, Day or Night.

The famous "white city," as the pure food factories of the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., of Battle Creek, Mich., are called never shut down day or night. The great ovens once heated up are kept going, as are the grinding mills, blending machines, mixing machines, and the entire plant, the day laborers, men and women, are replaced at six o'clock in the evening by a night force.

The name "white city" was given by the citizens to the location owing to the color of the numerous factory buildings which are planted pure white with very dark bronze green trimmings.

The utmost cleanliness is observed throughout, and the preparation, permeate the air in all directions.

Their products, Grape-nuts, breakfast food and Postum Cereal Food Co., go all over the world to the breakfast tables of the well-to-do Japanese and Chinese, and to the Emperor of Germany, to Royalty in Italy, to Great Britain, South America, and they are found in practically all of the best homes in America.

By scientific selection of the certain parts of grains which supply phosphate of Potash and other important elements for quickly rebuilding the most delicate parts of the human body (brain and nerve centres), and making up therefrom a most delicious food, Grape-nuts, and a breakfast food-drink, Postum Cereal Coffee, this firm has become known as the foremost producers of Health Food in the world, and their name affixed to a package of food is sufficient evidence of its purity and excellence.

THE MANUFACTURERS' LIFE.

Result of Last Year's Operations of this Free Reserve Company.

We hereby congratulate the management of the Manufacturers Life Assurance Company on the result of the operations as shown in the annual report submitted at the annual meeting. The report will be found elsewhere.

While the business of one year shows a large increase, the expenditure has decreased, and a balance of $294,047 remains to be added to reserve and surplus. The surplus is now $655,648, and the assets, $1,810,155. The company now ranks among the lowest in expense ratio and largest in new business. That the new investment policies of the company are popular is shown by the fact that the average premium per $1,000 in 1899 was $3.50, in 1894, $3.29, and in 1899, $3.56. An increase of $71,433 in premium income is among the satisfactory features of the report of which the local manager, is justly proud.

What's in a Hat?

A great deal sometimes, as was sadly discovered by one of our local political leaders at the battalion "At Home" on Thursday evening. "There was a sound of revelry by night," and faultlessly attired in the appropriate uniform, plus a "Christie stiff," our unfortunate friend arrived to join the dance. Instead of the usual British welcome, he received a reception that might have been meant for Paul Kruger himself. In less time than it takes to tell it, the offending tile was removed all too vigorously by a brother voter and sent flying into space. "Blood and mutiny," quoth the wearer, "Do you know who I am and clapping his hand to where his good sword ought to have been, he charged the foe and recaptured the offending headgear. But, alas, the enemy was on his flanks, as well as in front and rear, and a well-directed smack brought the rim of what had once been a decent $3.00 hat into the position of a decidedly multi collar.

We do not get further, but understand that a subscription is being raised to place the remains in a glass case as a regimental trophy, to be shot for annually. It is said that the unfortunate wearer spent the small hours of the morning in deep study of regulation caps, and the rules governing the same, but he recommended a peremptory interview with the famed "Bill Adams" for any further information required.

"Catch the opportunity."

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla now you may build up your health and prevent serious illness.

A Great Company.

Elsewhere will be found a large advertisement of the Canada Life Association. This great Canadian Company has set aside half a million dollars as an investment fund for the purpose of strengthening its resources. Presuming that this fund will earn 4 per cent. at the end of fifteen years, by which time all companies must reach a $1.2 per cent. basis, the fund will have amounted to $900,000. This means, in plain English, that the Canada Life saves its policy holders over $400,000, and those joining the company now will share in the benefits of this large fund. Canada has a right to feel proud of its great assurance company.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

Dundas cement walks cost 10c. per foot.

Mr. Chas. Carl, of St. Catharines, a drug traveler who has been ill at the Snowden house for a couple of days, was taken to the Nicholas hospital yesterday.

David Dole was up before Magistrate Edmundson yesterday, charged with non-support of his family. He agreed to hand over to his wife certain goods and chattels.

Capt. Reynolds, of Lakefield, met with an accident by the explosion of a pea rifle. The powder got into one of his eyes, and it will be some days before he will be able to see.

The death of a well-known character, William Close, took place yesterday morning at 2.30 o'clock at the Nicholas hospital. Death was due to a break-up of the system. Deceased was a married man and leaves three children. The funeral will take place this afternoon at 2 o'clock from his late residence, Lock street, to the Little Lake cemetery.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL.

Mr. Charles Stone is home from Trinity Medical College.

Mr. George Milne Hamilton, son of Mr. Peter Hamilton, heads the list at McGill College in mechanical engineering.

Mr. P. W. C. Shewen, clerk of Burleigh, etc., was a town yesterday on business connected with the proposed railway to Apsley.

Mrs. Daisy Thompson, whose condition at the hospital was showing great improvement, is rapidly improving. She is now, we are pleased to say, in a fair way to recovery.

The Times congratulates Mr. Ernest Vivian Moore, son of Mr. D. H.

Moore, who was successful in passing his final in mining and engineering and carried off honors in one dressing and mining design at McGill College.

The many friends of Mrs. W. F. Johnston will be pleased to learn that she has so far recovered as to be able to leave the hospital. She was escorted to her carriage by the entire nursing staff, who were sorry to part with her. Mrs. Johnston, who is a daughter of our worthy Police Magistrate, has undergone several painful operations, and was at one time in a very low stage. She possesses wonderful nerve, and went through these trying ordeals without flinching. It will be pleasing news to know that she is now in good health.

Horses Wanted.

Mr. W. J. Pearson, of Montreal, will be in Peterborough and vicinity next week for the purpose of buying a car load of good sound horses of every description, for which he is prepared to pay the highest cash prices. Bradburn's hotel, Omemee, Monday morning, April 30th; Crocker's hotel, Millbrook, Monday afternoon, April 30th; White's hotel, Peterborough, Wednesday, May 2nd. Parties having horses to dispose of will consult their own interest by awaiting the visit of Mr. W. J. Pearson.

The Times Not Thanked.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, Secretary of the Children's Aid society, has received a letter from Mr. Hynes, agent for the Sunnyside Orphanage, thanking him for the part he took in the case of Nelson Gray. The Times received no such a mislabeled. What we want to know is, how this boy was allowed to stay in slavery for six years, and why the Orphanage insisted on his returning after they knew the facts. Mr. Hynes should answer this.

County Maps.

Be sure and get a copy of the new County Map published by the Times Printing Company. It is a first class map and about the only one in the hands of every business man in Peterborough. Only a few copies left. Copies on paper 50 cents; on rollers $2.

Havelock's New Church.

Messrs. T. and C. Rutherford have been awarded the contract for building the new Roman Catholic church at Havelock. The edifice will be a handsome structure of brick, 32 by 71 feet in size, and capable of seating about 300. The foundations will be of stone, and will run up three feet above the ground, giving plenty of above the ground, giving plenty of room in the basement. The church will have a gallery, porch, nave and sanctuary, the latter having a semi-circular end, and will also possess a handsome tower. Mr. John Helcher designed the structure, and has also just completed plans for Havelock's new town hall.

The Canal.

Editor Morning Times: Sir,—When the Trent Valley Canal is completed, will steamers like the Estuere and City of Peterborough be able to go through from one end to the other?

Ans.—No. The bridge over the Canal at Lakefield will prevent anything but the smaller boats going through. The canal is intended for barges. We think that it was a mistake not to place a swing bridge on the canal at Lakefield.

The Nelson Gray Case.

Editor Morning Times: Sir,—I think the action of the Sunnyside people in writing to Gray, to return to him slavery, should be investigated. The Government should cause a right enquiry to be made, as there may be other cases of the same kind.

I have no doubt that the poor boy would have been compelled to remain there his full time had the Times not taken the matter up.

Mr. Stratton, the Provincial secretary, has a duty to perform, although it may go against his grain to do it. If he fails to have the matter sifted to the very bottom, it will against him and his party later on.

A VALE OF SORROWS A VALLEY OF TEARS!

Awfulness of the Disaster at Ottawa Increases as Fuller Particulars Come to Hand.

THOUSANDS ARE WITHOUT SHELTER OR FOOD.

Half is a Waste of Ruins, and One-Eighth of Ottawa With Millions Invested in Busy Factories is No More—Lord Mayor of London Opens a Relief Fund.

Ottawa, Ont., April 28.—In the presence of the calamity that has just devastated the heart of the Dominion, before a smoldering that has cast a gloom over the whole empire from cottage to palace, from people to Queen, every other consideration is put aside, and the public mind is fixed on the only subject that occupies men's minds.

The terrible spectacle of the destruction of a whole city haunts the capital like a nightmare. The awfulness of the disaster is sinking deeper and deeper into people's hearts as fuller particulars come to hand. Half is a waste of ashes, a heap of ruins, a vale of sorrows and a valley of tears. One-eighth of the third largest city in the Dominion with its millions of dollars invested in busy factories is no more.

But the material losses are lost sight of before the enormity of the human suffering. Thousands of poor unfortunates are to-day wandering despondently up and down the streets of the capital, dazed by the suddenness of the calamity that has taken from them their all, hopelessly wondering where they will now turn to earn a living and commence the bitter uphill struggle against the poverty, destitution and ruin which are everywhere. Thousands of families are without shelter, without money, without bread, plunged in the most terrible misery.

FLOCKING INTO THE CAPITAL.
All the families whose homes have been destroyed, the thousands of men, women and children who gazed for hours yesterday with the stolid look of despair on the smoking ruins of their homes, all these have come flocking into the place of refuge in the capital. The Salvation Army barracks, the athletic clubs, the drill hall, the Exhibition building and the convents have been thrown open, and at present thousands of people are sheltered there. As many more have found temporary homes with friends throughout the city. Over in Hull the few remaining houses on the outskirts of the city are crowded full. Twenty or thirty people are huddled together in every house, and those houses nothing but miserable barns. In all between ten and twenty thousand people are homeless and helpless.

HELP IS NEEDED.
Shelter, clothing and food must be provided, and at once the question of relief is now the main question. The citizens of Ottawa have grappled manfully with the problem. Ten thousand dollars have already been voted, and the Ontario Government has been asked for power to issue debentures to the extent of $100,000. All the papers have opened subscription lists. A civic subscription list has been started, and funds are pouring in on every hand. But in face of the millions of property lost the few thousands so far raised seem but a drop in the bucket.

APPEAL FOR AID.
An appeal for aid has been made to every town and city in the Dominion. Telegrams have been received from various cities in the United States and Great Britain offering sympathy and assistance.

A MANHOLE HOUSE FUND.
From Her Gracious Majesty the Queen, a cable has been received by the Governor-General expressing deepest regret at the news of Ottawa's calamity, and adding that her heartfelt sympathy be made known to the people of Canada. The Hon. Joseph Chamberlain has also sent a cable stating that a manhole house fund will be opened. Mr. Chamberlain's message is a fitting tribute to the calamity, and with the deepest concern your message reporting the disastrous fire at Ottawa. I am sure the people of the Mother Country would be glad to have an opportunity of contributing to the relief of the misery and destitution caused to their fellow-subjects in Canada by this calamity, and I propose to ask the Lord Mayor to open a fund for this purpose. (Signed) Chamberlain.

The message from Her Majesty reads thus: "Her Majesty has heard with deep regret of the great fire at Ottawa and has commanded me to desire you to convey to the immediate sufferers and to her people in Canada an expression of heartfelt sympathy in the calamity which has befallen them. She trusts that there has been no loss of life and would be glad to have any further particulars you can furnish. (Signed) Chamberlain."

SUBSCRIPTIONS COMING IN.
Subscriptions are coming in every minute from all parts of Canada. Already about $40,000 in cash has been received and fully a quarter of a million is in sight. But ten times that amount would not alleviate all the suffering caused by the fire. Among the large subscriptions are—$41,000 from the Hon. the Governor-General; $5,000 from the Bank of Ottawa; $500 from the Ottawa Board of Trade; $1,000 from Senator Drummond; $500 from Hon. Wm. Mulock; $500 from Senator Parley; $100 each from Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. R. W. Scott, Sir Charles Tupper, and Hon. Frank Latta. Hundreds of small cash subscriptions have come in and are still coming in. The great heart of the Dominion has been touched, and the response to the appeal for help promises to be generous.

IN THE BURNED DISTRICT.
A walk through the burned district yesterday afternoon gave your correspondent

A LONG-STANDING MENACE TO OTTAWA.

The Senators Discuss the Danger Arising From Lumber Piled in Vicinity of Government Buildings.

Ottawa, April 28.—The Senate discussed the fire yesterday. Hon. Mr. Clemon declared that it rose largely from the practice of allowing the piling of lumber so near the city. He had protested against this practice time and again. They might not have the power to prohibit it, but a protest from the Government would have great effect. Then the Lovers' Walk at the western end was a dumping ground for paper. That was a constant menace the Government should take immediate steps to stop. They should not lose a moment.

Hon. Mr. Allan had been struck in watching the fire yesterday by the trail made in the progress of the fire. With Senator Drummond, he had watched and seen how the fire crossed into the lumber piles. Ottawa was surrounded by these fire trails. Hon. Mr. Drummond said the matter was a very important one. It was a national one. The presence of piling grounds in the city was an eternal menace. The city itself should take steps to protect the dwelling houses. He had been struck by the fact yesterday that nearly every house in the city was roofed with shingles. When they caught the house was doomed. He himself had seen the fire leap the river and light made. First, as to his wages: He said he had been led to believe that he would not get any of the money he had earned, but expressed himself as satisfied when he understood that it was kept in the Bank for him, and would be paid to him in due time. The authorities of the Home showed me his Bank Book containing $38, and explained that the letter stating that he would forfeit this amount was written as a warning, and to encourage him to be steady, at a period when most boys are inclined to be restless, then as to clothing: When the boy came to my office he was neatly and respectably clad, and he said the clothes he wore had been supplied to him by Mr. Healey months before he ran away. He was not satisfied with his working clothes, and probably they were as good as they should have been. I tested him both in reading and writing, and found he was fairly proficient in both these branches. Although questioned closely as to the fullest protection against Mr. Healey, but on the contrary expressed his regret at having caused his employer so much trouble and asked to be allowed to return to him.

NO SIGNS OF ADVANCE FROM BLOEMFONTEIN.

The Only Despatch From Lord Roberts Published is the List of Deaths and Sickness.

COUNTRY AROUND THABA N'CHU FREE OF BOERS.

Many Boers Are Retreating From Wepener and Dewetsdorp and They Are Reported to be in a Miserable and Dejected Condition—Fatal Accident in Paris.

London, April 30, 5 a.m.
The only despatch from Lord Roberts published yesterday, was the usual list of deaths and sickness. The flood of newspaper despatches to-day, describing the recent operations, throw no light whatever, upon the present position of affairs, or upon the great question as to when the main advance is to begin. The Standard's announcement that Gen. French's cavalry are returning to Bloemfontein, is clear proof that there is no further thought of catching the fleeing Boers, and the London papers are beginning to display impatience at the practical failure of the elaborate preparations of last week.

STORES ARE ACCUMULATED.
London, April 28.—The Bloemfontein correspondent of the Morning Post, Winston Churchill, telegraphing Thursday, says:—
"Most satisfactory progress has been made in the accumulation of stores during the past week. The prospects of a general advance are more favorable. The Bloemfontein correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, under Thursday's date, says:—
"The Boers who retreated from Dewetsdorp kept well ahead of General French's cavalry."

FRENCH WILL BE TOO LATE.
London, April 28.—The Times, in a despatch from Bloemfontein, dated April 26, says:—
"General French is pursuing the Boers, who are retreating along the Thaba Nchu road, but as General Ian Hamilton reports having engaged them at long range with shell fire yesterday there is little chance of our inflicting effective punishment. It appears that Commandant Louis Botha, who arrived at Dewetsdorp on Monday, realized the situation at once and ordered the immediate withdrawal of the Boer forces, including those before Wepener. The majority of the Boers have fallen back by way of the Ladybrand road."

HUNDREDS OF CATTLE TAKEN.
London, April 28.—The Daily Telegraph, in a special edition, prints a despatch from Beaufort West, dated Bloemfontein, April 26, which says:—
"The troops are now at Thaba Nchu. They find plenty of provisions and forage."
"There is sniping daily at Kamek siding, but casualties are rare. The Boers have only a small laager near Beaufort. Loch's Horse, of today captured hundreds of cattle. The Engineers are progressing in their work of building a permanent bridge across the Modder River at Glen."

MILNER'S PROCLAMATION.
London, April 28.—The effect of Sir Alfred Milner's proclamation requesting ladies to stay in England instead of going out to the Cape is beginning to be apparent in society. Lady Henry Bentinck and many others returning to London. Sir Alfred Milner has no increased his popularity by his frank utterances. Most society women preferred cancelling their arrangements rather than to face the criticisms attached to a trip so much decried by the High Commissioner, but they like the author of their troubles more now than that it is stated that Lord Roberts, who approved Sir Alfred Milner's proclamation, called to his wife and daughter advising them not to go to the Cape, too late, however, to effect his purpose.

BIG BEET SUGAR FACTORY TO BE STARTED IN CANADA.
The Greatest Interest in the Boer War Taken by the People of Washington D.C.
Special Despatch to the Times.
Washington, April 28.—Commercial Agent Johnson writes Standings, March 17, 1900:—
"The establishment of a $500,000 factory for the manufacture of beet-sugar in Canada will, it is said, be shortly undertaken by American capitalists, who are working with Messrs. J. E. Askwith and James Fowler, of Ottawa, in the interest of the enterprise. The factory will be located in Ontario and will be capable of handling 500 tons of beets daily. The Canadian Government is to be asked to place a bounty on the production of beet sugar in Canada, and thus the promoters of the company claim, will insure the establishment in Canada of a great many other factories for making beet sugar."

THE BOER WAR.
Great interest is again being taken in the Boer war, though no one any longer doubts the result or looks for any intervention by other powers. "There is reason for believing that one of the things for which General Roberts has been waiting is assistance from the Boers," says Mr. Henry Lane, of London, England, who is in this city. "If these terrible savage fighters should descend upon the Boer commandos it would probably quicken the hands of the Boers. The British have been restraining these savages for months. If they break loose England will unquestionably say that she did all she could to hold them. There are several reasons why England desires to foster this mighty power. One is that all white men are able to the Boers, and they will say British as well as Boers if they can reach them. The Boers murder their wounded and their prisoners. After killing their wounded they drive the dead men into the hearts and stomachs of the dead bodies. They bury the dead and the dying bodies are eaten by the ants. On the Beaufort battlefield some of the swollen bodies which Webster Davis has been describing would be subject to the most horrible treatment before being killed. There will be a cry of horror arising from all civilized countries if these warriors begin their awful butcheries."

BOERS SLIPPED BETWEEN THEM.
London, Saturday, April 28.—The Daily Chronicle has the following from Van Bank, dated Wednesday, April 25:—
"For two days the Boers have been fighting a series of rear-guard actions. Crossing the Modder here and hotly pursued by Alderson (including the Mounted Canadians), they got into the Klerks southeast of the crossing, and narrowly missed being captured by General Bunde, who was coming from that direction. But on sighting his advance they turned eastward and slipped away between General Alderson and General Rundle."

STORY OF THE KENTUCKY MURDER.

The Conspirators Originally Intended to Kill the Governor in a Riot But Their Plan of Operations Failed.

Louisville, Ky., April 28.—The complete story of the plot to assassinate Governor Goebel is at last known. Fragment by fragment each detail has been collected. It is only fair to say that the following compilation is the admirable work of the Courier-Journal, and presents for the first time a connected account of the conspiracy. It is evident from the facts disclosed that the plot was originally intended to be put into execution in the Capitol Building by precipitating a riot, during which Goebel was to be shot. That arrangement failed, however, and it was decided to assassinate him on the street.

Jim Howard, the Clay county feudist, is the man suspected by the Commonwealth of having fired the shot, which came from a 38-calibre Marlin rifle furnished by Henry E. Youtsey, who bought the steel bullet, smokeless powder cartridges from a well-known Cincinnati house. (I is charged in the confessions that have been made that Caleb and John Powers, Charles Finley and two or three others, whose names are known, hatched the conspiracy, and that Jim and Berry Howard, Youtsey, Coulton and one or two others, each having their special parts, executed it.

The door of Powers' office, where Goebel was shot, was opened with the key which was given to Youtsey.

Youtsey knows who entered and it is virtually certain that he said Jim Howard was one of them. Howard is under indictment for the killing of George Baker, father of Tom Baker, who was killed in Clay county while guarded by the soldiers. Howard has been trying to get a pardon from Taylor for killing George Baker, and it is claimed that Powers and others assured Howard he could get the pardon if he would kill Goebel.

After the shooting Youtsey went down through the basement and out the back way. He was seen by a number of witnesses to run around the building, and a few minutes later he entered Taylor's office.

Culton, in his statement to the Commonwealth's attorney, says Youtsey came to him after the shooting and said Taylor had advised him to leave Frankford at once. Culton claims he regarded them as suspicious, and in his desire to get at the bottom of the assassination he took Youtsey with him to Taylor and asked Taylor if Youtsey had told the truth about his request. Culton says Taylor told him to let the matter drop and remarked: "Youtsey will not do any more talking," or words to that effect.

The Commonwealth has a mass of other evidence which implicates other persons, but the details of this will not become public until the trial.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

MR. KULSON CLAIMS THAT NELSON GRAY WAS FAIRLY WELL TREATED.

And Writes a Letter, Stating that the Boy Admits That He Was Fairly Well Treated by Healey—The Times Don't Think so, However.

The case of Nelson Gray has excited considerable interest, not only in Peterborough but elsewhere. It will be remembered that the lad, who is supposed to be 16 years of age, but who really looks to be several years younger, ran away from Mr. J. Healey, a farmer residing near Westwood, to whom he had been indentured until he became of age. The lad's appearance was so wretched, so wrecked, that a feeling of pity was excited upon his appearance.

IS MARS PEOPLED?

Such a Claim Advanced by a German Scientist.

"Is Mars inhabited?" has been asked very often during recent years and has engaged the serious attention of many astronomers and especially of M. Camille Flammarion, a noted French scientist and author. Some new light is now thrown on this subject by Professor Ernst Haeckel, an eminent German philosopher, in a book entitled "World Problems. After pointing out that man has been studying the heavens for more than 4,500 years and have only been studying themselves for the last half century he says we may safely assume that the many fixed stars whose light requires thousands of years to reach us are suns and are surrounded by planets and worlds similar to those we know. We may also assume, he holds, that thousands of these planets have arrived at the same stage of development as our world, and it naturally follows that on them the same conditions of life prevail as on this earth, and there is no valid reason why human beings should not live there as they do here.

Professor Haeckel takes care to explain that there are doubtless many planets the temperature of which is such that life, as we understand the term, cannot be sustained on them. He thinks it very probable that there are types of animals and plants on some planets which are not to be found on the earth. According to him it is very likely that the biogenetic process exists on Mars, Venus and possibly some other planets of our system, as well as on planets of other solar systems, but plants on these planets have reached a higher stage of development than has been reached by animals and plants of this earth.

If we assume that Mars is inhabited—and Professor Haeckel seems pretty well satisfied that it is—we must assume, he holds, that the men and women whose home is on the planet are not such as we, but of a far higher type. They may resemble us exteriorly, but they are free from our physical defects and excel us in strength and gracefulness. It is in the intellectual sphere, however, that their superiority is most clearly shown. If there are human beings on these planets, says Prof. Haeckel, it is extremely probable that they far surpass ordinary men and women in intelligence.

"Of a Good Beginning" When you take Hood's Sarsaparilla to purify your blood you are making a good beginning, and the good will be health and happiness. This medicine cures all humors of the blood, creates a good appetite, overcomes that tired feeling and imparts vigor and vitality to the whole system. It is America's Greatest Blood Medicine.

Bilemian is cured by Hood's PILLS.

THE DRESSY WOMAN.

There has been an unprecedented demand this season for novel and fashionable black dress fabrics.

Khaki fabrics are among the popular materials for spring wear, and it will be found necessary in every instance to relieve this ugly sand color with white or colored silk or satin.

Many of the modish spring Etons and other jackets have narrow, medium length stole ends in front, with short, double revers on each side, reaching in length a little below the bust.

Some of the smartest street gowns for spring wear are formed of handsome, smooth finished costume cloth of light weight, with the still fashionable decoration of stitched straps of the same material.

In keeping with the revived fashion of plaiting dress materials, the Norfolk jacket will reappear en suite, with kilted costumes of tweed, cheviot, flannel, siberline, camel's hair, serge and other utility fabrics.

One of the great French authorities has said that, while many other effects will vie with it, the overskirt will take its place as a factor among other spring styles particularly suited to tall, slender women.

Among new French costumes are those of black satin faced cloth, with a finish of rows of white silk stitching on skirt edge and bolero or jacket, the costume finished either with a box of black and white ostrich tips or one of black and white chiffon and fringe.

On models for summer gowns appear skirts alternately tucked and filled in horizontal rows, with perpendicular side plaitings in clusters of five alternating with one rather wide box plait, with a mixture of fancy kilt and fan plaitings, the fabric first scalloped at the lower edge or bordered with braid or ribbon.—New York Post.

GLEANINGS.

A common sight in Cape Colony is a herd of ostriches accompanying a railway train as it speeds on its way.

A New Yorker who was in Kimberley recently was cured of homesickness by a familiar sight, nothing else than an old Broadway horse car, still bearing the legend, "Battery to Central Park."

A young man who was struck by lightning in Berlin a few weeks ago remained unconscious a long time, but shouted in his delirium that he was in hell and begged to have the devil taken away.

Thomas H. Gilbert, Jr., of Orono, Me., lately cut in Orono a pine tree that contained 3,200 feet and is claimed to be the largest pine or tree of any kind ever cut for lumber on record in the New England States.

A new method of preserving telegraph poles is to surround the portion in the ground with an earthenware pipe like a drainpipe. Into the space between the pole and the pipe is poured a mixture of sand and resin.

There are two well known families in Devonshire, England, the Careys and the Careys, and it is said that the members of the Carey family pronounce the name "Carey," while the Careys call themselves "Carew."

TWO LADS WHO STARTED EVEN.

Years When One Prospered While the Other Stood Still.

Thirty years ago Mr. H., a nurseryman in New York state, left home for a day or two. It was rainy weather and not a season for sales, but a customer arrived from a distance, tied up his horse and went into the kitchen of a farmhouse where two lads were cracking nuts.

"Is Mr. H. at home?"

"No, sir," said the eldest, Joe, hammering at a nut.

"When will he be back?"

"Dunno, sir. Maybe not for a week."

The other boy, Jim, jumped up and followed the man out. "The men are not here, but I can show you the stock," he said, with such a bright, courteous manner that the stranger, who was a little irritated, stopped and followed him through the nursery, examining the trees, and left his order.

"You have sold the largest bill I have had this season, Jim," his father, greatly pleased, said to him on his return.

A few years later these two boys were left by their father's failure and death with $200 or $300 each. Joe bought an acre or two near home. He has worked hard, but is still a poor, discontented man. Jim bought an emigrant's ticket to Colorado, hired as a cattle driver for a couple of years and with his wages bought land at 40 cents an acre, built himself a house and married. His herds of cattle are numbered by the thousands, his land has been cut up into town lots, and he is ranked as one of the wealthiest men in the state.

"I might have done like Jim," his brother said lately. "If I'd thought in time. There's as good stuff in me as in him."

"There's as good stuff in that loaf of bread as in any I ever made," said his wife, "but nobody can eat it. There's not enough yeast in it." The retort, though disagreeable, was true. The quick, wide awake energy which acts as leaven to character is partly natural, but it can be inoculated by parents.—Industrial Enterprise.

English Law as to Fins.
 A machintosh that did not fit was the subject of a legal decision in the Westminster county court. The Regent street shopkeeper who made the garment said that the purchaser (who sued for the return of three guineas paid) did not give him time to make another that would fit. The judge said a person was entitled to a "fit" when a garment was sent home, and any permission to alter or make a fresh article was mere good nature and not law. The case should not have been defended. He gave the disappointed customer his three guineas, with costs.—Birmingham Post.

HER COMING.

A month ago the year was growing gray: The rosy swallow and the oriole Had lured the summer southward, and the gay Deceitful breeze had a chill that stole The living green from the conifery leaves, Delecting them with fickle reds and gold, And laden days exhaled in empty leaves That murmured hollow protests to the cold. And then you came, a fair enchantress who, With half-revealing smile replaced the skies, And loosed the dreamy autumn with kind eyes, That offered spring and tenderness and there A wealth of roses in my path the day You turned a mid November late May.

THE SELF MADE MAN.

This Writer Must Have Met One That Did Not Like.

Notwithstanding the self made man does not reflect undiluted credit upon his maker, he is himself fully convinced that he is the perfect article.

Even if, as may sometimes be the case, he is conscious of a few imperfections, he refers them to his parents, who were responsible for the man in the rough, so to speak, before he began to mold himself into the ideal creature that you now behold and therefore not chargeable to his account.

It is a constant wonder to him that others with no worse material than he had to found himself upon should have turned out such inferior pieces of work, and it is natural, therefore, that he should condemn the droves of failures that he sees about him.

But happily for him he only observes others sufficiently to exalt his own greatness by comparison. His best hold and his strong suit is introspection. By looking within he has ever before his mental vision an object that swells his bosom with pride to look upon, and he makes the most of the show, which, being a continuous performance, keeps him ever busy and always supremely happy.

To others he may seem a sublime egotist and a conceited ass, but what is that to him? How are these underlings either to recognize or appreciate grandeur which it is impossible to conceive or to understand?

So he goes through the world worshipping his creator in an armor of self sufficiency which is impervious to the slings and arrows of the cynical or the contemptuous.

If he could see himself as others see him, he might discover many shortcomings, possibly some glaring defects, but he has no use for other's eyes. His own are good enough for his purpose, which is to admire his own handiwork.

He is a continual satisfaction to himself and is happy, and to others he is not without his uses. He gives them something to laugh at and something, besides, to avoid copying. In fact, who knows how much worse the world would be and how less amusing were it not for the self made man?

So, on the whole, we owe the self made man a great debt for his workmanship, and therefore let us thank him for his achievement.—Boston Transcript.

An Awkward Cigar Holder.
 "Probably no one but a German would ever have invented the thing, and now that he has invented it not even a German could tell to what use it could be put."

So commented the buyer for a big department store in search of novelties. The thing commented on appeared to be an umbrella, light colored and looking like other umbrellas with natural wood handles except that there was no ferrule at the tip. It turned out to be a cigar holder, for a silver cap on the handle end unscrewed, and there was a place for the butt of the cigar. Through the rod of the umbrella was a tube, and the thing was smoked by pulling at what turned out to be a mouthpiece at the tip.

A more ingenious thing for the purposes of a cigar holder could hardly be devised, and it was useless as an umbrella, for that part of it was a "fake." Yet somebody in Germany manufactures them, and a Chambers street dealer has had a lot shipped to him for sale. Why any one should buy such a thing is a mystery, and what he would do with it after the purchase is an even greater one.—New York Times.

Scorpions and Turkey Calls.

Did it ever occur to you to use a turkey call in squirrel hunting? I once had three gray squirrels up a large gum tree and had tried to slip up to them, but they saw me and hid. I went up as close to the tree as I wanted and sat down to wait for them to come out. I sat there 20 or 30 minutes, and they did not move the least.

I was in a fairly good turkey country and so got out my turkey call and made a few calls, and in less than two minutes all three squirrels were in sight, and in a good deal less time they were all mine on the ground. I take it that they thought that if it was safe for turkey to be calling they were in no danger of being called. I like to know if any one else ever had a like experience. If I ever get in a like situation I will make experiments until I am satisfied.—Forest and Stream.

Get What He Asked For.

"So you are looking for a position," said the merchant to the youth with the high collar and noisy necktie. "What can you do?"

"Oh, any old thing," replied the young man. "Of course I don't expect the junior partnership at the start, but I want to be sure of an early rise."

"Very well," replied the merchant. "I'll make you assistant janitor. You will rise at 4 o'clock every morning and sweep the floors."—Chicago News.

Entirely Too Far.

Bacon—Some people carry a joke too far.

Expert—Yes, Penman, the humorist, carried on to 14 different newspaper offices. I understand, and didn't sell it even then.—Yonkers Statesman.

Many Start.

"Arthur, we haven't had a quarrel for weeks and weeks."

"Haven't we? Well, we can easily get one up by discussing who was most to blame in the last one we had."—Indianapolis Journal.

It used to be the custom to eat what were called God's cakes on New Year's day. They were of triangular shape, about half an inch thick and filled with a kind of mince-meat.

There are two directly opposite reasons why some people cannot obtain credit. One is because they are not known and the other because they are.

Style on the street sometimes means a meager bill of fare at home.—Chicago News.

CURTAIN RAISERS.

Marie Tempest denies the report that she intends to sing in the music halls in London.

Charles Frohman is having a play, based on Peg Woffington, written for Maude Adams.

This thing grows. Fay Templeton mimics Fougere, and Fougere mimics Fay Templeton's mimicry of her.

Wilson Barrett's "Sign of the Cross" has been translated into Polish and has made quite a success in Warsaw.

Mrs. Campbell is to revive some of the Maeterlinck plays in London and produce others never seen there before.

Robert Lorraine, Julie Opp's former husband, who was to have acted with Ada Rehan in England, has gone to South Africa.

Marie Winwright has engaged Payton Gibbs to play Napoleon to her Josephine in her vaudeville sketch, "Napoleon Versus Josephine."

Wilson Barrett has added Robert Hichens in his dramatization of his novel, "The Londoners," and will act in the play in all probability.

Henrik Ibsen's "When the Dead Awake" has been acted in three German cities with success, although without giving the impression that it was likely to enjoy lasting popularity on the stage.

It seems that the new theater in St. Martin's lane, London, will not be owned by Charles Frohman after all, though that energetic American impresario will hold the lease of it and will establish there his London comedy troupe, headed by Seymour Hicks and Ellaline Terriss.

THE COOKBOOK.

When making bread, do not use too much salt or the loaves will not be light.

An appetizing relish for dinner meats is made from a cabbage heart cut into dice and pickled like little onions.

Following the English fashion, crisp, tender celery stalks are often nowadays headed around with cream cheese and crackers at dinner just before the coffee is served.

If chicken that is to be creamed in the chafin dish is marinated for a couple of hours in olive oil, the flavor of the dish will be much improved. Allow two tablespoonfuls of oil to a cup of chicken.

In creaming it later, use strong celery salt freely.

Slow Suicide.

A source of great evil among all workers is the widespread habit of eating a hearty meal hurriedly when the body is in a state of exhaustion. Too often, alas, the evil is enhanced by the fact that the food is innutritious, badly cooked and clogging in itself. This is one species of slow suicide, causing a long train of evils which are usually attributed to overwork. Now, it were better to go without food than to take it under these conditions. Your dog knows better than to eat when he is tired, and if you will watch him you will notice that he is always reluctant to be coaxed into play after eating. Left to himself he will take a nap, or at least drop care for awhile and rest. Humanity might raise its standard of health by following the example set by the instincts of the brute creatures.—Health Culture.

FULLY PAID AND NON-ASSESSABLE

We have already completed over 100 feet development work, 70 feet of which consists of surface work such as cross-cut, shallow shaft, etc. progressing to decide the best place to sink our main or working shaft. This has been found to be on the "Big 3" or main claim, and we are now down 30 feet and still pushing the work as fast as our practical mining and dynamite can possibly accomplish. Remember, we have three full claims, to wit: "Big 3," "Victor" and "Will of the Wisp," situated on Iron Mountain in the Burke mining district, Ferry county, Washington, six miles southeast of the famous Republic mine, and that there is a big ledge of porphyritic quartz covering all the three claims lengths from north to south and cropping for over 5,700 feet, and surface assays furnished $6 to $9 in free gold.
On the "Big 3" claim, while doing development work, we discovered a true fissure vein 4 feet wide cutting the formation east and west, which from picked samples assayed $28.00 in gold.

Our manager writes us, under date of March 1, 1900, that at a depth of 30 feet in our proposed main shaft he is working in a foot of fine quartz and it is widening as depth is acquired. He also says: "I am confident that a 'shaft' 100 feet deep will prove this property nearly as good as, if not equal to any of the great mines of the Republic 'Camp
as the same stage of development. Our latest assay from a depth of about 15 feet (main shaft) gave $16.53, 'a better showing than the Republic had at the same depth.'"

The company now offer 50,000 shares of treasury stock (NON-ASSESSABLE) AT THE LOW PRICE OF 1-1-2 CENTS
PER SHARE in order to raise funds to push the work with additional force.
There are 300,000 shares in the treasury and the above is the first offered for sale. The company being a reliable
one, and with such a phenomenal showing in their properties, it should induce immediate investment, so don't delay
as the price will positively be raised when this block is sold; every dollar we spend means greater depth to our shaft, wider lead and better assays. DON'T MISS THIS. IT'S A WINNER. Send your orders at once to the secretary.

UNCONSCIOUSNESS.

The Causes That Induce This Condition and Its Various Phases.

It is often difficult when a person is found unconscious to determine the cause of the condition. Yet this determination is of the greatest importance, since upon it must depend the treatment and perhaps the life of the sufferer.

Of course this is a task for the physician, and it is often one that taxes his acumen to the utmost. But there are certain signs which every one may learn to know and so be prepared to prevent misadventure before the physician arrives.

The chief causes of a sudden loss of consciousness are apoplexy, Bright's disease, diabetes, drunkenness, opium poisoning, injury to the head, epilepsy and fainting.

A person found unconscious should be placed on his back, the clothes, especially those about the neck, should be loosened, and he should have plenty of air, curious spectators being kept at a distance.

If the breath smells of alcohol, the first thought is that the man is drunk, but it is most unsafe to assume this to be the case without corroborative evidence. The man may have taken a drink just before the accident befell him, or he may have been slightly drunk, and in that condition he may have had a stroke of apoplexy or have fallen or been struck a blow on the head, or some bystander may have poured whisky down his throat with the mistaken idea of helping him.

The head should first be examined to see if the skull is broken. If there is a wound of the scalp or if blood is coming from one of the ears, which is a sign of a fracture of the base of the skull.

Note should be taken of the breathing.
If it is very slow, six or eight times or less a minute, the probability is that the case is one of opium poisoning. If the respiration is rather slow and anoring, with blowing out of the lips and of one cheek, apoplexy or concussion of the brain may be suspected.

In unconsciousness resulting from Bright's disease the breathing is usually more rapid and not noisy, and in that resulting from diabetes the inspiration is slow and prolonged, while expiration is short and quick.

A drunken man can usually be aroused temporarily if spoken to in a loud voice or pricked with a pin, and the same is true of one suffering from Bright's disease, but in apoplexy and opium poisoning the unconsciousness is usually complete.

Unconsciousness may be hysterical in its nature and may simulate any of the types mentioned above. A dash of cold water in the face will often restore consciousness with great rapidity in such a case.—Youth's Companion.

THE TROUT LAKE (B.C.) TOPIC

Of March 31, commenting editorially on the high grade of the Lardeau ore, says:

"For instance take the 'Nettie L.' A hundred feet beneath the surface ore was exposed giving $140.00 to the ton. The 'Silver Cup' did not appear high-grade at surface, but at 93 feet rich ore was struck, and this property is now paying $145.00 to the ton. The Silver Belt, on Brown's Ck., was poor on the surface, but at the point where crosscut intersected the vein ore runs into the thousands. The ROB ROY, at the head of the North Fork, located near the great Lime Dyke, was considered a low-grade proposition from surface indications,
but in the tunnel which exposed the vein at a depth, gray copper is showing up. Regarding this property and the section of which it is representative, it has been maintained that many of the Leads in and near the Lime Dyke were low-grade. But as a matter of fact none of them have been tapped at a depth with the exception of the ROB ROY, and here it has been demonstrated that the grade of the ore is very greatly improved, so it is reasonable to suppose that a like improvement in quality will occur when depth is gained on other claims on the same Lead."

HOW LOWES GOT AWAY.

Young Man, Arrested on a Serious Charge, Escapes.

It will be remembered that a young man named Frederick Lowes, of Emily, left the country suddenly last fall on the eve of the day set for his marriage with one of Emily's fair damsels. The guests had assembled and everything was in readiness for the marriage ceremony. But the bridegroom came not, and after an hour's vain wait, a committee of investigation was sent over to the Lowes' farm to see what was the trouble. It was then learned that the young man had skipped the night before. Of course the wedding could not take place.

In the course of a few months the girl gave birth to a fine, healthy child, and soon after criminal proceedings were entered against Lowes by the girl's father charging him with seduction.

After waiting patiently Lowes was traced to Manitoba, where he was arrested.
Chief Constable Bell, of Lindsay, went for him, but did not get him, as the following letter will show—

Winnipeg, April 14th, 1900
Frederick Lowes was arrested by me on the 4th April, near Roland on a letter from J. Bell, of Lindsay. I brought him to Morden and locked him up in a cell and left him there until the 10th of the

BRITISH SUBJECTS HAVE 48 HOURS TO GET OUT

As a Sequel to Johannesburg Explosions Transvaal Government Expels British Subjects.

THE BOERS SHOWING A GREAT DEAL OF ACTIVITY

A Canadian Battery Has Landed in Portuguese East Africa and Will Join General Carrington in His March to the Relief of Baden-Powell's Force.

Pretoria, April 30.—As a sequel to the Johannesburg explosion the Government has ordered British subjects with a few exceptions to leave the Republic within 48 hours. Nearly 24,000 have subscribed for the relief of the victims.

London, May 1.—The Boers are now showing uncommon activity west of Bloemfontein. They are in force between Fourteen Streams and Kimberley. On Sunday they occupied Windmorton, west of the railway, and now threaten to interrupt the communications of the British forces at Warrenton to the north. This too at a time when General Buller is about to start on a 200 mile march to Mafeking, probably with 8000 men.

To the east of Bloemfontein, the Boers on Sunday were still holding the hills near Thaba N'Chu, while behind them, long wagon trains, loaded with wheat for the Boer army in the north are moving through Ladybrand.

The British captured one Boer convoy on Saturday, but its size is not mentioned in the despatch, which barely announces the fact.

Wepener, lately the scene of incessant fighting, is deserted. Gen. Brabant and Colonel Dalgety having moved northward.

According to information from Nazeu, the main body of the Boers reached Lesau River, due west of Ladybrand, Sunday. Small parties being left behind at intervals of 10 miles to protect the rear and whip up the herds.

Eight outposts along the line place daily beyond Kamek Siding, where the head of the British invasion is centered. African horse sickness has broken out in the General Buller's army, it proves especially fatal among freshly arrived animals.

The Bloemfontein correspondents point out that the deficiency in the veterinary department causes thousands of losses.

General Lucas, replying to General Buller's complaint that some of the British prisoners at Pretoria are lodged in the town jail, says that only those are so lodged who have tried, or who are suspected of trying to escape. He replies moreover that the Boer prisoners are confined in the town jail at Plesmaritzburg, with natives.

The morning papers give especial prominence to the statement of a news agency that Sir Redvers Buller sent his resignation to Lord Roberts after the Spion Kop campaign and that Lord Roberts declined to accept it. The war specialists to-day consider chiefly of detached scraps, the favorite introduction of the military commentators and editorial writers being that on only scant news has been wired something big is probably about to happen. The Daily Chronicle's expert says:—"If a solid victory is to be attained the British must have different leadership from what has been displayed in the Dweers Dorp operations."

CANADIAN BATTERY AT BEIRA.

Portion of the Second Contingent Has Landed at Beira.

London, April 30.—From Beira, Portuguese East Africa, under date of Monday, April 23, comes the news of the arrival there of a Canadian 12-pounder battery. It is added that Sir Frederick Carrington, who is to command the British troops going to Rhodesia, has been cordially welcomed by the Portuguese officials and that he has reviewed the Portuguese troops.

MAFEEKING WELL ON APRIL 12.

Determines Attack Repulsed with Heavy Loss by Powell.

London, April 30.—Cape Town reports that Dr. Jamieson has recovered from the severe attack of fever from which he has been suffering, and he is mentioned as a candidate for one of the seats in the Cape Parliament, representing Kimberley, in succession to Dr. Frederick Sutherland Harris.

The agent of Mr. Julius Well at Mafeking wrote under date of April 13 most cheerfully saying everything was satisfactory. He added that the Boer guns were firing heavily into the town, and that a determined attack had been repulsed without casualties on the British side.

The continuous ravages of the war can be gained from a Cape Town despatch dated to-day briefly announcing the arrival from Mafeking of 25 officers and 250

SPREAD OF MORMONISM IN CANADA.

The Rapid of the Mormons in This Country is Seriously Alarming Dominion Officials.

Quebec, April 30.—Canada is becoming seriously alarmed at the rapid spread of Mormonism in some parts of the country, especially in the northwest. The Mormons themselves claim to be increasing in the Dominion at the rate of thousands per year, and assert that within the last year they have brought in over 2,000 emigrants from Utah alone.

If this is continued Canadian public men fear that they will shortly control large sections of the country. As the bulk of the people in southern Alberta have come from Utah, and as the Mormons have so through an organization, it is drawing upon the country that they may become a serious menace to the state, especially as there is a great suspicion among their Gentile neighbors that polygamy is practiced secretly by these Canadian Mormons. Many of the leading elders in Alberta assert that polygamy is one of the chief privileges of the communion, and it is asserted that in some cases the privilege has been held out as a bait to would-be adherents of the basic sort. Consequently the attention of the government of the Dominion is being called to these Mormon colonies.

Outside of Alberta and the other northwest provinces of Canada the Mormons claim to have no fewer than 10,000 members in the province of Ontario. The leaders or "evangelists" of the church endeavor to obtain a footing in new centers by posing as "ministers of the Gospel." They profess at first to follow Christ and the apostles very closely and keep the peculiar doctrines of the Mormon church very much in the background until they gain the confidence of their converts.

They use every effort in their power to proselytize. The Canadian leaders invariably agree with those with whom they come into contact, until they have secured their adhesion, and their more questionable doctrines are only made known to them by degrees.

They keep a close watch over their young people, especially those who go away from home. Some of the girls in the northwest go into the towns of Southern Alberta and get situated, but they are not allowed to stay very long. The church sends for them to come home again, lest the influence of Christian teaching should alienate them from their own faith.

horses and cattle stolen and of cruel treatment. The English residents were subjected to taunts and insults.

CANADIANS AT THABA N'CHU.

They Did Most of the Fighting Prior to Its Capture.

Bloemfontein, April 27.—Gen. Smith-Dorrien, with the Canadians, occupied Thaba N'Chu on Thursday. The Boers retired to Ladybrand after fighting a rear-guard action throughout Wednesday's retreat. The Canadians, spread out in skirmish order, were Gen. Smith-Dorrien's vanguard, and had to do most of the work. The shrapnel and a battery of the Gordon Highlanders were also with Gen. Smith-Dorrien. Christian Hilder's farmhouse has been burned. A white flag was flying over it, but this was regarded as a decoy, as many armed Boers were seen in the vicinity. Mr. Richter is not charged with shooting at British soldiers while the white flag was flying over his house, but he is under arrest.

LOSSES OF THE CANADIANS.

Private Delee was the Only Man Killed at Israel's Post.

Ottawa, April 30.—A cable from Lieut. Colonel Otter, dated Bloemfontein, April 28, was received by the Militia Department this morning. It states that Pte. E. F. Purcell died on April 22nd of enteric fever. In the action near Bloemfontein on the 24th instant (Israel's Post) No. 204, Pte. Delee, R.C.A., was killed. Lieut. Col. Otter and No. 7454, Pte. R. Burns, G.G.F.G., were slightly wounded. Another man was also slightly wounded, but he has not yet been identified. Col. Otter states that the Canadians did well. He gives no particulars as to his own wound.

THE BOERS GOT AWAY.

They Escaped Just Twenty-Four Hours Before the British Arrival.

London, April 28.—The Times has a special from Bloemfontein, dated April 28.—The operations for the purpose of clearing the right flank of our communications in the Free State and automatically relieving Wepener succeeded, but the Boers, mainly through the instrumentality of Botha's generalship, slipped the cord which we intended to throw around them. We appear to be forestalled by Commandant Botha just 24 hours.

The latest reports from before Thaba N'Chu state that the enemy is still withdrawing guns and wagons. This points to little intention to dispute the road to Ladybrand. By May 1 our front should cover the whole proposed Ladybrand-Bloemfontein railway line seventy miles long. The main points of the front from left to right will be Kamek Siding, Krantzkrans, Springfield, waterworks, Thaba N'Chu, Lesau River mills, and Ladybrand, each of which will be held by an adequate force. Tucker's division and mounted infantry holding a portion of the front from Kamek to Krantzkrans. During the week occasional outpost affairs with Boer scouts. The Boers' Horse emptied some Boer saddles. General Run- die has joined Gen. Hamilton at Thaba N'Chu. His march was devoid of incident. It appears unlikely that the Boers will dispute our advance towards Ladybrand.

The country, however, appears difficult and it would be rash to assume that the enemy will not contest it. The British succeeded by good leadership, notably on the part of Generals French, Pot-Car- ew, and Brabant. In again clearing the southeast of the Free State of the enemy and relieving Wepener, which taught the Boers how the loyal colonials can fight. The escape of the Boer main force is a disappointment, but a disappointment for which few in the circumstances can have been unprepared.

KRUGER DISHEARTENED.

Hopes to Find a Soldier's Death in the Field.

London, April.—Some interesting details of the Boer army are furnished by a Bloemfontein correspondent. The Boers had in December 60,000 men. In March they had barely 25,000, having lost 3,000 in killed or wounded and 4,500 in captured. The others are not accounted for, but have probably returned to their farms. The approach of winter will produce further wholesale shrinkage. The Boers are short of wagons, wheat and smokeless powder.

President Kruger by look and voice shows himself disheartened. He is nearly always in the field, where he ardently hopes to find a soldier's death.

At Johannesburg, as in Pretoria, the country is dead, and many despair of its ever coming to life again.

The commandant at Johannesburg has issued a proclamation, forbidding citizens going near the mines, from which it is assumed that there is some truth in the reports that arrangements have been made for their destruction. A good many burghers appear to believe the golden mines constitute a sort of hostage which God has placed in their hands.

It is said that as soon as General Buller learned of the publication of General Lord Roberts' strictures on the conduct of the Ladysmith relief operations, tendered his resignation to Gen. Roberts, who refused to accept it.

An artillery combat was proceeding at Kamek Siding Sunday afternoon, but no details have been received.

WELLAND CANAL OUTRAGE IS LIKELY A FENIAN PLOT

Report From Dublin Says That Nolan Was Implicated in the Exchange Court Explosion.

SENSATIONAL DEVELOPMENTS MAY BE EXPECTED

It is Alleged That if Nolan and the Others Are Convicted Light Will be Thrown on Several Crimes—The Adjourned Trial Was Begun Yesterday.

London, April 30.—Reports come from Dublin of considerable uneasiness in the circles with which Nolan Walsh and Rowan (Dullman), the three men arrested in Canada in connection with the blowing up of a lock of the Welland canal, near Thorold, Ontario, on the evening of April 21, are alleged to be connected, and the authorities anticipate some hasty departures from the city.

It is said that John Nolan had previously been arrested for complicity in the Exchange Court Explosion near Dublin Castle. Nolan, Walsh, Rowan (Dullman) and John Merna sailed for Philadelphia in November, and it is now suggested Merna has been "removed" by his comrades.

It is further alleged that if Nolan and the others are convicted light will be thrown on several noted crimes.

PRISONERS ON TRIAL.

Connection of Dullman With the Other Two Firmly Established.

Welland, Ont., April 30.—The adjourned trial of Nolan, Walsh and Dullman, accused of an attempt to blow up the canal lock gates at Thorold, was begun at 10:15 this morning. W. M. The witnesses were excluded from the court-room at McBurney's and Gorman's request.

George Dolphin, of the Dolphin House, Niagara Falls, N. Y., also the south end of the canal, identified the men as registered at the house; Dullman on April 11 and 14, Nolan and Walsh on the 15th. The two latter registered as John Smith and Thos. Moore, of New York and Washington, D.C.

A REMARKABLE BANDIT.

BILL BRAZLETON, ARIZONA'S NOTORIOUS LONE ROBBER.

Originated the Single-handed Method of Holding Up Stage Coaches—A Marvelous Pistol Shot—Noted by a Confederate.

As courageous and reckless a bandit as ever robbled a stage coach or held up a gambling game was Bill Brazle-ton, who was known all over the west in his days for his wonderful courage and the remarkable skill he exhibited with his guns. He made his headquarters in Arizona and it was there that he originated the idea of holding up stage coaches and robbing the passenger single handed. Speaking of Brazleton, ex-Sheriff Bentley, of Globe, Ariz., recently said: "Brazleton was A MARVELOUS SHOT

and I have seen him perform feats with the revolver that are almost incredible. Once in Yuma I saw him throw a golf of wood of the size and shape of a croquet ball into the air and then wait completely about on his heel and put two bullets through it before it reached the ground. I saw him light a six-inch circle on a board 90 feet away, and then when some one had suddenly blindfolded him he raised his weapon and put a ball into the circular mark. He was the quickest-eyed and steadiest-handed shooter I ever came across. It seems that there was a long chapter in his career before he came to Arizona in 1877. He was known as Hunter at Abilene, Kan., from where he was driven away for murder by a vigilance committee. We have heard that a man of his description bearing the name of Henderson served a term at Fort Smith prison in Arkansas for the murder of a soldier. In May, 1877, he made his appearance in Arizona.
This is where two unusually bold robberies of the Florence and Yuma stage were committed by a lone highwayman. Each time the booty amounted to more than $1,000. In July, 1877, another stage was robbed
by a lone highwayman near Deming, N. M. and two gold bricks were taken from the express company's treasure box. For two subsequent years this highwayman committed daring crimes with impunity.

"The lone highwayman, as he came to be called, was a magnificent specimen of manhood. He stood six feet in his stockings; was handsome; his black eyes were bright; his countenance open.
The method pursued was always the same. He always carried a brace of revolvers and a rifle. Resting on his right hand, by the side of the trigger of his rifle, was placed one of the revolvers, so that in case the cartridge in the rifle became exhausted the revolver would be brought into play.

He could fire with either hand or with both hands, and could hit a five cent piece in the air with a revolver. As the stage advanced at full speed, the lone highwayman would jump from his hiding place, cover the driver and guard with his rifle, order every man and to get out; then he would take the valuables, order all back into the coach warning them that an outcry meant certain death, mount and ride away as rapidly as his splendid horse could carry him.

HELD UP A GAMBLING GAME.

"There was a prosperous little gold camp known as Oro Fino in the southern part of Cochise county, close on the border between Sonora, Mexico, and Arizona. Some of the hardest characters among the Mexicans and half breeds were there. Every man in Oro Fino went armed, and there were men of good shot there. Not one person in ten thousand would think of a hold-up of a gambling game in such a community. It seemed almost like inviting sure death. But Brazleton was never daunted by odds.
Late one night, when the men in camp who drank hard when the worse for the evening's dissipation and the crowd had thinned out, suddenly the door of the Bella Union saloon swung open, and in walked Brazleton with a revolver in each hand. The men there told me afterwards that he looked enormous as he strode into the saloon.
He wore no mask, and he was dressed with uncommon care. His great mustache was waxed to fine points, and pushed back from his forehead. Several men who were gaming in the saloon when he entered have said that his consummate coolness, his extraordinary daring and his impressive mien all had powerful effect like hypnotism upon them, and while they could have instinctively reached for their weapons had any other outlaw come to rob them, they sat there and simply gaped at Bill while he picked up some $700 in gold of the fair dealer's money.

"Brazleton stood a second at the door to make sure that he took in the whole scene and that no one was behind to shoot him. Then he strode forward to the faro table, while a masked confederate appeared from out of doors and stood upon the threshold to keep watch upon the byways of the saloon.
Brazleton played the important role.
No one made an objection by word of act to Bill as, still keeping his black eyes upon the little assemblage, and having his cocked pistol in his right hand, he calmly picked up with his left hand, several six-inch shells and two gold pieces and dropped them into a hunting bag he carried at his side.
Then he backed to the open door, which was guarded by a confederate, and disappeared in the darkness. A posse of men followed him but he was not heard of months afterwards and then he was 200 miles away.

"In 1879 there occurred the most startling robbery that had yet taken place.
It was committed at a point not far from Prescott. There were $20,000 or $30,000 in the possession of the guards, whose number had been increased. As the stage was being driven along it was noticed that a big brown horse was tied to a cactus tree at the roadside.
A few yards further on a man with a gunny sack over his face sprang into the road. Throw up your hands and throw out the box, was the order peremptorily given. The first man who moves I'll kill him. I'm a dead shot.
At the same time he covered the driver with two revolvers, one in each hand.
Every one laid down his gun. Then he ordered all to stand back from their arms. Next he commanded the box to be broken open. His orders were obeyed, the money was taken and the lone highwayman rode away.

KILLED SEVEN WOULD BE CAPTORS

"Next there was a robbery committed on the stage between Silver City, N. M., and El Paso, Tex. Again it was done by the lone highwayman. Seven Mexicans followed him. The seven were subsequently found dead on the road.
The way he killed them was as follows:
explained, was this: He lay down on the desert to rest, when he discovered that his armed pursuers were close upon him. He jumped on his horse and rode fast until he got them strung out.
Then he shot the men one by one until they were killed. The other two fled. He followed and killed them also. No one was left to tell the tale, and for a long time it was thought the seven came to their death at the hands of Indians.

BETRAYED BY A CONFEDERATE.

"Ex-Gov. L. C. Hughes, of Tucson, was then United States district attorney, and he discovered the first clue to the robber. A man named Davis Nimitz was found riding a horse corresponding in every point with that of the lone highwayman. The district attorney ordered the arrest of Nimitz, who was induced to confess. Then United States Marshal Tuttle, of Tucson, devised a scheme for capturing Brazleton. It was planned that Nimitz should break out of jail and escape to Brazleton's hiding place in the San Geronimo mountains.

This was done, and Brazleton arranged to have Nimitz meet him the next night. Nine of the bravest men and best shots in Tucson were chosen to help the officers in getting Brazleton.
One man, who resembled Nimitz, was chosen to personate him. The posse went stealthily up into the mountains and took place behind rocks overlooking the scene of the proposed meeting between Brazleton and Nimitz. Every man was well armed. It was slightly moonlight.

"According to instructions the man who had been chosen to personate Nimitz coughed once at exactly 8 o'clock.
Then Brazleton came crouching down the mountain side amid the boulders and granite rocks. The man who personated Nimitz coughed twice, and then Brazleton coughed three times as he drew nearer. The other man was to have coughed again, but he was too nervous. Brazleton seemed assured that it was all right, and he ran forward, with his rifle across his shoulder, to meet the supposed Nimitz.

"Come, let's go and pack up," he said. Just at that moment he saw that the man was not Nimitz. He whirled about to get his clutch on his rifle, while the man before him raised his pistol.
Both men, however, were too slow. The eight concealed men among the rocks round about fired a volley and Brazle-ton fell to the earth. He gasped:
"Trapped! trapped! trapped!" and died choking with blood.

THE TROUT LAKE (B.C.) TOPIC

Of March 31, commenting editorially on the high grade of the Lardeau ore, says:

"For instance take the 'Metall' A hundred feet beneath the surface ore was exposed giving $140.00 to the ton. The 'Silver Cup' did not appear high-grade at surface, but at 93 feet rich ore was struck, and this property is now paying $145.00 to the ton. The Silver Belt, on Brown's Ck., was poor on the surface, but at the point where crosscut intersected the vein ore runs into the thousands. The ROB ROY, at the head of the North Fork, located near the great Lime Dyke, was considered a low-grade proposition from surface indications,
but in the tunnel which exposed the vein at a depth, gray copper is showing up. Regarding this property and the section of which it is representative, it has been maintained that many of the Leads in and near the Lime Dyke were low-grade. But as a matter of fact none of them have been tapped
at a depth with the exception of the ROB ROY, and here it has been demonstrated that the grade of the ore is very greatly improved, so it is reasonable to suppose that a like improvement in quality will occur when depth is gained on other claims on the same Lead."

FREE HUMAN BRAIN CELLS.

THEY REFUSE TO WORK UNDER TOO HIGH A PRESSURE.

Put on Too Much Steam and These Minute Organisms Go on Strike. Why Men Go Crazy or Become Absent-minded.

Keeping pace with scientific thought and progress certain problems which in the past have been shelled for want of light being thrown upon them have been taken up again one by one to undergo further examination by the aid of improved science.

The newest revelation in this direction tends to the science of the mind and includes the following problems:

Why does a man act queerly when he is intoxicated?

Why is a man absent-minded on occasions?

Why does a man sometimes become violently insane, often a dangerous, raving lunatic?

Such questions as these have puzzled our immediate fathers, who have hardly ever satisfactorily explained them away or indeed thrown much reliable light upon them.

The human brain is composed of cells, and each cell is a simple bit of nerve substance, from one end of which, like an octopus, spring a number of tentacles, while from another part arises an arm different from them and of great length. The long arm is intended for transmitting impressions from one portion of the brain system to another, it being made to touch the tentacles or short arms of the next one to it, the latter in its turn effecting contact with a third cell, and so on.

Thus a message is conveyed and the mind gets its news. The entire brain is made up of these cells, whose number is legion and whose full strength is grouped in systems, these systems in turn being arranged in communities, the communities in clusters and finally the clusters in constellations, by which divisions they are known to physiologists.

So long as the mind is in a healthy condition each little cell, or brain octopus, attends to its business faithfully and gives no trouble, but as man generally is an animal who usually refuses to live the life spanned out by nature and adopts instead the life laid down by the modern artificial process of living, instituted forthwith by civilization, mental disturbances frequently arise through the brain becoming abused in various ways, from overwork and alcohol principally.

Your octopoidal brain cell is a living little thing, and it can endure a great deal of abuse from you, but if you should go a little too far it rebels and refuses to work any longer by breaking contact with its companion cells, which it can do by withdrawing its long arm and getting itself out of circuit. But this rebellion is conducted by whole groups of cells acting together in full harmony.

Now, the object of this "strike" is simply to avoid overwork, for each tiny cell has stored within its minute space only a certain amount of energy, but if you put on the high pressure this is easily consumed by the operation of the brain, and the organism breaks down from exhaustion. Now, take the first of the problems just stated. When a person takes too much to drink, the cells in these patches of the brain that are responsible for the conduct of muscular movement become affected and the man staggers.

When the dose is very large, the cells, which, although stupefied, have tried to keep their master on his legs, now cease working, and the man sleeps like one dead. Finally, if more than enough of alcoholic drink be taken, the effect on the cells is to paralyze them, and the unfortunate man dies.

There is some relation between extraordinary activity of the mind and insanity. Geniuses are apt to exhibit symptoms of mental alienation, and, singular to relate, their children are usually inferior to those of average men.

For instance, not to go out of England, for example, Cromwell was a hypochondriac and had visions, Dean Swift inherited insanity and was himself not a little mad, Shelley was called by his friends "Mad Shelley," Charles Lamb went crazy, Johnson was another hypochondriac, Coleridge was a morbid maniac, Milton was of a morbid turn of mind, nearly approaching insanity (modern ideas of madness are largely formed on the description evolved by his diseased imagination), and Byron said he was visited by ghosts.

This mental alienation occurring in the foregoing cases shows that certain specific groups of brain cells have come under the baneful influence of the guiding spirit called talent or genius, which has used up all the energy stored in each cell and each group of cells, to the detriment of the whole, with the result that various types of insanity as depicted or, to phrase it more softly, induced disturbance of the mental equilibrium.

The remaining problem is absent-mindedness. This is produced by a temporary disjunction of certain groups of cells. A man becomes so absorbed in his study of some particular subject and leads his whole mind to thought that the hard thinking disorganizes the groups of cells employed in the process of reflection, their tentacles being turned all one way, to the detriment of mental action generally, and so the man with the tentacles of his brain cells turned in the one direction passes along the streets lost to all observation or mental perception and does all manner of queer things because he is not conscious of what is going on around him.

Some of the first seven peculiarities may be found in harmless men, but it is only in the vipers that they are united.—Oting.

Bread in Havana. Havana's bread carts are usually two wheeled, but in bread is carried about the streets in large, shallow baskets borne on top of men's heads. It is served in sticks as long as a baseball bat or in loaves or pears, one of which is supposed to serve for the morning meal of an ordinary day.

"After having a mishap, I suffered with pain in my left side and a lingering cough which grew worse and worse," writes Mrs. Cora Brooks of Martin, Franklin County, Georgia.

"Last spring I got past doing anything and my husband went to the drug store and called for Wine of C—, and the merchant recommended Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, so he bought one bottle. I began to take it as directed in the pamphlet wrapped around the bottle. The book said if the disease was complicated with cough to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Favorite Prescription' alternately, and Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, on rising every morning. Mr. Brooks went back to the drug store and got the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and I took it as directed. The cough left me at once and I began to get better so rapidly my husband was astonished at my improvement. I am now able to work on the farm and also do the washing for two families."

THE DRESSY WOMAN.

There has been an unprecedented demand this season for novel and fashionable black dress fabrics.

Khaki fabrics are among the popular materials for spring wear, and it will be found necessary in every instance to relieve this ugly sad color with white or colored silk or satin.

Many of the modish spring Etons and other jackets have narrow, medium length stole ends in front, with short, double rows on each side, reaching in length a little below the bust.

Some of the smartest street gowns for spring wear are formed of handsome, smooth finished costume cloth of light weight, with the still fashionable decoration of stitched straps of the same material.

In keeping with the revived fashion of plaiting dress materials, the Norfolk jacket will reappear en suite, with kilted costumes of tweed, cheviot, frieze, linen, camel's hair, serge and other utility fabrics.

One of the great French authorities has said that, while many other effects will vie with it, the overskirt will take its place as a factor among other spring styles particularly suited to tall, slender women.

Among new French costumes are those of black satin faced cloth, with a finish of rows of white silk stitching on shirt edge and bolero or jacket, the costume finished either with a box of black and white ostrich tips or one of black and white chiffon and fringe.

On models for summer gowns appear skirts alternately tucked and flared in horizontal rows, with perpendicular side plaitings in clusters of five alternating with a rather wide plain skirt, with a mixture of fancy kilt and fan plaitings, the fabric richly scalloped at the lower edge or bordered with braid or ribbon.—New York Post.

GLEANNINGS.

A common sight in Cape Colony is a herd of ostriches accompanying a railway train as it speeds on its way.

A New Yorker who was in Kimberley recently was cured of homesickness by a familiar sight, nothing else than the old Broadway horse car, still bearing the legend, "Battery to Central Park."

A young man who was struck by lightning in Berlin a few weeks ago remained unconscious a long time, but shouted in his delirium that he was in hell and begged to have the devil taken away.

Thomas H. Gilbert, Jr., of Orono, Me., lately cut in Onawa a pine tree that contained 2,200 feet and is claimed to be the largest pine or tree of any kind ever cut for lumber on record in the New England States.

A new method of preserving telegraph poles is to surround the portion in the ground with an earthenware pipe like a drainpipe. Into the space between the pole and the pipe is poured a mixture of sand and resin.

There are two well known families in Devonshire, England, the Careys and the Careys, and it is said that the members of the Carey family pronounce the name "Carey," while the Careys call themselves "Carew."

Early grayness, without baldness, is said to be an indication of long life.

MR. KELSO'S POSITION.

His Attempt to Shield Himself Not a Success.

A DISCREDITED LETTER.

His Efforts to Show That Nelson Gray Was Well Treated.

Are a Total Failure—The Whole Business Looks Bad, and Should Have the Attention of the Government At Once—A System of Inspection the Only Safeguard.

The shaking up which is being given to the department, of which Mr. J. J. Kelso is the head in connection with the case of Nelson Gray, will, we trust, result in a change of methods. That a hum an being would be kept for so long a time, in a Christian community, and compelled to labor from 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning until dark at night, half naked in the cold winter weather, is a shame and a disgrace. The story of this poor boy has been told in these columns. He belonged to a Toronto Orphanage, was placed with a farmer in Asphodel, where he was supposed to remain until his "cure" of age. His earnings a miserable pittance was to be sent to the Orphanage, and placed in the bank and was to be his when he completed 21 years of servitude. The unfortunate lad served six years of his time, during which something over 150 of his earnings had accumulated. Neighbors testify to the brutal treatment which the lad was subjected to. He was repeatedly knocked down by his master, and mistreated; was compelled to work from 3 to 4 o'clock in the morning until dark, and never had five cents in his life. He was most miserably clad, never having an undershirt or pair of drawers in his life. When things became no longer bearable the lad ran away and came to Peterboro presenting himself at the Police station. He was taken and fed. His appearance excited pity, and when the facts became known, public indignation was aroused. The chief of Police wrote to the Orphanage, and a letter was received asking the boy to return to work. A threat was held out that if he did not do so he would forfeit the fifty odd dollars which he had earned. The poor boy, having no friends to advise him, returned. But the people were not satisfied. On account to the public given the Times, an investigation was ordered, with the result that the lad was removed to Toronto. Then Mr. Kelso, finding that his department was in bad odor, attempted to straighten matters up by writing a letter to the press, in which he tried to make the people believe that the facts were greatly exaggerated, and that the boy was really anxious to return to Asphodel. This it will be seen was to give the lie to a large number of neighbors who testified to the harsh treatment. It was a weak attempt on Mr. Kelso's part to let himself down easy, and one that was a total failure.

What the Times would like to know is, why is there not a system of inspection similar to that in the Barnardo Homes? Without inspection there is no certainty how many cases there may be, similar to this one. Then why did the Orphanage dare to threaten to deprive the boy of the trifle of money belonging to him? One would have thought that the Orphanage and Mr. Kelso would have been first to get the boy away from his cruel master. We hope the government will see to it that a proper inspection is made of all similar institutions, and this without delay.

"Safe blind, safe find." Fortify yourself by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla now and be sure of good health for months to come.

Here Bad Management.

The dust yesterday was unbearable, and when the Times appealed to one of the aldermen to know why the watering carts were not out, we were told that there had been gross mismanagement. The carts were not put in condition until very late, and then it was found that the street inspector failed to have the water turned off the standpipes last fall, the result being that they were badly injured by the frost, and required new valves. We would have thought that the onerous duties of our overpaid officials were not so numerous as to let them neglect a matter of this kind.

Man Wanted.

A good, steady man wanted to whom will be paid a straight salary. Apply at Times Bookstore. Pleasant work in town.

Do Not Require Pruning.

A. A. Thomas, the celebrated American authority on parks, trees and landscape gardening says: "Generally speaking, trees and shrubs do not really require any pruning at all, except the removal of dead and deformed portions of growth. Never cut a tree. The nurseryman must trim and prune to make a trunk but when once set in our lawns the beauty of a tree lies in the grace of its extended limbs and tops. Chop off the tail of your dog, if you must; shear his ears, if you will, but never cut a tree."

On Wednesday evening last a west bound freight train broke in two east of Coburne, and the engineer made the run into Cobourg before the accident was discovered. The train consisted of thirty-six cars. The van and a few cars were left down the track and the engineer had to go back with the engine and bring them up to Cobourg. Two trains following were delayed considerably by the accident.

Death of Mrs. John O'Neil.

Yesterday Mrs. John O'Neil, who lived at 189 Reid street, passed away, aged 74 years. The deceased had been a resident of the town about two years, coming with her daughter and grandchildren from Uxbridge, where she was highly esteemed. She had been in good health up until about a week ago, when she took a gripe, and in spite of everything that could be done for her. The remains will be taken to Uxbridge on the early G.T.R. train to-morrow for interment.

Again Discarded.

Toronto World:—Pte Hawes, who was to have been court-martialled this morning for deserting himself from the fort, disappeared on Saturday, and has not yet been heard from. About two weeks ago he suddenly left the barracks, and a few days later was located at Peterborough, where he formerly lived. A corporal's guard brought him back, and he was placed under arrest. On Saturday he was ordered to get some wood which was lying near the Exhibition fence. He accepted the opportunity to make his escape and jumped the fence. The sentry on duty gave chase, but failed to capture him.

Move Wanted.

Wanted.—By a couple who are starting housekeeping, at once, a second hand cook stove, good baker, and other household articles. Apply at Times for address.

Money in It.

The Times publishes the following paragraph for the encouragement of citizens who have been splitting wood all their lives and never got anything more desirable than a healthy appetite and a lame back:—John Fleming, of Beamsville, on splitting a log of wood a few days ago found eleven $20 gold pieces in the centre of the chunk. They had evidently been put in a hole bored in the tree, years ago, and the hole plugged up. Mr. Fleming is being congratulated by his friends.

St. Peter's T. A. Society.

A special meeting of the above society will be held Friday evening in the C.I.A. rooms for the purpose of completing the organization of a baseball and lacrosse club in connection with the society. A committee from the society attended the meeting of the city baseball league last evening.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

That golf is to be the popular pastime this season is assured. The action of the Club in securing a trainer is a good one, and should be the means of greatly increasing the membership.

There will be a practice at the Ashburnham grounds to-morrow evening. All the old players are requested to be on hand.

Trent Valley Canal.

Government Engineers, R. Rogers, J. B. Morphy and Patton and assistant went to Port Hope Monday and proceeded towards Rice Lake for the purpose of making survey of the route for the canal from Rice Lake to Port Hope. The engineers began to survey at Bewdley and we understand it is the intention to thoroughly investigate the proposed route. In the afternoon a party of the members of the Trent Valley Canal association of Port Hope, comprising Messrs. J. F. Clarke, R. A. Mulholland, Thos. Long, Wm. McCallum and J. A. Brown, drove out to Bewdley and met the engineers and had a pleasant talk upon the subject, impressing upon them the hope that a thorough survey would be made of this route.

The Nelson Gray Case

Editor Morning Times: Sir,—I am not satisfied, and I think the public at large also, that Mr. Kelso, head of the Children's Aid Societies of Ontario, is not all that he pretends to be, or that could be deserved. His letter, in the face of what is known in connection with the case of that unfortunate lad, Nelson Gray, was extremely ill advised. Mr. Kelso is either trying to save himself or the Orphanage or perhaps both. I'll bet $100 and will leave the money to the hands of yourself, Mr. Editor, if I win, the same to go to the Children's Aid Society, that the boy is not willing to go back to slavery, and that this part of Mr. Kelso's letter is not in accord with the truth.

The whole business looks crooked, and is as crooked as 17 corks. ONE WHO KNOWS. Westwood, April 28.

IRISHMEN AT THE CAPE FOR QUEEN AND COUNTRY

At a Meeting Where an Irish Association Was Formed Great Loyalty Was Shown.

LADY SARAH WILSON WRITES FROM MAFEKING.

Fighting, Heavier Than Anything Since Ladysmith, Seems Imminent Near Thaba N'Chu—Winston Churchill Describes Recent Engagements About There.

Cape Town, May 1.
At a big meeting held here to-night, an Irish association was formed. Those present cheered all references to the Queen, and the deputy mayor declared that the voice of the Irishmen in South Africa was for "Queen and Country."

Bloemfontein, Monday April 30.
Most of the Boers retreating from Wepener and Dewetsdorp are going to Winburg, as the British force at Thaba N'Chu renders a retreat to Brandfort risky. Reports are current that Brandfort may be abandoned without a fight. A general order has been published giving the Victoria Cross to an officer, a non-commissioned officer, and a gunner of a Battery of the Royal Horse Artillery for gallantry displayed during the recent fighting at Sannas Post.

London, May 1.
Lady Sarah Wilson, telegraphing from Mafeking April 19 says:—"The investment is so close that no runners have entered or issued forth for ten days. There was a terrific bombardment on April 11th but with the exception of destroying some houses it was harmless. The Boers then made a determined attack on the south-western fort, which was successfully repulsed.

The Boers have formed a new laager on the south. Many horses are dying of horse sickness. Trees are being cut down for fuel. The garrison is now eating the ambulance oxen, reserving the mules until the last. The daily ration is now six ounces of gritty oat bread, a pound of bully beef and a quart of skilly."

London, May 2.
Fighting, heavier than anything since Ladysmith, seems to be imminent near Thaba N'Chu. The despatches of Lord Roberts dated Monday and Tuesday show that the Boer rear-guard, stubbornly resisting his advance, forced the British on Saturday and Sunday to act chiefly on the defensive. General French, who is directing the operations, has at least 15,000 men. Some estimates give him 30,000. The Boers are estimated to be at least 6,000 and possibly 10,000. According to a despatch from Pretoria dated April 28 they were expecting to give battle and have numerous artillery.

As long as the Boers engage the attention of half of Lord Roberts' force at Thaba N'Chu, his advance towards Pretoria will be delayed. No one here, however, considers that Gen. Buller will be able to stand longer than a few days. The feeling is that he must be beaten off by the names of Lord Roberts.

The Boers attacked the British outposts at Boesmans, the headquarters of Lord Methuen, on April 23th, but without result. The British guns at Warrenton shelled the Boers out of their half-constructed trenches, Sunday.

London, May 2.
Winston Churchill, telegraphing to the Morning Post from Thaba N'Chu, April 23, and describing the operations there, says:—"Yesterday afternoon upon the withdrawal of the British demonstrations on both flanks of the enemy, the Boers pressed to close quarters, and Kitchener's Horse were unable to evict them until midnight. The suspense caused great anxiety. To-day's operations were intended to drive our, or to intercept the Boers. They occupied a wide horseshoe of mountains, with the convex face towards us. Gen. Hamilton succeeded in crushing the Boers on the right and opening a road for Gen. Dickson's cavalry brigade, which dashed through and routed the enemy from ridge to ridge, shelling them with horse artillery. At last we were at the horse-shoe, and the Boers in parties of 300 could be seen within the enclosed space, running around like rats in a trap.

Dickson hoped to make a bag, and he signalled to Hamilton regarding the situation. Hamilton came at once, bringing up every soldier he could find. Suddenly, about half-past four, the Boer army, nearly 6,000 strong, moved about the horse-shoe and began marching north-east. I had never before seen such an array of Boers. Their order was so regular that at first it was believed they were General Gordon's cavalry brigade. But they quickly opened with artillery. At the same time the Boers who had escaped earlier in the day from our imaginary trap returned in force on Dickson's left and rear with two guns. In these circumstances Dickson resolved to retire and he only just withdrew in time.

RESCUED A BRITISH CONVOY

General Brabazon Arrived in the Nick of Time.
London, May 1.—Neither the commander-in-chief nor the correspondents' despatches throw any light on the plans being adopted to oust the Boers from the neighborhood of Thaba N'Chu, and how long before a determined effort will be made to reassert British supremacy is only a matter of surprise. In the meantime the Boers are remarkably aggressive, especially in view of the large forces opposing them.

A special despatch from Thaba N'Chu dated yesterday, says they made a daring attempt to cut off a British convoy which got into broken ground between Thaba N'Chu and Dewetsdorp, opening fire from the adjacent hills. In the nick of time, Gen. Brabazon with a strong force of Yeomanry returning from Wepener, arrived on the scene and extricated the convoy.

The same special correspondent describes the dispositions of the force at Thaba N'Chu as follows:—"Gen. Buller is covering the advanced camp saving the Boer positions to the east, where they are strongly entrenched. Gen. Ian Hamilton and Gen. Smith-Dorrien occupy strong positions on the road to the north.

Another despatch says a column under Gen. Hamilton located the Boers to the northwest and an artillery duel ensued without result.

All accounts tell of much artillery firing with scarcely any casualties. It is hardly likely that two such forces can much longer patiently face each other without more stirring occurrences.

Gen. Brabazon's column is expected soon to join Gen. French. A number of Boers are reported to have been seen retreating north, but this is scarcely authoritative.

Stringent measures are being adopted to prevent the Boer guerrillas from securing supplies from other centres.

The little news from Thaba N'Chu is absorbing all interest.

The Cape Parliament has been summoned for June 22.

CANADIANS ARE MISSING.

Mounted Infantry Reported Lost on the Bagato Border.
London, April 30.—A despatch to the War Office from Gen. Buller, reports that two Canadian members of the Mounted Rifles are missing. They are:—
Sergeant R. H. Ryan, "B" Squadron, who was on the reserve of officers and bagged to Kesterville, N.S.
Pte. Thos. E. Linden, of "B" Squadron, who has been in "B" Squadron of the Royal Canadian Dragoons.

READY FOR THE FINISH.

Insurgents Trying to Obtain a Foot-hold in the Transvaal.
A special from Lorenzo Marques dated April 28 is as follows:—"A notable feature in connection with the 200 passengers brought on the Herzog is that the majority belong to the commercial and professional classes, rather than those assisting the Boers in the field. The probable explanation is a desire to secure a footing in the Republic before the British return. The Republican Government continues to buy enormous supplies of provisions. Practically all the goods brought on the German and French liners are landed direct into trucks and promptly despatched to the Transvaal. The Herzog discharged about 3,000 tons. Refugees continue to bring unfavorable reports concerning the treatment of British prisoners, who, on account of the scanty protection find the nights bitterly cold.

BLOWING UP THE RAILWAY.

Boers Destroy the Line to the South of Mafeking.
London, May 1.—4.25 p.m.—A despatch from Mafeking dated April 29, says:—"The Boers have been busy for several days blowing up the railroad southwards.

BRITISH BLUNDERS WILL BE DISCUSSED.

The Spion Kop Despatches Will be Dealt With in the House of Commons.

London, May 1.—In its editorial leader to-day the Times says:—"The Government have wisely recognized the strength of public feeling on the subject of the Spion Kop despatches, and Mr. Balfour yesterday announced that he would put down the salary of the Secretary of War as the first item in committee of supply on Friday, in order that it may be discussed.

Some misconception, he declares, has gathered round the controversy connected with the publication of those documents, and the ministers deem it desirable that they should be dealt with as soon as possible in the House. Whatever may be the merits of the grave question, or group of questions, raised by the issue of the despatches and by the nature of their contents, Mr. Balfour is undeniably in the right when he says that the matter cannot be adequately or wholly disposed of by questions and answers, and the sooner they are discussed in Parliament the better. They are not by any means confined to the publication of the Spion Kop or Stormberg papers, or to the events there chronicled.

The blunders at Koon Spruit and Karsie Siding, to say nothing of those at Reddersburg, still need to be explained, and it must be presumed that explanations with regard to all of them have been received and considered by the Government.

DELEGATES REPORT.

Trustee Hartley presented the following:—
To the Chairman and members of the Board of Education—
Gentlemen.—Your delegates who attended the Provincial Association of High and Public School Trustees of Ontario, held in Toronto on April 17, 18 and 19, beg leave to report as follows:—
Tuesday.
The convention opened at 2 p.m. After routine business the first number on the programme was a report of a committee on Manual Training, by Mr. J. E. Farewell, Q.C. of Whitby. The subject called forth a long and varied discussion, some maintaining that we had too many subjects already, others claiming that the subject would not warrant its adoption. But the majority was in favour of the adoption of the report, which was carried, recommending the adoption of the subject in all schools of Ontario, but not to have it compulsory.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Mr. Starr, chairman of Toronto Public School Board; and Hon. Mr. Harcourt, Minister of Education. The addresses were very pleasing and profitable, and many good suggestions were made, and many hints were thrown out to trustees, amongst others the fact that many incompetent teachers were employed on account of the small salaries at which they received their services. It was also remarked that often children were teaching children, that is to say, oftentimes young girls commenced to teach when some of their pupils were older than themselves. The Minister of Education stated that he proposed to make several changes with-in the next year, amongst others to raise the age limit.

Another matter considered was the superannuation of teachers. Some of the speakers claimed that often teachers were teaching when their usefulness was past, and that they did not like to put them off the staff, when perhaps they had not sufficient means of support. It was suggested that teachers institute a superannuation fund, and that all teachers pay a certain amount into this fund yearly; in this way they would provide for old age. Many other matters were touched upon, too numerous to mention in our report.

Wednesday, 9 a.m.
After general business, reception of auditors' report, and election of officers for 1901, a paper was read by Mr. Chas. Melgher, of Perth, suggesting that in the opinion of this Association, trustee officers would be more efficient in the discharge of their duties, if appointed by and under the control of trustees and Board of Education, than under the control of Police Commissioners or Municipal Council. After considerable discussion it was decided that the present system was preferable, and a motion was carried to that effect.

A paper was read by Mr. Leitch, of Brantford, on uniformity of Public School promotion examination papers throughout the province, recommending that instead of a yearly final test examination which determines the promotion of a pupil to a higher form, a system of yearly examinations be adopted and conducted as follows:—
(a.) Each subject to be taken in turn.
(b.) No subject to be taken the second time, until the others on the programme have been taken.
(c.) The paper to be returned marked to the pupil in order that they may see their errors.
(d.) The questions to be prepared chiefly by the teachers of the grade concerned, and by the principal and inspector.
(e.) The basis of the weekly examination to be the work of the term, up to the time of examination, the whole of the examination to cover the whole limit.

After prolonged discussion, a motion was carried recommending weekly examinations.

Wednesday, 2 p.m.
Discussion of questions suggested by the Minister of Education—
1. High School maintenance in towns separate from counties.
2. Should County Councils continue to have the appointment of High School trustees.
3. What shall be the interpretation of the term County School Pupil. It was decided to leave these questions as the present law provides.

4. Of what utility are public lectures by school inspectors.
The convention agreed that inspectors should give a public lecture at least once a year, when pupils and parents be invited to attend.

Thursday, 9.30 a.m.
A paper was read by His Honor Judge Ardagh, of Simcoe county, advocating that the present High School Entrance Examination should be done away with, and that it should be necessary for all pupils, hereafter to pass the Public School Leaving Examination before entering a High School. After considerable discussion the mover withdrew the motion, being convinced that it was not in the interest of pupils to have such change made.

A paper was read by Mr. E. B. Smith, suggesting that Model Schools should be abolished, and that the Normal term extended, so as to embrace an additional half year's practical instruction in kindergarten work, with the members present, and a motion to that effect was carried.

In conclusion we may say that the convention throughout was both interesting and profitable to those present, and we believe will be the means of making valuable recommendations to the Educational Department, which will greatly assist the Minister of Education in the course he may take for the advancement of the education of our boys and girls of this fair province.

(Signed) J. J. HARTLEY.
JAS. STEVENSON.

MAKING GREAT EFFORTS TO RETAKE THABA N'CHU

Lord Roberts Reports That Boers Made Persistent Attacks Around Thaba N'Chu.

ROBERTS WILL NOW ADOPT STERNER MEASURES.

The Commander-in-Chief Has Determined to Protect His Army Against the Treacherous Tactics Adopted by the Enemy—How Pte. Bradley Died.

London, May 1.—The Boers are again bringing into play with great success the tactics which enabled them to withdraw from Wepener before the British could come up with them. They are at this moment repeating the story of Wepener with slight variations. In the operations which ended in the escape of the enemy from the pursuit of French, Wepener was one objective of the British force, which was delayed by this outpost at Dewetsdorp long enough to have its mission made abortive. In the present operations Ladybrand is the objective of the 15,000 men at Thaba N'Chu and the Boer outposts are holding them in check while their campfires at Ladybrand are either withdrawing or rendering their position stronger. It is very probable that the present persistent attack around Thaba N'Chu, to the north of which the Canadians are stationed, are merely phases of an attempt to hold back the strong force advancing eastward towards Ladybrand. This would give the burghers who have been occupying the latter place and using it as a base of operations to the north time to remove their guns and stores farther north. That they will succeed in their object is likely, seeing that the country between the two places, which are forty miles apart, is rough and suited to Boer operations. It is scarcely probable, however, that General Roberts will advance northward before the seizure of Ladybrand which would offer too secure a stronghold from which the enemy could threaten his flank if it were left in their possession.

A GIANT RESERVIST.

A Soldier for Whom no Uniform was Big Enough.
London, April 31.—A novel and amusing difficulty has been encountered by the military authorities in providing for a member of the Royal Reserves who is with a draft sent to augment the regiment stationed at Warley Barracks.

The man is a giant—6 ft. 4 1/2 inches in height, and everything in proportion. It was found that no ordinary uniform would fit him, and until special measurements were made he had to be allowed to wear civilian clothing.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

Yesterday Mr. Murray, the professional golf player, arrived in town, and went at once to the links, where he immediately took charge of a very ambitious class of new beginners.

The Lacrosse Club had a good practice last night on the Ashburnham grounds.

The Peterboroughs have been placed in a district with Heaverton and Orilla. The Juniors will probably be in with Marmora, Stirling, Madoc, Norwood, Hastings and Campbellford.

A meeting will be held in the Y.M.C.A. tomorrow evening for the purpose of organizing a tennis club in connection with the Association.

Seventh Anniversary.

His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, celebrated solemn pontifical mass in St. Peter's cathedral yesterday morning, the occasion being the seventh anniversary of his consecration as Bishop of Peterborough. His Lordship was assisted by Ven. Archdeacon Casey, Rev. Father Jos. O'Sullivan officiated as deacon, and Rev. Frank O'Sullivan as sub-deacon. Rev. Dr. O'Brien was master of ceremonies. Other priests who were assembled in the sanctuary were Rev. Father Whitham, of Oshawa; Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, of Young's Point; Rev. Father John O'Brien of Sturgeon Falls. At the conclusion of the mass, His Lordship briefly addressed the congregation.

Police Court.

At the police court yesterday morning Wm. Davis and Frank Sheriff, who were suspected of a burglary at Havelock a week ago, came up on a charge of vagrancy after a week's remand. They were each sentenced to a month in gaol. The two had a regular tramp outfit, bundles of old clothes, newspapers, paper bags for handouts and twine. Patrick Roach was charged with peddling without license and was fined $10 and costs. Roach is from Port Hope and has been selling lake Ontario fish about town at 25 cents a dozen, and would need to sell a good many dozens to make up the amount of his fine. The prosecution had a witness present from Port Hope. A girl pleaded guilty to a charge of theft and was discharged on suspended sentence.

CORRUPTION IN ELECTIONS.

The finding of the court in the Halifax bribery cases ought to have a salutary effect in preventing similar offences in future elections in this Province. The most seasoned campaigner will scarcely break the law when he knows that a heavy fine or imprisonment is almost certain to follow, and voters with the faintest ideas of the value of the franchise will hesitate before they risk disenfranchisement for a number of years, as well as punishment by fine. Public sentiment is awakened on the question of election frauds, and it needs only the co-operation of the Government, which unfortunately they do not seem to give, to stamp them out altogether. It is to be regretted that the fullest powers were not allowed to the commission in the West Elgin case, the most glaring instance of election corruption that has yet come to light in this country, but even as it is the disclosures will have a strong deterrent influence on those who have hitherto made a business of bribing electors. Once it is made evident that these offences are regarded by the law as of serious character, and will be punished accordingly, the day of bribery and corruption in Ontario elections will have passed.

RUSSIA WATCHING JAPAN.

Minister Oguro officially informs this government that the Russians are pushing the Trans-Siberian Railroad toward completion with feverish haste. The branch line connecting Vladivostok with Port Arthur will be finished in August. Our Minister declares that Russia has 60,000 men in the Pacific coast, in anticipation of an attack from Japan.

So much has been said lately about this railroad across Siberia that the public will be surprised to learn that it is now quite possible to go from St. Petersburg to the furthest end of Siberia in nineteen days. A small portion of the route has to be traversed on a river steamer, and Lake Irkutsk is still crossed by ferry. The last remarkable fact about this six thousand miles of iron road is that the price of a first-class ticket has been fixed at fifty dollars; and so anxious is the Russian Government to colonize Siberia that settlers' tickets are sold at ten dollars to any point beyond the Volga.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The man with the hoe is getting in his work now.

Cobourg Post.—Hon. N. Kirchoffer, Brandon, and Mrs. Kirchoffer visited friends in Peterboro this week. They will occupy Mrs. Harris' pretty cottage this summer.

"The Better Part Of valor is discretion," and the better part of the treatment of disease is prevention. Disease originates in impurities in the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood. People who take it at this season say they are healthy the year round. It is because this medicine cures impurities and makes the blood rich and health-giving.

All liver ailments are cured by Hood's Pills. 25 cents.

HER COMING.

A month ago the year was growing gray; The festive swallow and the oriole Had turned the summer southward, and the gay Deciduous branches shed a chill that stole The living green from the condensing leaves, Deluding them with flicks and reds and gold, And laden days encamped in empty spaces That murmured hollow protests to the cold. And then you came, a fair enchantress who, With half-revealing smile replaced the skies, Reproved the dreary autumn with kind eyes, That offered spring and tenderness and threw A wealth of roses in my path the day You turned a sad November into May.

THE SELF MADE MAN.

This Writer Must Have Met One That He Did Not Like.

Notwithstanding the self made man does not reflect unadulterated credit upon his maker, he is himself fully convicted that he is the perfect article. Even if, as may sometimes be the case, he is conscious of a few imperfections, he refers them to his parents, who were responsible for the man in the rough, so to speak, before he began to mold himself into the ideal creature that you now behold and therefore not chargeable to his account.

It is a constant wonder to him that others with no worse material than he had to found himself upon should have turned out such inferior pieces of work, and it is natural, therefore, that he should condemn the droves of failures that he sees about him.

But happily for him he only observes others sufficiently to exalt his own greatness by comparison. His best hold and his strong suit is introspection. By looking within he has ever before his mental vision an object that swells his bosom with pride to look upon, and he makes the most of the show, which, being a continuous performance, keeps him ever busy and always supremely happy.

To others he may seem a sublime egotist and a conceited ass, but what is that to him? How are these underlings either to recognize or appreciate grandeur which it is impossible to conceive or to understand?

So he goes through the world worshipping his creator, increased in an armor of self sufficiency which is impervious to the slings and arrows of the cynical or the contemptuous.

If he could see himself as others see him, he might discover many shortcomings and possibly some glaring defects, but he has no use for other's eyes. His own are good enough for his purpose, while he is to admire his own handiwork.

He is a continual satisfaction to himself and is happy, and to others he is not without his uses. He gives them something to laugh at and something, besides, to avoid copying. In fact, who knows how much worse the world would be and how less amusing were it not for the self made man?

So, on the whole, we owe the self made man a great debt for his workmanship, and therefore let us thank him for his achievement.—Boston Transcript.

An Awkward Cigar Holder.

"Probably no one but a German would ever have invented the thing, and now that he has invented it not even a German could tell to what use it could be put."

So commented the buyer for a big department store in search of novelties. The thing commented on appeared to be an umbrella, light rolled and looking like other umbrellas with natural wood handles except that there was no ferrule at the tip. It turned out to be a cigar holder, for a silver cap on the handle end unscrewed, and there was a place for the butt of the cigar. Through the rod of the umbrella was a tube, and the thing was smoked by pulling at what turned out to be a mouthpiece at the tip.

A more ungainly thing for the purposes of a cigar holder could hardly be devised, and it was useless as an umbrella, for that part of it was a "fake." Yet somebody in Germany manufactures them, and a Chambers street dealer has had a lot shipped to him for sale. Why any one should buy one is a mystery, and what he would do with it after the purchase is an even greater one.—New York Times.

Squirrels and Turkey Calls.

Did it ever occur to you to use a turkey call in squirrel hunting? I once had three gray squirrels up a large gum tree and had tried to slip up to them, but they saw me and hid. I went up as close to the tree as I wanted and set down to wait for them to come out. I sat there 20 or 30 minutes, and they did not move that I could see. I was in a fairly good turkey country and so got out my turkey call and made a few calls, and in less than two minutes all three squirrels were in sight, and in a good deal less time they were all mine on the ground. I take it that they thought that if it was safe for a turkey to be calling they were in no danger. I would like to know if any one else ever had a like experience, and if I ever get in a like situation I will make experiments until I am satisfied.—Forest and Stream.

Get What He Asked For.

"Oh, any old thing," replied the young man. "Of course I don't expect the junior partnership at the start, but I want to be sure of an early rise."

"Very well," replied the merchant. "I'll let you assistant janitor. You will rise at 4 o'clock every morning and sweep the floor."—Chicago News.

Entirely Too Far.

Bacon—Some people carry a joke too far.

Egbert—Yes, Penman, the humorist, carried one to 14 different newspaper offices, I understand, and didn't sell it even then.—Yonkers Statesman.

Easy Start.

"Arthur, we haven't had a quarrel for weeks and weeks."

"Haven't we? Well, we can easily get one up by discussing who was most to blame in the last one we had."—Indianapolis Journal.

It used to be the custom to eat what were called God's cakes on New Year's day. They were of triangular shape, about half an inch thick and filled with a kind of mincemeat.

There are two directly opposite reasons why some people cannot obtain credit. One is because they are not known and the other because they are.

Style on the street sometimes means a poorer bill of fare at home.—Chicago News.

130 YEARS OLD.

Mary McDonald Smokes a Pipe and Says She Has Lived in Three Centuries.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 1.—Mary McDonald celebrated what she says is her one hundred and thirtieth anniversary of her birthday at the Home for aged and infirm colored persons at Girard and Belmont avenues, yesterday. She spent it in company with what she calls her best friend—her clay pipe. With great pride she pointed to a little white scar on her left thumb which was made in cutting bark from Valley Forge trees on the Easter of 1776. With this bark colors for dyeing the soldiers' uniforms were made.

The old woman insists that this is the first year of the Twentieth century, and according to this reckoning she has lived in three centuries and was married in the eighteenth. Her pipe is her only companion.

THE COST OF WAR.

Enormous Sums Expended to Equip and Keep Standing a Fighting Force.

An English treasury official has figured that the Boer war is costing Great Britain $760 a minute, $45,600 an hour and so on, for every minute, hour, day and week. At this rate the war is costing the English over $7,600,000 every week, in addition to the regular army expenditure of $235,000,000 a year, in keeping up the army and navy, and an additional expense of $125,000,000 in discharging liabilities for war in the past. Thus the British government is spending the enormous sum of $760,000,000 a year for war and expenses that result directly or indirectly from it. When we take into consideration the fact that the annual income or revenue of the government is only $200,000,000 it looks as if it were a pretty expensive venture and likely to bankrupt a very wealthy nation in a very short time.

In the late American civil war about 300,000 men were killed in battle or died of wounds or disease on the Union side and some 200,000 more were crippled for life. At the end of the war the United States owed $2,844,000,000 which represented only a small part of the vast expense and damage to the country through the four years of awful struggle.

A Whistle Sixty-Five Miles Long.

An odd incident occurred on the Chicago and Northwestern Railway, Sunday forenoon at Highland Park, Ill. As the engine of the train which reached Milwaukee at 11 o'clock blew the whistle the valve broke and he was unable to shut off the steam from the locomotive. From Highland Park to Milwaukee, a distance of about sixty-five miles there was not a moment when the whistle was not sounding full strength. It could be heard for miles away as the train came on in a long continuous shrill sound, and at every city and village people ran to their doors to learn what was happening. While the train was blowing the fireman was straining every nerve to keep the steam up to the running point, and succeeded in bringing the train into the station on time.

THE ARCTIC MOSQUITO.

It Is About the Most Terrible Insect Pest in the World.

"Nothing that has ever been written about the arctic mosquito begins to come up to the real thing," said a guest in the St. Charles corridor the other evening. "I went up the Yukon river in the summer of 1894, representing the Alaska and Dominion Trading company, and we struck mosquitoes as soon as we got into the hills. They are twice as large as our familiar bayonet species, and their sting is like the prod of a hot needle. They sweep along the valleys in dense clouds, and if they catch a man unprepared they are liable to blind him before he can escape. I heard stories of children being stung to death and can readily believe them."

"Whenever we went ashore we wore heavy hat nets and took the utmost precaution, but were certain to suffer more or less. One of our party cut the tongue out of his shoes, and a narrow line of sock was exposed under the lacing. Next day he was bitten there at least a hundred times, and his feet were so terribly inflamed that the shoes had to be cut off."

"Another man, a fireman in the boat crew, got drunk on Alaska whiskey one afternoon and lay down to take a nap in a corner of the engine room. I noticed him a little later and was horrified at the solid brown mass of mosquitoes that had settled on a small exposed section of his cheek and throat. In an hour his face was swollen out of all resemblance to anything human, he was unable to swallow and was burning with fever. It was a week before he was able to be about. I saw a number of cattle near Fort Hamilton that had been made stone blind by stings near the eye."

"The arctic foothill mosquito is without doubt the most terrible insect pest in the world."—New Orleans Times.

TWO LADS WHO STARTED EVEN.

Years When One Prospered While the Other Stood Still.

Thirty years ago Mr. H., a nurseryman in New York state, left home for a day or two. It was rainy weather and not a season for sales, but a customer arrived from a distance, tied up his horse and went into the kitchen of a farmhouse where two lads were cracking nuts.

"Is Mr. H. at home?"

"No, sir," said the eldest, Joe, hammering at a nut.

"When will he be back?"

"Dunno, sir. Maybe not for a week."

The other boy, Jim, jumped up and followed the man out. "The men are not here, but I can show you the stock," he said, with such a bright, courteous manner that the stranger, who was a little irritated, stopped and followed him through the nursery, examining the trees, and left his order.

"You have sold the largest bill I have had this season, Jim," his father, greatly pleased, said to him on his return.

A few years later these two boys were left by their father's failure and death with $200 or $300 each. Joe bought an acre or two near home. He has worked hard, but is still a poor, discontented man. Jim bought an emigrant's ticket to Colorado, lived as a cattle driver for a couple of years and with his wages bought land at 40 cents an acre, built himself a house and married. His herds of cattle are numbered by the thousand, his land has been cut up into town lots, and he is ranked as one of the wealthiest men in the state.

"I might have done like Jim," his brother said lately, "if I'd thought in time. There's as good stuff in me as in him."

"There's as good stuff in that loaf of bread as in any I ever made," said his wife, "but nobody can eat it. There's not enough yeast in it." The retort, though disagreeable, was true. The quick, wide awake energy which acts as leaven to character is partly natural, but it can be facilitated by parents.—Industrial Enterprise.

LOCATION OF OUR MINES

THE COLORADO COPPER MINING COMPANY is fortunate in being the possessor of five valuable mining properties in the great Salina copper belt, the principal area producing copper of this portion of the Rockies. All of our claims have been more or less developed, and it is our purpose to put the same on a paying basis as soon as possible.

Our company owns, clear of incumbrances, the following claims: The Sedalia Extension, the Sedalia Main Mine, No. 1, which property adjoins the great Sedalia mine, which has been a producer for upwards of seventy years; the Copper King of Colorado, which immediately adjoins the above; the Copper Queen of Salina, a very promising property, only a few steps from the city; and last, but by no means least, the Strubline, located two miles east of Salina, on the main trunk line of the great Denver & Rio Grande Railroad, and also on the Arkansas river, which in length is one of America's greatest streams.

BLUNDERING WARFARE.

ENGLISH OFFICER'S SCATHING CENSURE OF GEN. BULLER.Stupendous Ignorance the Cause of the Costly Sacrifices Along the Tugela—
Slaughter of the Irish Brigade.

An office with Gen. Buller, writing to an English publication, gives a scathing review of the strategy, or lack of strategy, that preceded the relief of Ladysmith, and makes one of the most terrible indictments that was ever directed against a general. He writes:

"You, Ladysmith has been relieved at last. We have been blundering along the line of hills that formed the northern bank of the Tugela for many months, attempting to pass it at all sorts of impossible places and suffering heavy losses each time. No one knew the ground or took the trouble to learn it. As an example of this suicidal indifference, Gen. Buller was not aware that Hlangwane mountain, which commanded the crossing of the Tugela, was on the southern side of the river until he had failed in three different attempts. Yet he lived for weeks within three or four miles of the hill, and at the battle of Colenso his right flank extended beyond it. As to strategy, there was none, neither good nor bad. The troops were moved along, and when a hill or an entrenchment appeared in front they were ordered to take it. Sometimes they failed, sometimes they succeeded; of ten when they had succeeded, after terrible loss, the post was found to be useless, and was abandoned. This is the blotted folly in which we have been engaged, and which more thorough good luck than good management, has eventually succeeded. But had not Lord Roberts's victory drawn away a great part of the Boers for the defense of their own country it would never have succeeded and Ladysmith would have fallen.

Slaughter of the Irish Brigade.

"On Friday, February 23, Gen. Buller was ordered to send up the Connaught Rangers, the Inniskillings and the Dubuins along the line of the railway. The operation was most difficult and dangerous. Six companies of the Inniskillings and two companies of the Connaught Rangers formed the attacking line, the remainder of the Rangers and half of the Dubuins in support, and the reserve consisted of the other half of the Dubuins. In this order the Irish brigade recrossed the railway and began to attack, coming at once under a severe cross fire from the hill on the right and left. It is at these times that tactical errors lead to such terrible loss of life. Some troops had, indeed, been sent to the hill on the left, but they were not ordered to push the attack, and they could not from their position even see the northern slopes; they merely acted as sentries to prevent our being entirely cut off.

BLUNDERING EXECUTING

"Anyone could see that it was madness to send an attacking force up the central hill while the flanking hill was unoccupied and the Boers thereon were left free to concentrate their fire for defense. But stupid as was the action, was even worse. Gen. Buller placed himself on a neighboring hill, with a telescope and a bugle; he was completely out of touch with the attack, and could not know when an attack could profitably be pressed. These matters are felt only by the officers on the spot and it is absolutely necessary to leave them to their discretion. But there he stood sound- ing at intervals the 'Advance,' then the 'Charge.' When it appeared to him that the attack was not proceeding rapidly enough to suit his taste the bugle rang out again in venomous tones. Our artillery in the meantime was shelling the trench at the top of the hill, and kept down the enemy's fire from that direction, so that the advancing line got to within 20 yards of what seemed to be the top, and waited for a moment to take breath, under cover of an arm or leg, when the general's bugle sounded the three calls, 'Advance,' 'Double,' 'Charge.' The word was passed along the line, bayonets were fixed, and springing to their feet, the men dashed forward with a cheer. Not a shot was fired by the enemy, and the place seemed to be deserted. The crest was reached and passed, and the triumph seemed to be complete. But, alas! that crest was a false one; there was a slight dip behind, then another rise, which constituted the real crest.

MOWED DOWN BY RIFLE FIRE.

"As the men passed over the skyline and exposed themselves to full view the Boers suddenly stood up in their trenches and fired in quick succession the five rounds with which their Mausers were charged at a range of 50 yards. The effect was too terrible to describe. The great rush of men, confident and erect as a great wave nearing the shore, was checked in a moment. There was a stagger forward, and then all that remained was a line of poor, helpless human beings struggling on the ground in agony. Some rose again, perhaps not know- ing what they were doing, and fell, pierced in many instances with a dozen bullets. Those who marvelously escaped the murderous discharge could only lie with the others, hoping to escape observation the slightest move- ment of an arm or leg, whether it was the death struggle of a wounded man or the lucky ones to get better cover behind a rock, draw a shower of bullets bringing certain death not only to the unfortunate man himself, but to many who lay around him. Stillness was the only hope of life.

"This disastrous charge took place about 5 o'clock, and there the unfor- tunate men lay, dead, wounded and sound, huddled together or scattered, just as they fell, covered by Boer rifles, unable to move or even look a round. The groans and cries of the wounded were terrible to listen to some cried for help some murmured for water. Once or twice, moved by pity, a sound man would try to get his wounded neighbor to the rear, but he was shot instantly.

SUFFERING OF THE WOUNDED.

"I come now to the saddest part of the story. The poor wounded men who had been struck down in that gallant charge remained where they fell not only all Friday night, but during all the blazing heat of Satur- day, and even Saturday night passed without relief. Not a drop of water in their feverish mouths; no food, no help, but a tropical sun beating on their heads. Oh, the intolerable agonies that were endured! If one heard that such a thing happened in Eng- land or Ireland to a horse or a dog one would shiver with pity, but here hundreds of gallant Irishmen who had fought as on other troops have fought in this war were left on the field to endure a horrible death. Most of course died; one of them, a very senior officer, whose name, out of pity I shall not mention, suffered so ter- ribly that he begged those near him to put him out of pain. He died dur- ing the day, for no help came.

"Will not attempt to apportion the blame—if blame there may be. Gen. Buller was present till Saturday, and it seems to me that a flag of truce

THE TROUT LAKE (B.C.) TOPIC

Of March 31, commenting editorially on the high grade of the Lardeau ore, says:

"For instance take the 'Nettie L.' A hundred feet beneath the surface ore was exposed giving $14.00 to the ton. The 'Silver Cup' did not appear high-grade at surface, but at 93 feet rich ore was struck, and this property is now paying $145.00 to the ton. The Silver Belt, on Brown's Cr., was poor on the surface, but at the point where crosscut intersected the vein ore runs into the thousands. The ROB ROY, at the head of the North Fork, located near the great Lime Dyke, was considered a low-grade proposition from surface indications, but in the tunnel which exposed the vein at a depth, gray copper is showing up. Regarding this property and the section of which it is representative, it has been maintained that many of the Leads in and near the Lime Dyke were low-grade. But as a matter of fact none of them have been tapped at a depth with the exception of the ROB ROY, and here it has been demonstrated that the grade of the ore is very greatly improved, so it is reasonable to suppose that a like improvement in quality will occur when depth is gained on other claims on the same Lead."

Mining News.

Mr. Geo. A. Barnes, Vice-President and Manager of the Iron Mountain Gold Min- ing Company of Spokane, Wash., has just returned from Republic, and reports that they are now down 40 feet on the shaft, having made 10 feet in the last week, and that the quartz continues to increase in width. At a depth of 10 feet further help- ing to cross cut from wall to wall, and if the assay hold out or increase he is assured we have one of the finest prospects for a mine in the northwest. He has let a contract to erect suitable buildings for working the mine on a large scale. The building and im- provements will consist of horse stables, boarding and bunk houses, black- smith shop, shaft house, ore bins and stable.

In the afternoon a party of the members of the Trent Valley Canal association of Port Hope, compris- ing Messrs. J. F. Clarke, R. A. Mulholland, Thom. Long, Wm. McCallum and J. A. Brown, drove out to Bewdley and met the engineers and had a pleasant talk upon the subject, impressing upon them the hope that a thorough survey would be made of this route.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

Bad Young Men.

Complaints have reached the Times that boys, who congregate and stand in store door ways in the evenings, spit tobacco juice over the walks and over on the windows. The front of the store of Messrs. R. Fair & Co. was found in a disgraceful state yesterday morning. The police should put a stop to it.

Boy Wanted.

A good, smart boy wanted, about 10 years of age. Apply at 88 Gilmour street.

A Thoughtless Act.

On Monday afternoon four or five thoughtless boys, of about twelve or thirteen years of age, set fire to an empty house on Cedar street. As a very high wind was blowing it would be no doubt have proved serious if it had not been discovered by several of the neighbors who, providing the boys with pails, set them to work carrying water and the fire was fortunately subdued. The house had not been occupied all winter and the boys had fitted it up for a gymnasium.

Unsupervised Sale of Furniture.

Posters are out announcing the auction sale of household furniture, the property of Mr. G. W. Ranney. Sale at his residence No. 32 Gilmour street, on Thursday, May 3rd at 10.30. The furniture is in large quantity and in excellent variety, and this sale offers good opportunity to any at reasonable prices. Don't forget the day and hour. Chas. Stapleton, auctioneer.

Saw Mill Destroyed.

Messrs. McCormick & McLeod's lumber and the mill, situated five miles north of Haliburton village, caught fire Friday morning soon after the men started work, and as a high wind was blowing, the building was speedily burned to the ground. The large stock of lumber piled adjacent to the mill also caught, and there being no means of fighting the flames all was consumed, including considerable quantities belonging to farmers of the district. Most of it was hardwood lumber, and the loss will be considerable. We understand the mill will be rebuilt.

County Maps.

The property is divided into nine building lots, which will be sold cheap, as the estate must be wound up. For further particulars apply to P. J. Tagney, or John Trimbley, Peterborough, or to E. Tagney, administrator, Lindsay.

HOW IT OCCURRED.

The Bad Accident Which Took Place in Lindsay.

Michael Hennessy, whose shocking mutilation in an accident at Carew's mill, Lindsay, was noted briefly in Monday's Times, spent a fairly easy day yesterday, says the Post, and his fortitude and recuperative powers aroused the admiration of the attending physicians. While the result is yet in doubt, Mr. Hennessy's many friends hope for the best.

The mill was shut down about 3 o'clock for a short time to permit of some adjustments being made in the machinery. About 3.30 there had been finished and the engineer started up. Mr. Hennessy, who is foreman of the mill, entered a small room east of the engine room to place the belt on the main shaft, about three feet from the floor. When repairing the mill this spring Mr. Carew placed a board at the end of the shaft so that there could be no danger in shifting the belt, but in his hurry, or owing to his familiarity with danger, Mr. Hennessy did not go to the safe end, and his hand was caught and carried around the shaft, which was making 385 revolutions per minute. His body was carried under the shaft when he grasped a hot steam pipe on the floor to save himself from being carried around and having his brain beaten out. It is supposed that when he grasped the steam pipe the wrench occurred which tore the arm from its socket at the shoulder.

When the poor fellow was lifted out and carried into the engine room he fainted away, but rallied in a few minutes, and said, "Take me home—I'll be all right. Jack: it was my own fault, and I blame no person." The terrible wrench and the fall-like action of the loose belt had stripped the poor fellow of every vestige of his clothing, save his boots and stockings, and his body was badly bruised and burned.

A High Class Commercial School. We have frequently called attention through our columns to the very superior work being done by the Canada Business College, Chatham, Ont. Fresh evidence of a very convincing character is just at hand through a letter received from the Principal of the College, in which he states that during the past six weeks, he has received no less than six calls from leading Canadian and American Business Colleges, asking him if he could supply them with teachers of Commercial subjects and penmanship for their fall openings. When their contemporaries acknowledge the work done in the school in this way, by looking to it for their teachers, it is certainly a very flattering recognition of superior work done in this institution, and Messrs. D. McLachlan & Co. may well feel proud of the reputation which the school has acquired for superior work.

County Police Court.

Thomas Cuff, of Dummer, appeared before County Magistrate Edmonson on a charge of having assaulted his aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Cuff. It appears that the accused is a married man, lives on a small farm with his parents, but in a separate residence. At times matters became anything but harmonious, and on a recent occasion the son lost his temper and resorted to physical violence. When the case came up for hearing yesterday, the accused pleaded guilty and expressed great sorrow for what had occurred. He admitted having a bad temper, but claimed also that his parents at times were contrary and provoking and that in a passion he had done something that he should not have otherwise done. The costs of the case were paid by the son and the matter settled quietly, to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Thanks Well of the Hospital.

Previous to his departure yesterday, Capt. Thompson, of Sudbury, called on Mr. Richard Hall, at the home of the latter, in order to express his gratitude for the treatment accorded him by the hospital, who has been confined in the Nicholas Hospital for a couple of weeks. He was on his way to Toronto, to arrange to have Miss Thompson admitted to the hospital there, when by mere chance he was told of the Nicholas Hospital. He decided to come here instead, placing his child in the hands of Dr. Halliday, and he has no reason to regret his change of mind. Capt. Thompson thinks that our institution is one of the best in existence, and the staff of nurses the most kindly to be found anywhere.

Officers Elected.

The annual business meeting and election of officers of George street Epworth League took place Monday evening. Satisfactory reports for the year from the different departments were presented, indicating that in spite of the many hindrances the society has made progress. The officers for the ensuing year are: President—Mr. F. W. Walden. 1st Vice (C. E. Dept.)—Mr. R. Cunningham. 2nd Vice (Miss. Dept.)—Mr. W. F. Stubbs. 3rd Vice (Literary Dept.)—Mr. W. S. Stevenson. 4th Vice (Social Dept.)—Miss L. Pascoe. Secretary—Miss R. Deher. Treasurer—Mr. Percy Reid.

HAPPY LITTLE GIRL.

Her Father Learned How to Treat Her. "While drinking coffee, I visited a celebrated physician who told me that my severe headaches, languid feelings and inability to work were caused by the blood use of coffee. Since leaving of coffee and using Postum Cereal Food Coffee, I have recovered my energy, am able to work hard and feel brighter and happier in every way.

"My wife also uses Postum Food Coffee, without any disagreeable after effect. She feels strengthened and invigorated with the Postum, while on the contrary, coffee made her weak and nervous. We also give it to the little girl every morning and it would be a hard matter to find another child as bright and healthy and happy as she is. We are great believers in Postum." H. A. Beckwith, R. Postum, St. N.

A POWER SCHEME.

People of Carrington Thinking of Tapping Fenelon Falls.

The people of Carrington are desirous of obtaining cheap power for manufacturing purposes, and recently appointed an expert to report upon the cost of tapping Fenelon Falls or Pefferlaw water powers. His report may prove interesting, and is as follows:—

RE FENELON FALLS.

R. A. Sinclair, Clerk, Carrington: Dear Sir,—I was asked by Mr. Wilson to go briefly into the cost of transmitting power from Fenelon Falls to Carrington, a distance said to be about 25 miles, and I have done so. In my estimate I calculate on the company owning the water power supplying the generator. The approximate cost to supply and erect 50 miles of wire together with the necessary poles and including transformers at Carrington would be about $18,500. Of course it could be made a great deal more than this, depending on the system used. My estimate is based on using current at high potential with step down transformers at Carrington. I may say that I have no personal knowledge of this power, never having examined same, but I have been informed by those who did examine it that there is not sufficient water for power to any extent all the year round. Mr. Wilson seems to think there is. The party who gave me the information was the one who reported against it for some capitalists who were interested in same by Mr. Culverwell, and from what I could learn from Mr. Wilson I am inclined to think two engineers had reported on this water power.

Yours Truly,
JAMES MILNE.

The application for a six months' license in the school in this way, by looking to it for their teachers, it is certainly a very flattering recognition of superior work done in this institution, and Messrs. D. McLachlan & Co. may well feel proud of the reputation which the school has acquired for superior work.

A meeting of the Retail Merchants Association is called for to-morrow evening, at the Y.M.C.A., where officers of the Provincial Association are expected to be sent and address the meeting.

Language Spoken.

Editor Morning Times. Sir,—I had an argument with a friend the other day, in which he stated that there are as many as ten different tongues spoken in Peterborough, viz.—English, French, Italian, Spanish, Indian, Chinese, Turkish, Danish, German, and Swede. I am sure you will be interested in all subjects, and if you would give me a reply to this, I would feel obliged.

FRED W.

Ans.—We don't know how many languages are spoken in Peterborough. Admitting there are ten, none can be so exclusive when it comes to speaking of the advantages that this g.f.f. offers over its little contemporaries.

The Masons.

Editor Morning Times: Sir,—Please answer the following.—1. When and where was the Masonic Fraternity organized? 2. Has any other fraternal organization as large a membership?

LAKEFIELD.

Ans.—1. It is not definitely known. Tradition traces the origin of Free Masonry to the old Roman empire and even to the Temple of Solomon. First authentic records date from the Middle Ages. Always exerted a greater influence than any other craft. Its principles are highly moral and religious. 2. The Odd Fellows have a larger membership in the United States and Canada, but throughout the world the Masons are stronger than any other fraternity.

Majuba Hill.

Editor Morning Times. Sir.—Will the Times be good enough to answer the following.—1. Where is Majuba Hill located in South Africa? 2. Who was in command of the British forces at the battle of Majuba Hill? 3. Who commanded the Boer forces at the same battle? 4. How many men were engaged?

"Hail, Spring's First Born Flowers."

How welcome they are, these new blooming blossoms. They are purity personified, these bits of life, with their bursting buds, joyous in their first sight of Spring. There are no impurities about them. Humanity, however, continues to have its troubles, most of which can be traced to impure blood.

But humanity rests more contented now, for it knows that Hood's Sarsaparilla, the wonderful blood cleanser, never disappoints. You need it today.

Severe Pains.—"I had severe pains in my stomach, a form of neuralgia. My mother urged me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and it made me well and strong. I have also given it to my baby with satisfactory results. I am glad to recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to others." Mrs. J. L. PACE, 240 Church St., Toronto, Ont.

Complete Exhaustion.—"After treatment in hospital, I was weak, hardly able to walk. My blood was thin. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla until well and gained 10 lbs. It also benefited my wife." ARTHUR MILLER, Dresden, Ont.

Rheumatism.—"I had acute rheumatism in my limb and foot. I commenced treatment with Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills and in a short time I was cured." WILLIAM HASKETT, Brantford, Ont.

Scrofula.—"I was troubled with scrofula and impure blood. A cut on my arm would not heal. Hood's Sarsaparilla was recommended and after had taken three bottles I was well." DANIEL ROBERTS, 53½ Trevelyan Street, Toronto, Ont.

Dyspepsia.—"I was weak and had fainting spells. Dyspepsia and indigestion in severe form troubled me. Five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla made me well and strong." Mrs. WILLIAM VAN ALKENBURG, Whitby, Ont.

Stomach Headache.—"I am now 22. Since I was 8 years old I suffered constantly with impure blood, biliousness and sick headaches until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla by doctor's advice. I owe my life to it." ELVIRA A. RUSSELL, Claremont, N. H.

ed on both sides, and what canon had they. If any? 5. What is the word Bahadur? the name of a place or is it Anglo-Indian slang? If the first, what did Lord Roberts do there to be called "Baba Bahadur"? If the latter, what is its meaning in connection with Lord Roberts?

L. D. B.

Ans.—1. In the Drakenburg Mountains, between the Orange Free State and Natal; in about latitude 27 degrees 45' south, longitude 29 degrees 40' east. It is a conical hill with a depression at the top. 2. Major Gen. Sir George Pomeroy Colley, 3. Commandant General Joubert, who has just died, was in chief command; Gen. Smits, now dead, commanded the attacking force. 4. About 300 British, about 2,000 Boers. They had no canon. 5. Bahadur means "brave officer," "champion," and was given as a title of honor. The last person of importance bearing the title officially and correctly was Sir Sala Jung Bahadur, Prime Minister and actual ruler of Nepal. The title was given to Lord Roberts probably by some of the native troops of his command in 1879, as a mark of honor.

TWO BRIGADES OF TROOPS LEAVE BLOEMFONTEIN

Pole-Carew's Division Composed of Guards and Stevenson's Brigade and Several Batteries of Artillery Leave Bloemfontein for Unknown Destination.

London, May 3, 4.10 a.m.—The immediate objective of Lord Roberts is to establish a line of British posts from one frontier of the Free State to the other, at right angles with the railway, thus preventing the Boer raids southward. It is essential therefore that the Boers should be expelled from the rugged Thaba N'Chu district and be forced to retire to Ladybrand.

As the result of the desultory firing Monday and Tuesday, the Boers were pushed back a few miles, but nothing decisive appears to have been attained. The Boers continue to follow their harassing tactics. One well horsed commando, operating in the neighborhood of Human Post interferes with the British convoys going from Bloemfontein to Thaba N'Chu. The enemy nearly captured a convoy Tuesday, but they were driven off after a brisk fight.

Preparation for an advance continues at Kimberley. Sir Alfred Milner has written to the mayor of Kimberley, assuring him that the relief of Mafeking has not ceased to occupy his attention and that of the military authorities, and that nothing will be left undone to raise the siege at the earliest possible moment.

The British garrison along the railway to Warrenton have been strengthened and supplies are going forward. A mounted force has gone to Barkley West, in consequence of the Boers having occupied Windfontein. A thousand Boers threaten the communications between Boshof and Kimberley.

Malata, chief of the Tanga, has informed the British that the Boers are preparing to resist their advance at Phokwane, twenty miles north of Warrenton.

A correspondent at Lorenzo Marquez cables Tuesday, that a large part of the investing force at Mafeking has been withdrawn.

General Buller continues quiet. The Boers assert that they are delaying an attack upon him in the hope that all the horses of the British will die of horse sickness.

According to a correspondent of the Daily Telegraph with Lord Roberts, President Kruger is again asking peace terms.

Bloemfontein, Tuesday, May 1. This morning General Pole-Carew's Division, composed of the Guards, and General Stevenson's brigade, with several batteries of artillery, all in winter clothing, left Bloemfontein. Lord Roberts, with Lady Roberts and their daughter, reviewed the division in the market place.

Later Lord Roberts, while reviewing Roberts' Horse, congratulated the men upon their bravery, spoke of the gallantry of the Colonial troops and expressed the hope that he might soon review them in Pretoria.

London, May 3. The Lorenzo Marquez correspondent of the Daily Mail, telegraphing yesterday says:—"A French steamer has arrived with 10,000 bags of coffee and 10,000 bags of sugar consigned to a syndicate which is buying for the Pretoria Government. Four more steamers with similar consignments are expected this month. It is evident that the Transvaal intends making a long resistance."

SOME TANGLED STORIES.

Correspondent of the Associated Press is rather bewildered.

London, May 2.—The Associated Press expert says: It is difficult to unravel the tangled stories coming from the neighborhood of Thaba N'Chu but apparently the British forces are engaged in a movement having for its object the hemming in of the Boers still in that district. While Generals French and Buller are holding the Boers at Thaba N'Chu, General Broadwood's cavalry has been pushed on Houtnek (not Houtney) in the hope of intercepting the Federal convoys between Ladybrand and Winburg. At both has been reinforced there is every prospect of sharp fighting. The new means of operations and the general movements of the various columns are taken to indicate that Lord Roberts is preparing his army preparatory to beginning his northern march. It now seems likely that it is the Commander-in-Chief's intention to advance simultaneously from Kimberley, Bloemfontein and Ladysmith, with the view of preventing the Boers from concentrating their forces at any given point.

Kruger's Proclamation. A despatch from Pretoria gives the text of President Kruger's proclamation expelling British subjects from the Transvaal. It says:

"As numerous burghers insist on the removal of the British, and as the Government is desirous of complying with the wishes of the burghers and others favorable to the Republic, all Britishers residing in the district and town of Pretoria and the Witwatersrand gold fields must leave the State within thirty-six hours from noon April 30. Exception will be made in the case of those obtaining special permits."

Two Killed, Nine Wounded. Lord Roberts forwards a list of the casualties of General Ian Hamilton's force, April 30, as follows: Killed, Major Showers, Lieut. Parker, and one private; wounded, four officers and five men; missing, two officers and ten men.

The Attack on Mafeking. A despatch from Mafeking, describing the Boer attack on April 11, says: "The bombardment of the Creusets was the hottest of the siege. Many shells entered the hospital and women's laager. Under cover of the artillery, a large force commanded by Cronje (the younger) including the German corps, advanced close to Fort Abrahams."

The garrison laid low until the Boer force was at close range, when they fired a volley, killed five, wounded many and the attack was repulsed. The bombardment then ceased. The Boers, under a Red Cross flag, were permitted later to recover their dead.

MANY MILLIONS SPENT.

The cost of the Transvaal War, up to March 31 was £23,250,000.

London, May 2.—Replying to a question on the subject, the Financial Secretary to the Treasury, Mr. R. W. Hamlyn, in the House of Commons to-day, said the cost of the Transvaal war up to March 31 was £23,250,000.

BOERS WILL TREK AGAIN.

Reitz Will go to a Congenial Climate, the United States, After the War.

New York, May 2.—Writing from Pretoria under date of March 23rd, the World's special correspondent, Howard C. Hillegas, says that hundreds of the majority of Boers are casting about for a suitable country to which they can go if they find it desirable. State Secretary Reitz said:

"If the English take these Republics and raise the Union Jack over Uthman I will take my family to America."

Many of the older Boers will trek to German West Africa, and thousands will emigrate to other countries. The friends of President Kruger say that if the Transvaal loses her independence he will spend the last years of his life in Holland or Germany.

HONOR FOR THE SAILORS.

Queen Victoria Receives the Men of the Powerful.

London, May 2.—Windermere is in holiday attire to-day and decorated from end to end in honor of the naval brigade of the British cruiser Powerful, which assisted in the defence of Ladysmith. The naval men have been summoned to the castle to be inspected by the Queen. The band of the Grenadier Guard met the naval brigade at the naval station and played them to the castle, through cheering throngs of people. Capt. Lambton and the officers of the Powerful were presented to Her Majesty, who thanked Captain Lambton and the brigade for their noble services to the Empire. The captain replied that what they had done was nothing to what the navy was prepared to do for Her Majesty.

The Queen saw the blue jackets entertained at dinner.

DECORATED FOR VALOR.

How Sergeant Parker and Gunner Lodge Won the Victoria Cross.

London, May 1.—A letter from Sergt. Parker, one of those just decorated with the Victoria Cross, describing the Battle of Mafeking, is published here to-day. He says:—"In galloping from the spruit my gun was overturned and every horse was shot. I got up with No. 4 gun, and we remained three hours under the most terrible fire. In five minutes I had lost two complete detachments, and only Gunner Lodge and myself were left to work two guns, he at one and I at the other. We remained at the two guns, loading, laying, and firing by ourselves, and brought both guns out of action by ourselves. We have been recommended for the Victoria Cross."

MAJOR DRUMMOND'S PROMOTION.

Despite the denial in the House that Major Drummond had been appointed G. O. C., it is strongly asserted in official quarters this morning that on his arrival here that officer will be appointed Major.

General commanding the forces. Major Drummond will, it is said, be promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel whilst in England, on his way from South Africa. The appointment to the command is never made till the officer selected has arrived in Canada. The selected officer leaves England merely "seconded" for the service. A curious light will, it is claimed, be thrown on the explanation in the House when a full return of the correspondence between his Excellency Lord Minto and Hon. Dr. Borden is brought down to the House. It is the general opinion that the suggestion of the appointment, even to pressure, came from Government House.

CONDENSED DESPATCHES.

The Soulages canal was opened yesterday. There is but one case of smallpox so far at Port Arthur. Mackenzie & Mann may buy the Kingston locomotive works. Ottawa painters have been given an increase in wages of 25 cents a day. Licence Inspector Durand, of East Milledale, is reported to have resigned. J. A. C. Moore, M.P., was yesterday re-elected M.P. in the Montreal bar elections.

Philip Boswell, of Renfrew district, was shot and killed while handling his employer's gun. Postmaster Ingram, of St. Thomas, recently suspended by the Government, has been reinstated. Thomas W. Burdon was sentenced at Montreal yesterday to two months' imprisonment for forgery. Miss Emily Purtil, of Niagara, a patient in the Hamilton asylum, drank disinfecting fluid and died. Four Italians operating with dynamite on a section of the Hainy River railway were blown to atoms. James Longhead, a well known Winnipeg district farmer, while driving, was struck by a street car and killed. Three barns belonging to J. Stratford, at Brantford, were burned yesterday. Fireman Nulaney was badly injured. A landslide near Haddow, Que., swept away two houses and wrecked the Intercolonial express. No lives were lost. Rev. Dr. John B. Mowat, brother of Sir Oliver Mowat, at Kingston yesterday celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his entry on ministerial work. Senator Gowan, of Barrie, has received the "Active Service Challenge Cup," which he is presenting for competition among the Ontario regiments, to improve volley firing.

WRITTEN NEARLY TWO THOUSAND YEARS AGO. Long Lost Correspondence Between Our Lord and Agrippa Said to Have Been Discovered.

New York, May 2.—The Herald and the Journal print to-day special cables from London and Rome respectively which say that two letters, one from King Agrippa to Christ and the other from the Saviour to the King, in reply, letters referred to by Eusebius in the fourth century, have been discovered after being lost for 1803 years.

The letter from King Agrippa to Christ reads: "I have heard of Thee and the cures wrought by Thee without herbs or medicine, for it is reported that Thou restorest the blind and maketh the lame to walk, cleanseth the leper, raiseth the dead, chasest out devils and unclean spirits and healest those that are tormented of diseases of a long continuance."

"Tearing all this of Thee I was fully persuaded that Thou art the very God come down from heaven to do such miracles or that Thou art the Son of God and performest them. Wherefore I have sent Thee a few lines entreating Thee to come hither and cure my diseases. Besides,

"Hearing that the Jews murmur against Thee and continue to do Thee mischief, I invite Thee to my city, which is but a little one, but is beautiful and sufficient to entertain us both."

Christ's reply to the above reads: "Blessed art thou for believing me, whom thou hast not seen, for it is written of me that they that have seen me shall not believe, and they that have not seen me shall believe and be saved. But concerning the matter thou hast written about, this is to acquaint thee that all things for which

A FINER CITY TO RISE FROM THE ASHES.

The Hull Council Will Forbid the Erection of the Old Inflammable Structures. Ottawa, May 2.—There is little change to report in the situation here to-day. The relief committee have now their work well in hand, and are making the best possible use of the contributions that are steadily coming in from Canadian and American cities and towns. Toronto's generosity is most favorably commented on by every one.

The Victorian Order of Nurses started to-day to make daily visits to the different shelters where they will attend to the sick cases. Lord and Lady Minto are taking the greatest interest in the relief operations. They have visited most of the shelters, talked with many of the sufferers, and expressed their willingness to aid in every possible way the work of relieving their distress. Both have made numerous unostentatious gifts of clothing and money to many of the homeless.

PROPOSAL TO RUN CLEVELAND AGAIN.

Former President Being Pressed to Save Democrats From Bryan and Dewey

New York, May 2.—The Herald says: Grover Cleveland may be urged to accept for the fourth time the nomination of the Democratic party for the Presidency of the United States, according to a statement made last night by a prominent leader of the Brooklyn Democratic organization. He declared that the matter was being seriously considered by powerful leaders of the Eastern Democracy. The proposition, he says, was to induce former President Cleveland to announce that he was a candidate, or to take some public action which would justify them in making a fight for his nomination before the convention. If nothing more can be obtained from him they will be satisfied with his assurance that he will not repudiate their efforts to obtain the first place on the ticket for his name.

Having obtained that they will first go to Colonel Bryan and ask him to withdraw in favor of the former President. It was intimated that Cleveland's old enemy, David B. Hill, had been consulted, and had not frowned upon the suggestion. William C. Whitney and several other prominent men of the East were also, it was hinted, in the movement.

There were some politicians spoken to last night who believe that some of the leaders interested in the movement have had some encouragement from Mr. Cleveland himself.

I was sent hither must be fulfilled and then I shall be taken up and returned to Him that sent me. But after my ascension I will send one of my disciples that shall cure thee of thy distemper and give life to all them that are with thee."

The Journal says: "The special cable from Rome purports to prove the truth of a tradition that is almost as ancient as Christianity. Of course the Journal cannot vouch for the truth of the statements which were made yesterday, April 30th, by Professor Bohrmann, of Vienna University, to the Archaeological Congress in Rome, but they were of intense interest."

Professor Bohrmann announced that these letters had been discovered carved in stone over the gateway of the old palace of the Kings of Sphesus and that they were undoubtedly the letters referred to by Eusebius and other early writers, according to whom they were written in Syro-Chaldaic characters and originally discovered under a stone eight-four miles from the city of Iconium, in the year 97, and then lost. Fragments purporting to be of the original were declared spurious by Pope Leo III. Professor Bohrmann says this discovery proves that such letters were written and supplies the full text.

A special from London is also printed in which Professor George Robert Milne Murray, keeper of the department of Botany and natural history in the British Museum, is quoted as saying that the inscription was undoubtedly genuine. Professor Murray had been shown a fac-simile.

THE HULL COUNCIL WILL FORBID THE ERECTION OF THE OLD INFLAMMABLE STRUCTURES.

The work of substituting clothing to the fire sufferers will commence to-morrow morning at the Rideau Rink. Many of them are in need of decent clothing and a change of linen. The city fathers of Hull rose from the ashes of their city yesterday and bravely and promptly drew up plans for rebuilding the city along modern fire-proof lines. It was decided to grant the E. B. Eddy Co. exemption from taxation for a period of fifteen years on the new buildings it proposes to erect. A by-law will be drawn up forbidding the erection of any but fire-proof buildings within the burned area of the city. The main streets will be widened and the street lines made uniform, so as to conform with correct modern ideas. The tone of the meeting was hopeful and progressive, and the prospects are that a new and more beautiful city will rise from the ruins of the old one.

BOERS MAKE A BOLD STROKE.

They Seize Windfontein, Near Methuen's Line of Communication. London, May 2.—The Boers have made a bold stroke by entering Windfontein, which lies south of Warrenton and near the railway line from Kimberley. The object of the move is probably to interfere with Gen. Methuen's communications.

CANADIANS MOVE NORTHWARD.

They Now Confront a Force of Boers Led by Botha. London, May 1, 7.15 p.m.—The War Office has received the following despatch from Lord Roberts:—"Bloemfontein, May 1.—Ian Hamilton marched yesterday in a northerly direction from Thaba N'Chu, with a body of mounted infantry and Smith-Dorrien's brigade of Canadian troops (including the Canadians). At Hauntny he found himself opposed by a strong force commanded by General Botha in person. Reinforcements reached this force during the day, and I directed French to strengthen him during the night from Thaba N'Chu. This he was able to do, as the number of Boers in the neighborhood of Thaba N'Chu had considerably decreased. In addition to these troops Hamilton should be reinforced during the day by Bruce's cavalry and Bruce-Hamilton's infantry brigade."

"Hamilton mentioned that his casualties yesterday were about thirty. "Maxwell's brigade of the seventh division yesterday occupied Viakopiers and Schuurkraal, a row of kopjes, without meeting with opposition, but the mounted infantry were engaged for some hours."

CANUCKS ONCE MORE IN MIDST OF THE FIGHTING

The Canadians and Gordons Attacked a Kopje and Cleared it of the Enemy.

BOERS LEAVE MANY WOUNDED BEHIND THEM.

Correspondent of the London Times Says That Lord Roberts is Now Ready for a General Advance—Kroonstad Is Said to Practically Free of Boers.

London, May 2.—The advance of two strong British columns from Sanna's Post and Thaba N'Chu, respectively, towards Windburg, may be accounted for in two ways. Firstly, General Roberts may wish to station these forces in such a position north of Bloemfontein-Ladybrand road, that they may prevent Boer raids upon the communications of French at Thaba N'Chu, and thus render it safe for the cavalry leader to march upon Ladybrand. Secondly, it may be the intention of the British-commander-in-chief to begin a general advance upon Winburg, trusting that Ladybrand would be thereupon deserted by the Boers, their retreat and communications being threatened. The first theory appears the less plausible of the two because owing to the hilly nature of the country around Ladybrand General Roberts will not attack that place until it is impossible to occupy it without doing so. In support of the second theory the correspondent of the Times may be quoted. He says that a definite forward movement is imminent, and that it will be preceded by a sweeping dash of the mounted troops along the whole front of the British position. This, coupled with the fact that the troops now leading the advance from Sanna's Post and Thaba N'Chu consist principally of mounted infantry, seems to bear out the supposition that Ladybrand is to be flanked in the same way as the positions west of Bloemfontein were flanked during the march from the Modder. In any event, the effect of recent operations is to keep the Boers at arm's-length from all British communications, and this step would naturally be the preliminary to an advance.

THIRTEEN BUTCHERED.

Mafeking, May 2.—The Boers are prosecuting the siege vigorously. H but the garrison is determined to hang out—at least until the date of relief fixed by Lord Roberts—May 18. Three thousand Boers, with numerous guns, prevent the successful passage of this week's runners. Recent efforts on the part of natives to make a way through the lines have again proved disastrous. One party of 18, when attempting to leave the town on a bright moonlight night, were butchered.

TO TRY THE REBELS.

This will be the First Provision of the Cape Parliament.

London, May 2.—The Times has the following special from Cape Town: Parliament has been summoned for June 22nd. The appointment of a judicial commission for the trial of rebels will probably be the first important subject raised by the Ministry. It is sure to provoke a keen controversy.

RETAIL MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION.

A public meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association will be held in the lecture room of the Y.M.C.A. building, evening, commencing at 8.15. Addresses will be given by Mr. W. B. Rogers, president of the Toronto Association, Mr. G. E. Gibbard, Treasurer of the Provincial Association, and also by Mr. Trowen, Secretary of the Provincial Association. The subject of retailing, and matters pertaining thereto will be discussed from their various standpoints. All business and professional men, whether members of the Association or not, are cordially invited to be present.

An Old Runaway.

An old runaway occurred yesterday afternoon on Hunter street. A baby carriage which was standing in front of the store of Mr. D. Heileghem, was caught by a gust of wind and started off. The first obstacle it encountered was a small maple tree, around which a frame had been built. It upset both and continued across the boulevard, finally overturning in the ditch. The two children who had been in the carriage had fortunately been taken out by their mother when she placed the carriage there.

For New Ontario.

The rush for New Ontario continues. Yesterday a large number from near Aspley passed through the town on the way to this El Dorado on the banks of James Bay, amongst whom were Dr. Caldwell, Aspley, who had three wagon loads of goods; Isaac Turk and family, and his brother and wife, Chandos; Moses Coneb and family, Chandos; Wm. Clapperton and family, Chandos; A. Brown and three sons (two of whom have families), Harleigh. Others are preparing to follow. Most of them took train at Lakeland, and went straight through.

A Sad Death.

It is with regret we announce the death of Mrs. (Rev.) O. C. Elliott, wife of the pastor of the Park street Baptist church, which sad event took place yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, after an illness of a month. Hers was a painful struggle, which has aroused much sympathy in the community.

About a month ago Mrs. Elliott gave birth to twins and though the little ones thrived the mother did not recover her vitality. Death was due to a form of blood poisoning. Mrs. Elliott was 31 years of age. Her maiden name was Sophronia Stokes and she was the daughter of Mr. Robt. Stokes, of Lake Opinicon, Ont. She was married to Rev. Mr. Elliott about nine years ago and during the three years they have resided in Peterborough. Mrs. Elliott gained the esteem and love of many, both in her husband's congregation and outside, by her unselfishness and many other lovable qualities. It adds to Mr. Elliott's sorrow that six children are left homeless, the oldest being 8 years of age. During the last few days Mrs. Elliott's mother was with her and Mr. Elliott's two sisters were also present and did everything they could to lighten the suffering. The members of the Park street congregation and other friends were also thoughtful in doing what they could. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at the Little Lake cemetery. The Times extends its deepest sympathy to the bereaved husband and relatives.

ACROBATIC COOKING.

MIRACLES DONE IN THE GALLEY OF AN ATLANTIC LINER.

Somebody Dishes While the Kitchen is Trying to Turn Somersaults and the Pass and Fans Are Dancing Jigs with the Cooks.

Cooking on the high seas isn't so exciting a profession as it was in the old days, but even now it presents problems and situations that would drive a landman chef to despair. It is one thing to sit down in dignified calm in a hotel kitchen and compose a symphonic entree, and it's quite another thing to clutch a rope swung across a kitchen that is trying to turn turtle and to master an entree that is attempting to dance a cancan on top of a plunging range. It would be a happy thing for stewards and cooks if every disgruntled passenger on a transatlantic steamer could, in rough weather, be forced to pay a visit to the galley and watch the efforts by which the meals with which he has been finding fault are prepared. The chances are that two minutes amid the fumes and heat of the galley would reduce him to a state of seasickness which would rob him of all interest in meals of any sort, but if he could wait long enough to receive a few mental impressions he would climb the galley stairs a humble and contrite traveler and accept food fit to eat as a miracle wrought in his behalf.

On the modern steamers galley arrangements have been improved to a degree that would make an old time sea cook open his eyes in amazement, but even under such conditions the cooking is difficult work. In the first place, room is necessarily limited, and every inch of space must be made to count, yet a large number of cooks and assistants are employed. One of the large steamers will have 30 men at work in its galley, and 30 men playing leapfrog about a microscopic kitchen and doing juggling feats with pots and pans and knives and rolling pins while the ship stands on its beam ends is a sight to bring tears to the eyes of a lover of a quiet life.

In these narrow quarters cooking is done on a scale larger than the ordinary saloon passenger realizes. The crew must be fed in port and out. So the cooks have from 500 to 600 men on their hands every day of the year. Then during the voyage the steerage, second cabin and first cabin must be provided for. The steerage passengers do not have an elaborate bill of fare, but about 5,000 small loaves of bread are baked for the crew and steerage every day, and that in itself is no small task.

The very sight of the baker's dough heated is enough to discourage a faint hearted cook, for flour is dumped into it by the barrel. One hundred and fifty barrels of flour melt away on a voyage like spring snowdrifts, and 20 tons of potatoes dance merrily up the galley stairs to table land in hand with 20,000 pounds of beef, while 10,000 eggs, more or less seascall, follow wearily. Then 150 gallons of fresh milk scum the 1,000 gallons of condensed milk stored beside it and advise the 1,000 pounds of coffee to have nothing to do with it. The ghosts of countless chickens, turkeys, ducks and fishes haunt the kitchen where their slaughtered bodies hang in hundreds at a time. As for the incidentals, no one but the head steward knows the tale of them. Imagine all this food prepared in an apartment house kitchen addicted to handspins, and you have the steamer galley situation.

Along the end of the room runs the range. The ovens are divided into compartments which will hold firmly pans of varying sizes. On top of the stoves a steel bar runs along the front and back, and separate crossbars may be clamped to these at convenient intervals. Pots and kettles are hemmed in in this way, and to add to their firmness each is clamped to a crossbar with what looks like a large iron clothespin. All cooking utensils are made much deeper than would be necessary in ordinary cooking in order to avoid spilling of the contents in case of rough weather. The huge copper stock pots in which wholesale boiling is done are heated by steam, and all broiling is done over an immense charcoal fire. The bakers have a separate caddy hole and ovens for themselves, and beyond them is a cold room where confections and pastries are made.

Everything is swept and garnished in a fashion to satisfy the heart of a Dutch housewife. The copper shines resplendent—but the smells! Ye gods, the smells! Let the seascall man who has held his breath and plunged madly up the companion way to escape the deadly whiff of air coming from the galley imagine that that odor intensified, concentrated, mixed with steam and smoke and multiplied by four, and he may have some idea of the atmosphere down in the galley.

A steamer kitchen is no place for any one with a tendency toward seasickness, and the first few voyages of a young cook's assistant are tortures. There isn't any fresh glow of curiosity about the man, and he doesn't get an atom of sympathy. His galley mates guy him, and his superiors bully him. He sounds a depth of seasickness beside which the state of the groaning passenger on deck in a steamer chair is rose colored and agreeable. Often one voyage is all that he can stand, and he bolts incontinently when the ship reaches port, but if he has the courage to suffer until he is thoroughly seasoned he overcomes his qualms and is ready to laugh at the next green hand.

Few accidents occur in the steamer galleys nowadays, when innumerable patients and safeguards are employed. Once in awhile a stock pot blows up from too much steam pressure, or a careless or unskilled cook is cut or burned or scalded, but such cases are rare. Ropes are stretched across in front of the ranges, and when the ship is plunging badly the cooks hold these ropes while working over the fire. Fortunately for the workers in the galley, when the weather is very rough a large percentage of the passengers lose their interest in food, so the work of the cooks is lessened, and this fact offsets the added difficulty in the preparation of the food. The galley is separated from the rest of the boat by water tight doors and can be shut off so securely that it is practically impossible, except in case of serious accident, for water to reach the fire and put a stop to culinary proceedings.

A PICKPOCKET'S RUSE.

The Trick by Which He Once Got a Woman's Purse.

Jack Piggott, the noted pickpocket, used to tell a funny story about the difficulty he had in picking the pocket of a fashionably dressed woman who was looking in at the window of Shreve's jewelry store. It illustrates the hardships that the light fingered gentry are forced to endure in the pursuit of their profession and when first related was considered amusing not only by Piggott, but by the many to whom he confided his experience.

It was a cold winter evening, and the lady on whose purse Piggott had designed looking at the holiday finery so temptingly displayed. Piggott said that he tried all the arts known to his craft for the extraction of the wallet, but all in vain, until, as a last resort, he fished a toothpick from his pocket and, reaching around, tickled the lady's ear. Instinctively she raised her hand to brush away the invading insect or whatever it might be and in so doing let go of her pocketbook that she was carrying in the pocket of her coat.

It was only an instant, but it was long enough for the expert pickpocket to get in his work, and when she put her hand back her money was gone, and in the crowd around her she could not identify the pale faced, fashionably dressed young man at her side as the person who had robbed her, and if she had accused him there would have been no proof against him, as the swag was at once passed to a pal who stood ready to receive it and run. Piggott was not even arrested for that crime, and the lady's ludicrous error furnished material for mirth long afterwards.—San Francisco Bulletin.

A Russo-British clash in Persia should at least give us some musical Lalla Rookh war map names with which to offset the Boer tongue twisters.—St. Louis Republic.

It is quite possible that we are to have an interesting sequel to the peace receipt of the emperor of Russia and that the coming conflict between Russia and England is not far distant.—Chicago Record.

Both Russia and England have always frankly admitted that an Anglo-Russian war of supremacy in India is bound to come at some time. It is reasonable to suppose that it shall be precipitated by the government which sees a sudden advantage too great to be ignored.—St. Louis Republic.

The ardent solicitude for the amity of the shah is due to the mobilization of a Russian army on the Afghan frontier and the confessed intention to occupy Herat at an early day. Having explored all the routes to British India, the czar has decided to mark his baggage "via Persia."—Philadelphia Times.

RECENT INVENTIONS.

Breathing in rough water is made easy by a new life preserver, which has a vertical tube secured to the front of the chest chamber, with a mouthpiece through which air is drawn from the top of the tube, which extends above the head.

To prevent the reins from catching under the horse's tail a new harness attachment is formed of a metal yoke secured to the back strap, with fingers extending on either side to carry the lines, a brace being set at right angles with the yoke to hold it vertical.

By the use of a Tennessee man's device horses can be checked and uncheck without leaving the carriage, a short strap being used to connect the reins over the back pad, with a second strap joining the first strap to the check rein, in order that a pull on the reins can guide the check over the hook.

Short Story of the Day

A COUNTRY GIRL'S ADVENTURE.

I was a girl of fourteen at the time, living with my parents and two older brothers in the Western part of Wisconsin. Father owned a large herd of cattle, which instead of being pastured as cattle in the same district now are, grazed anywhere on the unbroken hillside, or in the lowlands along the streams.

Large tracks of good level land were also unbroken then, and grazing paid the farmers well. Each man kept his fields well fenced and the cattle ran at large. As my brothers were usually needed in the fields, I had to look after the cattle, and see that they were at home every night so that the cows might be milked regularly.

When the weather was fine this was a pleasant task, for who does not enjoy an evening ride in summer, over the hills and through the woods, with a cloudless sky overhead! However, the weather was not always the same, and when it took a change, my ride was altogether different.

One July day I remember in particular. The air seemed full of electricity. One thunder-shower followed another all day, and the lightning instead of shooting around, came straight down with such bangs that we thought almost every stroke had hit the barn or one of the other buildings. Father would not allow any of us to leave the house that night, and the cattle started out. Very early the next morning, however, I was up and out, for the fog had to open out the day that got wet the day before.
I started toward the favorite feeding grounds of the cattle, and soon came to the river bottom, then I followed an old trail down the river.

After going about four miles, and still not hearing the bells, I made up my mind that they had left the lowlands when the storm came on. I knew that if fear had driven them away, I should be likely to find them in the white-oak timber, about two miles south of the river. Cattle always flee to the thickest woods, if possible, when frightened by a thunder-storm.

I turned my horse out of the main track, and followed a path to the left through thick patches of hazel-brush and around clumps of wild plum and gooseberry bushes till I came to what we called the "first bench." Riding to the top and listening again, I found that I was right in my surmise, for here, where the breeze could be felt,

I heard the bells quite plainly.

The country upon these benches was much different from the bottom.
There was no low brush, and no timber except a burr-oak or a monstrous white-oak. As I went forward I found the white-oak thicker, till, when about a mile from the river, I entered the heavy timber. I then judged the bells to be a mile away yet.

I had gone a little way into the woods when I stopped. I heard a queer, indistinct sound, something that made me think of ghosts in starched robes, it was so queer. I began to feel a creeping sensation, for there was not a moving thing in sight. Then the noise grew louder and changed into a faint humming, like a whirlwind into a corn field. The sun was growing hotter, but I grew colder, for the strange sound got louder, I could not make out where it came from.
Even old Jerry threw up his head with a snort of alarm.

It seemed to me, alone there in the great woods, that I had never heard anything so awful as that humming, buzzing noise, which kept on getting louder and louder until it came right down on me, and then I saw what it was—a great, big swarm of bees on the wing. I had seen bees before but had never seen them swarming.

My brother had bought a colony early in the spring, but they had not swarmed. He had also bought some bee-books, and subscribed for a bee paper, all of which interested me very much. As I studied, I grew anxious to experiment with his bees, to find out for myself if all the wonderful things that I read were true, but was emphatically forbidden to meddle.

As soon as I realized, therefore, that I saw a swarm of bees, the idea of catching them came into my mind, but before I could form my plan the horse became excited and tried to run away.
With a firm hand and a little coaxing, however, I managed to get him to follow the bees.

Now that was not catching the bees at all, and they might fly several miles if unmolested. I must try to do something. What did the bee-books say about bringing down runaway swarms? First, throw water among them with a force-pump, or by other means but how was I to do that with a water nearer than the river? Second, throw sand or gravel among them,
but I could not do that either. Third, made a loud noise by beating tin pans, firing guns or ringing bells;
how was I to make a noise that would amount to anything? Alone in the timber, with a frightened horse, I could not do nothing but scream, and of course that would be of no use.

While these thoughts were running through my mind the horse and bees were getting over the ground at a good rate, and I had forgotten all about the cattle.

Just as I was about to give up the chance, we suddenly came upon old Bright and Brindle, the two big logging "box," quietly chewing their cud in the shade. The unexpected appearance of the horse, and the noise of bees so frightened them, that they leaped to their feet with bellows and with heads and tails high in the air, raced away, straight ahead, making the woods ring with their heavy bells.
In less than a minute oxen, horse and rider were in the midst of the main herd.

I will leave it to you to imagine the racket made by the bellowing of a hundred head of frightened cattle and the rattling of a dozen ox-bells.
My horse reared and plunged, and I could hardly keep on my seat, but, luckily for me, the cattle turned their heads toward home and were soon out of sight.

After quieting the horse a little, I again turned my attention to the bees.
Surely there had been noise enough,
if that were all that was needed.
There they were, and what a pretty sight! A little herd formed on a low branch, and hundreds of tiny little workers hovered around it, raising and falling and drawing nearer and nearer, then settled down into it, each one seeming to have its own little niche to fill up, till presently nearly every bee was quiet. And there they hung, a great ball or cluster at least eight inches in diameter at the

THE TROUT LAKE (B.C.) TOPIC

Of March 31, commenting editorially on the high grade of the Lardeau ore, says:
"For instance take the 'Nettie L.' A hundred feet beneath the surface ore was exposed giving $140.00 to the ton. The 'Silver Cup' did not appear high-grade at surface, but at 93 feet rich ore was struck, and this property is now paying $145.00 to the ton. The Silver Belt, on Brown's Ck., was poor on the surface, but at the point where crosscut intersected the vein ore runs into the thousands. The ROB ROY, at the head of the North Fork, located near the great Lime Dyke, was considered a low-grade proposition from surface indications, but in the tunnel which exposed the vein at a depth, gray copper is showing up. Regarding this property and the section of which it is representative, it has been maintained that many of the Leads in and near the Lime Dyke were low-grade. But as a matter of fact none of them have been tapped at a depth with the exception of the ROB ROY, and here it has been demonstrated that the grade of the ore is very greatly improved, so it is reasonable to suppose that a like improvement in quality will occur when depth is gained on other claims on the same Lead."

FELLING FOREST GIANTS.

Methods Used in Cutting Down the Redwoods of California.

It is a most interesting sight to behold one of these giant redwoods fall. The process of cutting is effected through the use of the ax and the saw. All axes are double faced, through which much time is saved in sharpening. Sometimes the axes start the cut on both sides of the trunk and at places about opposite each other through the thickness of the tree. After the chopping has penetrated to the depth of about two feet on each side the saw is started in the line of the incision and the job completed with that instrument. Generally, however, the direction in which the tree is to fall is determined, and the cut is made in that side to the depth of one to three feet. Then the choppers pass to the opposite side and begin sawing at a point several feet higher than the place of the incision. As the saw moves through the heart of the giant he begins to sag down on the side where the wound is being made. The choppers then lift apart the cut and open the section which the saw is making, thereby keeping free play for the saw. This is aided at times by driving wedges at the place where the saw entered.

Presently it is apparent that the section is opening wider and wider and that the tree is beginning to lean away from the cutters. They continue with their work a moment longer, then is heard the cracking of the wood fibers in front of the saw teeth. Another crash of the saw, and these increase. They give a report like firing pistols and the rapidity of detonation more rapid, presently merge into a continuous roar. Then if you are standing near by and the tree is large you will get the impression that everything above is coming to earth, that the whole forest is falling. The great mass starts slowly to topple, cracking and exploding ever louder at its base, until with a fearful momentum it comes sprawling down, cracking and crashing and roaring and hitting the earth with a clump and thump as if a whole broadside of 13 inch bombs had simultaneously struck a bastion.

The choppers quickly run over the trunk with their axes and cut away all the branches. Almost before you can recover yourself the long stalk is bare of limbs, and then the men begin cross cutting it into logs or sections of from 24 to 30 feet, as long as it is desired that the logs be cut. This done, the logs are piled up in the bark, the crowbar being used to pry off the thick integument, which is sometimes a foot in depth, the log being turned with jackscrews when such is practicable to get at the under side.

ONE MADE MANY WILLS.

One Woman's Plan For Living Well and Making Family Resolutions.

"Several years ago," said a New Orleans lawyer, chatting about queer experiences in his profession, "a woman died in this city who to my certain knowledge had made about 25 different wills. Of course there are people in the world who have a mania for will making, just as there are manias in other directions, but there was a distinct method in this woman's madness. She made her numerous wills for the deliberate purpose of exciting curiosity and then profiting by it, and if the true story of the curious complications growing out of that policy could be written it would form an astonishing chronicle of greed and duplicity.

"To begin with, she had a couple of places of improved property worth perhaps $50,000 and a lot of personal belongings which were more junk and rubbish, but which she valued at a fabulous figure. Between the two she was reputed to be worth from $50,000 to $100,000, and there was much jealousy as to the prospective succession among a lot of distant relatives. The old woman's plan was to take up her quarters with some particular set of her kin and make a will in their favor. Needless to say, she would be treated with every consideration, but she was irascible and invariably got into a quarrel in the course of a few months and moved elsewhere else, where the same programme was repeated. She spent years in migrations of that sort, going the rounds of her relatives several times and camping temporarily with numerous personal friends.

"When she finally died, it was found that her last authentic will left the control of property to a niece who had shown her scarcely any attention at all, and the will of rage and disappointment that arose was something simply terrific. I dare say she engendered more family bitterness when she was alive, precipitated more rows and was instrumental in causing a greater number of people to stop speaking when they passed by than any one person in the parish. This was an extreme case, but it was by no means unique. Almost every lawyer in town who has a large general practice could cite instances where judicious will making has kept old age surrounded by affectionate solicitude."—New Orleans Times Democrat.

BITS OF SCIENCE.

Dr. Mach of Berlin has made a new alloy of magnesium and aluminum, producing a compound like brass, white as silver and can be turned and bored.

The weight of all the air on the globe would be eleven and two-thirds trillion pounds if no deductions had to be made for space filled by mountains and land above sea level.

Bleating with liquid air at Vienna has led to the conclusion that to be effective the liquid should be used within 15 minutes after preparation. An trial after 25 hours, when half of it had been evaporated, it had no destructive effect.

A SKY FANCY.

Oh, the moon's a mighty golf ball,
By stroke of Titan hurled;
From off the far horizon's rim,
The driven round the world!
And Venus looks like wonder,
And the war god redly blinks
As the big white ball goes sailing high
Along the starry hills.
It seems o'er cloudy bunkers
That seek its flight to stay,
And in its path it comes swift
The misty Milky Way.
And when it has completed
Its course across the sky
On yonder hilltop of the west
It finds its distant "lie."
Where waits a giant player
Who "lofts" with steady aim,
And so without a pause goes on
The everlasting game.

HIS FIRST LECTURE.

The Way Artemus Ward Made It a Brilliant Success.

"I told a story several years ago in my house, when I was living in Philadelphia," said Robert O. Ogden, the famous New York merchant, "about a traveler on a New England railroad. When I ended it, I added, 'So Artemus Ward once said.'"

"Yes," spoke up John Sears, a Philadelphia journalist of wide fame and broad attainments. "Yes," he repeated, "that is just what Artemus Ward did say."

"How do you know?" I asked. Now, I had known Mr. Sears for many years, and I had never heard him mention Ward before. "Tell us all about it,"

"I heard him say it. I was there," said Mr. Sears. "In 1859 or 1860 Browne, who had made a great reputation by his humorous work in the west and in New York under the name of Artemus Ward, worked for one of the metropolitan papers. I was employed by another one, and we had two friends who were working in other offices. We used to dine together every night. We advised Ward to become a lecturer. We told him that he could make much more money lecturing than writing. But Ward demurred. He was afraid to venture it. One day, however, he went to a lecture bureau and gave his name. He chose for the title of his lecture 'The Children in the Wood.' That night he told us all about it. With a few days he received an offer to lecture for the benefit of the Mechanics' library in Brooklyn, and he told us of that too.

"I'm afraid I shall fail utterly," he said. "I know I can't face an audience." "But you'll have your manuscript," some one said.

"I know it," he replied, "but I'll be too frightened to manage even that." "In that case," I said, "you can tell stories, just as you tell them to us, and that will carry you through all right."

"The night of the lecture we three men went with Ward to Brooklyn, and it was just as he had feared. He forgot his lines, and he was so frightened that he even forgot his manuscript. He faced his audience with a blank look of despair that most of the people took to be assumed. But I knew it was real. Then he started off with a story that had no more to do with 'The Children in the Wood' than with the tariff question, and when he ended it he observed, 'That is what I should have told you if I were not lecturing upon 'The Children in the Wood.'"

From that he went on in his own inimitable fashion, story following story, until he had the audience convulsed with laughter, and the lecture was a brilliant success. That was Artemus Ward's first appearance on the platform. Now, Mr. Ogden, what do you know about it?"

"I arranged that lecture," I replied. "That is all. I was living in Brooklyn and was interested in the library. We wanted a lecture. I went to the bureau, and seeing the name of Artemus Ward, I engaged him."—Saturday Evening Post.

German Searchlight on Hamlet.

This Shakespeare story comes from the Frankfurter Zeitung. The question has often been asked why Shakespeare should have Hamlet, who was born in Jutland, to the castle of Kronborg, near Helsingor, or Elsinore, in Denmark, and how he came to have such a curious exact knowledge of the local conditions of the little seaport.

These questions are answered by an old document found a short time ago in the archives of Helsingor. The document says that the burgomaster of the town had a wooden fence erected in the year 1585 and that this fence was destroyed by a troupe of English actors. The names of the latter are mentioned, and among them are found some who, it is certain, were members of Shakespeare's company.

From this it is concluded that this troupe or several members thereof had given representations in the year named in Helsingor and that Shakespeare had obtained from them a description of the castle of Kronborg and its neighborhood.

Breeding Bees.

"Excuse me, Brother Bogback," said an Arkansas man, who was one of the high priests at the church festival, addressing a determined looking gentleman who was gazing intently at one of the tables, "but are you—ah! going to stop eating pretty soon? You have your fifth bowl of oyster stew now, and—ah!"

"The case," replied Brother Bogback, with his mouth full, "stands like this, Sister Hookey. You made me pay in advance. I forked over a $5 bill, and you sweetly told me that as it was for the benefit of the church it was against the rules to give any change back. So, now, sister, I'm going to keep right on eating till one of three things happens—till the rules are amended for my benefit or I get my money's worth or bust. That's the kind of man I am, Sister Hookey."—Life.

Knows What He's About.

"I believe Higginbotham smokes the vilest cigars on earth. When he drops in at my office, I always give him a good cigar to keep him from lighting one of his own." "Drops in every day, doesn't he?" "Generally."

"I thought so. I know Higginbotham. He is a fellow of a good deal of thrift and ingenuity."—Chicago Tribune.

Wit and Humor.

"What's the difference between wit and humor?" "If a man says humorous things about you, it makes you laugh; if he says witty things about you, it makes you mad."—Chicago Record.

In France and Italy it is believed that the maiden who buries a drop of her blood under a rosebush will be rewarded with rose tinted cheeks.

A miser is one of the things that will hang in any climate.—Chicago News.

If Worries a Woman

To find her beauty fading, and feel her strength slowly slipping away. Worry only makes matters worse. In such a crisis the wise woman acts. She looks around for help, and finds it in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. No other medicine has done so much for weak and feeble women as "Favorite Prescription." It cures female weakness and diseases of the delicate organs which undermine woman's strength and mar her beauty. It makes weak women strong, sick women well.

Mrs. W. J. Kidder, of Hill Dale Farm (Rochester, N.Y.), writes: "Your kindly advice and medicine have brought me great relief. During the past year I found myself pregnant and in rapidly falling health. I suffered dreadfully from bloating and urinary difficulty. I was growing weaker each day and could do all my own work (we live on a good sized farm). I walked and rode all I could, and enjoyed it. I had a short, easy confinement, and have a healthy baby boy."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure foal breath, by curing his cause.

HE WASHED DISHES.

The Hard Job One Boy Had All the Way to Europe.

The girls who have complained in various keys because they had dishes to wash may be glad to hear of a young man who can look at the matter through their eyes, perhaps more so. He had shipped as "boy" on a cattle steamer for Europe because he wanted to save as much as possible on his transportation, and—but the rest of the story sounds better in his own words:

"About 4:30 in the morning I was awakened and told to go to work. I hastily dressed, for the first and last time on board, for during the rest of the voyage I took care not to undress. It seemed scarcely worth while. I arrived on deck and found the steward waiting for me. He showed me into the pantry, introduced me to 'Pants,' as the pantryman was called, and told me that my chief duty during the voyage would be to wash dishes.

"There was already a large pile of dirty dishes waiting to be washed, and I rolled up my sleeves, fixed the hot water and began to work. I had these almost done when another and larger lot was brought in from the dining room. This proved to be the daily programme. I no sooner had one pile washed than others were brought in, and I was never done. I don't think I ever saw so many dishes before in my life, and I hope I never shall again. There were 60 passengers aboard besides the cattleman, and six meals were served each day. From the dishes that came out to be washed, I think that each passenger must have used at least six plates at a meal."

Samson's Talking Man.

Samson's talking man, or "tallafall," is a character. All the affairs of state of the village in which he holds office are carried upon his shoulders. In ordinary he is the chief adviser, persuader, convincer and restrainer of the leading chiefs.

Having the gift of eloquence, he makes the most of it. He enjoys immunity from many things. He cannot be spoken of in ordinary terms. If it should be necessary to speak of his eyes or his mouth or his limbs, special honorable words must be used, words which attach to him alone and have never been applied to the personal parts of ordinary men.

As he stands to deliver his soft, persuasive, mellifluous oratory, with staff of office in his hand and his fly duster thrown over his shoulder, any one can see that he is a man of great importance, or if this is not apparent from his attitude it may be gathered from the attention paid to his utterances by gray haired chiefs and by youths and maidens. If the talking man is a clever fellow and understands his business, he is the chief ruling power in his tribe, although the nominal headship is always vested in a chief or patriarchal figurehead.

HE WILL LIKELY RECOVER.

Michael Hennessy Survived a Critical Surgical Operation.

Dr. McAlpine, assisted by Drs. Blanchard, Allan and Vrooman, performed a difficult surgical operation upon Michael Hennessy, the victim of Saturday's shocking accident at Lindsay. The tearing of the arm from the body left a terrible exposed wound, and it became necessary to provide a natural covering in order that the torn flesh might have a chance to heal. Part of the left collar bone and shoulder-blade were removed, the severed ligaments and muscles properly disposed of, and the skin drawn over the wound and securely fastened. The patient was under the effects of chloroform for the two hours necessary to complete the operation, but at the close his pulse was vigorous and his general condition such as to give his friends a strong assurance that he will make a good recovery.

It is evidently a case of careless driving.

COULDN'T KEEP IT.

Kept It Hid from the Children.

"We cannot keep Grape Nut food in the house. It goes so fast I have to hide it, because the children love it so. It is just the food I have been looking for ever so long; something that I do not have to stop to prepare and still is nourishing. Wishing you all the success you deserve," Mary Y. Margeson, 38 Lincoln St., Winthrop, Me.

Grape-Nuts is the most scientifically made food on the market. It is perfectly and completely cooked at the factory and can be served at an instant's notice, either with rich cold cream, or with hot milk if a hot dish is desired. When milk or water are used, a little sugar should be added, but when cold cream is used alone the natural grape sugar, which can be seen glistening on the granules, is sufficiently sweet to satisfy the palate. This grape sugar is not poured over the granules, as some people think, but exudes from the granules in the process of manufacture, when the starch of the grains is changed from starch to grape sugar by the process of manufacture. This, in effect, is the first act of digestion; therefore, Grape-Nuts Food is pre-digested and is most perfectly assimilated by the very weakest stomach.

STATEMENT OF CLAIM FILED BY PLAINTIFF'S SOLICITORS.

In the Case of Sherwood vs. the Town of Peterborough—A Strong Case for the Plaintiff.

The following is a statement of claim filed yesterday by Messrs. Denison, Peck and Stevenson on the action of (Mrs.) Hattie M. Sherwood against the town of Peterborough. It will be remembered that Mrs. Sherwood slipped and fell on the pavement near the Y.M.C.A. building, and sustained a fracture of the leg. She claims $2,000 damages.

STATEMENT OF CLAIM. IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE. WRIT Issued the 21st Day of February 1900.

Between Hattie M. Sherwood, Plaintiff, and the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough, defendants.

1. The Plaintiff is a married woman, residing at the Town of Peterborough and the Defendants are a Municipal Corporation.

2. On Friday, the 2nd day of February 1900, the Plaintiff was passing along the west side of George street, being the main street of the Town of Peterborough, and when opposite Lot No. 1, south of Murray street, and close to the south east corner of the Town of Peterborough, the Plaintiff fell upon the pavement and broke her leg.

3. The accident was caused by a ridge of ice and snow which had formed on the pavement about a month before the accident occurred. The said ridge of ice and snow was a constant danger to pedestrians, and many persons fell thereon during the month prior to the day on which the Plaintiff was injured, and actual notice of the dangerous condition of the pavement at this point was given to the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough some days before the accident occurred that the accumulation of ice and snow at the point in question was dangerous to pedestrians.

4. The Engineer of the Town of Peterborough, T. A. H. Hay, Esq., and the Mayor of the Town, James Kendry, M. P., both lived in a portion of the Town which lay to the north of the pavement in question, and were in the habit of passing along and over the pavement in question, in order to reach the centre of the Town, and the said Mayor and the said Engineer had actual notice of the dangerous condition of the pavement for some days prior to the happening of the accident in question.

5. The Defendants were guilty of gross negligence in permitting the ice and snow to accumulate on the pavement in the form of a sloping ridge higher on the west side, thereof, and the result was that for the said period of several weeks without making any attempt to remove the same.

6. The ridge of ice and snow upon which the Plaintiff fell was not caused by ordinary climatic conditions, but was caused by the gross negligence of the Defendants under the following circumstances.

7. In or about the month of August 1899, the Defendant Corporation removed the wooden sidewalk at the point in question, and having lowered the grade by one foot constructed a granite sidewalk in substitution for the said wooden sidewalk.

8. The land adjoining the pavement at the point where the Plaintiff fell is vacant and measures 160 feet frontage on George street, by 114 feet deep, and by reason of the placing of the new pavement at a grade one foot lower than this vacant land, without providing any provision for drainage and building the pavement close to the street line, there was no escape for the surface drainage of said vacant land, but across the pavement in question, with the result that the ridge of ice and snow upon which the Plaintiff fell was formed, and continued to increase in size until the accident occurred.

9. At the time the said pavement was being constructed the Defendant Corporation was notified that the grade was being struck too low, and that the pavement would be flooded in the winter time, but the said Corporation took no measures to prevent the evils of what notice was given and which have occurred as predicted.

10. By-law No. 267 of the Town of Peterborough provided that the occupants of property adjoining the sidewalks in the Town of Peterborough shall keep the said sidewalks clear of ice, but for many years the Defendant Corporation negligently permitted the said By-law to lie in abeyance, nor has any effort been made to enforce the said By-law, or to compel householders to remove the snow and ice before their premises, with the result that the By-law has been totally disregarded throughout the whole of the Town of Peterborough, and at the point in question where the Plaintiff fell, the snow and ice were never removed from the pavement as provided by the By-law from the beginning of the winter to the end thereof, though there were many severe and heavy snow storms during the said winter.

11. The Corporation on several occasions caused a snow-plow to be drawn along the pavement in question, which said snow-plow was utterly incapable of removing the ridge of ice and snow referred to, and which instead of improving matters, converted the pavement into a drain for the vacant land before mentioned.

12. The dangerous condition of the pavement at the point in question was notorious for several weeks before the accident occurred, but the Corporation made no attempt to remove the said obstruction.

13. The Plaintiff has been confined to her bed since the accident occurred, and is now unable to walk, and has endured great pain and suffering and has been put to great expense for surgical and medical attendance and for nursing.

14. (a) The Plaintiff claims the sum of $2,000 damages.

(b) The costs of this action.

The Plaintiff proposes that this action should be tried at Peterborough. Delivered this second day of May A.D. 1900, by Denison Peck & Stevenson, Number 415 Water street, in the Town of Peterborough, Plaintiff's Solicitors.

The Best Paper.

Mr. John Young, of Apaley, was in town yesterday on his way to Winnipeg, where he will remain for the summer. Mr. Young called on the Times and expressed his admiration for this great family Journal. He says that everybody in the back country regards it as the best local paper. There was a time when the G.P.J. would have set up the buttermilk under such circumstances, and so many tell us the same thing that there is nothing new about it.

Important Announcement To Readers of the Daily Times.

THE TIMES has great pleasure in announcing that it has just completed an arrangement with Messrs. George N. Morang & Company Kipling's complete works in prose and verse. Kipling more than any other living writer represents the spirit of imperialism which has obtained such ascendancy throughout the British Empire. In prose and poem, he has depicted it in its various phases with a realism and vividness that have charmed all readers. He is the recognized Bard of the Empire, although the empty title is held by another. Both his prose and his verse are distinctively British. He voices the thoughts and aspirations of the British people, and yet his books are read in every language of Europe, and in the United States he is the most popular author of the day.

Our readers will be glad to learn that we have arranged to place within their easy reach the complete works of Kipling. The edition is a fine one; absolutely complete and up to date; well printed on good paper and tastefully bound. Some of the volumes are illustrated, and some contain decorations by Mr. Lockwood Kipling, the Author's father. There is a biography of Kipling by Prof. Charles Eliot Norton, and a photogravure portrait in the first volume. A first payment of $1 gives possession of the entire set, and the purchase is completed afterwards in little payments. The sale will open the day after to-morrow, and readers will do well to take advantage of our first announcements as were only able to arrange for a few sets and the probabilities are they will be taken up rapidly.

REPORTED CAPTURE OF BRANDFORT BY BRITISH

President Kruger Will Sue for Peace and Trust to Foreign Intervention.

THE GORDON HIGHLANDERS USED COLD STEEL.

A Party of Fifty Surrounded by a Large Number of Boers on Being Called Upon to Surrender Charged With Bayonets and Cut Their Way Through.

London, May 4. It is announced that the British have captured Brandfort.

London, May 4. The Daily News has the following from Thaba N'Chu, dated Wednesday:—In yesterday's flanking movement, Capt. Towse and fifty Gordon Highlanders were surrounded by 200 Boers, who demanded their surrender. Capt. Towse ordered his men to fix bayonets, and charge. With a wild cheer the Gordons rushed at the enemy and swept them away with great slaughter. Capt. Towse was blinded in both eyes by the enemy's fire and throughout behaved most heroically.

London, May 4. Cape Town May 3. Within an hour after the opening of the relief fund here, there were five subscriptions of $500 each recorded. The members of Strathcona House contributed liberally.

London, May 4. 4.15 a.m. General Broadwood's cavalry brigade has reached Kimberley, 35 miles north of Thaba N'Chu. Gen. Ian Hamilton is in command of the force. The divisions of Generals Rundle and French are in and near Thaba N'Chu. Thus Lord Roberts has 50,000 men operating clear of the railway, along a front of forty miles. He is advancing slowly with some success, but nothing decisive. Yet, at all points of concentration, the Boers appear in force to oppose the British advance.

Observers at headquarters in Bloemfontein seem to think that the Boers are preparing to evacuate Brandfort and Ladybrand. The Boers still holding Thaba N'Chu district are estimated at four thousand men.

One correspondent wiring from Bloemfontein Wednesday at 11.55 p.m. said the British hoped to cut off the whole command. The correspondents at Kimberley have been forbidden to communicate for several days, the deduction being that a forward movement is under way there. The Boers in Natal are restless. Two hundred crossed Sunday's River Wednesday to engage the British outposts.

What Col. Otter Said About Bennett's Punishment.

Ottawa, May 3.—The part of Col. Otter's last report, referring to Pte. Bennett's punishment for chicken stealing, was made public by the Militia Department. It is ascertained that Col. Otter stated in it that when he heard of Pte. Bennett's punishment for leaving he had said it was not too light.

JUST WHAT THEY WANT.

Young, Bold, Clean, Intelligent Canadians for South Africa.

London, May 2.—Rudyard Kipling in today's Daily Mail, referring to the desirability of colonial settlement in South Africa, and the lack of inducements offered by the Home Government, says:

Among the various hospitals lie three hundred Canadians of the very stamp and breed we require: young, sound, clean, intelligent, well-educated. Three hundred heads of sane and capable families. Shall we let all these beautiful men go back to their own place and never lift a finger to stay them?

ITS BAPTISM OF FIRE.

Indian Volunteer Corps in Action—Boer Positions Turned by G. M. and Canadians.

Bloemfontein, May 3.—Gen. Hamilton, whose force all day yesterday was in touch with the enemy, today succeeded, in conjunction with Gen. Smith-Dorrien's brigade (including the Royal Canadian Regiment), in turning their position with little loss. The Gordons made a spirited assault. A convey was reported to be in jeopardy between General Rundle and General Chermide, but it was quite safe, although the exaggerated reports caused General Chermide to move up a portion of his division.

DRIVING THEM BACK.

Roberts Presses Back Boers all Along His Sixty Mile Line.

London, May 3.—Stretched across the Orange Free State north of Bloemfontein is a line of British troops sixty miles long. Facing them upon every defensible piece of ground is a line of Boers who are endeavoring with might and main to stem the tide of invasion rolling steadily on to Pretoria. The British Commander-in-Chief is following masterly tactics. He knows that the longer his line the longer the Boers must be the line of the enemy drawn up in front of him. As he has three men to every one commanded by Boers the extension presents no risk. In the case of the Boers, however, it is otherwise. The longer the Boer line the more it becomes unduly weakened and unable to resist an attack in any one place, for the number of the burghers is limited. Upon this plan the operations north of Bloemfontein appear to be based. So long is the line which the Boers have to defend that their old tactics pursued on the Tugela, of concentrating their whole force upon a threatened point, are no longer of any value. The distance to be traversed is so great that the attack is delivered and pressed home long before assistance can be summoned. Besides, if men were sent from one part of the line to another there would be two weak spots to attack and carry while these men were on the march. The Boers are, therefore, at the mercy of Roberts, who, by sheer force of numbers coupled with good maneuvering, is slowly pressing toward Win-

ANOTHER CANADIAN KILLED IN ACTION.

respondent of the Express repeats that he will start to relieve Mafeking as soon as the column has been properly organized.

A sentry at Cape Town shot and killed a Boer named Cronje, who was a relative of Gen. Cronje. Cronje was outside of the limits of the prisoners' camp, and ignored the sentry's warning to return, whereupon the latter shot him.

BOER INHUMANITY TO THE NATIVE WOMEN.

Col. Baden-Powell Complains That Boers Continue to Shell Women's Laager.

London, May 3.—Lord Roberts' latest despatch throws no light on the object and possibilities of the extensive operations in the neighborhood of Thaba N'Chu. One military critic believes he is justified in inferring that Lord Roberts' successful attack at Houtnek threatens the Boer centre and puts the British in a favorable position to crush the Boer left, which is still facing General Rundle at Thaba N'Chu, or their right, which is somewhere between Brandfort and Winburg.

General Ian Hamilton's success at Houtnek elicits little enthusiasm, as the critics unanimously pointed out some time ago that the policy of the Boers would be one of slow retirement.

Col. Baden-Powell reports officially from Mafeking, under date of April 20, that all was well there. He adds: "Thirteen native women tried to get away during the night of April 15. The enemy opened fire on them and killed three and wounded two. I wrote to Symman, pointing out that he shells the native stock, which is full of women and children and that when they are trying to escape by day the Boers have captured and flogged them and sent them back and by night they shoot them down, pretending to mistake them for night attacks. Symman has not replied. The proportion of killed and wounded above speaks for itself."

Other news from Mafeking details the careful saving of the provisions, and says there are diminished rations for 9,000 souls within the beleaguered town.

naval men have been summoned to the castle to be inspected by the Queen. The band of the Grenadiers Guard met the naval brigade at the naval station and played them to the castle, through cheering throngs of people. Capt. Lambton and the officers of the Powerful were presented to Her Majesty, who thanked Captain Lambton and the brigade for their noble services to the Empire. The captain replied that what they had done was nothing to what the navy was prepared to do for Her Majesty.

The Queen saw the blue jackets entertained at dinner.

TRANSVAAL REPORTS OF RECENT FIGHTING.

A Boer War Bulletin Reports Minor Successes of Federals Near Brandfort.

Pretoria, May 2.—An official war bulletin issued here reports that April 28th the Federates captured nine prisoners and ten horses eastward of Thaba N'Chu and that April 30th a British mounted corps appeared near Brandfort. The Federates attacked them on two sides and the British retired. Two Federates were wounded and eleven prisoners were taken.

Another account, semi-officially, of this affair says that the Wakkerstroom and Ermelo commands had a skirmish with the British near Brandfort. After a sharp fight eleven prisoners were taken and nineteen British were left dead on the field, including Captain Liddy.

The heavy bombardment by the connection with the Baglio explosion.

British has been rumoured at Fourteen streams.

The correspondent of Reuters' Telegram Agency in the Boer camp at Brandfort wires that when the British appeared ten miles east of Brandfort General Delarey ordered a charge and five hundred Boers drove them back to their entrenchments. The Federates found four dead on the field and took seven prisoners, mostly wounded, including Lieut. Crane.

Later in the afternoon General Delarey learned that the British had forced their way twenty miles east of Brandfort and seven miles north of the Molder River.

An American has been arrested in connection with the Baglio explosion.

BOERS DRIVEN FROM HOUTNEK BY HAMILTON

Enemy Dispersed in Several Directions Mainly East and North.

THE CANADIANS GET A WELL DESERVED REST.

The Boys Fought Seven Days Out of Ten and Finished at Houtnek— The Enemy's Foreign Legion Lose Heavily in the Recent Engagements With British.

London, May 3.—The War Office has received the following report from Lord Roberts under date of Bloemfontein, May 2:—

"General Hamilton met with considerable success yesterday and drove the enemy out of the strong position they had taken up at Houtnek with comparative small loss to us. The Boers dispersed in several directions, mainly to the east and north, leaving twenty-six prisoners in our hands, including one commandant and 15 other wounded men. Gen. Hamilton is now in camp at Jacobusdal. As the moon needed rest after fighting seven out of the last ten days, I ordered them to halt for to-day. Gen. Broadwood's brigade of cavalry arrived upon the scene in time to afford valuable assistance by threatening the enemy's rear.

"During the afternoon Gen. Ian Hamilton was joined by Gen. Hamilton's brigade of infantry.

"The enemy admit having twelve killed and forty wounded yesterday. Among the former was Lieut. Gunther, a Jerusalem officer belonging to the Fifty-fifth Regiment, and amongst the latter was Maximoff, the Russian Commander of the Foreign Legion. Twenty-one out of fifty-two of the enemy's casualties occurred among members of that legion. Two Frenchmen were among the killed.

"General Hamilton speaks in high terms of the good service performed by the Eight Hussars under Col. Clowds, and made up into a regiment of lanciers, which came into Gen. Broadwood's brigade and assisted in making the Boers vacate their position. The final stroke to the enemy's rout was given by the Gordons, who, supported by the Shropshire Light Infantry, who cheered loudly when they got within two hundred yards of the position. Kitchener's Horse is also spoken of in terms of praise."

BOER CENTER BROKEN.

Critic Says the British Can Now Crush Their Flanks.

London, May 3.—Lord Roberts' latest despatch throws no light on the object and possibilities of the extensive operations in the neighborhood of Thaba N'Chu. One military critic believes he is justified in inferring that Lord Roberts' successful attack at Houtnek threatens the Boer centre and puts the British in a favorable position to crush the Boer left, which is still facing Gen. Rundle at Thaba N'Chu, or their right, which is somewhere between Brandfort and Winburg.

Gen. Ian Hamilton's success at Houtnek elicits little enthusiasm, as the critics unanimously pointed out some time ago, that the policy of the Boers would be one of slow retirement.

News from Mafeking details the careful saving of the provisions, and says there are diminished rations for nine thousand souls within the beleaguered town.

FAILED TO INTERCEPT THEM.

The Boers Not Cornered by General Broadwood's Cavalry.

London, May 3.—The Times has the following special from Krantzkrail:—An advance was made on Monday in the direction of Brandfort, General Wavell's Brigade moving from Karoo Siding. General Bruce Hamilton's from Glen, and Gen. Maxwell's from Krantzkrail. Close to the last brigade were four field batteries and two 4.7 inch field guns. On the right, at Holzhuisfontein, was General Broadwood's cavalry brigade and two horse batteries. The Boers were on Schalksbaai Hill and behind it. Our advance began at 9.30 o'clock. The Boers retired after some firing, and Gen. Broadwood on the right tried to intercept them, but the enemy abandoned all their positions, which are now held by our troops. All is quiet.

HOW THEY GET RECRUITS.

Transvaal Agents Snoot to the Gross—est. Deception.

Lorenzo Marquez, May 1. — That Boer agent the continent stoop to fraud to inveigle recruits into the Transvaal is shown by the story told by a simple-minded Texan who arrived on the Herzog. He confessed that his sole motive in going to the Transvaal was a promise to receive $1 per day during the war and the free grant of a farm when the war was over. When he arrived and was informed that there was no prospect of securing either the $1 per day or the farm, he seemed much crestfallen. The incident explains the eagerness of so many delusible foreigners to join the Boers. According to information from trustworthy sources, the Boers are only held together by the remarkable hold agent Kruger has over the older burghers, who still believe in his ability to secure intervention.

BOERS ARE FALLING BACK.

Lord Roberts Sends an Ultimatum to the Burghers.

London, May 3.—The Times says:—As a result of the operations, the enemy had moved back all along the line by Thursday. General Broadwood attempted to cut off the Boers at Schalksbaai on Monday, but as usual they withdrew in good time when they found their rear threatened. As a consequence of these operations a portion of Lord Roberts' forces now holds position near Brandfort, though the general advance seems to be still delayed by the resistance offered before Thaba N'Chu. However, there appears to be no reason to doubt that this will shortly be overcome, though possibly not without a considerable engagement. When Gen. Botha's force has been disposed of, the advance to the north may be expected to begin in earnest. As a preparatory to a movement, which necessarily must extend over a long line of communications, the Commander-in-Chief has taken fresh steps for the protection of his rear. Lord Roberts has warned the burghers that in future treachery will be severely punished, and at the same time has taken measures to make treachery less easy and therefore less tempting. The most effective of these probably will be the confiscation of all the horses distributed in the various districts. As the burghers have used these animals in violation of their oath to rejoin the Boer ranks, to raid and intimidate their more scrupulous fellows, and attack our troops, they cannot complain if we seize them for the Queen's service.

TOPE DOWN BRITISH FLAG.

Detroit Democrats Refuse to Give it a Place in Decorations.

Detroit, May 3.—William J. Bryan and J. Hamilton Lewis spoke under the flags of Scotland, Ireland, Wales, and even Spain, last night, but not under the English flag. The British colors which had been put up in the Auditorium in honor of the Mohawk Club banquet were torn down by one of the officers of the club. The Stars and Stripes had been fastened on supporting girders and the columns were covered with many colored bunting, including the flags of all nations. The decorations caused in the office of the Mohawk Club, "Beautiful" was the verdict. Before the officers retired, however, one of them saw the English flag standing out in bold relief. "Tear down that bloody emblem of tyranny," he shouted, and then did it himself. He then went around and tore down every British flag.

"Put up a Spanish flag in that place, a Boer flag there, and a Chinese flag yonder," he exclaimed, "but don't put up that dirty rag where it can be seen by the Democrats of Michigan."

He also demanded that the Scotch flag be pulled down, but finally said he was willing to permit the flags of Scotland, Wales, Ireland and Spain to appear on the decorations. The leaders of the Mohawk Club were distressed by the action of their official.

HARASSING THE BRITISH.

Boers are Very Troublesome, Though in Retreat Northward.

London, May 3.—A despatch from Bloemfontein says that the Boers, while withdrawing along Ladybrand and Brandfort line, continue to harass the British forces to the eastward. They have small commandos operating in the neighborhood of Sanna's Post and Isaac's Post, to interfere with convoys to and from the latter place, which arrived here this morning and had an engagement with Boers eight miles east of the waterworks. The Boers used a pom-pom.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

Those who were disappointed exhibition night at not seeing a basketball match, will be afforded an opportunity next Monday night. The intermediates have completed arrangements whereby they will play a pick-off team from Albert college Ballville, next Monday, May 7th. This being the only outside team which has been secured this season, the match will doubtless be largely patronized as it deserves.

The professional engaged by the golf club is now prepared to give instruction to the members. The Executive has made the following rules:—No members shall engage the professional for more than one hour per day or more than two days per week, but in the event of the professional at any time not being engaged, any member may play with him for an indefinite time provided no other member wishes to play with him, in which event the member is not allowed to play with him for more than one hour.

The bicycle parade announced for last night has been postponed till next week on account of the muddy condition of the streets. Notice of the date chosen will be given later.

Orilla Cane Club have been re-organized with a large membership. Judging from the character of the meeting, Orilla will experience a boom in canoeing this season. Every member of the executive is an enthusiastic and a canoeist in the practical sense. To produce increased interest in the pastime it was decided to hold a series of regattas at Geneva Park under the canoe club auspices, the first of which will be held very early in the season, probably before the Queen's birthday.

Peterborough should follow suit and endeavor to popularize canoeing again. We have fine water and some of the best canoe men in Canada reside here.

A SUMMARY OF THE BRITISH-BOER CAMPAIGN

London, May 2.—The advance of two strong British columns from Sanna's Post and Thaba N'Chu, respectively, towards Winburg, may be accounted for in two ways. Firstly, General Roberts may wish to station these forces in such a position north of Bloemfontein-Ladybrand Road, that they may prevent Boer raids upon the communications of French at Thaba N'Chu, and thus render it safe for the cavalry leader to march to a Ladybrand. Secondly, it may be the intention of the British-commander-in-chief to begin a general advance upon Winburg, trusting that Ladybrand would be thereupon deserted by the Boers, their retreat and communications being threatened. The first theory appears the less plausible of the two because owing to the hilly nature of the country around Ladybrand General Roberts will not attack that place unless it is impossible to occupy it with out doing so. In support of the second theory the correspondent of the Times may be quoted. He says that a definite forward movement is imminent, and that it will be preceded by a sweeping dash of the mounted troops along the whole front of the British position. This, coupled with the fact that the troops now leading the advance from Sanna's Post and Thaba N'Chu consist principally of mounted units, leads to the supposition that Ladybrand is to be flanked in the same way as the positions west of Bloemfontein were flanked during the march from the Modder. In any event, the effect of recent operations is to keep the Boers at arm's-length from the British, and this step would naturally be the preliminary to an advance.

CANADIANS AGAIN IN ACTION.

Thaba N'Chu, Tuesday, May 1.—(Afternoon.)—General Hamilton's Division engaged yesterday and to-day in forcing the Boers northward. At Houtney the Boer front held a line of hills commanding the sides of the Nek. The Canadians and Gordons attacked the hill to the left, and the Shropshires and Marshalls' horse, supported by a battery, also made an attack on the enemy, who eventually fled, leaving many wounded, and the passage was cleared.

The Boers on the mountains are now shelling the outlying camp, necessitating removal to a safer place.

The Boers have three guns on the hill to the eastward of this road, outside the range of the British artillery. The Boer shelling is not doing any damage. The enemy retain their positions, and the British are not attempting to dislodge them.

READY FOR AN ADVANCE.

Correspondent of the Times Says that Roberts is Now Ready.

London, May 2.—The Times has the following special from Bloemfontein, dated April 30.—Fighting is going on at Thaba N'Chu, but it is of a desultory nature, consisting of long shots. The whole front, however, is to be swept by the mounted troops, preparatory to definite forward movements, for which the force is now organized. The German engineer of the waterworks gives interesting information concerning the enemy. He was captured and taken to Kroonstad, but afterwards released. There very few Boers there, he says, but many mechanics and natives were employed in entrenching the position. It appears that the Boers had moved to Brandfont, where they hourly expected to be attacked. The burghers are confident that they can prolong the struggle until the British nation is weary.

The enemy had not calculated upon the fact that the valves removed from the pumps at Bloemfontein, and the impression prevailed among them that two months must elapse before they could be restored. Our recent reprisals are already having good effect, and an unprecedented quantity of supplies are now reaching Bloemfontein. One case has been discovered where, under one palm, five farmers, still on commande, have sent their stock to winter on a surrendered farm.

The Boers still hold positions a few miles east of Thaba N'Chu. A strong force under Gen. French and the light division under Gen. Rundle, occupies the hills surrounding the town. An exchange of artillery fire is proceeding.

BOERS MAKE A BOLD STROKE.

They Seize Winderton, Near Methuen's Line of Communication.

London, May 2.—The Boers have made a bold stroke by entering Winderton, which lies south of Warrenton and near the railway line from Kimberley. The object of the move is probably to interfere with Gen. Methuen's communications.

CANADIANS MOVE NORTHWARD.

They Now Confront a Force of Boers Led by Botha.

London, May 1, 1.15 p.m.—The War Office has received the following despatch from Lord Roberts:

"Bloemfontein, May 1.—Ian Hamilton marched yesterday in a northerly direction from Thaba N'Chu, with a body of mounted infantry and Smith-Dorrien's brigade of Clements' division (including the Canadians). At Houtney he found himself opposed by a strong force commanded by General Botha in person. Reinforcements reached this force during the day, and I directed French to strengthen him during the night from Thaba N'Chu. This he was able to do, as the number of Boers in the neighborhood of Thaba N'Chu had considerably decreased. In addition to these troops Hamilton should be reinforced during the day by Broadwood's cavalry and Bruce-Hamilton's infantry brigade.

"Hamilton mentioned that his casualties yesterday were about thirty."

"Maxwell's brigade of the seventh division yesterday occupied Viaksonters and Schuurkraal, a row of kopjes, without meeting with opposition, but the mounted infantry were engaged for some hours."

THIRTEEN BUTCHERED.

Mafeking, May 2.—The Boers are prosecuting the siege vigorously. H. H. the garrison is determined to hang out—at least until the date of relief fixed by Lord Roberts—May 18.

Three thousand Boers, with numerous guns, overtook the successful passage of this week's runners. Recent efforts on the part of natives to make a way through the lines have again proved disastrous. One party of 12, when attempting to leave the town on a bright moonlight night, were butchered.

TO TRY THE REBELS.

This will be the First Provision of the Cape Parliament.

London, May 2.—The Times has the following special from Cape Town:—Parliament has been summoned for June 2nd. The appointment of a judicial commission for the trial of rebels will probably be the first important subject raised by the Ministry. It is sure to provoke a keen controversy.

MANY MILLIONS SPENT.

The Cost of the Transvaal War, up to March 31 was £23,250,000.

London, May 2.—Replying to a question on the subject, the Financial Secretary to the Treasury, Mr. R. W. Hannburg, in the House of Commons to-day, said the cost of the Transvaal war up to March 31 was £23,250,000.

DECORATED FOR VALOR.

How Sergeant Parker and Gunner Lodge Won the Victoria Cross.

London, May 1.—A letter from Sergt. Parker, one of those just decorated with the Victoria Cross, describing the Sanna's Post disaster, is published here to-day. He says—"In galloping from the spruit my gun was overturned and every horse was shot. I got up with No. 4 gun, and we remained three hours under the most terrible fire. In five minutes I had lost two complete detachments, and only Gunner Lodge and myself were left to work two guns, he at one and I at the other. We remained at the two guns, loading, laying, and firing by ourselves, and brought both guns out of action by ourselves. We have been recommended for the Victoria Cross."

Pretty Hot Stuff.

Colonel Bob Simmons manages to keep his eyes open by consuming a plentiful supply of birdseye peppers, which a superintendent of one of his numerous Louisiana plantations sends him weekly. Did you ever eat birdseye? It is a quarter inch in diameter, shaped like a double convex lens, with a black pupil and dark brown iris. The hottest sauce known to man is made of it.

The colonel delights in offering one to an acquaintance and watching furiously to see the tears come. He tried three on me. I bolted them and smiled, for there was no present heat. In an hour, after they had scorched the walls of my stomach and their fierce fire had crept up my esophagus to the roof of my mouth, I was crying as a baby. Quantities of milk but increased the torridification. The throat was a crematory. Water cold as ice scalded. My sufferings lasted a night, and I prayed that the colonel might never go to as hot a place as I was.—New York Press.

HOME OF AN EXILED KING

BORDENTOWN, N. J., ONCE SHEL-TERED A BONAPARTE.

Joseph, the ex-monarch of Naples and Spain and brother of Napoleon, lived many years on the banks of the Delaware.

The little New Jersey village of Bordentown has the rare distinction in America of being the home of an exiled King. There for many years lived Joseph Bonaparte, brother of the great Napoleon and at one time King of Naples and Spain.

After the battle of Waterloo, where Napoleon was overthrown, he and his brother Joseph had a meeting on the island of Aix, a small, rocky dot in the Bay of Biscay, north of the Gironde river. They parted, never to meet again, and while Napoleon surrendered to the English, to close his career at St. Helena, Joseph, under the name of
M. Bouchard, boarding the brig Commerce for the American shore. Three times the vessel was searched by English naval officers, but she arrived, with "M. Bouchard" aboard, July 15, 1815, safely at New York. The fugitive King traveled for awhile and finally settled in the vicinity of Trenton, under the name of Count De Lervilliers.

EX-KING JOSEPH'S HOME.

It was an ideal, beautiful spot which Joseph Bonaparte purchased near Bordentown. The northern line of the estate is formed by a meandering creek and upon a steep hill overlooking the Delaware, known as Point Breese, the exiled King built his magnificent home, which soon became known to those who passed up and down the river. The rocky ground, cut up by numerous rav-ines, was changed to an attractive park; the ravine were bridged, pretty little arbors and pavilions were built, and an extensive swamp was deepened to a miniature lake. On one end of this lake a cosy white villa was erected for Charles Lucien Bonaparte, prince of Mugignano and Sanino, a nephew of Joseph Bonaparte, who had married the little daughter, Zenide.

Village bomp was very busy with the Count De Lervilliers, whose identity with the banished King of Naples and Spain did not remain a secret very long. It was said that he was in constant fear of abduction by British and Spanish emissaries, and that for such an emergency a labyrinth of subterranean passages had been constructed with a view to successful escape.

HIS HOSPITALITY UNLIMITED.

The hospitality of Joseph's American home was unlimited. The gates of the park were open throughout the year, and no visitors of decent appearance were denied admission by the keepers. Even the house itself was open to visitors, and its appointments appeared to the New Jersey farmers the height of royal splendor. Servants were always ready to show visitors through the apartments, which contained many costly articles of virtue from the Luxembourg.

Art had a liberal home in the Bonaparte house. In its picture gallery such masters as Rubens, Spuyder, Rembrandt, Joseph Vernet, Teniers and others were well represented, and the art treasures were open to all comers. These visitors were numerous and included not only all the prominent French exiles, but many famous Americans of the period. Webster, Adams, Clay, Commodore Stewart and
Gen. Scott visited the royal exile.

In the domestic circle of the Bonaparte mansion the wife of Joseph Julie Marine, was missing. She had remained in Europe on account of her health. The other members of the family were besides Charles Lucien and Zenide, Charlotte, the younger daughter of Joseph, subsequently married to Napoleon Louis, the brother of Napoleon III; Prince Lucien Murat, Francois Lacombe, subsequently consul general of France in New York; Guillaume Thibaud, subsequently earl of the Farnch gallerie in Rome, and Louis Mallard.

A PRINCIPAL SPENDTHRIFT.

have to support him. This will really eph Bonaparte, was a source of never-ending trouble to the exiled King.
The royal purse had to be bought into the question time and again to get the scapegrace out of tight places.
Finally Prince Lucien, along with a Miss Fraser, and Joseph declared that his aid could not be counted upon and whoever married his nephew would have to support him. This did really come to pass for, after Prince Lucien had spent the little property of his wife, the latter was forced to earn a livelihood for the two. This she did opening a boarding school for girls in Trenton. There Mme. Murat and her sister resided in the class-rooms and Prince Lucien in the dining room.
But the society of the shy girls, who scarcely understood his polite phrases, could not attract the idle fellow for any length of time. What the means for expensive sport gave out he killed time by playing cards in saloons.
Village gossip had it that he frequently played for the drinks, and that he was just as ready to tip the boy who held his horse with half an eagle as he was to borrow a quarter from a negro porter. When Louis Philippe permitted this profligate in 1848 to return to France friends advanced the traveling expense and the two boys of the prince wore suits which had been made out of an old coachman's livery.

RESEMBLED NAPOLEON.

Of all the members of the Bonaparte family Joseph resembled his great brother most in outward appearance.
The characters of the two were widely different. During one of the revolutions in Mexico a delegation of Mexico citizens visited Joseph and offered him the imperial crown. He refused with the remark that he had worn two crowns and that nothing in the world could induce him to accept the third.
Despite his long sojourn in America and despite the fact that he had acquired citizenship Joseph spoke only a broken English. But he was a universal favorite in Bordentown. When he left the place for England in 1832 the entire village population accompanied him to Trenton. Without the exiled King, whose generosity and kindness had won every heart, the village seemed desolate, and great was the joy when he returned after an absence of five years. But he did not return to stay. After settling the affairs of his estate he returned to Europe in 1839. He died in Florence in 1844, having been reunited to his wife.

THE TROUT LAKE (B.C.) TOPIC

Of March 31, commenting editorially on the high grade of the Lardeau ores, says:

"For instance take the 'Nettie L.' A hundred feet beneath the surface ore was exposed giving $14,000 to the ton. The 'Silver Cap' did not appear high-grade at surface, but at 93 feet rich ore was struck, and this property is now paying $145.00 to the ton. The Silver Belt, on Brown's Ck., was poor on the surface, but at the point where crosscut intersected the vein ore runs into the thousands. The ROB ROY, at the head of the North Fork, located near the great Lime Dyke, was considered a low-grade proposition from surface indications, but in the tunnel which exposed the vein at a depth, gray copper is showing up. Regarding this property and the section of which it is representative, it has been maintained that many of the Leads in and near the Lime Dyke were low-grade. But as a matter of fact none of them have been tapped at a depth with the exception of the ROB ROY, and here it has been demonstrated that the grade of the ore is very greatly improved, so it is reasonable to suppose that a like improvement in quality will occur when depth is gained on other claims on the same Lead."

ROYAL NAMES A HOODOO.

One of the Strongest Superstitions of the British Navy.

One of the very strongest and most ineffaceable of all superstitions in the royal navy, a superstition that is almost as strong today as ever it was, is that vessels bearing the names of royal personages are doomed to ill luck, and, strange as it may seem, there is an undeniable historic basis for this feeling.

Some of the most terrible disasters ever known in connection with our navy have concerned war vessels with royal names. Two vessels called the Royal James came to disastrous ends.
One of them exploded, and some 800 officers and seamen perished. The other ship so named was actually carried out of the mouth of the Thames by the Dutch Admiral de Ruyter under circumstances disgraceful to those in charge of the craft.

Then there is the forever memorable disaster to the Royal George, an unlucky ship previously, that turned over and sank in sight of crowds at Spit-head, over 1,000 souls, among whom were 308 women, being sacrificed. And second only to this hideous disaster is that which afterward befell the Royal Charlotte, which, after a career of much vicissitude, was consumed by fire off Leghorn, over 800 of the very flower of the navy perishing with her.

When in 1893 the Victoria, a new vessel and the very triumph of modern invention so far as naval architecture went, was rammed and sank at once in sight of the whole fleet and when hundreds of lives were lost, there was not a sailor, however matter of fact he might be, who did not remember the dire fate of the royally named craft.
These instances are only the greater ones. A score of smaller ones are retold off by every royal navy man.—Tit-Bits.

shipments of stock to the south. He

A Big Sale of Republic Stocks

THE FAIRFAX CO. OF REPUBLIC, J. J. Brown, Pres., With Manager

suit becoming known in Republic, a Mining Dept., through our agent, there, Tenny Angel, negotiated the purchase of $1,000 worth of Treasury's stock, the company had understood us to place a small amount of this stock at $1.00. Remember the Fairfax and Jim. Hill are less than 800 feet from the Mountain Lion, which is now $1.50 per share, and is an investment at that. The Fairfax at $1.00, is a speculation. Worth is to be pushed.

Mr. George Matthews, who has been in Ottawa for some days, says that there is much talk in the capital of an early dissolution of Parliament. A short time ago it looked as though the election would take place in June, but this is not now possible. The elections cannot now take place until after midsummer.

Mr. B. Record, of Ashburnham, is seriously ill with an abscess in his head.

BUSINESS MEN ASSEMBLE.

The Retail Merchants' Association Meet in the Y.M.C.A. Hall.

A public meeting was held in the Y.M.C.A. building last night, and was rather poorly attended. The chair was occupied by Mr. Robert Fair.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the Merchants' Retail Association, a number of leading merchants being present. Addresses were delivered by Mr. W. B. Rogers, President of the Toronto Association, Mr. G. E. Gibbard, and Mr. Thompson, Treasurer and Secretary of the Provincial Association.

The matters dealt with were principally those in respect to special legislation affecting departmental stores and trading stamps.

At the conclusion of the meeting, votes of thanks were tendered the speakers and chairman.

"The Strength of Twenty Men."

When Shakespeare employed this phrase he referred, of course, to healthy, able-bodied men. If he had lived in these days he would have known that men and women who are not healthy may become so by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. This medicine, by making the blood rich and pure and giving good appetite and perfect digestion, imparts vitality and strength to the system.

The non-irritating cathartic—Hood's Pills.

Committee Meet.

The Legal and Finance Committee met last night, when matters of importance came up. The legal committee wrestled with the town lawsuit matter, but it is said, arrived at no satisfactory conclusion in regard to it. The Finance Committee passed a number of accounts.

Signs of an Election.

The Liberals of West Peterborough are to meet in convention in the old business college, on Water street, on May 15th. There will be considerable interest in this meeting, as it is known that several are aspiring for the nomination, and it is for the purpose of selecting a candidate that the meeting is called.

Building Lots for Sale.

A number of superb building lots, beautifully situated in the town of Peterborough, for sale. This property belongs to the estate of the late Mr. John Tagney, and comprises lots No. 12 and 13, south of Macdonell and west of George streets, directly opposite the residence of Mr. T. Bradburn. The property is divided into nine building lots, which will be sold cheap, as the estate must be wound up. For further particulars apply to P. J. Tagney, or John Trombley, Peterborough, or to S. Tagney, administrator, Lindsay.

Death of John Bell.

After an illness of about six days, Mr. John Bell, of Otonabee, (near Downer's Corners) passed away. The deceased, who was well known throughout Otonabee and Smith, was in active and vigorous health a week ago, when he was taken ill with lung trouble and, heart complications following, the end came yesterday. Deceased was a native of Smith township, where he was born 74 years ago. His father, the late Matthew Bell, was one of the first settlers in the district, and the son lived in Smith until about sixteen years ago, when he went to reside in Otonabee. While living in Smith he married Fanny Neithercutt, who with two sons, Wm., of Smith, and Richard, of Bay City, survive him. Deceased was a Baptist in religion and a Conservative in politics. He never aspired to any municipal offices, but led a quiet, industrious life, respected by all who knew him and beloved by his relatives and friends, who now mourn his demise. The funeral takes place this afternoon at 1.30 o'clock, to Ray's cemetery, Smith.

An Interesting Case.

A rather interesting case was heard by Magistrate Dumble at the police court yesterday morning. D. R. Wright is a constable of the county of Northumberland and lives in Hastings, Wm. Dickson is a constable of the county of Peterborough, making his abode in Asphodel as a tenant of John Walsh. He and the landlord evidently did not get along well and on behalf of Walsh, Wright went to serve Dickson papers to quit. He says that he was assaulted by the Peterborough constable while thus engaged, but Dickson denies any violence and swore that he was milking a cow when Wright called upon him, and that he did not interrupt his occupation until the visitor was gone, when he saw no more of him. Each swore to a straight story, which exactly upset what the other man said. The case was dismissed. Mr. O'Connell acted for the complainant and Mr. Dennistoun for the accused.

Wedded in Ashburnham.

On Wednesday evening last Miss Florence Strain, daughter of Mr. John Strain, Ashburnham, was united in marriage to Mr. Arthur Whitley, at the residence of the bride's father. Rev. J. R. Moore tied the nuptial knot, in the presence of a number of invited guests. The bride was dressed in pure white and wore the conventional bridal veil, and looked charming. She carried a bouquet of roses, and was supported by her sister, Miss Clara Strain, who was becomingly dressed in white. The bridegroom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Robert Whitley. After the ceremony the company repaired to the dining room, where all regaled themselves with a superb wedding supper. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents. The newly married couple will take up their residence on Dickson street, Ashburnham. The Times joins in congratulations.

A New Building.

Campbellford Herald.—Mr. C. L. Owen has purchased the vacant lot adjoining the premises of Mr. James Waters, Frank street, which has a frontage of 80 feet and a depth of 185 feet, and upon it he is preparing to erect a fine brick residence. He has secured the services of Mr. Blackwell, an architect of Peterborough, who has prepared the plans and specifications which are now ready, and contractors are asked to tender for the erection of the building. Mr. Blackwell will also superintend the work, giving it his personal attention from start to finish until the building is ready for occupancy.

A Mistake.

An item appeared in yesterday's issue that may be misunderstood. It refers to the departure of Dr. Caldwell, of Apsley, for New Ontario. The word "Apsley" was omitted, and the result is that the item might be understood as meaning that our popular physician of that name is leaving town which, of course, is not correct.

The Town Lawmen.

By the statement of claim in the suit of Mrs. Sherwood against the corporation, the position taken by the Times in regard to the grade of the granolithic walk, is sustained. Why the sidewalk was laid so low down is a mystery. A correspondent said that it was in the interests of the contractors and that they were not placed higher up, and that the town authorities "stood in" with the contractors. The Times protested again and again, calling the Engineer's attention to the consequences which would surely follow, without the least effect. Therefore there is the tune, and of the town is much to the tune of a couple of thousand dollars and costs, we can with good grace exclaim, "I told you so."

Fire in Smith.

A fire took place in Smith on Tuesday night, the house and barn belonging to George Harvey, situated just east of the Red Mill, being destroyed, together with the household effects. Mr. Harvey and Mr. Evans barely escaped, the roof falling in just as they got out. There was no insurance.

Short Story of the Day

A COUNTRY GIRL'S ADVENTURE

I was a girl of fourteen at the time, living with my parents and two older brothers in the Western part of Wisconsin. Father owned a large herd of cattle, which instead of being pastured as cattle in the same district now are, grazed anywhere on the broken hillsides, or in the lowlands along the marshes.

Large tracks of good level land were also unbroken then, and grazing paid the farmers well. Each man kept his fields well fenced and the cattle ran at large. As my brothers were usually needed in the fields, I had to look after the cattle, and see that they were at home every night so that the cows might be milked regularly.

When the weather was fine this was a pleasant task, for who does not enjoy an evening ride in summer, over the hills and through the woods, with a cloudless sky overhead? However, the weather was not always the same, and when it took a change, my ride was altogether different.

One July day I remember in particular. The air seemed full of electricity. One thunder-shower followed another all day, and the lightning, instead of shooting around, came straight down with such bangs that we thought almost every stroke had hit the barn or one of the other buildings. Father would not allow any of us to leave the house that night, and the cattle starved out. Very early the next morning, however, I was up and off, for the boys had to open out the hay that got wet the day before. I started toward the favorite feeding grounds of the cattle, and soon came to the river bottom; then I followed an old trail down the river.

After going about four miles, and still not hearing the bell, I made up my mind that they had left the lowlands when the storm came on. I knew that if fear had driven them away, I should be likely to find them in the white-oak timber, about two miles south of the river. Cattle always find to the thickest woods, possibly, when frightened by a thunder-storm.

I turned my horse out of the main track, and followed a path to the left through thick patches of hazel-bush and around clumps of wild plum and gooseberry-bushes till I came to the woods we called "Fire-bush." Riding to the top and listening again, I found that I was right in my surmise, for here, where the breeze could be felt, I heard the bells quite plainly.

The country upon these benches was much different from the bottoms. There was no low brush, and the timber except a hickory or a monvorous white-oak. As I went forward I found the white-oak thicker, till, when about a mile from the river, I entered the heavy timber. I then judged the cattle to be a mile away yet.

I had gone a little way into the woods when I suddenly heard a queer, indistinct sound, something that made me think of ghosts in starched robes, it was so queer. I began to feel a creeping sensation, for there was not a moving thing in sight. Then the noise grew louder and changed into a faint humming, over, like a whirlwind into a coil field. The sun was growing hotter, but I grew colder, for the strange sound got louder, I could not make out where it came from. Even old Jerry threw up his head with a short alarm.

It seemed to me, alone there in the great woods, that I had never heard anything so awful as that humming, buzzing noise, which kept on getting louder and louder until it came right down on me, and then I saw what it was—a great, big swarm of bees on the wing. I had seen bees before but had never seen them making such a noise. My brother had bought a colony early in the spring, but they had not swarmed. He had also bought some bee-books, and subscribed for a bee paper, all of which interested me very much. As I studied, I grew anxious to experiment with his bees, to find out for myself if all the wonderful things that I read were true, but was emphatically forbidden to meddle.
